The preaching of the gospel to man, thus ignorant of his lost condition, calls for wise men; men who know their own hearts, at least; men who have been taught of God their utter helplessness before him; men who, realizing his fallen condition, can undertake his case with a certain knowledge of his wants, and an experience in applying the remedy.

But "who is sufficient for these things?" "How are the mighty" among us "fallen" in reference to these qualifications! How faintly do we realize that all of us are traveling to the solemn judgment; that we are almost there, and that most of our company must then be lost forever! We admit these to be realities. We attempt to declare them sometimes. But how weak our efforts. How tame our zeal. How feeble our voices. We do not try to alarm them, as in view of their danger. We simply tell them as though it were a matter of mere ordinary concern. We do not give them the alarm, because we do not feel alarmed for them. We have sadly fallen into their lethargy. We are bound by the same strong "spell," and are almost equally heedless with the thoughtless crowd, while we preach that we are just on the eve of the solemn judgment. We wonder that men do not believe these things. I wonder more that we show so little evidence that we believe them. We do not lack for men who hold them, but where are those who live them? We have a plenty to talk them, but where are those who feel them? Yes, there are a plenty who want to "get them before the people;" but who feels that woe is me if I do not preach them to the people?

This is no time to trifle with men. Their eternal interests hang as it were upon the decision of an hour. We profess to see them intruding upon the critical moment, and yet unsaved. We claim that we hold the remedy which they need, and yet we view the scene with shameful indifference. We are seeking to entertain them, when we ought to be laboring to save them. We are spending our time in efforts to convince others that we have got the truth, when we ought to be convincing our brethren of their sins of worldliness, covetousness and pride, and all men of the necessity of a preparation to meet their God, in view of the approaching judgment. The last great storm is coming, and it should be the burden of our minds with our fellows—not, have you those truths which we "hold in unrighteousness"? but, have you a shelter, a hiding place? Are you saved?

I. K. Lombard.

Bath, Me., Sept. 23d, 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

HYMN.

How glorious is the news—
Jesus will come again,
And take his kingdom from his foes,
And here forever reign.

Our lamps should all be trimmed,
Our vessels filled with oil;
The wedding garment we should wear,
Free from all earthly soil.

With joy we should prepare
To meet our King and Lord,
As he descends in yonder air,
His servants to reward.

Jesus, we love thy name,
We long to sing thy praise,
Where sin and death will never come,
Through everlasting days.

H. A. Arnold.

Gems.

— The moment a man gives away to inordinate desires, disquietude and torment take possession of his heart. The proud and the covetous are never at rest; but the poor and the humble possess their souls in the plenitude of peace.

— A hidden light soon becomes dim, and if it is entirely covered up, will expire for want of air So it is with hidden religion. It must go out. There cannot be a christian who in some aspect does not shine.

— Would you have no hatred, no anger, no love of the world, no pride, no malice, no envy, no revenge, no covetousness in your heart? Then get it filled with love and there will be no room for it.

— Where can an object be found so proper proper to kindle all the best affections, as the Father of the universe and the Author of all good?

— I know one thing—if I stand by the principles of truth and duty, nothing can inflict upon me any permanent harm.

— Guilt upon the conscience will make a feather bed hard; but peace of mind will make a straw bed soft and easy.

— True goodness is like the glow-worm—it shines most when no eyes except those of heaven are upon it.

— God has ordained that the soul of man shall never be at rest out of Christ. He only is our rest and our peace.

— He who receives a good turn should never forget it; he who does one should never remember it.

— God hath sown sweet seeds within us—seeds of symyathy, whose buds are virtues such as bloom in heaven.

— Write your name in kindness, love and mercy, on the hearts of those you come in contact with, and you will never be forgotten.

— Gratitude and prayer are always suitable and becoming, as we are ever in want, and God is always giving.

—Ceremony is always the companion of weak minds; it is a plant that will never grow in strong soil.

— The imaginary troubles are to us like the dissolving views of a camera; sometimes magnified a hundred fold.

— Like flakes of snow that fall unperceived upon the earth, seemingly unimportant events of life succeed one another.

— Practice flows from principle; for as a man thinks, so will he act.

— The good man's life, like the mountain top, looks beautiful because it is near to heaven.

— Life is but a trust; let us be careful in our dealings, that our account may be approved.

— If God has no need of our learning, he hath still less of our ignorance.

— No man has a right to do as he pleases except when he pleases to do right.

— A man may well bear his cross patiently while on the road toward his crown.

— Love your enemies, if you have them.

For the World's Crisis.

TOBACCO.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS USE IT?

The above is an important question, one that every professed lover of Jesus ought to consider with prayer and earnest searching of God's holy word. Is it right for christians to use tobacco? All admit it to be a worse than useless habit; it is filthy; it is unhealthy, rendering every one who uses it offensive to those who do not, and lays the foundation of disease and death, thus making its user a suicide. Can this be right? All will answer, No

God has placed us here in this probationary state, to prepare to live with him forever, and he always works by the use of means. He has given us some part of this world and says to us "Occupy till I come."—Luke 19: 13. Then is it right for us to take our Lord's money to use to gratify self, offend our brother, and destroy life? What says Paul? "But when ye so sin against the brethren, and wound their weak consciences, ye sin against Christ. Wherefore, if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend." —1 Cor. 8: 12, 13. How many who profess to love God are thus laying a stumbling-block in the way of others, by continuing to use tobacco after they profess to have given up all sinful customs and practices for Christ? Why not make an entire consecration to Jesus? Why not "present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy [not steeped in tobacco], acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."—Rom. 12: 1.

Were you called to appear in Christ's presence to-day, would you wish to be found there with a quid in your mouth and a plug in your pocket? Yet you often go thus, and God sees you every time you take the much loved quid into your mouth and roll it as a sweet morsel under your tongue; he sees you every time you take the money he has lent you to use for his glory and the salvation of your fellow men, and buy the poisonous weed with it, instead of using it to spread the truth, feed the hungry, clothe the naked, and sustain those called of God to preach the last message of the coming kingdom.

You, also, by your example are leading the young to use it. Think what vast responsibilities rest on you in this respect. You know its evils, the power of the habit when once contracted, and yet you profess to be one of God's children, one of Christ's disciples, one of those "who have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts," one of those who profess to sow not to the flesh to reap corruption, but to be sowing to the Spirit, expecting to reap life everlasting; and yet you are defiling your body with this vile stuff, and leading others to do the same.

What a fearful position is yours. You see, you feel, you know it to be wrong, and still you persist in using it. Beware! "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are."—1 Cor 3: 17. You know that you are doing wrong by thus misusing your Lord's money and misleading others by your influence; you know that you are sowing to the flesh to reap corruption, by thus gratifying a depraved appetite, one created by your own foolishness, not given you by an all-wise Creator.

Then why not give it up at once and forever, and be the Lord's free man? Why will you longer consent to be the servant of sin and Satan? "O," says one, "my appetite is so strong and I have used it so long, I cannot give it up." What would you think of a man who had been in the habit of using profane language, who should profess to be converted to God and yet continue to swear; and when asked why he did so, reply, "I know it is wrong, but the habit is so strong I cannot overcome it." You would point him to the promises of Jesus, "Ask, and ye shall receive." Matt. 7: 7. "If ye shall ask anything in my name, I will do it."—John 14: 14. "Physician, heal thyself." That same prayer of faith that will avail in the case of the swearer, the liar, or the thief, will avail in yours. Go right to the Lord; tell him all your trouble, ask him to help you to rise victorious over this trap of Satan, this snare of the devil, and depend upon it if you come in earnest, really desiring to be free, you will be made free indeed. Resolve that, with God's grace assisting, you will be free at once and forever,

Let there be no tampering with the enemy, no tapering off in this matter. God calls for every possible effort of all his children to aid in spreading, in every possible way, the truths of his word; and you have a part to act in this matter. Delay no longer but go to work at once, and be sure you do your whole duty, that when the Master comes he may say, "Well done."

S. Tenney.

MODERN CHURCH-GOING.

Coming in couples,
Smiling so sweetly,
Up the long aisle
Tripping so neatly.

Envying bonnets—
Envying laces;
Nodding at neighbors,
Peering in faces.

Whispering softly,
Heeding no sermon;
What they go there for,
Hard to determine

On all around them
Gazing benignly;
Wholly unconscious,
Singing divinely,

Prosy discoursing
Don't suit their whims,
Plain they assemble
Just for the hims.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

A GREAT SERMON BY A LITTLE PREACHER.

"Mayn't I go with you, papa? please say I may, wont you?"

The words were uttered in a plaintive and sadly entreative tone, the hands of the speaker clasping the knees of the listener.

It was a boy of seven years who lisped them; a beautiful boy, with fair high brow, around which there clustered a glorious wreath of auburn curls; with dark, flashing eyes; cheeks rosy with health; lips like the cherries of summer, and a voice like the birds which taste them. There were tears in those eyes at this time though, and the dimpled mouth was quivering.

It was a man of some thirty-five who listened to this plea; a man who had been of noble looks and princely bearing. Ay, had been! for the blighted truth was written over his form and face. His locks were matted, his forehead scowling, his eyes red, but not with tears; there were furrows on his cheeks, too, and a brutish look to the expression of his lips. Twice did the little boy address him ere he answered. Then pushing the child rudely from him, he said, in a stern voice, "No, no. It's no place for you."

Again those fair, small hands encircle the knees.

"You go, papa. Why can't I go too? Do let me go."

For a moment the heart of the inebriate seemed to wake from its sleep. He shuddered as he thought of the character of the place his pure-souled boy would enter. He took the child tenderly in his arms, and kissed him as of old: then putting him down he said kindly:

"You must not ask me again to take you there. It is no place for little boys," and seizing his hat, hurried from the room, murmuring to himself, as he paced the way to the brilliant bar-room, "and no place for men either. Would to God I had never gone."

For a long time Willie stood just where his father had left him: then turning to the few embers that faintly glowed on the hearth, he sat down in his little chair, and resting his head upon his mother's lap, said earnestly:

"Mamma, why isn't that pretty store a good place for little boys? Papa loves to go there."

It was a trying question to the poor heart-broken woman. She had so far kept from her son the knowledge of his father's sin. She could not bear that he should look with shame upon him, or that his pure and gentle heart should thus commune with so intense a grief. Kindly she toyed with his long ringlets for a while, then said endearingly:

"Papa knows better than you what is best for his little boy. When you grow older, you will learn why he does not wish to take you."

Then rising, she carefully put down her babe upon its little bed, and tied on her hood and cloak.

"Mind the cradle, now, Willie; I'll come back soon, and then you shall have some supper, and a nice fire to sit by too," and taking a basket of ironed clothes she went out.

A wealthy mother would have been frightened at the thought only of leaving so young a boy at night-fall all alone with an infant to care for, and an open fire to sit beside. But poor Mrs. M. knew well she could trust Willie with his sister, and as for burning up, there were not coals enough to thaw his fingers.

No, she did not fear to leave him, for he had thus been left many a time, and always carefully obeyed her. And he meant to now; but poor little fellow, his thoughts would wander to that brilliant corner store, whither he knew his father always went at evening, and his brain was busy with eager wonderings. He knew his father loved to go, and there must be something that he liked, for he never came home again till long after Willie was asleep. What lay behind those scarlet curtains was a mystery he sought in vain to unravel.

At length he whispered eagerly, as if to encourage a longing wish, "Papa used to tell me if I wanted to know anything very bad, to persevere and I would find out. Now I do want to know what makes him love to go there so; I know there must be pretty things behind those windows. I shouldn't wonder"—and his cheeks were glowing—"if it was like a fairy house. Why can't I go?"

Poor Willie! Temptation to know was too strong to be resisted; so he hunted through the closet for a candle, for he was a thoughtful little fellow, and would not leave his little sister to the only danger that could menace her. He found a bit of tallow dip, and lighting it, drew the stand close to her, that the flame might scare away the rats and mice should they sally out ere his return.

"I wont stay long pretty dear," said he, pressing a tender kiss on her sleeping lids, and drawing the blanket close over her fair arms. "No, I'll come back soon; but I do want to take one peep." Swiftly his little feet bore him over the pavement, and in a trice he stood before the curtained window.

"How light it is, and how they laugh and talk. It must be funny in there."

A cold, November blast swept round the corner as he spoke, penetrating his thin summer clothes, and causing his flesh to quiver, and his teeth to chatter.

"I don't believe they'd hurt me, if I should go in a while, I'm such a little boy, and I am so cold out here," he said, as he pushed the door carefully from him, slipping in and closing it without a breath of noise.

For a moment he was bewildered by the light and clatter, but finding that no one seemed to notice him, he stole toward the glowing grate, and spread out his purple palms before the blaze. The group of men that encircled the bar were drinking when he entered. Soon, however, they sat down their glasses and dispersed about the room.

"Halloo," said one in a loud tone as going to the fire he spied little Willie, "What are you doing here, my little fellow? Who are you and what do you want."

"I don't want anything only to see what you do here. My name is Willie M. My papa loves to come here, and it looked so pleasant through the window, I thought I'd come too. But I must not stay long for I've left the baby all alone."

The man's tones were softened as he spoke again to him.

"And where is your mother, boy?"

"O, she's gone to take home the wash, sir. Papa don't get as much work as he used to once, and we're very poor, and she has to help him now."

"And does it look as pleasant in here as you thought it would, my child?"

"O yes, it does, sir. I don't wonder papa loves to come here so much, it's so cold and dark at home. But I should think he would bring mamma and me, and little sis. How she would laugh to see this fire, and all these pretty bottles, and those flowers with lights in them. Please sir," said he earnestly, and he seized the rough hands of the listener, "please, sir, tell me why little boys can't come here with their fathers?"

"For God's sake do not tell him, Bancroft," said a deep anguished voice. "He deems me pure and holy. Heavens! What a wretch I am! My boy—my boy!" and Willie was clasped in his father's arms—"you have saved me from earth's vilest hell. Here, with my hands on thy sinless brow, I promise never again to touch the cup I've drank so deep. And my brothers in sin, as you value your soul's salvation, tempt me not to break my vow. Help me, heaven—help me men so to live, hereafter, that papa may never blush to take his boy along—that if papa goes there, Willie may go too."

Silently the door closed after them, and silence dwelt in the saloon behind them. The preacher had been there in cherub form, and crazy, loose, unholy thought, or light and ribald jest, was hushed. One by one they stole away, and many a wife wore smiles that night; nor did the old bar-tender even curse the little one that robbed him of so many dimes. Too deeply in his heart had sunk the voice of that cherub preacher.

"Don't you like me, papa? Are you cross at me?" asked little Willie, while they stood a few moments on the pavement; for the scene in the bar-room was an enigma to the child, and he half feared a reproof.

"I was thinking what mamma would like best for supper," said the father.

"Was you? was you?" was the eager question in a gladsome voice. "O, then, I know you ain't cross. O, get oysters, and crackers, and tea, papa; and a candle, because there is only a piece. And please, papa, tell mamma not to be cross at me 'cause I left the baby. I don't believe she will though, 'cause you wouldn't perhaps have come home yet, and she does love to have you home so much. Oh, I feel just like crying, I feel so glad."

"And I feel like crying, too," said his father solemnly; and ere midnight he did cry, and his wife; but they were holy tears, washing his heart of the dust that gathered on its beauty and hers of the sorrow that had draped it like a pall.—Christian Tribune.

How often will Jesus forgive?—"Jesus never gets tired of forgiving us, does he?" said a little girl of seven years to her aunt.

"No, darling, he doesn't. But how did you know that?"

"I didn't know it, Aunt Mary; but it seems to me Jesus is so very good, it must be so."

Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings God has perfected praise.

A Noble Resolve.—"I am going to preach the gospel," said Tommy.

"You will never know enough," said his brother.

"Then I will be good, and show them what God likes us to be," said Tommy, humbly.

"Yes, indeed: we can all do that. It is the best preaching in the world."—Well-Spring.

Never Begin.—"What is your advice to young men about smoking?" asked a young man of an old smoker.

"Never begin!" was the reply.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..................$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address......$5.50.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address........$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

Rules for Correspondents.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—Private.

Over all business matters, write—Business.

Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's Name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.

Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write Private on the outside of the envelope.

☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.

☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.

Payable always in advance.

Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 734. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1869. VOL. XXX.—NO. 8.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL, A. ROSS.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
D. MATHEWSON, H. V. DAVIS, M. BATCHELOR, J. G. HAMBLIN, H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

HEBER'S PRIZE POEM.

And who is he, the vast, the awful form,
Girt with the whirlwind, sandalled with the storm!
A western cloud around his limbs is spread,
His crown a rainbow, and the sun his head.
To highest heaven he lifts his kingly hand,
And treads at once the ocean and the land.
And hark! his voice amidst the thunders roar,
His dreadful voice, that time shall be no more.
Lo! thrones are set, and every saint is there;
Earth's utmost bounds confess their awful sway,
The mountains worship, and the isles obey;
Nor sun nor moon they need, nor day nor night,
God is their temple, and the Lamb their light.
And shall not Israel's sons exulting come,
Hail the glad beam and claim their ancient home?
On David's throne shall David's offspring reign,
And the dry bones be warmed with life again.
Hark! white-robed crowds their deep hosannas raise,
And the hoarse floods resound the sound of praise.
Ten thousand harps attune the mystic song,
Then thousand thousand saints the strain prolong—
Worthy the Lamb, omnipotent to save,
Who died, who lives triumphant o'er the grave.

For the World's Crisis.

ENDING OF THE 1335 DAYS.

Bro. Grant:—While at the late camp-meeting, held in Springfield, Mass, the greatest gathering I ever witnessed, I met a large number of old acquaintance, with whom I was familiarly associated in the early part of the Second Advent movement, and many even of my own children in the gospel; which, together with the variety of religious service on that occasion, rendered the session, as a whole, very interesting to me. In familiar conversation with many of the friends, I suggested to them that on a careful review of the 7th of Daniel, I had recently discovered what I conceived to be new light in relation to the time of the setting up of "the abomination that maketh desolate" (Dan. 12: 11); in 1335 prophetic days from which, the beloved Daniel is assured that "he shall stand in his lot" (in the resurrection state, of course). Some of them being deeply interested in listening to the argument, urged me to write an article on the subject, for the columns of the Crisis, and give others an opportunity to read what they themselves had received as truth. I did not say I would do it; but perceiving that Brn. H. Munger, John Taylor, and others, do occasionally speak through those columns on the same subject, without suffering the pain of seeing their articles uncourteously criticized upon by the Editor; and being just now confined at home with a wounded hand, I think I will, with your permission, attempt to gratify them.

In the 7th of Daniel, four great beasts are brought to view, explained by the angel in the 17th verse to be four kings, or kingdoms, that should arise out of the earth (universal monarchies); which all admit to be Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece, and Rome, the latter having on his head ten horns. Then Daniel inquires, saying, "I would know the truth of the fourth beast," etc., "and of the ten horns that were in his head, and of the other which came up, and before whom three fell" (see 8th verse); and the angel replies, saying: "The fourth beast (Rome) shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth;" etc., "and the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings [or kingdoms] that shall arise; and another shall rise after them, and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three" of those ten kingdoms. 24th verse. N. B. After this, or at that time, and not before, the saints are given into the hands of that little horn (the Papacy, or Catholic power) for 1260 years. 25th verse. By this means we readily see that our good brethren, who were looking for the consummation of their hope in A. D. 1867, were not strictly authorized to do so; because they dated the setting up of the abomination, and commencement of the 1335 prophetic days, at the passing of the edict by Justinian, requiring all men to embrace and confess the Catholic faith in A. D. 532; when, in fact, not a single horn had then been plucked up. And our brethren, who were expecting the coming of the Lord in 1868, were equally unwarranted in so doing, because they dated the "setting up" and commencement of the 1335 days at the crowning of the Pope Universal Bishop over all the churches, in A. D. 533, when only one of the "three horns" had yet been "plucked up," or subdued; viz., the Vandals in Africa (which was done of necessity to prepare the way for crowning the Pope that year). The Ostrogoth and Heruli kingdom, in Italy, still remained hostile, and having possession of Rome (the seat of the beast), would not allow the Pope to establish his seat there. But in A. D. 538 (five years later), after the shedding of much blood, Justinian succeeded in conquering those two kingdoms. Then, and not till then (to fulfill the prophecy), were three horns "plucked up"; and then the Pope, having nothing to fear, entered Rome, established his seat, and commenced his bloody reign. This manifestly completed the setting up of "the abomination that maketh desolate" (Dan. 12: 11), and the dear saints were then effectually in the hands of that desolating power; and, to fulfill the word so often repeated by Daniel and John, there they remained for just 1260 years; bringing us from A. D. 538 to 1798; during which time more than sixty millions were inhumanly martyred. On the 15th of Feb., that year—1798 (after a desperate war with France for several years) the Pope was dethroned, his Inquisitions destroyed, and himself taken into France, where he died a lonely prisoner the next year, A. D. 1799; and from that fall, thank the good Lord, the Popedom never recovered her civil power, so as to massacre the saints at her pleasure; nor can she ever have it again, for that ended the time Inspiration had limited to her.

For these reasons, I conclude that A. D. 538 must have been the time when "the abomination that maketh desolate" (Dan. 12: 11) was fully "set up"; and if so, the next two verses (being the last in the book of Daniel) tell the story. "Blessed is he that waiteth and cometh to the 1335 days," from the "setting up, say A. D. 538, which takes us to A. D. 1873, with the beloved Daniel in his lot; beyond which I can see no possible chance for extending them. If I know my own heart, I can truly respond in the language of the beloved John, and say, "Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus." Rev. 22: 20.

Very respectfully yours in the "blessed hope." Titus 2: 13. Sam'l Chapman.

P. S.—With respect to the "1290 days," Dan. 12: 11 (no where else found in that precious book), considering the connection in which they stand, I think they must have been given pointing us to "the time of the end," when the "seal would be broken." For, twice are we told in that chapter, "The words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end," when "many shall run to and fro, and knowledge (on that subject, of course,) shall be increased," and "the wise shall understand." Vers. 4, 10. Now let us add the "1290 days" to A. D. 538, when the Pope took his seat and entered upon his bloody reign in the city of Rome, and they bring us to A. D. 1828, when it is very manifest the seal was broken; for just about that time light began to shine on the inspired word, and quite a number of great and good men in different nations discovered that the conversion of the world theory was a perfect fable, and instead of that, the event to be looked for was the second coming of Christ, and that the time for that important event could not be far off.

Among the number of these great and good men were Dr. Wolf of Asia, the noted Mr. Irving of Scotland, and Father Miller in our own country. Here I will observe (though it may be sneered at by some), Dr. Wolf, having a penetrating eye, discovered light on the subject, say a little before the seal was fully broken (like as the breaking of day is manifest before we can actually see the sun); he was prompted, therefore, to give his first lecture on that important subject in A. D. 1823, and by the noted year 1828, he became a bold and very successful advocate of the doctrine; and so it was in 1828 with Mr. Irving; and Father Miller, in his book of lectures, dated 1842, says that "he had then for fourteen years given himself closely to the study of prophecy and history on that particular subject, and was then prepared to commit himself," etc. And now if we take 14 years from "A. D. 1842," they carry us back to the same noted year 1828; and without particularizing further, it is sufficient to say that since that time the doctrine has been proclaimed to earth's remotest bounds; and it has been blest of God to the awakening and conversion of many thousands of precious souls, some thousands, I trust, even under my own humble labors.

I have now said much more than I designed to say when I commenced writing, and yet think I must add a brief extract from Bro. H. Munger's letter in the Crisis of Aug. 18th. In writing on this very subject, he quotes from Father Miller's writings, making him to say, after he had shortened the "1290 days" (Dan. 12: 11) thirty years, to make them harmonize with the 1843 arrangement—"If the event for which I am earnestly looking does not occur in 1843, then A. D. 1873 will be the next and only reliable date for the termination of the 1335 days" (Dan. 12: 12, 13). Amen, so let it be. S. C.

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 15th, 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

HOLY.

Why think it a thing incredible to be holy, to be perfect, to be an overcomer? How many hold their breath at the thought, saying, It is more than I can be. Do you mean to say by this that the grace of God, or the blood of Christ, is not sufficient for you? We are commanded by Christ to be perfect. If perfect, then we shall be holy; not holy Gods, nor perfect angels, but holy and perfect christians. The law made nothing perfect, but the blood of Christ did, for without him nothing was made perfect.

What is it to be made perfect? James says, "Let patience have her perfect work." Why? "That we may be perfect, entire, wanting in nothing." Who would want a better definition than this? If we are doing the entire will of God, we are perfect. We notice that christians of every age, who did the will of God, were called "holy and beloved," "holy brethren," "holy women of old," "holy men spake"; and there is a time coming when the holy will have a part in the first resurrection, and "he that is holy will be holy still."

The trouble with many is, they put the words "holy" and "perfect" far beyond any earthly definition. It is written, "Be ye holy, for I am holy." Does God require more of us than we can be, or do? "Let your conversation be holy." Now this does not mean to get, or say things above every one on earth, but it simply means to let it be pure, divine, religious, sacred, clean; not foolish or filthy. Paul says, in Eph. 1: 4, "We were chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy, without blame before him." Are you to blame? Why not come up to the mark? Why be always telling you do not enjoy so much as you wish you did, and that you do many things you ought not to, and leave undone many things you ought to do? You run well for a while; what hinders now? Many a young convert has been discouraged by your shortcomings and leanness. Then why not come up to the standard? Christ is to present us blameless. In short, we are to be overcomers.

Jesus told his disciples, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world,"—I have conquered. Christ has asked us to overcome the world and all its evils, all its pleasures, all its fashions, all its honors and glories. Shall we say, We cannot now, but will just before we get into the kingdom? or shall we say, By his grace we will be overcomers now? Listen to Jesus in Rev., second and third chapters; six times he tells us to be overcomers. First: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God." Second: "He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death." Third: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth save he that receiveth it." Fourth: "To him that overcometh, and keepeth my words unto the end [not waits until he gets to the end], to him will I give power over the nations." Fifth: "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father in his throne."

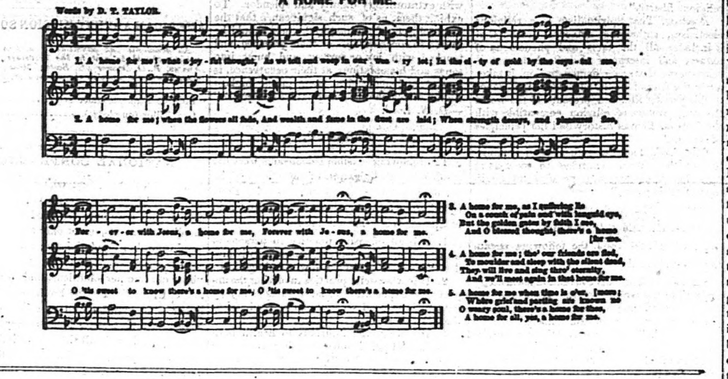
May the Lord help us to be holy, perfect christians, and overcomers of this world, that when he comes we may be found blameless.

Nancy D. Babcock.

East Greenwich, R. I.

A HOME FOR ME.

Words by D. T. Taylor.



OF LOVING JESUS.

His love to the Lord Jesus is the mark of a christian. He stands alone, distinguished from all other beings by this single, central peculiarity, that he is one with the Son of God in flesh. Lost till Jesus became his head to share his death with him, he is lost still but that Jesus shares his own life with him. If you could destroy Jesus, or, which comes to the same thing, if you could undo the man's connection with him, you would destroy the man. It is this strange position of his which generates, as the special mark by which the christian's character is to be known, a love which is like no other love. For closeness, for tenderness, for power, a christian's love to Christ ought to be unrivalled in creation. For closeness, because ther is betwixt these twain such intimacy that the One is everything to the other, and never can be for a moment shut out from confidential participation in the most sacred secret movings of the other's heart. No two ever dwelt in each other with such unbroken fellowship, soul unveiled to soul, as Jesus and the man whose life he is. For tenderness, too, because this is not an equal love, but the love of the little for the great, of the enemy disarmed and won over through the sacrifice of his wronged and offended Lord. We love him because he began to love us when we were unlovely, and washed us clean in his own blood, and wiped away our tears of regret, and hushed our fears, and raised us out of a low pit to be his friends and brethren. Ours is the love of the lowly, indebted, and dependent. Must it not be tender? And it is strong as it is tender. If there is strength in men at all, and love is, as people say, the strongest thing in men's hearts, then surely this must be the strongest of known loves. For it is the deepest. We love others with a part only, but Christ with the whole heart, and soul, and strength, and mind. We are attached to others only surface-wise, as it were, with a top hold that loosens and lets go when we change our countenance to go hence; but it is the very inner being, the life, which is given to him in love. It is not so much the man who loves, as his own strong spirit, who is entered into, and hath taken hold of, the human spirit, to draw it out christ-wards in unutterable drawings of devotion. We part with this love only when we part with our soul's life.

Being characteristic of the christian, this love forms the most delicate test of each person's relation to Jesus. It is never wanting in any christian. Born with the birth of the new creature, it is one of the earliest graces to come to strength. Just as in a little child, long before trust in its mother becomes intelligent, long before its will is disciplined into obedience, long before experience has taught it patience or self-control, long before it has regulated its zeal by prudence or widened its affections into brotherly kindness; in the very opening dawn of this little spirit, there rushes up the first-born virtue of infant hearts to overspread all the infant life, even love for her who bare and nurseth it: so, in very young christians, we see the flush of first love kindle their early experience, we hear them speak of the person of Jesus sometimes with a rapture almost unknown to older saints, and find them lying contented in his new-found arms with tender, grateful, and broken spirits. Apply any other test to these newborn disciples; their knowledge is rudimentary, their faith untried, their works not yet reduced to orderly holiness, their passions far from subdued to self-denial. At any other point, by any other test, they seem to fail; but try them with our Lord's own question, "Lovest thou me?" and you will see how the eye kindles and the voice deepens with the answer, "Yea, Lord, Thou knowest that I love Thee!" Throughout a christian's life this continues to be the most sensitive test. In all, holiness is gradual; in many, slow; in some, fitful, broken by terrible falls and declensions; and few will you find whose character is so consistently good, that there is no ugly fault outcropping somewhere to make you stumble. One is too fond of money, another of scandal; one is light-headed, another morose; one is full of excuses for doing nothing for Christ, another brags too freely of what he does. Even where the behaviour is decently blameless, who can tell whether the heart is godly? But one test, if it could be fairly applied, never could fail. "Lovest thou me?" goes down into the heart, to the very kernel of our religion, and fastens on the one thing needful. No unconverted man can answer that to satisfaction; there is no converted man who cannot. The humblest babe in Christ loves him; the deepest-fallen backslider loves him. No christian soul but quivers at such a question. First to come, last to go; this natural and simple attachment of the new heart to the person of its Savior tells most truly of the heart's relation to him. Hence I find Paul girdling the church of God with this girdle when he would speak a catholic blessing: "Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity;" that shuts none out who should be in. Again, I find he fences off the church with the same fence: "If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be anathema;" that leaves none in who should be out.

A test so perfect is to be used the more delicately in proportion to the difficulty of using it at all. Outward conduct is tolerably patent to the eye of every outside observer; but this question about the heart's love is not to be asked by any one except the Lord Jesus himself, nor to be answered anywhere except before his own truth-compelling presence. We must take care not to judge of ourselves in excited moments, under the influence of sermons or services; for there is a false, transient enthusiasm, generated by sympathy, which misleads. Nor will it do to depend on the satisfaction with which we turn to religious thoughts when the heart is sad, or when we are sick, or when disappointment has wearied us of the world; for there is a certain relief which may be got to the weary or the vexed spirit, by indulging vague ideas about the love of Jesus, which is idle sentiment, not love—a sun-gleam on an ice-cold surface, not a fire of affection. We must be scrupulously honest with ourselves, therefore, when we answer this question, and judge ourselves in solemn hours of solitary searching before God, when our sins are in our memory, and we feel his eye to be on us. Even under such cautions, it is not to be supposed that one ought to institute this examination often. Love is a shy thing, which thrives best when no one thinks about it. It grows up of its own sweet will, unseen, unconsciously in the heart's soil. It never bears rough handling, and sometimes will bear none at all. Besides, the love that must be questioned, if it love cannot be very strong. No man could preserve a deep attachment for any friend who should be forever taking his heart to pieces, and curiously asking if he loved him. We should think it a sign that dutiful affection were well-nigh dead out of a wife's heart who needed to put it to herself, whether she still really loved the husband of her youth. When Christ's Spouse shall have come to her perfect state of assured affection, she will hear no more the searching question of her Lord, "Lovest thou me?" But, meanwhile, we are all of us both feeble and faithless lovers. We do many things very inconsistent with our profession; many unlovely and unloving things we do to grieve and wrong him whom we call our highest, dearest, best. It was after three denials, black, base, and shameless, that Jesus asked his first apostle three times over, "Lovest thou me?" for each denial had cast fresh doubt on his oft-repeated protestation of peculiar and invincible affection. The suspected one had to be probed, and deeply, and often, for assurance sake, after such foul wrong done. Peter's fall, indeed, was so open and scandalous, that his restoration required to be done publicly, in face of his brethren. So may not ours be. Yet when we go apart into the presence of the Master, who has no secret declension, or infidelity, or disobedience to bewail? And the oftener any man has transgressed, or the more grossly, so much the greater need he has to hear carefully, and give heed to the voice which asks, "Lovest thou still? After all that, and that, and yet again that other, canst thou still say thou lovest me?"

For the answer to this question, we are sent, each of us, in upon himself. The Lord makes appeal directly to personal experience. Love to him is simply a matter of which one may be conscious, like any other love. It is very true that, practically, this love works as the motive-power in christian holiness; true, also, that this is to be the last test of the Judge, by which our love, like our faith, is to be tested after it has come to ripeness and wrought its perfect work. But when our Lord questioned Peter, he questioned a disciple who had as yet no works to show, but lies, and oaths, and treachery; questioned him after a love in the heart, underlying and surviving all that misconduct, and still felt so strongly that he at least could not doubt its presence. It is possible, therefore, to know love, not by its doings, but by itself. As a mere affection it is like any other love. A man knows when he loves child or wife. Put a mother in a prison-house where she shall neither see her infant nor be able to do for it one office of motherly duty, where her love can neither caress, nor toil, nor serve, but must lie bound in chains, a very idle, fruitless love; will it be so hard for her to know she loves? Will not the power of her affection betray itself all the more in absence and constraint by yearnings to be with the child, and brooding over its image, and restless thoughts that will not cease day and night? Bring her back her babe, and after the first gush of endearment has spent itself, ask her as she looks down on its sleeping face in the blessed calm of absolute content, ask her if she loves! No, love is its own witness. It is enough for itself. To know itself, it does not need to go out in active labor, but deep within the heart it can dwell alone, a fire unseen. Through how many years of life will it survive, without ever getting voice or outlet, a mere forbidden thing, buried alive in the heart's memories? I do not know. But I know of loved ones who dare not be named and shall never more be seen on earth, whom wide seas have severed from intercourse with friend or family for many a long year; yet love keeps its hold on the long lost, unforgotten image, and feeds inwardly on itself, and cannot die. That dear one will never come back to ask, "Lovest thou me?" But the heart, knowing its own love, does not need to ask itself.

Now, why should not a christian man be as sure that he loves the Lord Jesus? Our feeling towards him is quite as personal as to any other friend. To be sure we never saw him, and shall not, perhaps, for a few years to come. But what of that? Some of our brothers have seen him, and their accounts set him before us in a lively way. We are perfectly convinced of his existence and well aware of his character. We know what he has been and has done for us. Besides, no christian is without experience of him. Though he and we never yet looked each other in the face, we have had dealings with each other: he has communicated with us through messengers and letters; we have spoken to him a thousand times, and he has answered us; we have asked for gifts and he has given them. Nay more, we have a spiritual medium of intercourse which no other friendship enjoys, and are thus brought into the nearest possible communion; for by his spirit he dwells in us while his body is not here; and we by his spirit live upon his resources though we see him not. Why should we not know we love him?

Jesus Christ is not a myth, nor a mere name, nor an idea of the brain, nor the memory of a long dead and vanished personage; he is a living friend who in a most true sense is quite near at hand and very accessible indeed. In sober fact, there is no reason why any man should not be better acquainted with Jesus Christ than with any other friend he has. For, in his infinite condescension, the Lord Jesus permits us to begin at least on a very low and human level of affection. If at first, with the rudeness of our natural hearts as yet unspiritualised, we give him such love as we give our earthly brothers, such in kind, though stronger; if we transfer the passionate personal attachment which belongs to the flesh, from others to himself, rejoicing chiefly in his human sympathy and the blessings he has won for us; I think he does not complain, though such love is unworthy of him, but graciously accepts it. Yet he will by degrees train us into a purer and diviner affection; weaning us from this lower attachment to his manhood into adoring reverence for his Godhead, and teaching us to regard him less as the mere benefactor and more as the express image of the transcendent and everlasting love of God the Father. But whether there is in our love more of passion or of worship, whether it is colored by the flesh or by the spirit, it is perfectly natural for us to be aware of its existence. When we fix our thoughts on this Beloved One, the heart should be moved as by another beloved. By the tenderness that hangs about his name, by the outreaching of desire after him, by the lingering of the mind upon his image, reluctant to let it go, by the clustering of all hope and interest round his person, by the warmth which begins to melt the soul when his love is dwelt on; in brief, by all the indescribable emotion that stirs us in the presence or at the mention of a familiar loved one, we ought to know our attachment to his gracious person, and to be able out of the depths of our heart to answer with the apostle whom he questioned, "Yea, Lord? Thou knowest that I love thee."

Ought one not to shrink from so bold a declaration? There are people, and these not the worst of people, who are far too conscious of the weakness of their love and the multitude of their falls to allow even within themselves that they love Christ at all. It seems to their self-jealousy that there is presumption in a profession like that from a man who has just been loathing himself for the uncleanness of his heart. And there is room for suspicion and careful testing of self after grievous sinning.

The Lord himself insisted on putting the question thrice to the thrice-fallen. Still, it is not in the least impossible that there may be love, and much strong love too, even in the denier of his Lord. Suppose one finds it so; suppose the heart does echo to every repeated "Lovest thou me?" a repeated "Yea, Lord;" suppose a man is conscious, to do himself justice, of still really loving him, whom he grieves to have denied, and to whose blood he looks for pardon; is he not to say so? Must one stifle the heart's cry of affection, and do violence to one's own feelings, and deny with the lips what the soul affirms? Will the sacrifice of a burning heart to false modesty please the heart-searcher? I take for granted that we are in his presence and can speak, not as Peter did once, out of presumptuous self-boasting, but, as Peter did at last, out of penitent self-distrust; then why not take up, if it be true, Peter's good confession, and say boldly, though humbly, to the dear questioner, "Yea, Lord, Thou knowest all things; Thou knowest that I love thee?" Before we can get the length of saying that truly, however, there is one thing to be observed. Repentance must have wrought its perfect work. Humiliation and bitterness of soul for sin must have been pretty complete, before love will flow out unhindered and pure Peter wept bitterly on the night of the denial. He had a private interview for his humbling on the resurrection day. Once more, by the sea of Tiberias, the Lord would not accept his professions of love till he had anew brought his triple sin to mind and grieved him at the third time.

It is always so. Through penitence is love purged. Spare not the sorrow, therefore. Let it be remembered that, if repentance is bitter, love will be strong. It is so far from obstructing professions of love, that it is just one who has erred seriously, but has gone down thereby into the vale of humiliation, and passed through hours of keen regret and self-loathing, and shed scalding tears of vexation and disgrace, yet has, after all, been led to the pardoner's bosom, and got the kiss of forgiveness on his brow: it is just he who is ready to stand before his fellows and three times reply, in the assurance of tried affection, "Thou knowest that I love thee." The consciousness of loving Jesus never brims up in the heart so, nor runs over in such irrepressible tears and vows, as when a new act of contrition has been done and a new pardon got. Then is the poor soul glad to find its rest again, and see the cloud pass from the loved face, and lie low, yet near, in the recovered confidence of peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Then, when it has washed its feet and is clean every whit, is it ready to sit down with him, and forget toil and fight and danger of falling, forget the outside wintry world and snares of Satan laid in the dark, for the present joy of communion with him whom it loves. I wish we cultivated this warm penitent love that rests in its own conscious assurance, and is pleased to lie still and say, "Yea, Lord, thou knowest."

Religion which stops at feeling love without doing anything is one-sided; but so is a religion which undervalues silent, meditative love for the sake of bustling or showy activity. We have here something to learn from those christians, plentiful in other generations, who spent their days in ardent exercise of this grace, feeding the love-fire on their own hearts. To muse on Jesus till one's thoughts begin to burn within, and the fountains of the deep are stirred, and the soul overflows in lavishment of affection, thanks, and tenderness; to break thus the costliest perfume of one's heart on his feet who alone is worthy of it, is not very unlike that much-pardoned, much-loving woman in the gospel, nor very unfit for pardoned sinners in any age. Very good it would be did we now and then take our own hearts to task for their coldness; asking them, amid all our manifold duties, "heart, lovest thou Jesus? Why art thou never on a glow? Why so seldom even warm with love? What love is this of thine which wastes no alabaster boxes, is never lavish of its thanks, nor ever outgushes with any unrestrainable tenderness of feeling? Hast thou, then, been forgiven so very little, that thou canst give only the cold, decent proprieties of a circumspect and just man, who never was lost, instead of the melted, repentant love of a pardoned harlot, a returned prodigal, or a converted Peter?"—Sunday Magazine.

For the World's Crisis.

NOT COMFORTLESS.

"I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you."—John 14: 18.

These are the soothing and cheering words of Him of whom the prophet wrote, that he was "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." It is a part of that affecting discourse which our Savior held with his disciples just after they had eaten the passover. He had apprised them of the mournful scenes and events which were near; of the malice, cruelty and death which awaited him, and of the temptations and dangers which awaited them. "Little children, yet a little while I am with you"; and when he told them these things, hopes were smitten down with an overwhelming sorrow. Their hearts were troubled and afraid. Clouds of gloom and darkness seemed to gather thick around them and all their prospects. Jesus observed the melancholy and dejection which had seized them, and administered support and consolation. "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you."

It is thus the Savior while on earth spoke to his followers, when cast down and afflicted; and it is thus that he still continues to revive and strengthen them by the gospel. The religion of Jesus Christ does not chill the feelings and benumb the senses, but communicates life and warmth to them. As embracing the gospel does not exempt us from trial and suffering; neither does it beget indifference and insensibility to them. It does not forbid our sorrows, if we sorrow not as those that have no faith and hope.

One of the many causes of sorrow, which act powerfully upon us, is the removal of near and dear connexions by death; when a loving and beloved object is torn from our embrace; when a tender tie is broken; when one with whom we had taken sweet counsel, and long gone hand in hand down the vale of life, who had shared in our labors and anxieties, in our pleasures and pains,—when such a one is taken away from us, not to feel and mourn the loss would argue insensibility to the blessings, and ingratitude for the bestowment of them. In seasons when social and friendly bonds are broken; when the objects of our firmest and fondest grasp are forced from us; when those we love fade and fall, and all that made life desirable expires; in seasons of disappointment, misfortune and affliction, when sickness shows us the emptiness of the world, and death is approaching to thrust us out of it; to whom shall we go for support and comfort, but to Him who has "the words of eternal life"?

Mourning christian, hearken to the words of thy Savior—"I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you"; and also the words of thy heavenly Father—"I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." Let the darkness of earth turn thine eyes to the light of heaven. Careless sinner, are you living without faith, without repentance, without prayer; devoted, enslaved to the world; a stranger to the hopes and promises of the gospel? O, let me remind you of your guilt, ingratitude and danger. Consider how very soon you will want just such a friend as Jesus, to give you that peace which the world cannot give; to say to you, when sinking in the waves of trouble, "It is I, be not afraid"; to say to you, in your perplexities and forebodings, "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you." And if you would have such a friend then, oh, be exhorted to seek him now; now, while he may be found; and to call upon him while he is near. O, believe in God; believe also in Jesus Christ. O, hasten, and delay not. Awake from thy stupor.

What if thou art unknown and unnoticed by man, if thou art known and regarded by God? What if thy name be not inscribed on the rolls of earthly fame, if it be written in heaven and in the Lamb's book of life? What if thou art alone and friendless, if the Lord stands by thee to plead thy cause, and to deliver thee? Why dost thou fear? He that is for thee is infinitely greater than all who can be against thee. And he hath said, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee."

When Jesus was on earth, he invited all those who were in the most trying and painful circumstances to come to him. He sought out the poor, the sick, the afflicted, and said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." The world may forsake or forget thee, but the Lord will not. Thy friends may be false, but the Lord is faithful. Art thou in danger? the Lord will protect thee. Art thou a mourner? he will comfort thee. Art thou sick? he will sustain thee. Art thou poor? he will supply thy need. Art thou sinking under the weight of years? lean upon his arm of mercy, and he will hold thee up. He hath strength for all thy weakness, balm for all thy wounds, consolation for all thy griefs.

O sinner, put your trust in God. Come to Jesus now, before it is too late. Jesus is coming soon. O blessed thought! I long to be there. And the thought that it is near makes me almost impatient for Christ to appear. Mannie L. Green.

Charlton, Mass.

Schools in Palestine.—Bishop Gobat, of Jerusalem, is in London, and awakening interest in his mission work in the Holy City. He stated at a meeting that he has established in Palestine alone, twenty schools, containing one thousand pupils, among whom there are Jews, Arabs, Abyssinians, Copts, Moslems, Druses, etc. One of the most interesting students now in the Jerusalem Diocesan School, is an Armenian Archbishop, named Mekkerditch, who, convinced of the errors of his church, has left it, and is now learning English, with a view of acquainting himself with English theology and literature.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, Nov. 10, 1869.

Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

Money Orders.

Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis, we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber has his or her name, with the date of the month and year to which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or on the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

THOMAS SMITH—Money order received. You can send in this way.

MRS. HANNAH FLINT—The date on your paper is 6 Sept. 71.

M. G. S.—It will be forwarded the 13th inst.

F. H. CARPENTER'S P. O. address is now North Springfield, Vt.

THE NATIONAL CONFERENCE.

The National Conference, which is to commence at Rochester, the 17th inst., will be a meeting of much importance; and we would urge our readers to pray earnestly that the Lord may direct in all the deliberations, so that his name may be glorified; and that means may be devised to spread the gospel of the kingdom with renewed energy and success.

DISCUSSION IN NATICK.

We have just closed a very interesting discussion with Prof. Lummis, in Natick, Mass. Bro. Lummis is the Methodist minister at Natic, and reported to be a fine scholar, having much experience and skill in discussion of knotty questions in theology and science. He is a sharp critic, and an interesting speaker. Our discussion began Monday evening, Nov. 1st., and continued three evenings, in Winch's Hall, where Bro. Lummis preaches. Large, attentive, and intelligent audiences were present each evening. Our friends were delighted with the results. Several were led to see the truth, and rejoice in the light more than ever before.

We discussed the following question: "Is literal death the penalty of the divine law for sin?" Bro. Lummis made the following admissions: "I do not maintain that man has an immortal soul; nor that the soul is identified with the spirit; nor that the soul of the good goes to heaven at death; nor that the soul of the wicked goes to hell at death; nor that sheol or hades is the place of final punishment." "I claim no life when the body and spirit are separated." "Life is the result of a union of forces." There is no life where there is no organic activity." He then made the following strange assumption: "There may be consciousness where there is no life." We pressed Bro. L. for proof of this assertion, but it was not presented. We thought the reason was apparent—there was no proof to be given, because the assertion involved an absurdity.

Bro. Lummis manifested a kind spirit, and appears to be quite free from sectarianism, being willing to fellowship all who truly love Jesus. We enjoyed the discussion, and the audience expressed much satisfaction with their entertainment. To us the truth never looked more blessed. Bro. Lummis took the position that Adam's penalty was moral death, and that "the second death" will also be a moral one. We claimed that moral death is a crime, and never a penalty; that whenever death is a penalty, it is always literal; and as "the wages of sin is death," it must be literal death; and further, that when Christ tasted death for man, it was not moral death, for he was without sin. We found the Bible very clear in its declaration, showing that all the finally impenitent will for ever cease to exist as conscious beings, and be found no more at all.

Prof. Lummis claimed that man and all animals have a spirit that continues conscious after death. When we quoted from Job and Eccl., he endeavored to impeach both, and said his own intelligence was as much a revelation as any other revelation. This statement was cheered by infidels and Spiritualists. At the close of this discussion, it was proposed that the audience have the privilege of asking the disputants questions, to which we mutually agreed. After several questions had been put to each of us, an intelligent man arose, and made the following inquiry of Prof. Lummis: "If the Bible sustains Spiritualism, why do Spiritualists deny that it is divinely inspired?" As the Prof. did not see the point in the question, by his request it was thrice repeated; when the questioner said: "I am a member of your church, but I find you all on the side of Spiritualism, advocating their sentiments." This statement produced a thrilling sensation in the audience, and it was evident that many agreed with the questioner, and were glad that he had the courage to stand up, even against his own minister, when he ventured to impeach the Bible writers for the sake of sustaining his fabled position, that man and all animals will never be unconscious.

It is a cheering thought that the time is coming when sin will be "finished," and none but the pure and the holy will live eternally. Our prayer is, that the eyes of the people may be opened to see the wide difference between the Bible doctrine and popular theology.

"YOU MEANT ME."

It sometimes happens, when the preacher has been faithfully doing his duty in pointing out the sins of the day, which have crept in under the cloak of religion, that some one takes offence, and says the preacher "meant me." Some one has been telling him all about me, and he has been mean enough to preach at me all the forenoon. This offended man is sure the preacher got his information from the brother where he stopped, and, consequently, feels very bitterly towards him for exposing his faults. But when the facts are known, he finds that the Lord, and no one else, led the preacher to take up the subject; and then by his Holy Spirit sent the message to the heart of the erring one on purpose to arouse him to a sense of his danger, in order that he might be led to reform and be saved. It was all kindness on the part of the Lord.

THE DEVIL'S COUNTERFEIT.

Christianity is so low it is quite easy for the Devil to pass his counterfeit systems of religion. His most successful is his last, which is Spiritualism. This system of lies and fables he is managing with great skill, and has succeeded in causing many backsliders and infidels to believe that it is the pure christian religion; and that his lies are the truth. Some of his followers have just started a new paper in Hammonton, N. J., called "TRUTH." No seducer ever worked with more craft and fiendish cunning to lead the virtuous into vice, than do the demons and their followers to lead men and women away from the Bible, Jesus, and a pure christianity; and yet, at the same time, profess to be reformers, and to be doing just the thing that will elevate the human race. They talk well, but their system is that of "the antichrist." God and Jesus have no place in their system, only on the same principle that a seducer talks of virtue to his victim to gain her confidence, till she is under his vile control.

The following is a part of the Prospectus of the paper to which we have referred:—

"TRUTH."

A New and Live Paper devoted to all true reforms and the "Good Time Coming."

To the "Coming Church," and a religion of practical righteousness.

To earnest, unceasing war on corruption, in high as well as low places.

To the rights and dignity of honest industry, and the eight hour system.

To new and heroic efforts to put down tippling and the "Social Evil."

To the "Coming State" that puts down all "Monopolies, Rings and Robbers."

To the "Coming Man," who will tell us how to put all these into practice.

To the "Coming woman," her just rights, true sphere and mission.

To the "Coming Child," its rights, duties, education, culture and development.

To the "Coming Invention," its transcendent importance and beneficent effects.

To the "Coming Conflict," its cause, nature, actors and results.

BLASPHEMOUS.

Prof. Denton, a noted lecturer on Geology—a Spiritualist—recently gave a lecture in Granite Hall, Chelsea, before a large audience. His subject was:—"What shall we do to be saved?" The reporter says of his discourse:

"After proving satisfactorily, to his own mind, that the christian doctrine of salvation through Christ was a delusion and a snare, the lecturer indulged somewhat eloquently on what science and education had done and were to do for the world and mankind, abolishing sin, heaven, hell, and all. Taken together the lecture was a curious affair, and we found ourselves wondering wherein an audience could be edified or interested by such."

Men who can talk like Prof. Denton, and sneer at salvation through Christ, are becoming more popular every day. Once such men would have been taken up for blasphemy; now crowds listen to their blasphemous talk with eager delight. It suits the spirit of the times to hear such things. The devil is reaping his harvest now, but it will soon be ended by the coming of the Just One.

NAPOLEON'S POLICY.

The arch Emperor of the French has been devising means to have the French coin adopted by all nations. This would be an important point gained in his favor. There are good reasons for believing he may yet be successful, as is shown by the following:—

"The Hon. Mr. Ruggles, when he was abroad in 1867, but represented a general feeling in America when he took such an interest in the international coinage question; and the English, who were a little offish on the subject at the time, now show themselves disposed to be agreeable to any arrangement that may be mutually agreed upon. The Chancellor of the Exchequer recently stated it as his opinion that England would be much the gainer by adopting a French coin of twenty-five francs in place of the sovereign, because French gold is now in such universal use in Europe, and because the American eagle and the British sovereign would need so little change as to be of the same value. France now has a double standard of values—gold and silver—the latter of which she would, of course, have to give up in case an international arrangement should be entered upon. The franc coinage was considered with general favor in the congress of twenty nations at Paris in 1867, and Greece, Austria, Rome and Sweden at once adopted it as their standard. . . ."

PRINCE NAPOLEON is said to be "an open Atheist, and around him brood the worst passions." He is thought to stand next to the Emperor in France.

SAYINGS OF SPIRITUALISTS.

It is true that Spiritualists speak like the old Pagan Dragon. They had their third annual convention at Topeka, Kansas, Oct. 1st., 1860, and resolved as follows:—

"That it is the sacred duty of all the friends of Spiritualism, to guard their children against the stultifying and demoralizing tendency of theology, and to inspire them with more rational and practical ideas of God and immortality."

"Resolved, That the people of this world are incapable of elaborating a true philosophy, or a national religion, without assistance from the spirit world."

"Resolved, That we will oppose by our voices and our votes, the engrafting upon the constitution of these United States, the recognition of any particular God, Bible, or Savior, and that all attempts to do this by any convention or ecclesiastical combination, should be denounced by every true lover of religious liberty."

Resolved, That Spiritualism is a religious electicism, embracing universal truth; that it includes all the facts and phenomena of nature, and interprets them to human consciousness; that, as a demonstration, it takes away the fear of death, adds new significance to this present life, and presents to the world the only system of religion compatible with the facts of human history and the principles of science."

"Resolved, That the refusal of the ministers of the various churches to meet us in open, honest discussion, is proof of the weakness of their cause."

At the third annual convention of Spiritualists in N. H., held at Cook's Hall, Plymouth, Sept. 24, 25, 26. 1869, the following resolutions were passed:—

"Resolved, That this convention is earnestly opposed to the reading of the Bible and the practice of offering up sectarian prayer as a part of the exercises of said schools."

"Resolved, That this convention views with concern the fact that a large majority of the children of this state are under the influence of the Sunday schools of the so-called evangelical sects, where they are taught to despise their own natures, and to believe that their God hates them, and that they can only be at peace with him through a creed and bloody atonement."

"Resolved, That the fear of God is the beginning of folly."

As the Spiritualists gain power, they grow more defiant against all that is Christlike; and yet, at the same time, profess to be the only true christians. Spiritualism is the capstone of Satan's work, and is the ripe fruit of a belief in the natural immortality of man, as taught by the deceiver in the garden, when he said, "Ye shall not surely die." Thank the Lord, that lie is now being exposed. Let those who see the light speak out boldly, and yet kindly.

PUNISHMENT OF THE DEVIL.

BRO. GRANT:—I have had it on my mind for some time to write you a few lines, to get a plain and full explanation of Rev. 20: 10:—"And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where the beast and the false prophet are." It seems they are there now, and were when this was written. Please answer this in the Crisis as soon as convenient, for I shall sail for a three years voyage the 20th of this month. Your brother in Christ, looking for his coming and kingdom." JOSEPH H. RANSOM.

Mattapoisett, Nov. 3d, 1869.

In the 19th chapter of Revelation, the beast and false prophet are said to be "cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone." Rev. 19: 20. Is it reasonable to suppose they could live in such a lake? The Scriptures declare that they will be burnt up root and branch, and "be as though they had not been." In Matt. 3: 12, we read that Jesus will "gather his wheat into the garner, but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." Where will he burn it up? In the lake of fire and brimstone, as mentioned in Rev. 19: 20, 20: 15, 21: 8. The devil is to be destroyed in the same place.

In Rev. 20: 10, where it reads in King James' version, "where the beast and false prophet are," it will be noticed that the word are is supplied by the translators. It is not in the original. In Wm. Tyndal's version, which is the first printed in English, it reads, where the beast and the false prophet were." It appears from comparing Rev. 19: 20 and 20: 10, that those represented by the beast and false prophet were "cast into the lake of fire" and burnt up before the devil is cast there.

After the devil is cast in, his torment continues only during the present "day and night" arrangement. Job says the Lord "hath compassed the waters with bounds, until day and night come to an end."—Job 26: 10.

The term "for ever and ever" cannot mean eternally, because the word aion, rendered "for ever," is frequently in the plural. There can not be two or more eternities. The word does not express any definite period of time. It is used in the Bible some two hundred times in a limited sense. When Jonah was in the whale's belly three days and nights, he says it was "forever." It signifies the longest possible duration of that to which it is applied. As one for ever is a limited period, two for evers can not be eternally; inasmuch as two finites can not make an infinite. The "for ever" in the case of the devil's torment is limited by the present day and night arrangement. When we come to the new heavens and new earth described in Rev. 21st and 22nd chapters, the Revelator says: "There was no more sea." Rev. 21: 1. At that time, the present day and night arrangement will be ended, and with it the Devil also. So let it be. Amen.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

It is not common in these days for men to decline the honors of the world. We confess that we feel extra esteem for those who refuse to be called Rabbi. The following is an interesting item:—

"Pres. E. H. Fairchild, of Berean College, declines the degree of D. D., conferred on him by Hillsdale College. He protests that he felt some as he does when an agreeable traveling acquaintance offers him a cigar or a glass of wine. He is thankful for the intended kindness. He does not enjoy administering the rebuke implied in the refusal, and he wonders how it was that he was not recognized as a total abstinence man. He adds: 'Having opposed such titles by precept and by practice for thirty-five years, as a matter of principle and of taste, I cannot now with self-respect accept the honor.'"

We learn that this same Bro. Fairchild believes in the destruction of the wicked, and the final end of sin; also Prof. C. P. Griffin, Pres. of the Commercial College, in the same place.

HADES.

The following from D. N. Lord, a very able theological writer, is worth saving:—

"Hades, the world of the dead, is not capable of acts and conditions that correspond in any manner to those which are here affirmed of it. It is addressed as though it were an intelligent agent, and the keeper of the dead; and it is in that character that they are ascribed to it.

The figure is thus one of the most lofty and beautiful that the fancy employs, and invests the event it is used to exemplify and adorn with extraordinary dignity and splendor. To exhibit them, as of such significance that the great objects of the material world should be roused to consciousness at their presence, and touched with joy or sorrow, and burst into songs and lamentations at their occurrence, is to exalt and aggrandize them in the highest degree of which the imagination is capable." —D. N. Lord.

TOBACCO.

The following sensible conclusions were the result of an examination of the effects of the use of tobacco, as presented at "the Presbyterian and Congregational Convention," held in Sparta, Wis., this autumn:—

1. It is an offensive practice to persons of neatness and refinement, and consequently hinders the usefulness of those who indulge in it.

2. It is a wasteful practice involving the unprofitable expenditure of large sums of money for which no good account can be rendered to the Lord of all.

3. It is a practice injurious to health both of body and mind, tobacco being a narcotic poison which acts directly upon the brain and whole nervous system.

4. It is a practice of injurious moral tendency, fixing the habit of self-indulgence, and producing a perverse appetite for stimulants, which leads directly in very many cases to indulgence in intoxicating drinks.

5. It is a practice of mischievous example to our youth.

For these reasons we do most earnestly exhort all brethren in the convention and members of churches and congregations, wholly to refrain from this evil practice, and all who have unfortunately become addicted to it, not to remain in its bondage, but to honor the claims of virtue and of religion by breaking its chains. And we request ministers, members of this convention, to present this our testimony to their congregations, and to diffuse information on this subject in such ways as shall seem to them discreet and effectual.

Will not every reader of the Crisis say amen? If the reader uses tobacco in any form, do be entreated to leave it at once. Did the tobacco users know how their influence for good is injured by this habit, we feel confinent they would quit it at once; especially preachers. Do quit it at once, and ask the Lord to help keep the body under. Every christian man should break off all bad habits, lest his example strengthen the sinner. The example of the minister has a powerful influence for good or ill. Those who preach to others should be ensamples to the flock in all things.

FAIRS AND FESTIVALS.

This is the age of church fairs and festivals. It is astonishing to see to what extent these scenes of amusement and fashionable fun and frolic are carried. The whole thing is of a worldly nature, and very far removed from pure christianity. It is the world varnished with a little formal religion, just enough to give it a gloss, like starch in cloth. The whole fabric is of a worldly character, and the religious gloss is easily removed. The following is a sample:—

"A very successful fair is going on at Crosby's Music Hall in behalf of Murray Chapel, at which are many and varied attractions. Among other things may be found a Gipsy Tent, a Voting Booth, a Board of Trade Booth, together with musical and floral accompaniments. Dinner and supper may also be obtained at reasonable rates. This evening Mrs. Perrin, the gifted elocutionist, will read several selections. Everybody should go."

THE ADDRESS OF ELD. J. COUCH,

Delivered before the Advent Christian Association at its late meeting, published in tract form, is now ready, which the friends can procure free at the Crisis office. When ordered to be sent by mail, please enclose stamps to pay postage. AG'T.

"THE HOPE OF THE CHURCH."

By Henry Dana Ward.

A most eloquent, interesting, and profitable work. A history of the doctrine of the Millennium. Price 25 cts. By mail, 30 cts.

"ADVENTISM.—Its Relation to Theology."

By William Sheldon.

This considers the relation of Adventism to Theology, omitting the portion of the original work treating on prophecy. Price 25 cents. By mail, 30 cents.

The above works are published by the W. A. C. P. Association. For sale at this office. AG'T.

THE JEWISH MESSIAH.

Our friends of the Hebrew faith will doubtless feel much interested in knowing that certain strange developments, according to the Austrian newspapers, have manifested themselves in Jerusalem. These developments refer to the coming this year of the Jewish Messiah. The story, as told, is certainly singular enough. It appears that the Rabbi of Paks, a town in Hungary, has received letters from Jerusalem, which state that towards the end of last month a column of fire was seen near the ruins of Solomon's temple, and that a strong voice was heard which addressed itself to an Israelite who was worshiping there at the time. This voice warned the devotee of the coming this year of the Messiah, and declared that the Israelites should repent, and be more observant of the religion of their fathers. The man so addressed went to the city and spoke prophetically of what he had heard. Thereupon the people treated him as an impostor, and some even went so far as to seek to take his life, but he, as if miraculously endowed with more than human strength, fought hundreds of his assailants, and when, afterwards, a battalion of soldiers were sent to arrest him, baffled them in their efforts to capture him.

Two Israelites, the Hungarian journals say, have been dispatched to Jerusalem to learn the exact facts of this extraordinary affair. It is clear that if not one of the race of prophets, the man who, as above narrated, opposed the host of enemies, must be an athlete of no small pretensions.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, September 21st, at the National Campmeeting, it was

Resolved, That we raise THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the Tract Fund the ensuing year.

It is proposed to raise this amount during the year for the publication and free distribution of tracts. The value of these little preachers in the work of enlightening and saving men from darkness and death can hardly be overestimated; and the generous and liberal stewards of the Lord's money are earnestly invited to contribute according to their ability in aid of the good work. Send on your dimes and dollars, brethren, with a liberal hand, and receive, by and by, the reward of the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec. Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$105.04
L. G. Phillips	.25
Mary Gove	.75
Henry Wormer	.25
Jonathan Hall	4.00
F. H. Burbank	2.00
"H."	1.00

AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All donations and payments of pledges for this Society, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$175.50
Geo. Tilley (on pledge)	100.00

For the World's Crisis.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE.

Brethren from abroad coming to this conference will not expect great things of us, though they may hope for good things in the Lord's order. Come not only to be administered unto, but to administer; also, come not only to get good, but to do good; also to "bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." Let the brethren and friends living near here, as well as others who may have it in their hearts, do what they can consistently to share in all the responsibilities and duties, as well as the privileges, of this great national gathering. In behalf of the committee and conference, S. L. MANLEY.

Rochester, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

MILLVILLE, MASS.

I have long been praying that there might be an interest awakened here in Millville, but the prospect has looked very discouraging until within two or three weeks. God is hearing prayer, and the good work has begun. Several, who have long been in a backslidden state, have returned to Father's house, and are laboring zealously to advance the cause of truth. The brethren and sisters at Slatersville have joined with them, and regular meetings are now established at the house of Bro. Wm. Boyden, every Sabbath afternoon, and Wednesday evening. They have as yet had no preaching, except what little I have done. Preaching brethren passing through this way are invited to visit them. You will be gladly received at any time, and I think you will see good resulting from your labors. Correspond with Wm. Boyden, Millville, Mass.

C. H. SWEET.

For the World's Crisis.

N. Y. STATE MISSION TENT.

During the present season, we held meetings in the tent in the following places:—Yorkshire, Springville, Baptist Hill, and Hemlock Lake. At Springville, we held a discussion with Prof. Rogers, on the state of the dead and the destiny of the wicked, which commenced Monday evening, and closed the following Sunday evening. The discussion passed off very pleasantly, and the truth of God did not suffer by being put in the crucible. After closing my tent-meetings at Hemlock Lake, I went to Napoli, Cattaraugus Co., where I occupied the new and commodious house built for the M. E. church, where I delivered some twenty discourses, and planted seven willing souls in the likeness of Christ's death. At the close of each meeting during the campaign, we parted from loved ones with tears. Yes,

"Here we meet and part again,
As round and round we roam;
But there we'll meet and part no more,
And sweetly rest at home."

J. WENDELL.

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE FRIENDS OF MISSIONS IN MAINE.

At our annual conference, held last January, it was voted that we endeavor to raise five hundred dollars the ensuing year for missionary purposes, and that the preaching brethren be requested to solicit contributions for the above named object. No funds have yet been forwarded by the treasurer. Will all interested in this matter do what they can to help the mission cause at once. There are a few tracts in my hands, which can be had cheap by those who wish to purchase, and free to those unable to buy. Who will order these silent, but effectual workers, and keep them on the wing for good?

R. R. YORK, Treasurer and Tract Ag't.

Portland, Me., Oct., 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

CAUTION.

BRO. GRANT:—I wish you to caution our friends at the east against contributing money to an impostor, who has assumed my name and circumstances, and has swindled some of our people out of various sums. I have not been out of the State of Wisconsin for more than two years; and furthermore, our friends can rest assured that, if I visit them, although poor, and physically helpless, I will never beg.

Your Bro. in Christ, GEO. THOMSON.

Attica, Wis., Oct. 29th, 1869.

THE ISRAELITES.

For years, a paragraph something like the following has occasionally traveled the rounds of the papers:

"It is an article of faith with most Israelites that their race will be gathered together in the land of their forefathers, the temple of Jerusalem will be rebuilt, and then the Messiah will come. An organization has been in regular operation in this country since 1864, for the furtherance of this traditional Jewish idea, and a government has been established for the purpose of guarding the race in America. The New York Sun states that the business of this government has now grown so important that the executive is about to call for loans, and issue bonds in the name of the Israelite government, bearing seven per cent. interest."

It is easy to make such assertions; but not so easy to prove them. The costly synagogues, the arrangements for permanent business by individuals, and many other tokens prove conclusively that the Jews as a people have no more idea of going to Palestine than the Yankees have of returning to England. Besides, the action of the late synod of rabbis in Europe proves that they, at least, have no notion of 'returning,' as it is called. They uttered the following language:

"The belief in re-establishing a Jewish State in Palestine, and in the reconstruction of a temple at Jerusalem as a central point for Israel; the belief in the re-union of the dispersed, and in everything belonging to such a restoration, is entirely extinct in our mind! The expression of such a hope in prayer, the request for its accomplishment, would amount to culpable insincerity."—Advent Christian Times.

Correspondence.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

BRO. GRANT:—I am just recovering from a bed of sickness. I was brought very low. Death stared me in the face. I cried to God to save me; he rebuked the disease, it left me, and I live to praise him and stand as a witness for the truth. If I had the tongue or pen of an angel, I would sound it out so loud that all the world could hear. I cannot find words which will express my feelings. There seems to be but a thin veil between me and eternal realities. I can catch a glimpse of heavenly things. The Bible is precious, and I can lay hold of its promises. I can feel they belong to me. The prophecies open to my view, grow dearer, brighter, and plainer. I believe them. I expect their literal fulfillment to the letter. And the glorious day of the Lord heaves in view, with all its glories, with its rightful King reigning. Yes, I can almost hear the sound of his chariot wheels, while he is descending. I am ready to shout, This is my God, I have waited for him, and I will rejoice in his salvation; he will save me. Or with John say, "Come, Lord Jesus, . . . come quickly. Amen." "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

The charming words of Jesus, "resurrection," "life," "immortality," are continually before me. I love them, believe them, hope for and expect them. O what glories are connected with the restitution, new earth, new Jerusalem, pearly gates, golden streets, jasper walls, pure river, tree of life, bright angels, saints clothed in white, harps of gold, new song, anthems of praise; and all this without sin, sorrow, pain, or death; where the wicked cease to trouble, and all tears are wiped away, and God's original kingdom restored. These ideas fill my mind with ecstacies of joy. I feel that this sickness has been a great blessing, instead of a judgment; for it has stirred up every faculty, and every nerve, so that I feel like a new man.

I don't know what the Lord has got for me to do, but I pray, like Saul of Tarsus, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" I expect he will show me. I believe he leads those who are willing to be led. I am not able to go abroad as I used to, but I can live religion at home. I can talk, and I can write. God has given me the spirit and gift of writing, and I hope to improve it to his glory, and the benefit of my fellow men. Will the brethren and sisters pray for me and write to me. I need the advice and comfort which they are able to give. My address is Chelmsford, Mass. Your Bro., B. SPAULDING.

From Bro. C. L. Percival.

BRO. GRANT:—I write to inform you, and any who may feel an interest in me, that I am no longer in Canada, but in California. For many months I have seen and felt that my work in Canada was closing up, and at the same time the Lord has been preparing the way for me to come here. Accordingly, on the first day of last Sept., we bade adieu to friends and home, and Brn. far dearer than either, and started on our long journey. We stopped at Chicago, and went down about two hundred and twenty-five miles into the State of Illinois to visit some friends, and stopped nine days. I had the privilege of preaching Jesus and the blessed hope to the people there three times.

Returning to Chicago the 13th, we again started on our westward way. We had quite a prosperous journey, except lying the most of one day in a pond of water, about thirty miles east of Omaha. The heavy rains had flooded the country, and the road was under water for several miles, and the engine got off the track; hence the delay. From Omaha, the road was splendid, and the scenery very interesting. The vast prairie, stretching away to the north for a hundred miles along the road, with no bounds but the sky; the strange, wild scenery of the Rocky Mountains, with their snowy peaks glistening in the sun, so fearfully white; the wonderful and fantastically-shaped rocks, rising sometimes almost over the road from five hundred to two thousand feet; the deep ravines, and the wild, waste deserts, where in years past so many men and animals have suffered and died from the burning sun, the drifting sand, and from torturing thirst, but where we now glided swiftly and smoothly along, in comparative safety and comfort; all this made the journey interesting and pleasant.

We arrived here the 21st, making the actual time of traveling the three thousand one hundred and forty miles only seven days and six hours. Truly the cars of to-day, like those of ancient Nineveh, "run like the lightnings." I expect to make this place my home for some time to come, and shall make it my business to preach the gospel of the kingdom of God earnestly and instantly, whenever and wherever the way may open. I shall be glad to hear from any who may take the trouble to write to me. C. L. PERCIVAL.

Nevada City, Cal.

From Sr. L. B. Weaver.

DEAR ONES IN JESUS:—My heart is truly cheered by reading the letters in our dear paper, from week to week, from the dear ones scattered abroad. I am sighing for home, but in the midst of all my deep sorrows Jesus comforts me. O how it makes me sigh for rest, as I think of the glories that are in store for the good and faithful. How I long to be there. I am truly glad that the day of deliverance is so near at hand; then all our sorrows will be ended, and in glory we will reign.

I have one request to make to the dear ones in Jesus, and that is, if any of you feel that you have faith that I can be made better in answer to prayer, I wish from my heart that you would not cease to pray for me. God bless the dear ones everywhere.

To R. W., of West-Swanzey, N. H., who sent me a dollar, and requested me to put it in the Crisis, if received, I would say, God bless you eternally for it; for it found me penniless. I do not know how I could have got along without it. Dear ones, pray for your poor unworthy sister, THERA B. WEAVER.

No. Dana, Mass.

BRO. J. D. SHERIDAN, Three Rivers, Mich., writes:—"It is with the deepest emotions of gratitude that I embrace the present opportunity of writing you to express my thanks to God, for sending you as his messenger to enlighten my mind on the great and sublime truths of the Bible. I commenced taking the Crisis last March, and a very welcome visitor it has been to me ever since. By reading the same, I have been led to entertain clear views of Bible truth and doctrine. I have enjoyed great peace and comfort of mind since I entertained your views of the character of God, and his purposes concerning man. I have been instructed from my youth up to believe that man is possessed of an immortal soul, and in the endless torment of the wicked. Twenty-nine years ago, I thought I experienced religion. At that time the churches were at variance among themselves, and divided on account of the slavery question. I failed to find the spirit and feeling existing in any of the churches that I thought the children ought to entertain towards each other; consequently I did not connect myself with any of them. The result was, I did not live religion, nor enjoy its consolations, but fell into a stupid state, and became quite skeptical. I could not, and never did, believe in the conscious state of the dead, nor the endless torment of the wicked.

I can now testify to his great mercy in prolonging my existence through these twenty-eight years of very poor health, and in bringing me where the true light shineth. I rejoice in his goodness in taking my feet from the mire and clay, and placing them on the Rock.

Bro. Grant, accept my hearty and sincere thanks for the interest you took in my welfare, and for the many lessons of instruction I received from you at the camp-meeting, in Iowa, in regard to eating and drinking to the glory of God. I have enjoyed better health in consequence."

FATHER GAVAZZI AND THE COUNCIL.

Father Gavazzi has written a letter to a friend in Ireland, in which he observes, with regard to the forth-coming Council:—

"Seeing how differently churches and nations notice the approaching Decembris phenomenon between the two extremes—those who despise it and those who revere it—I choose to be apprehensive about it, and therefore prepare myself for all emergencies. Be sure that if the Council takes place (which is still doubtful, because of the many hostile opinions already in the Popish field against its announced decrees,) it will procure to our generation a good deal of disturbances and of social calamities. The real end looked for by the Jesuits (the movers and the tribers of the Mastæian Conventicle) is to sow a dreadful seed of discord among all nations, without exception, hoping to fish something to their own glorification out of the troubled waters. You must clearly perceive from the preliminary arrangements, that when the councilar decrees now under study shall be promulgated, the civilized world would arise in powerful opposition; and with bigotry and fanaticism on one side, and liberty and common sense on the other, we shall witness many a conflict in all countries, both Catholic and Protestant; and may God forbid, without the bloodshed of other days—bloodshed, I firmly maintain, anticipated and prepared by Babylonish Rome, which, as always, counts for nothing the slaughter of her christian opponents. Of course, the victory in the end will rest with civil society; but it shall be at a fatal cost. I am also certain that the dogmatism of such doctrines as the corporeal assumption of Mary into heaven, the personal infallibility of the Pope, the right of the Church over States, and so forth, will disgust not a few Roman Catholics, who will either constitute a Catholic church without Pope and Popery, or will embrace the tenets of some evangelical denomination.

I submitted, some months ago, to my friend Dr. Merle D'Aubigne a few proposals, which I consider necessary to counteract, in great measure, the evil of the Mastæian Conventicle. Among them I gave the first place to a general meeting, of all christian denominations, gathered together at the close of the Popish one, in order to draw a solemn protest against all the new errors decreed in opposition to the word of God by the so-called Ecumenical Council. By so doing we shall prove to the world that we were not crushed by the mock fathers; and, while raising the spirit of our own, we shall convince the Papists that they are betrayed in their eternal salvation by a church deserting the path of divine revelation. In one word, we must bear in mind that we have no other means to meet and oppose the stultifications of the future Council but ab extra; for it would be a stultification on our part to think that we can make heard our voices and respected our opinions in the very bosom of the said Council. And when Rome does not allow any hostile discussion in the sacred precints of her Vatican, you can easily imagine how strangely I was puzzled on reading the epistle of my admired friend, Rev. Dr. John Cumming, to be permitted to discuss in the Council with the Romish bishops, according to the Pope's invition. But there never was a Pope's invitation for such a purpose. It was all time lost by Dr. Cumming his writing to the Pope, to Cardinal Patrizzi, to the pseudo-Archbishop Manning, as it never intended to have any discussion whatever in Council with the enemies af Popish apostacy. Such a thing would be for Rome a willful suicide. I shall confine myself to advise evangelical christians to do, at least, what is in their power to accomplish, viz., previous to the Council, prayers and humiliation to God; during the Council, meetings and sermons on Jesus, pure faith, worship and doctrines; after the Council, special national and general protests against its errors, asking the heavenly Father to stand by his cause, and to defend his true church from such devilish encroachments."

THE HEATHEN AT OUR DOORS.—If eighty thousand Chinamen are already in our land, and millions are soon to be here, what field of missionary labor in the wide world more important for immediate occupancy? Not one hour too soon can the churches awake to the struggle between christianity and heathenism already commenced on our western coast. Shall pagodas be established, and idol worship celebrated without a united effort of true christians to forestall it by a full and constant proclamation of the gospel of Jesus Christ? We lay this question upon the heart of the American christians. The American Tract Society have sent a devoted officer, with an experienced agent of the society, to California, to do what lies within the scope of this institution to give the truth to the Chinese.—Ex.

CRITICISMS.—As criticism brings out excellences as well as exposes defects, delicate and tender impartiality should control the operation. Not a few persons need the criticism that brings out the excellences found in diffidence. A brother repeatedly pronounces a word incorrectly; tell him of it privately, and this you can do without drawing a drop of blood. Another preaches too long; don't tell him of it just before he is going to preach. Another advances a doubtful doctrine; don't strike and gag him, and walk off, but in conversation lead him to correct himself. And so with all criticisms. Let the critic comfort as well as reprove; and where both are needed, comfort and approve first, reprove last.—Christian Neighbor.

PRAYER.—Prayer draws all the christian graces into its focus. It draws Charity, with her lovely train; Repentance, with her holy sorrows; Faith, with her elevated eyes; Hope, with her grasped anchor; Beneficence, with her open hands; Zeal, looking far and wide to bless; and Humility, looking at home.—Hannah More.

Obituaries.

HUMPHREVILLE. Fell on sleep, Sept. 20th, and was gathered to his fathers, in Northfield, Ct., Bro. Gilbert Humphreville, aged twenty-nine years.

Many of our brethren and sisters, who were at the Springfield Campmeeting, will remember our dear brother who has fallen. He had the care of the tables in the boarding tent, and labored unremittingly for the comfort of all who were there; indeed, his many cares there brought on disease, and in two weeks from the time that he left the ground, he fell asleep in Jesus, and was dressed for the grave. He was converted at the age of eleven, under the labors of Bro. S. G. Mathewson, and from that time till he died, maintained the character and integrity of a christian. It has been my privilege to be intimately acquainted with him for the last fifteen years; and I never saw a young man who more fully observed the command of the apostle, in Col. 3 : 8, than he did. And as I stood by his grave the other day, and called to mind his "chaste conversation, coupled with fear," I felt that in his death the church had lost one of her brightest ornaments. He lived so in this world, that he had an influence for good in all the circles in which he moved. The following, which I take from a correspondent of the "Valley Index," shows something of the esteem in which he was held by his townsmen:

"I did not go to the fair on Wednesday, as contemplated. Our hills were veiled in mist, and besprinkled with drops and tears, while we followed the hearse to the church and cemetery, where Hastings, from Boston, performed the funeral obsequies over the remains of Gilbert Humphreville, one of our goodliest young men, now resting under the shade of the evergreen, pressed, crushed with the flowers that fell upon the casket, and waiting for a glorious resurrection. His stricken parents, lonely brother, and many friends, will long remember him for his kindly nature, inoffensive walk (scarcely needing reproof), and fidelity as teacher and business man. Fatigued with unremitting labors at the Springfield campmeeting, he with others sought rest and vigor by the sea side, on the day the hurricane roused up the sleeping billows along our eastern shore; but he found only chills and fever, which ended in congestion of the lungs, and he fell, submissive to his heavenly Father's will."

His parents and only brother are in deep sorrow. But, thank the Lord, he will live again. Bro. Gates, the pastor of the Congregational church, called to see him a few days before he died, and asked him "if he was prepared for the future?" "O yes," said he, "fully prepared." To his mother he frequently said, "O mother, how precious Jesus is. Praise the Lord." His name is written in "the Lamb's book of life"; and when old earth shall have passed away, he will live as a monument of God's power to save. May the riches of heaven's blessings rest on the afflicted ones, and may they meet the son and brother in the paradise of God.

C. G.

DOUGHERTY. Died in Philadelphia, on Friday evening, Oct. 15th, James Dougherty, aged forty-four years and six months.

In the decease of Bro. Dougherty, the cause has lost an earnest and faithful laborer. A large circle of friends mourn over his death. Our mission-field, by this affliction, is deprived of one of its most ardent and unselfish friends. It was through his instrumentality that the writer was led to attend the mission meeting conducted by Srs. Reeves and Helginson, and from that hour our efforts were united, and the results were of the most encouraging character, and the readers of this paper have many times read the history of the Lord's dealings with the laborers of the Dorcas Mission. Bro. D. was Assistant Superintendent of our Sunday School, and in that department was a model of patience, confidence, and self-sacrificing devotion to the interests of an oppressed and down-trodden race.

His labors are ended; his temptations and trials, afflictions and sorrows, are over. He sleeps in Jesus—blessed sleep. His companion has, by his decease, met with a great loss. He was the sunlight of his home. His funeral was attended by a large number of weeping friends. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Elders Fulton and Taylor. "And this is the will of Him that sent me; that every one that seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life, and I will raise him up at the last day."

F. H. BURBANK.

THATCHER. Died, at his residence in Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 25th, 1869, Arthur Thatcher, aged sixty-nine years.

Bro. Thatcher was converted to God about forty years ago, joining the Methodist Episcopal church, of which he lived an active and faithful member for many years. He was also a prominent business man of this city for about forty-five years. He was in the world, but not of the world, and it can truly be said of him, that he was not slothful in business, but fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.

About ten years ago, when Eld. Burnham was in this city, he became interested in the personal second coming of the Savior, which doctrine he embraced, and loved with all his heart, with other kindred truths. We can say from personal knowledge that he kept all the ordinances of the Lord's house blameless.

His funeral was attended by a large circle of mourning relatives and friends. Our little church also sustains a great loss in his death. Words of comfort were spoken to the friends by Eld. F. H. Burbank and the writer. We then followed him to his quiet resting place at Germantown, where we left him,

> To sleep, but not forever;
> There will be a glorious dawn,
> When we'll meet to part, no, never,
> On the resurrection morn.

H. T. TAYLOR.

JACKSON. Died, in Vernon, Waukesha Co., Wis., Aug. 27th, 1869, of typhoid fever, Bro. B. S. Jackson, late of East Poultney, Vt., aged fifty-six years, ten months and three days.

Bro. Jackson was born in East Wallingford, Vt. In early life he experienced religion, and united with the Baptist church. In 1844 he embraced the blessed hope of soon seeing Jesus, and withdrew from the Baptist connection. He remained disconnected with the church until 1857, when a church was formed at the old Stone meeting-house in West Poultney, Vt., which was one of the favored places where Bro. Grant proclaimed the true nature of man, and the glad tidings of the soon coming King. Many were awakened and reclaimed, and Bro. Jackson being "renewed in the spirit of his mind," was among the first to endorse the truth, and has since labored fearlessly in his Master's cause. Six years ago he emigrated with his family to Wisconsin. He labored in this western field with zeal, and shunned not to declare the whole truth, as far as he was associated with his fellow beings, and we trust the truth has taken effect.

He is now laid away with the blessed assurance that "all those that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." Words of comfort were spoken on the funeral occasion by Bro. Painter, Methodist.

SOPHRONIA HARRIS.

PAGE. Died, in Holderness, Oct. 14th, 1869, of typhoid fever, Sister Betsy, wife of Bro. John L. Page, aged seventy-four years.

Sister Page sleeps in Jesus, waiting the trumpet's sound, when she with her son, Eld. Charles L. Page, late of Minnesota, will come forth to immortality. May the Lord bless the husband and daughter who so deeply mourn their loss. Words of comfort were spoken from Ps. 33 : 14, by Eld. Hiram Stevens.

D. M. LEAVITT.

LEE. Died, in Westfield, Mass., Oct. 26th, Mary Lee, aged sixty-five years.

She appeared as well as usual a few moments before her death, and was busily occupied with her usual work, when, seized by a fit, she passed away without a moment's notice. What a lesson to us who survive. Her home was at Bro. E. A. Eggleston's. She had been a consistent christian for many years. May God sustain the bereaved family who are thus suddenly called to mourning.

E. OWEN.

PRATT. Died, in Freeport, Me., Oct. 18th, Nettie F., only child of Samuel and Ellen M. Pratt, aged one year, four months, thirteen days.

E. M. PRATT.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

LONDON, Nov. 8. Despatches from Constantinople report that owing to the combined efforts of the British, French and Austrian ministers, there is a prospect of securing the free navigation of the Dardanelles for the merchant marine of all nations. The representations of foreign envoys have been favorably received by the Sultan, who shows a disposition to concede their demands.

By order of the Queen, funeral services will be held over the remains of the late George Peabody in Westminster Abbey, on Friday, Nov. 12th.

PARIS, Nov. 6. Late advices state that King Victor Emmanuel of Italy is very sick at Florence. Prince Napoleon will depart for that city to-morrow.

Nov. 7. The Archbishop of Paris has issued a pastoral letter on the Ecumenical Council. It maintains that the French concordat is opposed to any decision of the question of the infallibility of the Pope without discussion.

Nov. 8. An unknown man, while prowling about Compiegne yesterday, was taken into custody. Upon being examined he was found to be armed. He admitted that his intention was to assassinate the Emperor.

DOMESTIC.

New York, Nov. 3. By a special dispatch from Paris we have it intimated as a popular impression accepted in the city, that Napoleon will propose a plan of disarmament in his speech before the session of the French Legislature, and that the idea is likely to become general. It is said, indeed, that Lord Clarendon conveyed the assurance of England's approval of such a course to his Majesty, and that it will be agreeable to Russia. The tendency of Napoleon's policy in the movement is said to be objectively for the embarrassment of Prussia.

Cincinnati, Oct. 30. An epidemic called the hog cholera is raging in the northern part of Montgomery county, among the still and sty fed swine principally. A distillery at Salem lost two hundred; others have lost scores; no remedy.

Poughkeepsie, Oct. 27. Farmers from the interior report having distinctively felt a shock of earthquake in the eastern part of Dutchess county. There was a flurry of snow here this morning.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2. A cable dispatch states that the cities of Frankfort, Wiesbaden and Mayence, with the surrounding country in each case, were visited by shocks of earthquake during the night of the 31st ult and yesterday morning.

FEARFUL FAMINE IN INDIA.—A Calcutta correspondent writes as follows: "No words can picture the misery of Rajpootana and Central India. Take this from an eye-witness: 'People and cattle are wanting, and the land which should smile with culture lies waste. In Marwar and Harootee this is especially the case. Food is hardly to be had now, and the sowing is limited. Cholera and fever everywhere abound. In Gwalior it is said that not far short of 2,000 have died in three weeks or less. Bodies and burning pyres are sickening to see.'"

FAR-REACHING CHARITY.—Mr. A. T. Stewart the wealthy merchant of New York, is not only providing a home for working girls and women in the city, but is planning to furnish workingmen and people of moderate means in the city with comfortable homes in the country on low and easy terms. He has offered to purchase the Hempstead Plains on Long Island, containing about 7,500 acres, at $55 an acre, paying the whole in cash, laying out the land in parcels for sale to actual settlers, erecting buildings and residences, thus giving to workingmen the opportunity to secure homesteads by their savings. The town of Hempstead has voted to accept his proposition.

GRASS GROWING IN WALL STREET.—The New-York Commercial says that at no time since 1860 has Wall street experienced such dulness as now prevails. Inactivity has succeeded the demoralization resulting from the bursting of the gold bubble, and orders are few and far between. Many of the brokers for days have had nothing to do, and quite a number of them have concluded to leave the street and engage in other pursuits. There is not enough legitimate business to support nine-tenths of those who are to be found on the street. The two Stock Boards and the Gold Board comprise over two thousand members, for each of whom there are probably six outsiders, curbstone operators, messengers, speculators, bookkeepers, etc., so that there are fully five or six thousand persons directly or indirectly engaged in the purchase and sale of stocks, gold, etc. For all legitimate transactions arising from the natural transfer of stocks and the necessary purchase of gold for business purposes one hundred individuals would amply suffice. The rest are of no real use and had better devote their energies to some other callings, of more benefit to the community.

THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL.—This grand gathering of Catholic Bishops, Priests and Cardinals will be opened on the 8th of December, the anniversary of Immaculate Conception. Nine hundred Bishops, Archbishops and Patriarchs, each accompanied by a theologian, will form part of the assembly, together with a hundred theologians of the Pope, almost all laymen, fifty Cardinals, and eighteen generals of religious orders, the latter escorted respectively by two theologians. A musical mass will be celebrated on the first day at St. Peter's, in which the most celebrated singers of Italy will take part. The communion service will be administered by the Pope in person, with the singing of Veni Creator Spiritus and of Sub Tuum Præsidium.

WHERE THE SUN DOES NOT SET.—The following graphic passage is from the description of a scene witnessed by a Mr. Campbell and his party, in the north of Norway, from a cliff 1000 feet above the sea: The ocean stretched away in silent vastness at our feet; the sound of its waves scarcely reached our airy lookout; away in the north, the huge old sun swung low along the horizon, like the slow beat of the pendulum in the tall clock of our grandfather's parlor corner. We all stood silent, looking at our watches. When both hands came together at twelve, midnight, the full round orb hung triumphantly above the wave—a bridge of gold running due north spanned the water between us and him. There he shone in silent majesty, which knew no setting. We involuntarily took off our hats; no word was said. Combine, if you can, the most brilliant sunrise and sunset you ever saw, and its beauties will pale before the gorgeous coloring which now lit up ocean, heaven, and mountain. In half and hour the sun had swung up perceptibly on his beat, the colors changed to those of morning, a fresh breeze rippled over the flood, one songster after another piped up in the grove behind us - we had slid into another day.—News.

Passing Events.

☞ During the past fiscal year 760,000,000 letters passed through the mails of the United States, being an increase of 40,000,000 over any previous year. This is about twenty letters per head for every man, woman and child in the United States.

☞ The Post Office Department has increased its expenses one million, and its income two millions of dollars the past year.

☞ Next week and thereafter telegraphic messages in France will be transmitted at half the former prices. Messages of twenty words will be sent to any part of the empire for one franc, and between any two stations in the same department for half a franc.

☞ The Boston Public Library numbers 153,000 volumes,—excepting the Library of Congress at Washington, which has 183,000 volumes, the largest in the country. Astor Library ranks third now, though first for many years.

☞ The Russian army numbers 1,467,000 men.

☞ About half the apple crop of Indiana is frozen on trees.

☞ The Governors of nineteen States have designated the 18th instant as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer. This is the day originally fixed by the President for national thanksgiving. The day will probably be observed in nearly all the States.

☞ Wheat is so low that it but little more than pays farmers for threshing and marketing.

☞ The total crop of the country is estimated at some 1,400,000,000 bushels of grain, of which wheat is 350,000, and corn 800,000,000.

☞ One of the Sandwich Islands claims to have the largest orchard in the world, some of the trees bearing fifty barrels of apples.

☞ Florida has seven millions of acres of land adapted to the growth of coffee.

☞ St. Anthony, Minn., estimates her loss by the late flood at $200,000.

☞ The Empress of the French has purchased a plot of ground from the Sultan, situated near Mount David, in Palestine, where the Virgin Mary was buried, for the sum of $4000.

☞ Sixty-two years ago, Oct. [illegible], the first steamer was launched in the United States.

☞ London has ninety Catholic churches.

☞ The Prussian Bible Society has distributed three million Bibles since 1814.

☞ The Unitarians have 315 societies and 383 ministers in the United States.

☞ The missionaries of some of the stations in Central China are assuming the costumes and customs of the natives, in so far as they can without compromising themselves. Their object is thus to win the good will of those to whom they preach.

☞ It is computed that the English language is understood by 100,000,000 of people.

☞ There have been imported to England this season 36,000,000 pounds of black tea.

☞ Ostriches brains are to be one of the dishes at the Sultan's dinner to Eugenie, of which the table ware alone will cost $200,000.

☞ Some idea of the extent of the tea estates in India may be had from a fact mentioned by a Calcutta correspondent. The laborers engaged on one estate are over 5,000.

☞ The Suez canal has cost $81,000,000.

☞ Flogging has just been abolished in the Iowa penitentiary.

☞ There are sixty whaling ships at present in the Arctic seas.

☞ Toledo will ship over 3,000,000 staves to Philadelphia this year.

☞ The wives of Brigham Young, consolidated, weigh five thousand pounds.

☞ Twenty million school books are annually used in this country.

Religious Items.

☞ Of seven hundred Baptist churches in Missouri, not more than twenty-five have preaching regularly.

☞ The priesthood of Italy numbers 160,000.

☞ The altar of St. Stephen's Church, New York, cost $60,000.

☞ While a mother was brooding over her poverty her little son said—"Mamma, I think God hears when we scrape the bottom of the barrel."

☞ A preacher once said: "If you know anything that will make a brother's heart glad, run quick and tell it; but if it is something that will cause a sigh, bottle it up, bottle it up."

☞ The East Genessee (N. Y.) Methodist Conference lately passed a resolution disapproving Freemasonry in very strong terms.

☞ The Jews of Berlin have contributed more for church purposes than all of the Protestant churches taken together.

☞ A New Orleans paper says that whatever could be done in the way of racing, racquette, dancing, and amateur theatricals, at the fair grounds in that city, was accomplished on Sunday last, for the benefit of a church.

☞ Geneva, where Calvin lived and commenced his preaching, is, at the present time, a very irreligious place. Stores are open, business is going on, and pleasure is unconfined on Sunday afternoons. There is a large class of religionists known as Latitudinarians. They openly deny the Trinity, and advocate doctrines considerably in advance of our Unitarians.

☞ The American Churchman speaks of some of the expedients to raise money for church building as a tasteful mingling of religion with the world the flesh and the devil. Some congregations, the editor says, eat themselves into a new church, some fair themselves into one, some lecture the building up, brick on brick, and some fiddle and dance the enterprise through. He regards the enthusiasm with which people will eat and drink and buy fancy pincushions, will dance and sing and flirt and gamble for the glory of God and the erection of a house to His honor, as one of the sights of this century.

☞ Bishop Clarkson has ordained three Santee Indians, in the northwest corner of Nebraska, to the ministry of the Episcopal church. They will be employed as missionaries among their own people, of whom more than 300 are communicants in the church.

☞ The debt of $50,000 on the Methodist Metropolitan Church, Washington City, is to be paid by three thousand ladies paying ten dollars each. A committee of ladies, with Mrs. President Grant at their head, has been organized to consummate the measure.

☞ Within the last two months the Papal corps, called the Carabinieri Esteri, composed chiefly of German and Swiss mercenaries, has lost so many men from desertion that the number has sunk from 1700 to 1100; and, although things are not quite so bad in the rest of the army of his Holiness, the utmost difficulty is experienced in keeping the companies full.

☞ While walking through a canon in Yuba county a few days ago, N. J. Martin was bitten in the arm by a rattlesnake. By keeping the wound saturated with hartshorn he fully recovered from its evil effects.

☞ An English chemist has discovered a fluid preparation which he affirms will cause bodies plunged into it to petrify and become stone within five years.

☞ The Jews of St. Petersburg are to build a synagogue costing 1,000,000 roubles.

☞ The six months' revival at Richmond, Ind., has resulted in nine hundred conversions.

Married.

At the residence of R. A. Samson, Nov. 3d, 1869, by H. D. Reed, Mr. FRANK PURINGTON and Miss SARAH A. SMITH, both of Gardiner, Me.

Notices.

National Conference.

The First National Advent-Christian Conference will assemble in the city of Rochester, N. Y., Wednesday, Nov. 17th, in the hall of the Advent Christian church of that city, at ten o'clock A. M.

This conference will be composed of delegates from the several Advent Christian Conferences of the various States and Canada, in accordance with the terms of the following call, issued by the Advent Convention, held at Buchanan, Mich., in November, 1868, which has been approved by most of the Conferences:

"A PROPOSITION TO THE ADVENT-CHRISTIANS OF NORTH AMERICA.

WHEREAS, The Advent-Christian body of this Continent, which has been called out of the world and, the various sects, should be one in faith, hope, and work; and

WHEREAS, Unity of action is essential to the proper accomplishment of their great work for the present generation; therefore,

Resolved, That a General Conference of Advent-Christians be called, to be composed of representatives from all the States and Territories of the United States, and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Resolved, That this Conference shall consist of delegates from the several Advent-Christian Conferences of the United States and Canada, each Conference being entitled to three delegates. Provided, that in States, Territories, or Provinces where there are no Conferences, and isolated Advent-Christian Churches exist, such churches may unite and send one delegate.

Resolved, That a committee of seven be appointed: three from the East, three from the West, and one from the dominion of Canada, who shall make arrangements for the time and place of meeting of said General Conference. Provided, that the place of meeting be as central as possible. We suggest Rochester, N. Y., or Buchanan, Mich.

The above action in reference to this proposed General Conference is subject to the approval of the several Advent-Christian Conferences."

This Conference will meet in Rochester, by the special request of the church in that city, who will extend their hearty hospitalities to the delegates, and others who may attend in convention. Their invitation is to all who love and cherish, and desire to proclaim more successfully and widely, the great truths generally held by Advent christians.

The Conference will consider the condition, prospects, and wants of the cause it is to represent, and take action as it may deem wise in the premises, for such Scriptural organization of the body as shall tend to add to its effectiveness in the promulgation of the great Biblical truths which God has called us to proclaim in the last days.

We trust this important meeting will be made the subject of earnest prayer by all who love "the present truth."

JOHN COUCH, New Hampshire; MILES GRANT, Massachusetts; S. G. MATHEWSON, Vermont; JOSHUA V. HIMES, Michigan; WM. SHELDON, Wisconsin; O. R. FASSETT, Minnesota; JOHN PORTER, Canada, National Conference Committee.

New Hampshire State Conference.

The sixteenth annual session of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire will convene in Concord, N. H., commencing Dec. 9th, and hold over the following Sunday. Particulars hereafter.

A. W. SIBLEY, Sec.

Notice.

Where shall the Maine Ministerial Conference be held? Those brethren wishing the conference held with their church, or in their town or city, the second Tuesday in January, 1870, will please notify me at Topsham, or R. K. York, Portland, at once.

C. GOUD, Pres.

Notice.

There will be a protracted meeting in Jay, Kennedy's Corner, commencing Nov. 18th, and continue over Sunday. Brethren in the place will care for all.

H. B. SEVEY.

Discussion.

There will be a discussion held in the M. E. Church, at Antwerp, Paulding Co., Ohio, to commence Tuesday evening, Nov. 30th, and continue through the week.

QUESTION.—Resolved, That all men have a conscious existence after the death of the body, before its resurrection.

E. B. LOUDEN, Affirm.
J. WENDELL, Neg.

"The Treasury."

A cheap, religious magazine, devoted to the dissemination of Bible truth, the signs of the times, nature and destiny of man, and practical godliness. Sixteen pages with covers. Price 50 cents a year. All communications and remittances should be directed as follows: M. R. PHETTEPLACE, West Gloucester, R. I.

Notice.

To whom it may concern: This is to certify that on the 17th of October, 1869, Bro. Benjamin Judson, of Yuba, Wis., was duly set apart and ordained to the work of the ministry, by the laying on of hands and prayer by the undersigned.

JACOB WILBUR, F. J. GROAT.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the executive committee of the Maine Ministerial Conference have appointed Wm. H. Mitchell, of Kennebunkport, Me.; I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me.; and F. A. Baker, of Levant, Me.; as delegates of said conference to attend the American Advent Christian Conference, to be held in Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 17th, 1869.

C. GOUD, Pres.

Notice.

In accordance with a recommendation from the E. D. Quarterly Conference of Michigan, a committee of two ministers, and three of the church at Ortonville, was appointed to make inquiry with reference to certain proceedings against Dr. F. P. Drummond, by the church at Grand Blanc, about nine years ago, when certain charges were brought against him, and by the church at a regular meeting called for that purpose, he was honorably acquitted: two nights later a mock trial was had, when the doctor was unavoidably absent, and he was excommunicated on the same charges, and published in the Advent Harbinger.

We, your committee, report that, after examination and inquiry, we believe the above statement to be true, and in our judgment the proceedings were illegal, unjust, cruel, and unchristian, and we think it but an act of justice to publish this in the Voice of the West and the World's Crisis.

Reuben Crandell, John M. Snook, Jonathan Ball, S. Slingerland, and Nathan Pearce, Committee.

We cheerfully subscribe to the above:

Dennis Wolverton, Chairman of the meeting that acquitted the Doctor; Bethuel Barron, Chairman of the meeting that condemned. A. E. Babcock, Chester Fox, R. Burtenshaw, W. L. Wolcott, Jas. Ferriss, Warren Smith, J. B. Abbott, A. D. Wilkinson, John F. Wood, and Jas. Sloan, Ministers and Brethren present at the said Conference. A. Adams, J. Thompson, H. Austin, and G. L. Harding, of the church at Ortonville.

Notice.

Brethren and sisters of like precious faith, greeting: As I have been made the custodian of the Philadelphia Tent, which has been dedicated to the service of God, as a house in which to proclaim the truth we so much love; I would say to all who want to do good through this channel, to begin at once to lay plans for a tent-meeting next season, in some central place. Talk this matter over with the friends around you, and pray for direction and the spirit of sacrifice, and write to me at your earliest convenience if you think it best to have a meeting of that kind at your place. Write as early as the 20th of March, so that I can make proper arrangements for equalizing the expenses. If there should be any who may want a meeting at their place, or some village near by, and yet not able to determine what is best under the circumstances, let them give us all the favorable and also all the unfavorable circumstances, and we will decide about the matter ourselves.

P. W. HOUGH, Clerk.

A Call for Help.

Brethren of Vermont, the conference formed at our excellent campmeeting voted to send delegates to the National Advent Christian Conference, but made no provision to defray their expenses. Brn., is it right for them to bear their own expenses? I say No, and I think I hear a No from all over the State. Now sit right down, before you forget it, and write to ELD. J. A. CLEAVELAND, Marshfield, Vt., and inclose your contributions. The three delegates will need fifty or sixty dollars; so don't be afraid you shall do too much. If they should happen to get a little more than enough, it won't hurt them.

GEO. U. LEWIS.

Discussion.

If the Lord will, the following question will be discussed at New Durham Ridge, N. H., commencing Monday, Nov. 15th, at ten o'clock A. M.:

"Resolved, that trine immersion, as taught in a book by W. C. Thurman, entitled 'The doctrine of baptism,' is the legitimate mode of christian baptism."

Affir., W. C. Thurman. Neg., J. H. F. Varney.

Statistics Called For.

If any brother in any place within the bounds of the A. C. Conf. of the State of Conn., will furnish information, by letter or otherwise, as to date of commencement of Advent meetings, numbers in fellowship, means, expenditures, places of worship, etc., he will confer a favor. For this purpose, please address Elder A. H. Steele, 20 Franklin Street, New Haven, Ct.; B. Hitchcock, same No.; or, up to Nov. 13th, W. S. Campbell, 354 Pearl Street, New York City.

Notice.

The next quarterly meeting with the church at Wilmot Settlement, Broom Co., N. Y., will be held Nov. 27th and 28th. Bro. and Sr. Hitchcock, of Kirkwood, N. Y., will be there to assist. All are invited to attend. For the brethren,

J. W. TAYLOR.

To the Churches in Connecticut.

Having been elected to the office of President of Conference, I would be happy to learn the wants of churches within this jurisdiction, and to this end would be glad to hear from the brethren and sisters.

H. H. DICKINSON.

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 1869.

Brighton Cattle Market.

Reported for the World's Crisis by GEO. J. FOX, for the week ending Nov. 4th, 1869.

Amount of Live Stock at Market.

	Cattle.	Sheep and Lambs.	Swine.
This week	2,227	992	1,160
Last week	2,567	3,163	800

Prices of Market Beef.

Extra, $12.25@12.75; first quality, $11.00@12.00; second quality, $10.00@10.50; third quality, $7.00@9.50.

Prices of Store Cattle.

Working Oxen, per pair, from $150@200 to $@250 300; Milch Cows and Calves, from $35, 50, 65, 75, to 100-115; Yearlings, $16 to 26; two years old, $28 to 42; three years old, $45 to 65; Western Fat Swine, live, $10½ to 11½ cts. per lb; Dressed, 12½ to 13½ cts. per lb; Store Hogs, Wholesale, 10½ to 11 cts. per lb; Retail, 11 to 14 cts. per lb. Columbia Co., N. Y., Spring Pigs, none.

Prices of Sheep and Lambs.

In lots, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $0.00 each; Extra, $3.75@4.25, or from 3 to 6½ cts. per lb; Spring Lambs, $2.75 to 4.25.

Prices of Hides, Tallow and Skins.

Brighton Hides, 9 to 00 cts. per lb; Tallow, 7@00 cts. per lb; Country Hides, 9 to 00 cts. per lb; Tallow, 7 to 00 cts. per lb; Pelts, 75 cts. to $1.00 each. Calf Skins, 20 cts. per lb.

REMARKS. Cattle.—There were less cattle left over last week than was expected. Quite a number changed hands on Friday and Saturday. The supply from Albany this week was less by 450 head. The quality ranged more upon the medium and ordinary grades. There were but few really choice steers. There are some Cherokee cattle almost every week, which can be afforded and are sold from $8.50 to $10.50 per cwt., with large per cent shrinkage. Prices continue to range low. Extra cattle are bought at $12 to 12.75 per cwt. Receipts from the East figure nearly 700 head, many of which are young stock, and sold for store. The demand for working oxen was only moderate.

Sheep and Lambs.—Receipts 992, mostly Western, handled by Brighton butchers on commission.

Boston Markets.

Wholesale Prices.

BOSTON, Monday evening, Nov. 8th, 1869.

Gold—$1.26¼.

Flour—Superfine, from $5.25@$5.75; Extra, from $5.75@$7.00; Michigan, $7.00@$8.00. St. Louis, from $7.00@$10.00.

Corn—Mixed, $1.11@$1.13; Yellow, $1.15@$1.20. Oats, 63@75 cts. Old Rye, $1.25@$1.30.

Seeds—Timothy Herds Grass, $4.75@0.00; Red Top, $3.50 to $4.25 per sack; R. I. Bent, $2.50 to $3.00 per bush.; Clover per lb., 14 to 15c.

Apples—Per bbl., $4.00@4.50. Onions, $4.50 per bbl.

Pork—$36@$37. Lard, 18½@19c. Hams, 18 cts. Eggs—37@38c. Dried Apples (southern), 8½ to 10c. Hay, per ton, $17@$23. Potatoes, per bbl., $2.00@$2.25. Sweet potatoes, per bbl., $3.00@$4.00.

Fresh Fruits, etc.—Pears, per bbl., $10.00@$18.00. Grapes, 12@15 cts. per lb. Quinces, $8.00@$10.00 per bush. Cranberries, $11.00@12.00 per bbl. Squashes, per cwt., $2.00@$2.50, Hubbardston, $2.50@$3.00.

REMARKS.—There is a good, steady trade on Michigan and medium brands of flour. Corn with light receipts is firm, and advanced 4 to 5 cts. per bush. Oats firm at quotations. Seeds quiet. Pork steady and unchanged. Eggs advanced 3 cts. per doz. A full supply of quinces at reduced prices.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.
M. Batchelor............Sunday, Nov. 14th
A. Simpson............Sunday, Nov. 21st

BOSTON, SOUTH END, (Minot Hall), corner of Washington and Springfield Streets.)
Meetings at 10½ A. M. and 3 and 7½ P. M.
L. Boutell............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Geo. A. Streeter............Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. S. White............Sunday, Nov. 28th

EAST BOSTON.
Meetings are held at Chase's Block, up two flights, at 154 Meridian Street, on Sundays, at the usual hours, also Monday and Thursday evenings.
E. Morrill............Sunday, Nov. 14th

CHELSEA, MASS., (LIBRARY HALL.)
H. Munger............Sunday, Nov. 14th
M. Batchelor............Sunday, Nov. 21st

CHARLESTOWN.
Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 33 Main Street), every Lord's day.
S. S. Brewer............Sundays, Nov. 14th and 21st
W. S. Campbell............Sunday, Nov. 28th

Poultney, Vt............Saturday evening, Nov. 13th and Sabbath, Nov. 14th. MILES GRANT.

Salem, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 14th
C. GOODRICH.

Chicopee Falls,............Sunday, Nov. 14th
JOHN G. HOOK.

Stowe, Mass., (communion)............Sunday, Nov. 21st
A. P. MOORE.

Holden, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Cambridgeport............Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. S. WHITE.

Knowlesville............Sunday morning, Nov. 14th
Eagle Habor............Sunday evening, Nov. 14th
Brockport............Sunday, Nov. 21st
A. A. PHELPS.

Worcester, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 14th
DAMON NICHOLS.

Plainville, Ct............Sunday, Nov. 21st
Pownal Centre, Vt............evening, Nov. 26th and over Sunday, the 28th.
Brethren meet me at Depot, at two P. M. train from North Adams. H. MUNGER.

Exeter, N. H............Sunday, Nov. 28th
Lynn, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 12th
M. BATCHELOR.

West Fairlee, Vt., Wednesday evening, Nov. 10th, and over Sunday, Nov. 14th, and onward if duty demands.
North Springfield, Vt............Sundays, Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th.
Plymouth, Vt............evenings, Dec. 9th and 10th
Bridgewater, Vt............Sundays, Dec. 12th and 19th and during the intervening week.
Rutland, Vt............Sunday, Dec. 26th
H. F. CARPENTER.

East Roxbury, Vt............evening, Nov. 11th
Bethel, Vt., (Camp Brook)............evening, Nov. 12th
East Canaan, N. H............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
Danbury, N. H............evening, Nov. 15th
New Hampton, (at Bro. Pike's)............evening, Nov. 16th
Meredith Village. (with Sr. Tripp), evening, Nov. 17th
Meredith, (Dolloff Hall), evenings, Nov. 18th, 19th, and 20th, and over the following Sabbath.
Lake Village, N. H............evening, Nov. 22d
New Durham Ridge, N. H............evening, Nov. 23d
Great Falls, N. H............evening, Nov. 24th
Exeter, N. H............evening, Nov. 26th
A. A. HOYT, WM. C. STEWART.

South Casco, Me............Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Bath, Me............Nov. 27th, and over the Sabbath
J. T. JORDAN.

Seabrook, N. H............Sunday, Nov. 21st
N. WHITING.

Hebron, N. Y............Tuesday evening, Nov. 16th through the week, and over the following Sabbath.
ELLEN E. TOWSLEE.
Will Bro. Lincoln please meet me at the nearest station by the second train?

Mount Parnassus............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Goodspeeds............evening, Nov. 14th
Waterbury............evening, Nov. 21st
Haddam............Sunday, Nov. 28th
L. F. MOORE.

Chichester, N. H., (Pine Ground, Advent Chapel), Sunday, Nov. 14th. Subject—Last generation.
L. LOCKE, L. BROWN.

Sandy Hill, N. Y............Sunday, Nov. 14th
J. A. CLEAVELAND.

Seabrook............Sunday, Nov. 21st
GEORGE W. BROWN, of Elliot, Me.

Warner Gore, N. H., (at Bro. Andrews), Sabbath, Nov. 14th.
Webster, N. H., (old meeting-house), Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Boscawen, N. H., (Gulf school-house), Sabbath, Nov. 28th.
Salisbury, N. H., (Academy Hall)...Sabbath, Dec. 5th
SIMEON ROBY.

Lynn, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Great Falls, N. H............Sunday, Nov. 28th
Strafford, N. H., (Robert's school-house), Sunday, Dec. 5th.
A. SIMPSON.

Nashua, N. H., (Isaac Chapman's), Sunday, Nov. 14th
JOHN H. DADMUN.

Brimfield, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 14th
M. E. OTIS.

New Bedford, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 14th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Wilbraham, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Charlton, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 21st
Z. FORD.

Chicopee Falls, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 5th
E. McCULLOCK.

Wakefield, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. G. SMITH.

Hartford, Conn., (Talcott & Post's Hall) Sunday, Nov. 14th.
Warehouse Point, Conn............Sunday, Nov. 21st
West Meriden............Sunday, Nov. 28th
GEO. W. BROWN.

Warner, N. H., (Waterloo school-house), Sabbath, Nov. 14th.
J. W. BRITTON.

Warren Summit............Saturday evening, Nov. 13th and over Sunday, the 14th.
Orford Indian Pond............Saturday evening, Nov. 20th
Piermont, (Clay meeting-house)............Sunday, Nov. 21st
C. W. NELSON.

Northwood Narrows, N. H............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Alton Corner, N. H............Sunday, Nov. 21st
WM. BODGE.

Loudon Ridge............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
Lake Village............evening, Nov. 16th
Meredith Village............evening, Nov. 17th
Warren Summit............evening, Nov. 19th
Haverhill, N. H., (where Bro. Harriman may appoint), Sabbath, Nov. 21st.
Swiftwater............evening, Nov. 23d
Sugar Hill............evening, Nov. 24th
A. MUSSEY TRIPP.

Lake Village, N. H., (North Church), Sunday, Nov. 14th.
J. G. SMITH.

Casco Village............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Mechanic Falls............Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Elliott, Me............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Nottingham, N. H., (school-house near Bro. George Randall's), Sunday, Nov. 21st.
Exeter............Sunday, Nov. 28th
J. PINKHAM.

Cushing, Me............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
I shall visit Manhegen Island, and preach as duty may be made known.
ALLEN DAMON.

Porter, Me............Sunday, Nov. 14th
T. E. LANG, JR.

Worcester, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 21st
E. OWEN.

Waterbury, Conn., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, Nov. 10th, 11th and 12th, and over Sunday, Nov. 14th.
Hartford, (Talcott's and Post's Hall), Sunday, Nov. 21st.
WM. N. PILE.

New York City, (Cooper Institute), Sunday, Nov. 14th
Kennebunkport, Me...Sundays, Dec. 5th, 12th, and 14th
W. S. CAMPBELL.

Seabrook............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Exeter............Sunday, Nov. 21st
East Rochester............Sunday, Nov. 28th
E. S. MOULTON.

Manchester............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Lake Village............Sunday, Nov. 21st
Melvin Village............Sunday, Nov. 28th
T. W. PIPER.

Dresserville, N. Y............Nov. 23d to 26th
Wilmot Settlement, N. Y............Nov. 27th and on as duty may direct.
J. W. TAYLOR.

Melvin Village............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
JOHN PARSONS.

Rochester, N. Y............Sunday, Nov. 14th
JOHN COUCH.

Bath, Me............Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Lewiston, Me............Sabbath, Nov. 28th
N. G. REED.

Plymouth, Vt............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Bridgewater, Vt............Monday, Nov. 15th, 6½ P. M.
Grafton, Vt., (where Bro. Hubbard may appoint), Thursday, Nov. 25th, 6½ P. M.
Rossonville, Vt., Friday, Nov. 26th, 6½ P. M., and hold over two Sundays, Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th, and every evening through the week.
Will the brethren from Grafton and other towns come in and help in the meetings?
South Sunapee, N. H., (where Bro. Lear may appoint), Friday, Dec. 10th.
Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sunday, Dec. 12th.
Z. T. WOOD.

Lawrence, Mass............Nov. 7th and 14th
A. ROSS.

Edinboro, Pa., at the quarterly meeting, Nov. 12th to the 14th.
Blooming Valley, Nov. 15th, and will be at the quarterly meeting there Nov. 19th to the 21st.
C. F. SWEET.

River Point, R. I............Sunday, Dec. 5th
Anthony, R. I., through the week.
Bristol, R. I............Sunday, Dec. 12th
If these conflict, please write me at North Dana, Ms.
GEO. A. STREETER.

Keene, N. H............Sundays, Nov. 14th and 21st
I. B. POTTER.

Cold Spring............Sunday, Nov. 14th
E. PHELPS, JUN., WM. J. RIPLEY.

Bath, Me............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
Brunswick............evenings, 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st
Expect Bro. York and others to help preach the word.
H. D. REED.

East Haddam, Ct............Sabbath, Nov. 21st
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Hartland, (Town Hall)............Sunday, Nov. 21st
Collinsville............Sunday, Nov. 28th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

New Britain, Conn............Sunday, Nov. 28th
Hartford, Ct., (Talcott & Post's Hall), Sunday, Dec. 5th
Warehouse Point, Ct............Sunday, Dec. 19th
WM. STUART.

Granby, Ct., (Salmon Brook)............Sunday, Nov. 21st
S. M. & H. E. TATRO.

Lunenburg, Mass............Nov. 26th
Vernon, Vt............Sunday, Nov. 28th
Northfield, Mass............evening, Nov. 29th
Athol, Mass............evening, Nov. 30th
South Ashburnham, Mass............evening, Dec. 1st
Clinton, Mass............evening, Dec. 3d
Stowe, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 5th
L. BOUTELL.

Pleasant Valley............Sunday, Nov. 14th
SR. M. A. OWEN.

West Deerfield, N. H...Thursday evening, Nov. 18th
Epsom Mt. Dist............Nov. 19th
South Deerfield, (Birch school-house)............Nov. 20th
West Deerfield............Sunday, Nov. 21st
E. MORRILL.

Holliston, Mass............Sunday, Nov. 14th
E. COTTON.

Wrightville............Sunday, Nov. 14th
New Milford............Sunday, Nov. 21st
Wrightville............Sunday, Nov. 28th
New Milford............Sunday, Dec. 5th
A. D. FLAGG.

North Somers, Ct............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
WM. A. & M. L. DURAND.
Please meet us at Thompsonville, on the two o'clock P. M. train from Hartford.

Pine Tree school-house, N. Y., (as Bro. Bailey may appoint), Sabbath, Nov. 14th.
New Haven, Conn............Sabbath, Nov. 21st
G. L. TEEPLE.

Webster, Mass............Friday evening, Nov. 12th
Abington, Ct............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
Brimfield, Mass............Sabbath, Nov. 21st
North Somers, Ct............evening, Nov. 23d
Scitico, Ct............evening, Nov. 24th
South Windsor, Ct............evening, Nov. 25th
Collinsville, Ct............evening, Nov. 26th
Sharon, Ct., (as Bro. Mills may arrange), evening, Dec. 1st, and over the Sabbath.
Morris, Ct., (fourth district), evening, Dec. 10th, and over the Sabbath.
Wrightville, Ct............evening, Dec. 17th and over the Sabbath.
New York City (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sabbath, Dec. 26th.
C. H. SWEET.

Guilford, Ct............Sunday, Nov. 14th
A. H. STEELE.

Southington, Ct............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
B. HITCHCOCK.

Collinsville, Ct............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
North Somers, Ct............Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Westfield, Ct............Sabbath, Nov. 28th
East Haddam, Ct............Sabbath, Dec. 5th
G. L. WHITE.

Prospect, Ct., (where Brn. Chandler and Barclay may arrange), Sunday, Nov. 14th.
S. WOODRUFF.

Woodstock Valley, Ct............Lord's day, Nov. 14th
Abington, Ct............Lord's day, Nov. 21st
A. MORSE.

LAWRENCE, MASS., (ADVENT CHAPEL.)
A. Ross............Sunday, Nov. 14th
C. Cunningham............Sabbath, Nov. 28th
J. Hemenway............Sunday, Dec. 5th

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., (Bethel Church.)
Wm. Stuart............Sunday, Nov. 21st
Wm. N. Pile............Sundays, Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th

WESTFIELD, MASS.
E. Owen............Sunday, Nov. 14th
W. J. Ripley............Sunday, Nov. 21st
G. L. White............Sunday, Nov. 28th

STONEHAM, MASS.
James A. Young............Sunday, Nov. 14th
J. W. Britton............Sunday, Nov. 21st
A. P. Moore............Sunday, Nov. 28th
J. S. White............Sunday, Dec. 5th

HOLLIS CENTRE, ME.
B. S. Emery............Sunday, Nov. 21st

PORTLAND, ME.
W. H. Mitchell............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
Albion Ross............Sabbath, Nov. 21st

BIDDEFORD, ME.
T. P. S. Hampson............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
I. K. Lombard............Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Jeremiah Hill............Sabbath, Nov. 28th

SOUTH ELLIOTT, ME.
D. M. Leavitt............Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. G. Smith............Sunday, Nov. 28th

CONCORD, N. H., (CENTRE STREET.)
J. W. Thomas............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
C. H. Fletcher............Sabbath, Nov. 21st
A. Ross............Sabbath, Nov. 28th

CONCORD, N. H., (AT THE BETHEL.)
Jane Benson............Tuesday, Nov. 14th
M. Batchelor............Sunday, Dec. 5th

MANCHESTER, N. H.
J. Gouch............Sunday, Nov. 28th
D. M. Leavitt............Sunday, Dec. 5th

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.
D. M. Leavitt............Sunday, Nov. 14th

PLEASANT VALLEY, CT.
E. McCullock............Sabbath, Nov. 14th
C. H. Sweet............Sabbath, Nov. 28th

SQUARE POND, CT.
P. S. Butler............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Rufus Baker............Sunday, Nov. 21st
A. Morse............Sunday, Nov. 28th
A. D. Flagg............Sunday, Dec. 19th

COLLINSVILLE, CT.
G. L. White............Sunday, Nov. 14th

BRISTOL, CT.
A. D. Flagg............Sunday, Nov. 14th

NEW BRITAIN, CT.
H. H. Dickinson............Sunday, Nov. 14th
Chas. C. Barker............Sunday, Dec. 5th

PORTLAND, ME.
Meetings are held in Advent Hall, Cushman's Block, 353½ Congress Street, three times on the Sabbath, and Tuesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock.

NEW YORK CITY.
The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 405 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

☞ Preachers sending appointments to Wakefield, Mass., are particularly requested to correspond with JOHN B. ADAMS.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Portsmouth, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. JAMES B. TREFETHEN.

☞ BRO. JOSEPH A. PHILBROOK has been chosen Corresponding Secretary for the church in Hampton, N. H. Preaching brethren will please notice.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Manchester, N. H., will please correspond with the following committee:—A. J. Mayhew, S. R. Davidson, O. Proctor.

☞ Brethren sending appointments for London Ridge, N. H., will bear in mind that the fourth Sabbath in each month is engaged.

☞ Any Bro. wishing to come to Seabrook, N. H., to preach, will please address Bro. R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Bro. Charles Barton, of Seabrook.

☞ All preaching brethren who desire to communicate with the church at Rochester, N. Y., are requested to correspond with J. E. WELLS, 32 Smith Street.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Portland, Me., will please correspond first with Eld. R. R. YORK, or with either of the following committee:—H. C. Freeman, James Berry, S. K. Dyer.

☞ Advent preaching brethren who may wish to visit Kennebunk Depot, will please address Edwin B. Wells, Kennebunk Depot, Me.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Lewiston, Me., will please correspond first with ALBERT BURGESS, Cor. Sec.

☞ Brethren wishing to visit the church in Bristol, Ct., will please correspond with Elder B. HITCHCOCK, Forestville, Ct.

☞ Brethren desiring to preach in Hartford, Ct., will please correspond with Bro. L. Tiffany. Preaching the first Sabbath in each month by resident Elder H. H. Dickinson.

☞ Persons wishing to communicate with the church in New Britain, Conn., in regard to preaching, will please correspond with Bro. A. POWELL, Cor. Sec.

☞ All preaching brethren desirous of going to New Milford Ct., to preach, will first correspond with Richard Hecock.

Business.

Letters Received.

J W Burroughs, H S Mitchell, K Thomson, H T Taylor, J A Cleaveland, L Boutell, Geo. Thompson, W Kellaway, E Slager, J Wendell, J K Loucks, O W Kimball, F H Chamberlain, J H Dadmun, D G M.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"HYMNS OF THE JUBILEE HARP."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9½ per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 18 cts. additional postage.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $5.00; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $4.00; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.50; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $1.50; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.50; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

Any of the above will be sent by mail on receipt of the price.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00 $3.50 per one hundred copies.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

376 pages. Price by mail, $1.25.

The above works for sale at this office.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.

Price in cloth............75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers............60 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers............50 cts., postage 6 cts.
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.75

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

SENT POSTPAID AS FOLLOWS:

1. I don't believe in Religion............16 pp., 4c.
2. Did the World make itself?............16 pp., 4c.
3. Is God everybody, and everybody God?...16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible?............24 pp., 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament?............16 pp., 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?............16 pp., 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his apostles?...16 pp., 4c.
8. Prophecy............32 pp., 5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets............28 pp., 5c.
10. Infidelity among the Stars............28 pp., 5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise............36 pp., 5c.
12. Telescope Views of Scripture............32 pp., 5c.
13. Science, or Faith?............32 pp., 5c.

For the SET (making 304 pp.)...... 50c. postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.
WHAT IS MAN?
THE SOUL—WHAT IS IT?
THE SPIRIT—WHAT IS IT?
THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

All the above works in one volume, flexible cloth, in a compact, durable form, for use and preservation, for 35 cents, postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. THE DAYS IN WHICH WE LIVE. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. AN EXPOSITION OF THE SEVEN SEALS. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.

4. A TREATISE ON REVELATION XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. THE KINGDOM OF GOD AND SIGNS OF THE TIMES. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.

6. THE LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.

7. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

8. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

9. THE HISTORY OF AN IMMORTAL SOUL. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.

10. RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

An Admonition to Christian Churches on Church Festivals, Fairs, etc.

BY I. K. LOMBARD.

A new edition, with additions and improvements. About twelve thousand of the above sheet have been scattered, and they are doing a practical service against these growing evils in the churches of our land. The picture of their proceedings is so faithfully drawn, that the guilty on reading it have several times furiously protested to those who offered them that it was written on purpose for them, with a full knowledge of the facts in their case. Price, postpaid, 15 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

For sale at this office, or by I. K. Lombard, South Windham, Maine.

The Berean's Casket and Repository.

This is a work just published, containing 382 pages with the tables of contents, in 368 sections, all in small type, embracing a great amount of matter. It is a SCRIPTURE MANUAL, to which is added much valuable history, showing the fulfilment of prophecy, signs of the times, and other important matter for every Bible reader, statistics, tables, and prophetic figures. Compiled by I. C. Wellcome. Price, cloth, bevel boards, postpaid, $1.03. Leather bound, $[illegible].

For sale at this office.

For the World's Crisis.

THE BIBLE.

Oh! what "blessed tidings"
The Bible does declare,
That we may reign with Jesus
If we prove faithful here.
It speaks to us of glories,
Of the happy world to come;
It tells us naught shall harm us
In that peaceful, quiet home.

The Bible tells us kindly
To put our "trust in God,"
And he will safely lead us,
He says so in his word.
It speaks to us of Jesus,
It tells us how he died,
How he suffered on the cross,
And for us was crucified.

The Bible speaks of treasures rare
Which the good may all possess,
Of "pearly gates" and "golden streets,"
And of eternal rest.
It tells us of the "tree of life,"
Of which the saints may share,
And of the "crown of life" he'll give
To all his followers here.

The Bible speaks in trumpet tones,
Prepare to meet the Lord;
It tells us he will come again
To give us our reward.
It points us to the narrow road,
The road that leads to heaven;
It tells us of that blest abode,
And how to be forgiven.

O, let the Bible be our guide,
O, let us watch and pray,
In every thing give thanks to God,
And his commands obey.
And may we ever strive to gain
The bright and glorious shore;
There we shall be forever blest,
And meet to part no more.

Fair Haven, Mass. ABBIE B. TINKHAM.

For the World's Crisis.

"THE HEAVENS DECLARE THE GLORY OF GOD."

As I gaze upon the sky these beautiful starlight nights, I feel deep in my soul to exclaim, as one did anciently, "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth his handiwork." And when I contemplate the wonderful works of the Almighty, I find there is no language equal to the object and vastness of God's domains. The stars, many of them, astronomers tell us, are larger than our sun; and when I tell you something of the size of the sun, you may have some idea of the magnitude of the stars.

"Yes, the diameter of the sun is one hundred times the diameter of the earth; the surface is equal to one hundred thousand oceans much larger than the Pacific, all that is full of agitation throughout, and tossed into waves of insufferable splendor thousands of miles long. O! when we look at the sun, as like a giant he begins his daily course; or, when he sinks to rest arraying himself in the splendid garments of the evening; under any and all those circumstances he is at once the fitting representative and the chosen emblem of all that is great and beautiful.

* "The next thing I shall speak of, noticed by the telescope (says Prof. Alexander), is the fixed stars; but before I quite do that, let us get an idea, not merely of the size of the sun, but his distance. While the distance from here to the moon is a ten months' journey by steam, the distance from here to the sun is a three hundred years' journey by steam at thirty miles an hour; then the most remote planets are thirty times further off; and our nearest neighbor among the fixed stars is seven thousand times that. A mile is good for nothing in measuring such enormous distances.

"Light travels at the rate of one hundred and ninety-four thousand miles a second. Now this being so, remember it would take eight and three-fourths months to travel with the velocity of light from here to the sun, and it does when the sun's light reaches us; and then, from our nearest neighbor among the fixed stars, the time occupied at that prodigious rate is three and one-fourth years; and other well-known stars are thirty, forty, seventy, and more than one hundred years distant by the velocity of light.

"With the large telescope of Sir Wm. Herschel, we have gone seventy-five times that again, and far beyond that there seemed to be cloudy looking spots, which might be removed seven hundred times as far off, and which might be stars like those we see. I have tried to tell you where the fixed stars are. Now what are they? Do they shine to us by reflected light? If they shine by reflected light, where, oh, where is the far more enormous bodies that illuminate them, and why do we not see them? But what is more, the light of some of them has been measured in a reasonable way, and one of them seems to be as bright as at least one hundred suns, or, as some of the results say, two hundred and twenty-five suns. Therefore, if you will not call them suns, please invent some grander, nobler term by which to describe them.

"A light exceeding the brightness of the sun is the last figure we can make use of almost in the way of intensity. What then shall we say of bodies that give us the light of one hundred suns at once? What shall we call them? But if you will not insist upon a new name, then indeed the stars are suns, and the analysis of the spectroscope brings to light new phenomena which insist again that stars are suns. But what a simple declaration! Four words are enough to describe it; but, ah! what does it mean? It means that the tiny ray which gladdens our eye as shed from some twinkling star, and trembles in the casement, is a miniature sunbeam; and the faint and feeble glow which sometimes, like a tiny transparent veil, covers the fair face of nature, is itself woven of the scattered glory of thousands of suns; and yet it is only starlight after all. How awful must be their distance!

"Some of these bodies are so remote that the light which left them started before the human race begun, before God in self-counsel said, 'Let us make man, and breathe into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.' Ah! long before that came the light which is scrutinized by the telescope of to-day from some of those bodies. Oh, what a little bit of the record of past eternity is enrolled to be read in time. If this be so, what would happen if we could look from the other end? Could we be away back there, and look down here, we might see, if we had sufficient power and skill, a visible record of much or very much of all that has taken place here.

"An author of the 'Stars and Earth' has said thus we may get some idea of the Divine Omniscience. Poor man! such a fact give an idea of the Divine Omniscience! Is not the fact immensely more infinite than any mere visible indication of it? and does it give the first blush of an idea of the enormous penetrading omniscience which extends down to the roots of character, away down in the mind of man, and knows what he is going to do, what he is going to think, and extends far off, and is acquainted with all our ways? Oh, no, it does not give the first blush of an idea."

In view of the power and wisdom of God, whose glorious worlds fill the heavens, what mighty material masses; and all poised in empty space, and never since the day of their creation swerving a hair's breadth from their prescribed orbit.

When I contemplate the wonders of the Almighty, I feel like saying with the Psalmist, "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? or the Son of man, that thou visitest him?" Yet we read that he is made a little lower than the angels, and that the very hairs of our head are all numbered; and more, God in his infinite wisdom and mercy has sent his Son, his beloved Son, into the lower world to take upon himself the form and sufferings of humanity, to give us through him, if we will accept it, that life which was lost through Adam's transgressions. If we will accept, I say. God by his Spirit nor Christ will urge us against our will, nor compel us. We see nothing like compulsion in all the teachings of the sacred word of God. But Jesus tells us all may come that will come, and he encourages by promises of all that the heart needs; he invites and pities us; he says, "I would have gathered you as a hen gathers her brood under her wing; but ye would not." Is there any thing like compulsion in all his entreaties for our welfare? If we are saved, it will be by our own free moral agency. In John 5: 11, we read that life is in his Son. "He that hath the Son, hath life; and he that hath not the Son, hath not life." In view of the all wise sovereign and omniscient God; in view of what he has promised us—eternal life, will you not lay hold on eternal life? Will you not fight the good fight of faith, and have a crown of life eternal in the heavens, "where we can abide with God in sublime and cloudless glory throughout all ages of eternity. Will you not strive to obtain that life through Christ, such as mortals never have witnessed, or enjoyed, or comprehended?" *

Husbands, will you not lead your wives there? Wives and mothers, will you not lead your sons and daughters to obtain a life to which that of Methuselah is but infancy? Brothers and sisters, will you not seek that life where every desire of your heart shall be satisfied? Fathers and mothers, do we not want to meet our loved little ones in one unbroken family around the throne of God? Shall it be said of the husband and father, "Come up hither, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world?" And to thy helpmeet and one of thy precious ones, "depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire"? But he asserts that one class will rise to highest bliss, the other sink into awful woe. Ah! fathers and mothers, shall one of our number be lost because of our indifference? Shall two, shall three, shall one have to hear the awful sentence, "Depart!" when it is within our power to lead them all to Christ? Oh, look to it, and make your calling and election sure, and guide and train your loved ones for heaven and immortal glory. "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me." John 5: 39. M. H. GROVER.

Roxbury, Me.

* "Reasons for my Hope," by H. L. H.

* Extracts from Prof. Alexander's Lecture, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

THE LOST SHEEP.

"What man of you, having a hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it? And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, rejoicing. And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbors, saying unto them, Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost."—LUKE 15: 4, 5, 6.

The common view of the lost sheep here mentioned is this: that it has been in the fold of Christ, or his church, and has backslidden or gone astray, and Christ the good Shepherd has gone after him, or, in other words, has followed him by his Holy Spirit till he brings him to his fold again. But how vastly greater the glory, the importance, the love, and tender care of our Heavenly Shepherd, will be reflected in the view we will endeavor to present. The Son of man came to seek and to save that which was lost. The hundred sheep was a full number, and only one was lost, and he leaveth the ninety and nine and goeth forth to seek the lost one till he findeth it.

Man was the sheep that went astray from the garden of Eden into the mountains of sin, and was lost. Jesus the good Shepherd volunteered to go after him, to leave the ninety and nine, the heavenly host, which went not astray; and when he had found it, he layeth it on his shoulders rejoicing. Paul says, "Who, for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross." Heb. 12: 2. And "the chastisement of our peace was laid upon him; and with his stripes we are healed." Isaiah 53: 5. He bore our sins in his own body on the tree, and on him was laid the iniquity of us all. Is not here presented the good Shepherd that giveth his life for his sheep? He has borne our infirmities, and in our weak, lost and helpless state, has laid us on his shoulders, and when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbors, saying unto them, rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep which was lost. His friends are the heavenly host, angels and archangels, bright majestic beings, that excel in strength. They will accompany the bright morning star, shepherd of Israel's mighty host. For the Lord God shall come, and all the holy angels with him. He comes to bring them home, for he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, to gather his elect (or lost sheep) from the four winds of heaven. Then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory, for "the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end." Luke 1: 32, 33.

"After this I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands; and cried with a loud voice, saying, salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb." Rev. 7: 9, 10. "For the Lamb, which is in the midst of the throne, shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." 17th verse. "I say unto you that likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over the ninety and nine, the heavenly host that had not sinned, and to whom repentance was not necessary." (Syriac.) Then will be fulfilled literally the angelic song, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men," for Christ shall feed his flock like a shepherd; he shall gather the lambs with his arms, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young. When "every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and such as are in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb forever and ever." Will not this be a grand merry-making, a time of great rejoicing, a glorious tabernacle feast, an ingathering of the sheep that were lost, a time of rejoicing, both in heaven and on earth, when there will be a feast of fat things on the lees well refined. Isa. 25: 6.

Beloved brethren and sisters, how our hearts should rejoice, and our tongues give praise to our God, for the great love wherewith he hath loved us, to give us such a loving Shepherd, that was willing to leave the ninety and nine in the shining courts above, and the loving bosom of our heavenly Father, and come into our world a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief; traveling over the hills of Judea, sleeping in the mountains, toiling and suffering to seek and to save that which was lost. But the time is soon coming when "the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs, and everlasting joy upon their heads." Glory to God for this "blessed hope." Amen.

Philadelphia, Pa. JOHN M. STETLER.

For the World's Crisis.

OCTOBER.

October has come again with its chilly winds and autumn blasts. They tell us that autumn is here in good earnest. In the pleasant month of September there was a memory of summer; the sun shone resplendently through the green leaves; the air was laden with rich perfume, and we were hardly aware that change, decline and decay were so near. Autumn, the sunset of the year, will soon be passed. The rainbow of woods will soon disappear. Then will come the long, snowy, and ice-bound night of winter. The cold frosty mornings, short days, and cool breezes, speak plainly, and their meaning none can mistake. They say farewell to the pleasant days of September. The faded leaves are falling, and the evergreens are coming into favor. They have not been noticed much while the elms and maples were verdant, but unobtrusive merit is sure to win attention at last. O when will the words of the poet be fulfilled:

"There everlasting spring abides,
And never withering flowers."

Yes, the leaves are fading, and falling in our pathway; and shall we be so unthoughtful as not to think of the past, the present, and the future? It may be some of you followed your dearest earthly friend to his last resting place on a cold October day, and you still remember that the dry leaves lay in the pathway; and as you passed under the trees that so shortly put forth their buds, a few falling leaves rested carefully on the pall, reminding you that it was a more suitable time to return dust to dust, than it would be in spring.

How many of us who read the Crisis shall have passed the gateway of death before the leaves fall again? It is an inevitable fact that change and decay are taking place every moment; every moment some one dies; every moment some one's doom is sealed. The King of Terrors now rules supreme. He lays his icy hand alike on the gray locks of many years, and on the rosebud of but few summers. How short and uncertain is life! It has been shown by carefully collected statistics that only one half live to eight years; but one third live to the age of fourteen years, and but one in four lives to be twenty-one years old. It is a sad truth that our "days are swifter than a weaver's shuttle." May we say in the language of the Psalmist (Ps. 90: 12,) "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." How long before the trees shall be clothed in immortal verdure? How long before we shall be cut down like the grass, or, if living, see our Savior coming in the clouds? How long before sin shall be destroyed, and righteousness fill the whole earth? How long before the earth shall know but one King, and he the Lord of glory?

"How bright the vision,
Oh! how long shall this glad hour delay;
Fly swifter round ye wheels of time,
And bring the welcome day."

May we live so near to Jesus that it will be the happiest day of our lives.

Somers, Conn. A. L. ADAMS.

For the World's Crisis.

HOW IT STRIKES A STRANGER.

At the recent encampment at Alton Bay were probably some of the best meetings ever held there, and those who were permitted to enjoy them must long remember their sacred influence. But to some who could not be there, by reason of affliction, age, or other privation, perhaps a stray line from any pen concerning it, would be welcome. Very many are asking, "Had you good meetings?" and the answer on all sides is, "Yes, meetings all good, both at the stand, and in the tents. Harmony and peace prevailed everywhere.

We had it dry and dusty for a few days, then so rainy that some were driven from their quarters; but by the untiring efforts of a kind and faithful committee, all were made comfortable. By the way, many come and go to campmeeting, scarcely thinking of the privations and sacrifices made by noble men, who consent to act as committee, and serve everybody in every way. They really become chore boys in the service of the Lord, and are expected to seek the comfort of all, whether they enjoy any or not; expected to comply with every request made of them, always full of smiles and patience, very spiritually minded, though they seldom find a quiet hour to attend the service, or to sit in the family tent. They richly deserve the heartfelt thanks and sincere prayers of all who are thus served by them; and as we are included in that number, we will here and now tender our gratitude for all the kindness and attention we received from this source, as well as the committee at Springfield campmeeting. We have heard much of the hearty, social, generous treatment that you might expect from New Englanders, and through these committees, as well as many other of the brethren and sisters, and we have really been made to feel the truth of it.

But to the meetings, of which we began to write. Early in the week we were invited into the Concord tent, where a spirited, earnest meeting was going on. Many talked of our absent Lord, his speedy return, etc., etc. Just before the close of the meeting, a stranger rose and made a very few remarks, based on the question which heads our article, and stated how all this looked to one coming from the Keystone State, where we had never known of such a campmeeting, nor ever saw so large a company together in the capacity of a prayer and conference meeting. The inference was, that if this spirit was kept up thus for the week, how great the effect would be on the thousands of strangers who should come there, as christians from the different churches; or, perchance, a crowd of unconverted spectators, standing at the various tent doors, or in the midst, listening to such earnest labor, they must, at least, be convinced that these christians mean what they profess, and the second advent of our Lord must be near at hand. This devout spirit did continue, and the same zeal was manifest throughout the week. The moment the services closed at the stand, the voice of praise might be heard in several prayer-meetings. These were soon all filled, and many walked away quiet and disappointed from the crowded door of the "Lawrence," the "Lowell Street," "Concord," and other tents.

In the last named, we were privileged to worship again the last night of the meeting, and if we were struck pleasantly and forcibly there in the beginning, it did much more than that in the closing service.

To appreciate such a meeting, you must be at it. It commenced immediately on the return of the disciples from the Lord's table, and ran into the eleventh hour of the night, yet few persons seemed anxious to leave. Christians of different denominations spoke, but all talked the same language; all told of what profit the meeting had been to them, and how they hoped to work for God when they got home. At length a dear brother of some years arose, and gave some of his experience as to his duty when away from the society that believed just as he did. As he went forth to preach, he found many who had no Advent meeting to go to, and they complained that they could not go into any other meeting because they could not get fed there. Said he, "the way that I do, I take something to eat with me, and am willing to divide it." Said he did not go into the churches with a hard, censorious spirit, condemning all who differed in opinion with him; but he tried to talk lovingly of the blood of Jesus, and kindred subjects, and if drawn to speak of his doctrinal views, he did so in a meek, modest manner, that made him welcome any where. The key-note was now touched, and many testified that they had learned this better way, and intended to practice it. Some acknowledged that in their zeal for the truth they had spent too much of their time in argument; and had thought that to be sound in doctrine was all that was needful; but now they were resolved while the first duty was done, the other must not be left undone.

This had a response in the hearts of many, who (for want of time could not speak) uttered a hasty amen, and thanked the Lord that "holiness of heart and life" was to be more fully recognized than before, and those who had light meant to live it and talk it every where. Sectarianism and bigotry is receding, and we rejoice whenever we see a band of it being broken. We cannot think that they who are the real children of God ought to encourage it, either in their meetings, their homes, nor their hearts. To suspect that we may enter any of the modern churhes, and with anything of a Pharisaiacal spirit compel christians to believe at once a truth which we ourselves were so slow to learn, is absurd and unreasonable; to turn our backs on them all with ridicule, is none the less so, and not according to Bible directions.

It is high time for those who enjoy light on any point, to hold it out cautiously and kindly to any christian pilgrim who may be passing to the same kingdom. There are but few churches whose conference meetings are not open to strange brethren, if present, and if his remarks have the right spirit in them, they will be accepted, even though he should introduce his doctrinal views with his present experience. They may excite some one to a closer search of their Bible; possibly they may offend some sensitive one, and generate also a slight persecution; but was that not reckoned in and agreed to when we first set out to follow Jesus? Yes, we did consent to it all.

We have held our Second Advent views very dear from childhood, yet must confess that while we have been all that while a church member, we cannot feel indebted to any professed Adventist for any teachings they ever advanced in our midst. We have had occasion to mingle often with other churches than our own (being much from home as a missionary), yet we cannot remember in any of them to have met an individual who told their experience in the sweet way that this brother recommended, and added a word that might indicate they were a member of that people who especially looked for the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. We would cast no reflection, nor speak complainingly, but urge those who have promised to do this thing, to go at it heartily. Do not allow it to be said longer that if we would know any thing of you, we must find one of your meetings, for in the Western and Middle States we may not find one within many miles; but let this work be done by all that were at the meeting, and all who hear of them, and hundreds of people will soon get some truth entirely new to them. Brother Grant is leading this interesting meeting, and he rises more than once, and says, "do it, brethren, do it; take this spirit home with you by all means, and do this work." But he rises again, just as several others are about to do so, and still urges us all to do this duty. But now he adds, "it grows late, and we close this last interview by singing

'Praise God from whom all blessings flow.'"

E. S. MELLEN.

CONGREGATIONAL SINGING.

Congregational singing is in harmony with all the ideas of our holy religion. It exalts that which is spiritual to its proper place, and responds to the yearnings of the hearts of the people. It has been a marked feature of success in church history. Its power in the church has been acknowledged by saint and sinner. There is no reason why it should not continue to be cultivated. It is sheer assumption to say that the people cannot or will not sing. Where they do not sing it is generally owing to the fact that they are not expected to do so.

One serious difficulty in the way of cultivating congregational singing in some of our churches is the fact that, following the fashions prevailing in some other churches, we have placed the leading singers, the choir, in the rear of the congregation. The position is not a proper one for leaders, but only for those who do not expect to be followed. In any case in which the people are expected to sing, the leaders ought to be in front of them and facing them. They, the people, can then have the aid of both sight and sound. Besides, the leaders, by occupying a position in front of the people and in close proximity to the pulpit, place it in the power of the preacher to make any suggestion to them that he may wish, without rendering it necessary for him to speak to them over the heads of the congregation. In several of the most popular churches in the United States, the leading singers occupy positions just behind or just in front of the pulpit.

A writer speaking of a service in Mr. Spurgeon's church, in London, says: "His hymn read through, he returned, as his uniform practice, and re-read a verse at a time, directing the singing—a chorister standing at his side—now soft, now slow, now with force and energy, and when the whole congregation joined, it was singing such as we seldom hear."

The same writer, in speaking of a service in Dr. Cumming's church says: "The singing, as in most of the dissenting chapels, was congregational, the chorister occupying a place in front of the speaker's desk."

It is possible to have congregational singing in our churches, and certainly it is desirable. Let the advocates of it earnestly and constantly insist upon it as a prominent feature in church worship. God loves the praises of the people.—Phillips' Singing People.

THE POWER OF LOVE.

Our souls by love together knit,
Cemented, mixed in one,
One heart, one hope, one mind, one voice,
'Tis heav'n on earth begun.
Our hearts have often burned within,
And glowed with sacred fire,
While Jesus spoke, and fed, and blest,
And filled th' enlarged desire.

CHORUS.—"A Savior!" let creation sing!
"A Savior!" let all heaven ring!
He's God with us! We feel him ours!
His fulness on our souls he pours.
'Tis almost done, 'tis almost o'er,
We're joining them who've gone before,
We soon shall meet to part no more,
We soon shall meet to part no more.

The little cloud increases still,
The heavens are big with rain;
We haste to catch the teeming shower,
And all its moisture drain.
A rill, a stream, a torrent flows,
Lord, pour a mighty flood;
Oh! sweep the nations, shake the earth,
Till all proclaim thee God.

And, when thou mak'st thy jewels up,
And settest thy starry crown,
When all thy sparkling gems shall shine,
Proclaimed by thee thine own;
May we, a little band of love,
We sinners, saved by grace,
From glory unto glory changed,
Behold thee face to face.
CHORUS.—"A Savior," etc.

—Selected M. R. Steele.

For the World's Crisis.

DESTRUCTION OF THE DEVIL.

According to Christ's doctrine, fire is prepared for the devil and all who belong to him; and in Rev. 20: 8, 9, we find that fire will devour all for whom the Savior said that fire was prepared. Now I think it hardly likely, though some, who ought to know, say that Rev. 20: 10 teaches everlasting life in torment, on the only ground of being cast into a lake of fire, when in the preceding verse it is positively declared that fire from heaven devoureth Satan and his host; and this being devoured by fire is called "the second death" in the 14th verse of the same chapter. From this, we see that the Bible's second death, by being devoured by fire is men's everlasting life in torment. Concerning the wicked one (the devil) Paul says, "The Lord shall consume him with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy him with the brightness of his coming"; and concerning the ungodly, of whom the Savior says that at the day of judgment he would say, "Depart, ye cursed, into everlasting fire," the Lord declares (Jer. 8: 13), that he will "surely consume them."

The doctrine of men will have the devil and his works to remain for ever in a life of endless torment; though the apostle John agrees with Paul, and says, Christ came to "destroy the works of the devil." 1 John 3: 8. The doctrine of men is, that the devil will live for ever, meaning always, without an end, to torment the wicked; but the doctrine of the Bible is, that Christ will "destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil." Heb. 2: 14. B. KNEPPER.

Wellersburg, Pa.

Gems.

— A great many professed Christians have no other idea of religion than that it is the means of getting to heaven when they die. As to doing anything for God while they live, it does not enter into their plans. I tell you, my brethren, I do not believe there is one in five hundred of such professors that will reach heaven; for there is a magnanimity in true religion that is above all such contemptible meanness.—Lyman Beecher.

— A certain kind of preaching, not uncommon in these times, is fairly hit by an official of Oxford University, who said: "I have heard all the sermons preached in the University pulpit for forty years, and thank God, sir, I am still able to believe in the truth of Christianity."

— Just make up your mind before you start out for home that you will look on the sunniest side of everything, enjoy yourself as much as you possibly can, and use every endeavor to make the journey as pleasant to those around you, and it will be very singular if somebody isn't the better for it!

— Said a Baptist to a Methodist: "I don't like your church government. It isn't simple enough. There's too much machinery about it." "It is true," replied the Methodist, "we have more machinery than you; but then, you see, it don't take near so much water to run it."

— Our houses and barns we lock and keep in careful repair, but our bodies and minds are repeatedly robbed and roughly handled before we consent to take like precaution with them.

— No school is more necessary to children than that of patience, because either the will must be broken in childhood or the heart in old age.

— We often omit the good we might do in consequence of thinking about that which it is out of our power to do.

— One of Rutherford's golden sentences gives us the secret of his unusual unction: "The cross gives us much to say."

They are brave who know to speak
For the fallen and the weak;
They are brave who calmly choose
Hatred, scoffing and abuse,
Rather than in silence shrink
From the truth they needs must think;
They are brave who dare to be
In the right with two or three.

— Many persons have quickness to discover their faults, with not energy enough to eradicate them.

— The ground work of all manly character is veracity or the habit of truthfulness. That virtue lies at the foundation of everything said.

— When you send up your prayers, be sure to direct them to the care of the Redeemer, and then they will never miscarry.

— Reckon that a lost day in which you do not enjoy sanctifying communion with God.

— If a man is honest and truthful, there is no necessity for him to say much about it.

— Better be upright with poverty, than unprincipled with plenty.

— Trifles make perfection, but perfection itself is no trifle.

— If we were at peace within, external things would have but little power to hurt us.

— Those who have the fewest failings, see the fewest in others.

— Love looks through a telescope; envy, through a microscope.

HINTS TO WRITERS AND SPEAKERS.

William Cullen Bryant gave the following excellent advice to a young man who offered him an article for the Evening Post.

My young friend, I observe that you have used several French expressions in your article. I think, if you will study the English language, that you will find it capable of expressing all the ideas you may have. I have always found it so, and in all that I have written I do not recall an instance where I was tempted to use a foreign word, but that, on searching, I found a better one in my own language.

Be simple, unaffected; be honest in your speaking and writing. Never use a long word when a short one will do. Call a spade a spade, not a well-known oblong instrument of manual industry; a place a place, not a locality, and so of the rest. Where a short word will do, you lose by using a long one. You lose in clearness; you lose in honest expression of your meaning, and in the estimation of all men who are competent to judge, you lose in reputation for ability.

The only true way to shine, even in this false world, is to be modest and unassuming. Falsehood may be a very thick crust, but, in the course of time, will find a place to break through. Elegance of language may not be in the power of all of us, but simplicity and straight-forwardness are.

Write much as you would speak; speak as you think. If with your inferior, speak no coarser than usual; if with your superior, speak no finer. Be what you say, and within the rules of prudence. No one ever was a gainer by singularity of words or in pronunciation. The truly wise man will so speak that no one will observe how he speaks. A man may show great knowledge of chemistry by carrying about bladders of strange gases to breathe, but he will enjoy better health, and find more time for business, who lives on common air.

Sidney Smith once remarked: After you have written an article, take your pen and strike out half of the words, and you will be surprised to see how much stronger it is.

For the World's Crisis.

"A DREAM."

BRO. GRANT:—I saw in last week's Crisis "a dream" of a blind Bro. in Rochester, N. Y., on the subject of the covenants. I also had a dream, some fifteen years since, touching the same subject, which, by your permission, I will relate: It was at the time of the introduction into notice of what Sabbatarians call the "THIRD ANGEL'S MESSAGE." One Mr. R. came to me with his message; and I am sure that he neither lacked zeal nor energy in his calling. But he found me rather a dull scholar; and after some two days' effort to convert me to his message, said, "You had better get the Spirit of the Lord. You now belong to the Laodicean church. If you were filled with the Spirit, you would then know that the third angel's message is the righteousness of saints." I responded quietly: "Elder R., I wish to give you one word of advice before we part, and that is this: When you go to another brother to give him your third angel's message, do not deal quite so profusely in your denunciations of him; for if you have the truth, that is not the way to induce him to receive it; and if you have not the truth, you have no good reason for doing it." We then parted. This took place in Smithfield, Bradford Co., Pa.

About four weeks after, I was in Southport, Chemung Co., N. Y., stopping for the time with a Bro. B.; and on Thursday night I dreamed, or saw in vision two men coming towards me. Who they were did not occur to me. I was watching their approach. I heard a voice addressed to me, but I could see no person from whom the voice came, saying, "There comes two men with R.'s doctrine, and wherever that doctrine obtains, MILDEW, DESOLATION and BLASTING FOLLOWS IT." I awoke and said to myself, "That is a curious dream; what on earth put such a novel or queer thought into my mind?"

A brief period passed, and it was out of my mind, and I again in sleep until the morning brought the light of day. I arose, and with the sun began the duties of the hour. About ten o'clock A. M. of that same morning, I saw two Elders of the third angel's message coming, just as I had seen them in vision the previous night. I knew them. The were those I had loved and labored with before they had embraced the law, and while yet they preached the gospel only as the way of salvation. I loved them still, and they took advantage of my love and affection, that they might the more easily convert me to their doctrine of the law. After some thirty-six hours' labor, they left me, supposing they had completely converted me to their new message. But when they were gone, my dream came and stood before me as a spectre.

In a deeply thoughtful mood of mind, I retired to the barn, and there alone, with God to witness the depth of feeling that possessed my anxious heart, I prayed. I wept like weeping Peter, asking the Lord to guide my judgment, and help my understanding, as I should make my appeal to his holy word to settle the matter involved in the message of these men, and my dream. I went from my secret place of prayer and weeping. I took the Bible. Now, after fifteen years' experience in studying its sacred and holy pages, I have never found its blessed light to open more beautifully to my understanding, than on that to me very important and interesting occasion; and my experience has proved the truth of my dream, and that it was a warning to me at the proper moment, preventing me from being ensnared by the speeches of former friends, into the blending of the old covenant with the new, and the putting of new wine into the old bottles, which, if done by me or others, would have the effect to produce, as I dreamed, "mildew, blasting, and desolation."

Let us, then, be content with the new wine of the kingdom—the new and gospel covenant, under the proclamation of which we live; knowing that by the deeds of the law no flesh shall be justified. For "the just shall live by faith" in the gospel. Amen. "Let every thing that hath breath" say, Amen.

C. F. SWEET.

For the World's Crisis.

ONE OF THE FEW.

Mr. Elisha Wadleigh, of North Parsonsfield, Me., now in the one hundred and first year of his age, is one of the few living witnesses that yet remain who remember the memorable "dark day" of the 19th of May, 1780. Mr. Wadleigh's reason, hearing, eyesight and memory are good. He remembers back when six years old, and has been able to walk about until a few months past. Hundreds of people go to see the old man, whose every faculty is so active and clear. He was a little over eleven years old when the dark day occurred. He says the morning appeared hazy, and grew darker and darker, until at noon candles had to be lighted to see to eat by, the darkness had become so great. The bigness of the sun could be seen, but it was very pale, and gave no light. No object could be discerned, and everything through the day was as still as death. The veil lifted in a small degree just before sunset, but the night was as dark in proportion as the day had been. Many little birds were found dead the next day. CHAS. H. HURD.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

CONNECTION BETWEEN FOOD AND ANIMAL ENERGY.

Baron Liebig thus explains the principles between the food of man and his warmth and activity in different latitudes of the earth.

In the animal body the food is the fuel; with a proper supply of oxygen we obtain the heat given out during the combustion of that fuel. In winter, when we take exercise in a cold atmosphere, and when, consequently, the amount of inspired oxygen increases, the necessity for food containing carbon and hydrogen increases in the same ratio; and by gratifying the appetite thus excited, we obtain the most efficient protection against the most piercing cold. We expire more carbon at a low than at a high temperature, and require more or less carbon in our food in the same proportion. Consequently, more is respired in Sweden than in Sicily, and in Germany an eighth more in winter than in summer.

Even if an equal weight of food is consumed in hot and cold climates, Infinite Wisdom has ordained that very unequal proportions of carbon shall be taken in it. The fruits used by the inhabitants of southern climes do not contain in a fresh state more than twelve per cent. of carbon, while the blubber and train oil, which feed the inhabitants of the polar regions, contain sixty-six to eighty per cent. of that element. From the same cause it is comparatively easy to be temperate in warm climates, or to bear hunger for a long time under the equator; but cold and hunger united very soon produce exhaustion. A starving man is very soon frozen to death.

Our clothing is merely an equivalent for a certain amount of food. The more warmly we are clothed, the less urgent becomes the appetite for food; because the loss of heat by cooling, and consequently the amount of heat to be supplied by the food, are diminished. If we were to go naked, like certain savage tribes, or if in hunting or fishing we were exposed to the same degree of cold as the people in Arctic latitudes, we should be able with ease to consume half of a calf, and perhaps a dozen of tallow candles into the bargain, daily, as warmly-clad travelers have related with astonishment of some of these people. We should then also be able to take the same quantity of brandy or train-oil without bad effects, because the carbon and hydrogen of these substances would only suffice to keep up the equilibrium between the external temperature and that of our bodies.

It appears, then, from what has been said, that the quantity of food required is regulated by the number of respirations, by the temperature of the air, and by the amount of heat given off to the surrounding medium. The unequal loss of heat in summer and winter in cold and hot climates is not the only cause which renders necessary unequal quantities of food. There are other causes, such as bodily exercise, and all kinds of labor and exertion. The consumption of mechanical force in the body is always equal to a waste of matter in the body, and this must be restored in the food. When a man or an animal works, a certain amount of food must be added; increased work and effort without a corresponding increase of food, cannot be continued for for any length of time.—Good Health.

A RETURN TO NATURE.

There are persons who think that a civilized man is not a natural man; that all his likes and dislikes are artificial, absurd, unhealthful, and wrong. Rosseau taught this doctrine. He could see little in society as constituted that was good. To him a civilized man was a monster. Nature did not make him, but Art. He had been tortured and deformed, not developed and unfolded. There is much in civilization to indicate that Rosseau had reason to say that we must "strip off civilization," erase the past, begin history again, revert to nature like the red men of the woods, if we would recover from the condition of disease and deformity into which so many have fallen. But after all, is true civilization unnatural? We think not. It is only what is falsely called civilization, but is not; that needs to be stripped off society. Is it unnatural to live in a well-built, handsomely furnished house than in a wigwam? More natural to eat our food raw and without tables, knives, and forks, than with them? Is it more natural to sleep on the skin of the buffalo on the ground than on a good bed? Is it more natural to fight with tomahawks than with rifles? More natural to dance in the war-dance and shout the war-whoop, than to dance in a handsome ball-room with music? It may be to the red man, but not to the white.

It makes little difference whether we are savage or civilized, we need to stick to nature. The vices that attend civilization are not civilization, but the reverse. The civilized man is just as natural a creature as the uncivilized. He must obey the laws of his being, the same in one case as in the other. When we hear people say, Let us return to nature, we say, Yes, if you are dishonest; if you drink, smoke, chew; if you wear tight clothes; refuse to be industrious; if you turn night into day; if you overwork and never play. But do not let us think that to return to nature we must give up civilization and become savages, for it is quite unnecessary.—Herald of Health.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..................$2.50 a year
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.

PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 735. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1869. VOL. XXX.—NO. 9.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL, A. ROSS.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
D. MATHEWSON, H. V. DAVIS,
M. BATCHELOR, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

LOVE MAKETH FAIR.

ST. AUGUSTINE.

She was the fairest of all things on earth
When first she came from her Creator's hand;
But lost the beauty of her primal birth,
And could no longer in his presence stand;
Yet He who loveth said he would repair
Her beauty, and by loving make her fair.

He left the glory of his Father's home,
And sought her in her sinfulness and shame;
Into his heart of hearts he bid her come,
And clothed her with the honor of his name;
Contented all her sufferings to share,
And love her foul, that he might make her fair.

But lest the splendor of his high degree
Should startle her, and scare her from his side,
He took her own poor frail humanity,
And wore it as a veil the God to hide;
That she might let him all her sorrows bear,
And love her foul, that he might make her fair.

And thus he won her heart's devotion, when
She saw how low he stooped for her relief,
Despised and rejected among men,
A man of sorrows, intimate with grief;
And all to draw her back from her despair,
Loving her foul, that he might make her fair.

And having poured his life out for her sake,
He left her to prepare for her a home,
But with all precious things that might her make
Fairer against the day when he shall come;
Fragrant and beautiful beyond compare,
Through Him whose love had made her foulness fair.

And daily in his absence she doth live
In the great presence of his life below,
Fed by the heavenly food which he doth give,
That she may into oneness with him grow;
And all her losses may through him repair,
Who loved her foul, that he might make her fair.

And thus she grows beneath that wondrous love
As Bether's lily, or as Sharon's rose,
Fed by the beams that woo them from above,
Each into bloom and fragrant beauty blows;
Repaying all his tenderness and care,
Who loved her foul, that he might make her fair.

And when He comes to claim her as his bride,
She shall not then, as now, ashamed be,
But clothed in his beauty by his side,
She shall sit down through all eternity,
And tell out to the angels round her there
His love, which made what once was foul so fair.
—Good Words.

For the World's Crisis.

CREDIT TO WHOM CREDIT IS DUE.

Some persons suppose that a thing which is new to them, is new to everybody. When they hear a doctrine advanced by some one which is new to them, they conclude that he is the author of it. This has been true of the Second Advent. Some to this day seem to suppose that Mr. Miller was the originator of the Advent doctrine. So of the non-immortality doctrine out of Christ. Some think that George Storrs is the author of it. And so of the destruction of the wicked, and of their non-resurrection.

The Second Advent has always been held in the church as taught by Christ and his apostles. That man does not in this state have immortality, has been the belief of some all through the gospel age. That the wicked are to be destroyed, and "be as though they had not been," has been the faith of some for several hundreds of years in the past.

In 1808, Elias Smith published a paper called "The Christian Herald." This was the first religious newspaper published in this country, and I am told the first in the world. Mr. Smith advocated the sleep of the dead, and the final extinction of the wicked. He belonged to that body of persons called Christian Baptists. They generally embraced and held to these views, and many of them do to this day.

One of those persons expressed these views to me as his decided faith about thirty-five years ago. The next time my attention was directly called to the subject was by Dea. Calvin French, of Needham, Mass., in 1841. Dea. French probably did more in the course of three or four years, in preaching the doctrine of the sleep of the dead and destruction of the wicked, than any other person has done in the same length of time.

Soon after this interview with Mr. French, I heard that George Storrs had preached six sermons on this subject. Henry Grew, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Flavel, of Newark, N. J., held this belief before that time.

A man by the name of Crane wrote some seventeen articles advocating the non-resurrection of the wicked, which were published in the Advent Harbinger in 1849, or about that time. At this time J. T. Walsh was an assistant editor with Geo. Storrs in publishing the Bible Examiner. About that time Mr. Walsh became a believer in the non-resurrection of the wicked, and wrote three or four short articles in defense of that doctrine, which were published in the Examiner.

To these Bro. Storrs replied in a very conclusive argument. In his argument he said to Mr. Walsh, in the language of Job, "The wicked SHALL BE BROUGHT FORTH to the day of wrath; they are reserved unto the DAY OF DESTRUCTION."—Job 31: 30. The emphasis is his. He adds, "And Jesus says they shall come forth from their graves to condemnation, or damnation; after which the testimony of John the apostle is, they shall be cast into the lake of fire. Surely this is the day of destruction. Let men beware of deluding their souls with the vain fancy that they will lie in their graves in a state of insensibility to the judgment and awful execution of the sentence that is to follow: vain hope; strong delusion." He said, "This fact is worthy of serious attention, as the advocates of the non-resurrection of the wicked, who have recently come up, try hard to destroy the force of Christ's words (John 5: 28, 29)."

In concluding one of his replies, he said: "We have said much more than we intended when we commenced this notice; and we have done so that all might understand that we have no fear to meet all that can be said, however subtle the argument may be managed. A few called on us, not long since, to prove to us, from the Scriptures, that it was impossible to show that Jesus could be the Messiah; and his argument was full as strong as the argument by which it is attempted to establish a limited resurrection; and, as we have remarked, they both have one principle in interpreting Scripture."

In the same article Bro. Storrs said to Mr. Walsh, "The method of interpreting the scriptures on which this theory depends, unsettles all faith in the Bible, and saps the foundation of Christianity." He further said in his reply, "We have no intention of spending our time for a year and a half in discussing so fruitless a topic, and one which we are already satisfied is opposed both to the letter and spirit of the Bible. If any man can give us as plain a text that men are immortal by creation, as we have that all that are in their graves SHALL COME FORTH, they that have done good, and they that have done evil, then we will confess our error in ever having preached or printed the Six Sermons."

I make these quotations to show that Bro. Storrs was decidedly opposed to the non-resurrection theory after others had embraced it. I think that he does not claim to be the author of it, nor of the non-immortality doctrine, and think he does not desire to have others claim it for him.

Mr. Walsh wished to occupy some portion of the Examiner for a long time in the advocacy of the non-resurrection, and did write sixteen articles, I think, which Bro. Storrs did not see proper to publish. Mr. Walsh's summersault into the "Pharisaic doctrine," as Bro. Storrs called it, made a wide breach between them. As Bro. Storrs looked on the non-resurrection as decidedly "opposed to the spirit and letter of the Bible," he could not continue to co-operate with Mr. Walsh in the editorship of the Examiner, and Mr. Walsh's name was dropped from the paper; and while Bro. Storrs pursued his usual course, Mr. Walsh was left to advocate, where he could, what Bro. Storrs called "vain hope, strong delusion," a doctrine "opposed to the spirit and letter of the Bible."

As I have found a large number of persons, where I have been, who have thought Bro. S. the first who advocated this doctrine; and as I think there may be many, whom I have not seen, that still think so, I make these statements for them; though from what I have seen, I think some are more than willing to have it so.

J. S. White.

THE REGENERATION.

"And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel."—Matt. 19: 28.

The Syriac, as literally rendered by Dr. Murdock, reads: "Verily I say to you, that as for you who have followed me, when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory in the new world, ye also shall sit on twelve seats, and shall judge the twelve tribes of Israel." The Persic, Italian, French, and Spanish have the same reading. Dr. Wordsworth, in his Greek Testament, gives, "In the new birth of the saints at the resurrection, in the new Jerusalem. See 2 Pet. 2: 13; Rev. 3: 12; 21: 2, 5;" and adds: "This palingenesia or regeneration, is commenced in, and typified by, the regeneration or new birth in the church visible on earth." "To judge is equivalent to reigning. Rev. 30: 4."

Alford, in his Greek Testament, has this observation upon the passage: "We may admire the simple truthfulness of this answer of our Lord. He does not hide from them their reward, but tells them prophetically, that in the new world, the accomplishment of that regeneration which he came to bring in (see Acts 3: 21; Rev. 21: 5: Matt. 26: 29,) when he should sit on his throne of glory, then they also should sit on twelve thrones, judging (1 Cor. 6: 2, 3) the twelve tribes of Israel."

Under the word palingenesia, Dr. Robinson, in his Greek Lexicon, gives this as its meaning: "2. Renovation, restoration, restitution, from decay or ruin to a former state. In New Testament, spoken of the complete external manifestation of the Messiah's kingdom, when all things are to be delivered from their present corruption, and restored to spiritual purity and splendor."

Dr. George Campbell, in his "Notes on the Gospels," says: "The word is, in this place, better translated 'renovation.' We are accustomed to apply the term regeneration solely to the conversion of individuals; whereas its relation here is to the general state of things. As they were wont to denominate the creation genesis, a remarkable restoration or renovation of the face of things was very suitably termed palingenesia. The return of the Israelites to their own land, after the Babylonish captivity, is so named by Josephus, the Jewish historian . . . The principal completion will be at the general resurrection, when there will be, in the most important sense, a renovation or regeneration of heaven and earth, when all things shall become new."

Dr. J. P. Lange translates the word palingenesia as the equivalent of regeneration, which he describes as "the complete christian regeneration, being the restoration of this world of ours, or the appearance of the new aeon, the great epiphaneia, in contradistinction to the commencement of the regeneration [moral renewal in Christ] which forms the basis of the complete restoration. In point of fact it coincides with the apocatastasis—Acts 3: 21. . . . But while the latter term refers more particularly to the restoration of the original state of things, according to the promise of God, or to the full renewal and recovery of our diseased, disordered, and decaying world, the expression palingenesia goes beyond this, and points to the further development and advance of the life of man from its original state of terrestrial perfectness to a higher state of spiritual [or glorified] existence. The Lord here primarily referred to the final completion of the kingdom of heaven." "De Wette and Meyer (after Buxtorf's Lexicon, Berthold's Christologie) apply it [this word] to the renovation of the world, which had been ruined and destroyed by the fall, or the restoration of the whole universe to its original state or perfection before the fall."

Dr. Rudolf Stier, in his "Words of Jesus," remarks upon the passage: "The regeneration, as appears from the explanatory clause which is added respecting the glory of the Son of man, is the renewal of the world, of the earth, hence the Persic translation has it directly—'in the new world'—a restoration of the primitive state of things on the whole, as the regeneration of man, from which the expression, by extension and comparison, is derived. Not merely the final nothesia of the children of God (Rom. 8: 23; Luke 20: 26) in the resurrection of the dead, but the glorification of all creatures connected with it, in order to the glory which corresponds to the freedom of the children of God. This doxa or glory of the new world, is itself the doxa or glory of the Son of man, in which, however, his special throne will in some way be set up."

Koinel has a long note on the passage, intended to show that the verse expresses the happy state of the kingdom of Messiah, when Israel shall be restored and the whole earth brought to a new condition.

Wesley has it, "You who have followed me in the renovation, when the Son of man shall sit," etc. And then in a note he explains the term renovation to mean, "the final renovation of all things."

Dr. Adam Clarke says, "The punctuation which I have observed here [the same we give at the head of this article] is that which is followed by the most eminent critics. The regeneration is thus referred to the time when Jesus shall sit on the throne of his glory, and not to the time of following him, which is utterly improper. The regeneration some refer to the time in which the new heavens and the new earth shall be created, and the soul and body united. Clement, in his epistle to the Corinthians, calls the restoration of the world after the deluge by the same name. . . . Others are of opinion that the regeneration means the conversion of men by the preaching of the gospel, that sitting on twelve thrones signifies the state of eminent dignity to which the apostles should be raised, and that the judging the twelve tribes of Israel means no more than exercising authority in the church, dispensing laws to the people of God. But I confess I do not see the propriety of this application of the terms, as the following verse seems to fix the meaning mentioned above."

Dr. Doddridge, in his gloss on this passage, understands the regeneration to be "the great renovation of all things, when all the children of God shall, as it were, be born anew from their graves; when created nature shall put on its fairest forms to receive them, and the Son of man, presiding over that august assembly, 'shall sit on the throne of his glory.'" He adds: "It seems plain to me, that our Lord refers in the following words to the time of final retribution, which he elsewhere mentions as that in which he should sit on the throne of his glory." Matt. 25: 31, 32.

Dr. Scott says that the word "regeneration" in this place "may and probably should be joined to the subsequent clause; and then it refers to the time when the apostles would receive their full recompense; even when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory. Then he will make all things new."

Bishop Hall applies it to "the day of the great restoration of all things, when the elect shall enter on a new life of unspeakable glory, even in that great and dreadful day, when the Son of man shall sit upon his throne of majesty, to judge the quick and the dead."

Albert Barnes says, "It refers to that great revolution; that restoration of order in the universe; that universal new birth when the dead shall rise, and all human things shall be changed, and a new order of things shall start up out of the ruins of the old when the Son of man shall come to judgment."

From this clear text, then, we are not only warranted, but also required, by Christ himself, to conclude with Dr. Bengel, that "there will be a new creation, over which the second Adam will preside, when the whole microcosm of the universe, will be born again (genesim iteram habebit)."

It was well known that the Pythagoreans employed this word to express the transmigration of souls. Their reappearance in new bodies they called palingenesia. Among the Stoics, the word set forth the periodic renovation of the earth, when, by the buds and blossoms of spring-time, it woke up from its winter sleep, and revived from its winter nakedness and death. Cicero called his restoration to his dignities and honors, after his return from exile, hanc palingenesia nostram." And Olympiodorus styles memory a revival or palingenesia of knowledge. Only give to this word then that depth and richness which the Scriptures give to all words similarly transferred and transfigured with spiritual and christian ideas, and there can be no question that it sets before us the prospect of a new birth for the whole creation, which is specifically connected as to time with the coming of the Son of man in his glory, and his sublime administrations in raising the dead, and establishing his own transforming rule over all the earth. . . .

Who, then, will charge us with fancy, extravagance, and fanaticism, for teaching and maintaining that there is yet hope for the suffering earth and its suffering creatures; for holding that it is to survive the coming of the Lord and the judgment fires; for directing the hopes of believers to a glorious reign of its Redeemer and his saints over it in literal, renovating, and unspeakable majesty and blessedness, and for proclaiming to all men that the scene of the proper fruition of the rewards of the just is not after death, or this side the judgment, or in some unknown, ethereal, and inconceivable heavens, but only when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and on this very planet where the battle was fought, and which has been consecrated forever as also the theatre of the completed victory? God be thanked that we have not been left to be drifted about by "cunningly devised fables," but that our Lord has given us, with his own lips, a solid foundation for our simple christian hopes and faith! In his name we challenge the proof that we misinterpret this text, when we thus take it as the promise of a personal and glorious coming of the Master yet future, and of a new and blessed order of things on this earth, under the visible and perpetual rulership of Christ and his saints, after his judgments shall have gone forth against the guilty. Quar. Jour. of Prophecy.

For the World's Crisis.

THE LITTLE HORN.

"I beheld because of the voice of the great words which the horn spake."—Dan. 7: 11.

The last that is spoken of the little horn in the prophecy before it is destroyed, is the speaking of great words. And because of the great words the beast is slain, and his body given to the burning flame. Now if there is any end to his blasphemies, his personal infallibility must be the capstone; and if Ancient Babylon was a type of Babylon the Great, the time of her destruction has come, as will be seen by comparing the prophecy of Jeremiah with that which is spoken of her in the Revelations.

Ancient Babylon.	Babylon the Great.
"Babylon hath been a golden cup in the Lord's hand that made all the nations drunken. The nations have drunk of her wine; therefore the nations are mad." Jer. 51: 7.	"The woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet color, and decked with precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand, full of the abominations and filthiness of her fornication."
"Oh, thou that dwellest upon many waters, abundant in treasures, thine end is come." Jer. 51: 13.	"I will show thee the judgment of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters." Rev. 17: 1. "And he said unto me, The waters which thou sawest, where the whore sitteth, are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues." Rev. 16: 12.
"A draught is upon her waters, and they shall be dried up." Jer. 50: 38.	"And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates, and the waters thereof were dried up." Rev. 16: 12.
"For her judgment reacheth unto heaven, and is lifted up to the skies." Jer. 51: 9.	"For her sons have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities." Rev. 18: 5.
"My people, go ye out of her, and deliver every man his soul from the fierce anger of the Lord." Jer. 51: 45.	"And I heard a voice from heaven saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins; that ye receive not of her plagues." Rev. 18: 4.
"According to all that she hath done, do unto her; recompense her according to her works."—Jer. 50: 29.	"Reward her as she hath rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works; the cup she hath filled, fill unto her double." Rev. 18: 6.
"Then the heavens and the earth, and all that is therein, shall sing for Babylon, for the spoilers have come upon her from the north, saith the Lord."—Jer. 51: 48.	"Rejoice over her, ye heavens, and ye holy apostles and prophets, for God hath avenged you on her." Rev. 18: 20.
"And when thou hast made an end of reading the book, thou shalt bind a stone to it and cast it into the midst of the Euphrates; and thou shalt say, Thus shall Babylon sink, and rise no more from the evil I will bring upon her." Jer. 51: 63.	"And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus shall that great city, Babylon, be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all." Rev. 18: 21.
"As Babylon hath caused the slain of all the earth to fall, so Babylon shall fall the slain of all the earth." Jer. 51: 49.	"And in her was found the blood of prophets and of saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth." Rev. 18: 24.

Let us remember that not one jot or tittle of the word of the Lord will pass unfulfilled; and the promise is that at the end of the 1335 days Daniel will stand in his lot. It will not be 1336. And as those days are about terminating, how important it is that we take heed to the sure word of prophecy. The "seventh vial" may be poured out suddenly, and the last of God's servants sealed. It is at the pouring out of this vial that great Babylon comes in remembrance before God. Let us consider what our position must be if found unprepared when the Master comes. The crown is for them who love his appearing.

Robert Humphries.

731 3d Avenue, New York.

CHRISTIAN TREASURY.

"Brethren, the time is short."—1 Cor. 7: 29.

Then our sufferings must be short, for they are bounded by time, and are confined to the present world. Consoling consideration this. Then our opportunities to glorify our God below, must be short; therefore we ought to seize them and improve them with all our might. Then the triumphing of the wicked is short, and the contradiction of sinners against us will soon be ended; let us, therefore, be patient, and prayerful, and diligent; for our redemption draweth nigh.

The time is short; then we shall soon see our Jesus; enjoy the company of our sanctified brethren, and be forever with the Lord. The time is short, but eternity is long; let us therefore be laying up for ourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and let us be daily preparing for our last remove. The time is short; it flies away; our dying day will soon be here; it remaineth, therefore, that both they that have wives be as though they had none; and they that weep, as though they wept not; and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not; and they that buy, as though they possessed not.—Ex.

HOW WE ARE CALLED.

What is the meaning of the words, "Ye were called"? You do not call people who are near you, or are coming your way. If I saw you coming my way, I should not call you; I should wait till you came; but if I saw you going the wrong way, getting farther and farther off from where you ought to be, then I should call you. "God is faithful, by whom ye were called." He finds us afar off; alas! afar off from his life, his happiness, his image, his peace, wandering from his home, alienated from the Son of his love. He called us; he called us unto the fellowship of his Son.

Again, you call a man when he is in danger and unconscious of it. Now, an unconverted sinner is like a man asleep with the flames around him. He is dreaming of paradise, it may be, and yet the flame of hell is around his very couch. So God sees poor souls and calls them (a loud call it needs.) He calls unto the fellowship of his Son. The sinner's want of title makes a call necessary.

If some of you met a beggar in the streets, clothed in rags, and called him to your well-furnished house, and to your well-supplied board, it is matter for your consideration, and not his, that you have been pleased to give the invitation. But having been called has he not a right to come, and may he not come? Is not his call his title, no matter who he may be?

When I think of what it is I am called to, I need to remember it is a faithful God who calls me, and that God's call is my title.

Observe, everything he calls us to he emphasizes as his. He hath called us to his kingdom and his glory; unto the fellowship of his Son; he has called us to partake of his life, of his salvation. He has a right to call whom he pleases unto his house, for the banquet is all his own. The oxen and the fatlings are his. It is the King who makes a marriage for his Son, and he has a right to send into the highways and hedges, to call in the halt, the lame, and the blind, that his house may be full. And "God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord." It is in the knowledge of these truths, and such as these, that the Lord sends home conviction and establishment to the hearts of his people. These words are God's words, and by them he calls us. Has God called you "unto the fellowship of his Son"? There is not a soul whom God is not, by his word, now calling unto the fellowship of his Son. There is not a soul that would be presumptuous in taking God at his word, in obeying the call, and saying, "Here am I, for thou didst call me."—Rev. Marcus Rainsford.

For the World's Crisis.

PLAIN TALK.

"Seeing then that we have such hope, we use great plainness of speech."—2 Cor. 3: 12.

One eminent commentator gave this well-merited compliment to one of his cotemporaries, who was also a commentator equally eminent: "He aims to speak plain truth to plain men." This seems to be the best, and indeed the only way of benefiting our fellow men by the use of words, whether spoken or written. Paul says in 1 Cor. 14: 9, "Except ye utter by the tongue words easy to be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye shall speak into the air." Again, in the nineteenth verse of the same chapter he says, "I had rather speak five words with my understanding, that by my voice I might teach others also, than ten thousand words in an unknown tongue."

It often happens that a writer or speaker uses a word that is not understood by those who read or hear, when the meaning seems perfectly clear to the person using the word. Eminent scholars, or even ordinary scholars, can hardly avoid this, as they are in such constant familiar use of words and terms not familiar to others, and it is difficult to bear in mind the fact that the hearer may be ignorant of many things well known to the speaker, and more especially of words not in common use among the people. It has often been noticed that men of almost no education have been not only popular speakers, but the means of doing more good in a few weeks than other men of excellent abilities and complete education have done in a lifetime. Is not this in a measure owing to the use of plain speech, "words easy to be understood," in one case, and the use of what is called "scholarly" language in the other?

We ought to know and remember that God chooses common things, "weak things," "base things," and even "foolish things," and "things which are despised," to carry on his work; while the wise, mighty and noble are very seldom thus chosen. The reason given for this is, "that no flesh should glory in His presence." Pride usually goes with worldly wisdom and honor, wealth and power. And pride is one of the things especially abominable to God, and we read that "all the proud" shall be burned up, root and branch. See Mal. 4: 1. May God help us to walk humbly, love mercy, and "speak the truth in love," using "great plainness of speech."

But there is a class (I need not say whether in the church or out of it) who are aptly compared to thorns and briars. Instead of speaking the truth in love, they occupy themselves with "doubtful disputations" in regard to the conduct of nearly everybody that they see or hear of. They have brazen faces, and in some cases blood-shot eyes not free from "motes," or something larger, and they are ready to sit in judgment and condemn in others what they allow in themselves.

This is a class of tormentors that we must bear with as best we may, but truly we "have need of patience," for we are sometimes tempted to "answer a fool according to his folly."

How much better it would be for all to be "gentle toward all men," and while we speak very plainly, strive to win by love rather than drive by harshness, for we can never benefit any one by using harsh, rough, or unkind words.

We hope soon to see Jesus and to be made like him. "Seeing then that we have such hope, we use great plainness of speech.

Webster, Mass. F. H. Chamberlain.

For the World's Crisis.

CONSECRATION.

O gracious Lord, my Savior, King,
A broken heart to thee I bring;
Accept the gift, and make it pure,
That to the end I may endure.

My all to thee I freely give—
O let a trembling sinner live;
Impress thine image on my heart,
That I from thee may ne'er depart.

O blessed Savior, sovereign Lord,
Now help me trust thy faithful word;
And fill my heart with love divine,
Then shall I know that I am thine.

Thine, wholly thine I now will be—
To thee I e'er will bow the knee;
Nor will I bow to wealth or fame,
While I can hear thy precious name.

The name of Jesus ever dear,
My tower of strength when filled with fear;
My resurrection from the fall,
My tree of life, my hope, my all.

I'll help to sound thy praise abroad,
And cry, Behold the Lamb of God!
That men may feel thy saving grace,
And boldly run the christian race.

Peru, Ind. H. H. Hall.

HINTS
FOR THE FORMATION OF PRIVATE MEETINGS FOR PRAYER.

"If two of you shall agree on earth, as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 18: 19. "Helping together by prayer."—2 Cor. 1: 11.

1. Each separate meeting for prayer may number as few as two members. Matt. 18: 20; Luke 24: 29–32; Acts 2: 46.

2. Each of those who meet to take his or her turn in prayer, not of course in rotation, but as each heart is moved. No prayer to be longer than for a few minutes. Hesitation in prayer—pauses—prayers abruptly ended—to be freely allowed; all remembering that they are striving to pray, not so as to be heard by one another, but to be heard and answered by God. Eph. 6: 18; John 4: 24; Ps. 34: 6; 102: 20; Rom. 8: 26.

3. Petition to be made at each meeting: for the aid of the Holy Spirit, that he may teach those who pray, both what to ask for, and how to ask it; for childlike faith; for largeness of heart; for preservation from display and unholy motives; as well as for any special object laid upon the heart of any present. Luke 11: 13; Matt. 21: 22; 15: 28; Ps. 34: 8.

4. Each meeting to be conducted in any way that may be thought expedient. It may consist of prayer alone, by two or three, or all present. Or, between the prayers there may be conversation on matters to be prayed for; or a hymn may be sung; or a portion of the word of God read; or there may be an interval of silent prayer for any friend in whom deep interest is felt. Col. 3: 16; 1 Cor. 12: 11; 14: 26; Rom. 14: 19.

5. The day and hour for prayer to be agreed upon for themselves by those who meet together. Sunday might be a convenient day for those who have not so much leisure in the week. Rom. 15: 2; Phil. 2: 4.

6. The arrangements to be made so as to avoid display. 1 Cor. 4: 5; Rom. 2: 29; John 5: 44.

It is recommended that you should select at first some person with whom you will feel the least possible restraint; and, after you have got accustomed to this, then invite a third; and afterwards, at discretion, a fourth. Small beginnings are most likely, with the blessing of God, to succeed. Zech. 4: 6–10.

If prayer is made for any individual, follow it up with active interest, and kind, persevering effort to influence for good the person prayed for; remembering that it is not much speaking that is likely to be influential, but much loving. 1 Cor. 13: 13; 1 Pet. 4: 8.

If you once put your hand to the plough, do not look back. "Not forsaking the assembling of yourselves together." Heb. 10: 24, 25; 3: 13.

Do not forget to pray the Lord of the harvest, "that he would send forth laborers into his harvest"; "for the harvest is great, but the laborers are few." Matt. 9: 33; Col. 4: 3; 2 Thess. 3: 1.

"Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another; and the Lord hearkened and heard." Mal. 3: 16; Jer. 29: 13; 33: 3.—Ex.

For the World's Crisis.

PROPHETIC HOUR.

"Bro. Burroughs:—Please give us, through the Crisis, the space of time that a prophetic hour covers. Jona. Wheeler."

A prophetic hour, according to the most popular mode of computing time, i. e., "one day for a year," would be just fifteen days; but a critical examination of the term "hour" will hardly bear that rendering under all circumstances.

The word "hour" is translated from the Greek word hora, and signifies "time," "a space of time; an hour; a period of time; a season." The word hora is found in the Greek N. T. one hundred and nine times. It is rendered "hour" eighty-one times; it is rendered "time" twelve times; "season" twice. It is also rendered "a short time" in 1 Thess. 2: 17.

We find, then, that it does not always signify the same period of time, or the same length of time; but it generally means a short period of time. When clothed in symbolic or prophetic language, it would admit of a greater or less length of time, as the case might be.

J. W. Burroughs.

Neponset, Ill.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

82. Three women came to the sepulchre.—"When the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had brought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him."—Mark 16: 1.

More than three women came to the sepulchre.—"It was Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of James, and other women that were with them."—Luke 24: 10.

This is similar to the preceding objection. Mark testifies that both Matthew and John told the truth in the previous proposition, and adds that Salome was also with them. Luke declares that the three preceding witnesses are correct, in relation to the women which they have specified, and conveys the idea that there were quite a number of them. So there is no discrepancy here. John merely thought proper to mention Mary Magdalene, she being the most prominent and foremost of the group, while the other Evangelists casually mention a few of those that were with her, some more and some less. There may have been many women with Mary Magdalene, on that memorable morning, without invalidating the testimony of either of the Evangelists.

83. It was at sunrise when they came to the sepulchre.—"And very early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre, at the rising of the sun."—Mark 16: 2.

It was some time before sunrise when they came.—"The first day of the week, cometh Mary Magdalene, early, while it was yet dark, unto the sepulchre."—John 20: 1.

The grammar of the language gives the solution to this problem, for John says, "while it was yet dark cometh Mary Magdalene," etc., which shows clearly that she was on her way, coming to the sepulchre, while it was yet dark. And in accordance with this, Mark testifies that they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

Hence, it is clear that they left their homes very early, while it was yet dark, and arrived at the tomb at sunrise. When the skeptic is so very particular about the precise hour in the morning, it might be well for him to pay some attention to the tense of the verbs with which he has to deal.

Before leaving this subject, we will state that Wakefield's translation fully sustains the above position. His version of John 20: 1, is as follows: "Now on the first day of the week, Mary Magdalene setteth out early in the morning, while it was yet dark, towards the tomb."

The word which is rendered cometh in our version, is the Greek word Erketai, being the present tense of the verb Erkomai, which Groves, in his Greek Lexicon, defines thus: "To issue, comes forth, arise from," etc. Hence the literal reading of Erketai is "issuing, coming forth, arising from." Hence we learn that early in the morning, while it is yet dark, Mary Magdalene was coming forth, or arising from her home, to go towards the sepulchre of her Lord.

84. Two angels were seen at the sepulchre, standing up.—"And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold, two men stood by them in shining garments."—Luke 24: 4.

But one angel was seen, and he was sitting down.—"For the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it. . . And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not."—Matt. 28: 2, 5.

We can see no discrepancy between these two texts. Matthew gives an account of the glorious phenomenon of the resurrection. He speaks of the earthquake that rent the rocks; of the glory-clad messenger of Jehovah who rolled the stone away from the tomb; the fear of the Roman guards; and adds—"The angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye, for I know that ye seek Jesus that was crucified; he is not here, for he is risen, as he said: Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

Luke here takes up the narration and gives an account of what they saw inside of the sepulchre, after they had entered, in compliance with the invitation of the angel who sat upon the stone which he had rolled away from the mouth of the tomb. He says, "And they entered in and found not the body of the Lord Jesus. And it came to pass . . . behold two men stood by them." We would ask the infidel, in all candor, Where is the inconsistency?

It is evident from the two accounts that they found the angel sitting on the stone near the mouth of the tomb. He invites them to enter and "see where the Lord lay" (i. e. had lain). His language is, "Come, see." He may have changed his position and escorted them to the tomb. He may even have entered with them. He himself may have been one of the two angels seen inside. His language, "Come," would justify the idea; but it matters not, for the veracity of either evangelist, whether he changed his position at all or not. As the women approached the sepulchre, he was nearer the tomb than they, therefore he could with perfect propriety say, "Come, see." Suffice it to say, the women saw him upon the outside, and he invited them to enter the tomb; and when they had entered, they saw two angels inside. The fact is as simple as the alphabet, and as clear as noonday. Truth shines in every sentence; and yet out of the statement the skeptic has manufactured a proposition, which he expects to palm off upon the world as a "self-contradiction of the Bible."—Mrs. H. V. Reed.

— Dr. Patten said admirably well, in a sermon he preached at Oxford: "Beware how you suffer the infidel to draw you upon metaphysical ground. If he get you there, he will have something to say. The evidences and declarations of God's word are the weapon with which he must be combated and before which he must fall."

— This world would be the most terrible of enigmas were it not for the firm belief that there is a world to come, where conscientious effort and patient pain will meet their reward.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, Nov. 17, 1869.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Money Orders.

☞ Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

☞ TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis, we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber has his or her name, with the date of the month and year to which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or on the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ BRO. O. BENDIXON'S P. O. address is No. 2 Bowling Green, New York.

THE WORLD MOVES.

It is very apparent that there is a growing enmity against the Bible, and those who support it. Spiritualists are doing all they can to accomplish this result, and their infidel sentiments are spreading rapidly. A bold move has been made in Cincinnati, Ohio, by which the Bible is to be excluded from the public schools. Could the Pilgrim Fathers have been made to believe that their descendants would ever take such a step? The following from the Boston Journal, Nov. 5th, will give the reader some idea of the facts in the case:—

"There is to be no more reading of the Bible and no more 'appropriate singing by the pupils' in the public schools of Cincinnati, until, at least, next May, when the people may choose a new Board of Education and order back these prohibited exercises. There are some features about this action which give it a much more than local interest—which indicate, perhaps, a general movement to be felt throughout the country. Heretofore the efforts to exclude the Bible from the common schools have been made almost entirely by Catholics. This was not the case in Cincinnati. For several years there has been a regulation in force allowing the pupils to read any version of the Scriptures which their parents might indicate their preference for, provided no marginal notes were read, or comments made on the text by the teachers. Under this rule Catholics, Jews, Baptists and all others had no difficulty in being suited, unless, indeed, they were so unreasonable as to object to having obnoxious versions of the Bible read in the hearing of their children. When, however, other parties volunteered to lead the attack in favor of exclusion, the Catholics were not slow to lend their aid, because it promised to help them on in their ultimate project of dividing the school fund and breaking up the common school system into a congeries of purely sectarian institutions, on their part at least.

Hence it is that we have such a singular classification of the final vote on this question. Politically considered, of the twenty-two members of the Board of Education who voted to exclude the Bible from the schools, twelve were Democrats and ten Republicans; while those in favor of retaining it comprised twelve Republicans and three Democrats. This is a complimentary exhibit for the Republicans of Cincinnati, but it might have been better. The curious classification, however, is this: For excluding the Bible, ten Catholics, eight Free Thinkers, three Protestants, one Jew; for retaining it, thirteen Protestants, one Free Thinker, one Jew. The Catholics, therefore, are solid for exclusion, and the Free Thinkers are nearly unanimous that way, while Protestantism is largely the other way, and Israel is equally divided. The truth is, the movement was engineered by the Free Thinkers, or 'Advanced Thinkers,' as they call themselves, or Atheists, as they are called by others. Whether this element is unusually strong in Cincinnati we are not informed; but it is certainly strong in the Board of Education. Its leading exponent declares that this measure of exclusion would go far to sweep away the last vestige of Church and State in this country. The last vestige, he said, was not reached yet; other measures would be necessary, and we were coming to them by and by. This would answer for the present. Whether the people of Cincinnati think it will answer remains to be seen. They sent in a remonstrance against it with over ten thousand signatures, besides the emphatic resolutions of one of the largest and most enthusiastic public meetings ever held in the city. Not more than two hundred petitioners asked for the measure. The indications are, therefore, that the next election of a Board of Education will overrule this decision, although the boldness with which it has been made implies a consciousness of considerable popular support. In the meantime the courts are to consider the case of an injunction granted to restrain the Board of Education from carrying their resolution into effect. But, however that may be decided, it is manifest that there will be no permanent settlement of the question until it is received at the hands of the people."

DRINKING CLERGYMEN.

In our travels, we often meet clergymen whose faces say in unmistakable language, Our color is owing to the free use of tobacco and intoxicating liquors. The following is from the Canada Christian Guardian:

"How many people are aware that the church is more dishonored in the persons of her inebriates than in any other way? Dr. Campbell of London says: 'There has scarcely been an instance requiring from me the exercise of church discipline, or the exclusion of members, which has not arisen through strong drink.' Dr. Guthrie testifies: 'I have seen no less than ten clergymen with whom I have sat at the Lord's table deposed through drink.' And Newman Hall bears witness:—

'More persons have been excommunicated from church fellowship on account of this vice, than of all other inconsistencies put together. And how vast the aggregate of such lamentable cases! Supposing that there are thirty thousand christian communities of various denominations in England, and that during the last three years each church has lost one member through intemperance (and this is a suppositition much below the truth,) then we have a loss to the church of thirty thousand members during three years. This is equal to an annual loss of fifty churches of two hundred members each.'

But drunkards are made of moderate drinkers. In the church, however, moderate drinking is tolerated until it grows scandalous by excess. Where shall the evil be pruned?"

THE DEVIL'S MIRACLES.

The Scriptures most plainly teach "that in the last days" "the spirits of devils" will work "miracles," and, "if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect." It is very evident that these spirits are now doing their work. Here is a sample, from the Davenport (England) Independent:—

"The circle being re-formed, Mr. Home addressed them on the wonderful power exhibited in spiritual manifestations. He then spoke of the principles of Trinity in Unity. At the close of his lecture a cold current of air passed over those present like the rushing of winds. This repeated itself several times. The cold blast of air, or electric fluid, or call it what you may, was accompanied by a loud whistle, like a gust of wind on the mountain top, or through the leaves of the forest in late autumn; the sound was deep, sonorous, and powerful in the extreme, and a shudder kept passing over the party, who all heard and felt it. This lasted about ten minutes, at broken intervals. As each gust passed, a dove was seen to move slowly over their head! All were much surprised, and the interest became intensified by the unknown tongues in which Mr. Home now conversed. Passing from one language to another in rapid succession, he spoke for about ten minutes. Two or three of the languages were understood, the others seemed to be Oriental. A spirit-form now became distinctly visible; it stood next to the Hon. ——, clad, as on former occasions, in a long robe, with a girdle, the feet scarcely touching the ground, the outline of the face only clear, and the voice whispered rather than spoke. Other voices were now heard, and large globes of phosphorescent light passed slowly through the room. Mr. H. now showed signs of exhaustion..... Marvelous as they may appear, the facts I have recorded are strictly given in the order of time as they occurred; and all present are quite prepared, if called on, to verify the truth of what I have now stated."

GREAT WICKEDNESS.

That wickedness is rapidly increasing is a fact too notorious to be disputed by a careful, unprejudiced observer. Some ministers, who have been teaching the conversion of the world, assume to see evidence that the people are growing better, but the facts are all against them. One prominent feature of the times is the alarming tendency to licentiousness among all classes. The days of Sodom are upon us.

The following from the Chicago Times, Oct. 13th, 1869, shows the direction of the moral current in these days:—

"THE GROWTH OF LICENTIOUSNESS.—It is a shocking commentary upon the public taste that an indecent play, full of coarse double entendre, nudity and licentiousness should actually attract more people and pay better as a theatrical venture than the finest drama in the language performed by the same persons. It shows a horrible craving in the minds of the masses, and even among people with some pretensions to position and refinement, for the vilest and grossest performances. Unfortunately the tendency to this kind of thing is not confined to the stage. Go where you will—at the theatre, on the street, and in the ball-room—you see an amount of artificiality, powder, rouge, and low-necked dressing, which is the result of the imitation of a certain style of French woman not necessary to mention. The effect of all this is to break down all the barriers which surround young womanhood, and cultivate a freedom and abandon of manner which is fatal to propriety if not to morality. Unseen charms have a thousand times the fascination of those so liberally displayed. Modesty and nudity of dress are impossible in a ball-room, and cannot long keep company."

MORE BLASPHEMY.

We recently gave some of Prof. Denton's sentiments in the Crisis. Prof. D. is a noted lecturer on geology, as well as Spiritualism. He is one of the most popular among the Spiritualists. Oct. 20th 1869, the Spiritualists of Mass. held their semi-annual convention in Tremont Temple, Boston, when Prof. Wm. Denton made a speech, reported in the Banner of Light, of Nov. 6th, from which we make the following extract. We think it is high time that all the friends of Jesus are awakened to know with what a fiendish enemy they have to contend, when they meet Spiritualism. According to the report, Mr. Denton said:—

"The angry, jealous Jehovah of the Jew—that terrible tyrant of the universe—the God of the christian, who prepared a hell in which to torment every poor soul that could not open its mouth and swallow an illy-begotten system of atonement—all these have been that the day-spring might be!

I am not here to-night to curse the past because it was not the present, to denounce Moses because he was not as philosophical as Humboldt, to blame Jesus, born of a Jewish maiden, preaching a Jewish religion which he could never escape from, because his training unfitted him to be the religious leader of New England thinkers to-day. I do not say burn your Bible, because the cosmogony of Moses is shown to be false by the revelations of geology, because its prophecies are but guesses inspired by a love of Judea and a hatred of all other nations. I do not even say that there is nothing in Paul's wordy epistles that may benefit the reader, though this egotistic, self-styled apostle was so unjust to women and so bigoted and intolerant to the men who dared to do as he did—preach that gospel that recommended itself to their judgment.

But I do object to those who would turn the world back to the night out of which we have emerged. I am here to protest against any man's shutting us up even where we are."

Said a Methodist minister to me on one occasion: "Oh, my dear sir, you will come back to your old faith sometime." "Not," I replied, "till the eagles go back to the eggs from which they were hatched." So we stand with regard to the old religion, the ancient dogmas, the fading sectaries! We are in the march to a higher and better condition of things every day that we live. The old religions were not a finality in their time, and our present status is no finality to us, for we can certainly march on in the time to come. How glad I am to see the day which twenty years ago it seemed impossible ever to realize; when Christianity and its dogmas are laid aside, and children are trained as in our Lyceums, uncursed by abominable systems that enervate their bodies and cramp their souls as far as this planet is concerned. How glad I am to see so many young men and women training to preach the gospel of common sense—the grandest gospel of all.

Shall I look at Spiritualism as it reveals itself to me to-day? As I see its constantly growing tendencies, and its practical affirmations that it will never incase itself within the bonds of creed, I see it to be the destined religion of the nineteenth century, which shall wonderfully prevail. Wonderful, indeed, is its progress during the last twenty years. Christians say "God is with us because we have made such progress;" but Spiritualism has in the brief space of its existence traversed the world! Fifty years after Christianity had been, it had not even challenged the attention of the best thinkers of Rome, who did not even know that it existed. Spiritualism in twenty years has awakened every drowsy soul from California to the furthest Ind. If so much has been done in so short a time, what is to be accomplished in years that are to come? These spiritual ideas are permeating every pulpit in the land; any new publication that is popular will be found surcharged with spiritual ideas. The scriptural meaning about putting new wine into old bottles is hourly unheeded by the churchmen, and by-and-by the wine of our new faith will burst their ancient creeds, and we shall be rid of them forever. A great work is being done, not so much in our assemblies, and in the name of Spiritualism, as in the old religion, and manifesting itself daily in the utterances of orthodox pulpits.

What is the work that lies before us?

It is neither more nor less than to inaugurate a new religion, not to cobble or revamp an old one. This, Jesus did—this did Luther, Wesley, Swedenborg. "No man," says Jesus, "putteth new wine into old bottles;" yet that is just what he did. He put the christian wine into Judean bottles; and every religious reformer that has risen among the Caucasian race has put his new wine into the old Christian and Jewish bottles.

This Spiritualism refuses to do. It is emphatically the religion of this time. Moses for the Mosaic times and a Mosaic people, Jesus for the Galileean fishermen, Paul for the uncritical, enthusiastic and superstitious converts, to whom he wrote. For us the men of our time, to whom have come the revelations of the telescope and the microscope—who have read the million-paged volume of the earth's history inscribed on her rocky tablets, and thus can write better Bibles than the world has ever seen; for us the religion of our time—one that a man need not blush to acknowledge—that allies itself with all science; for above it and beneath it, it includes all that science can ever discover, and enables its receiver to triumph in life and in death.

With the new religion comes a new God. We have done what no religious party before us has ever dared to do; we have discarded the Jewish Jehovah, worshiped to-day by Christians of every name. The Universalists, the Unitarians and Swedenborgians, like children in the dark, hold on to the hand of this great grim Jew, lest they should be lost if they dared to travel alone. We have said to this Jehovah of the Jews' making, this God of the old Syrian cattle-breeders, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, You are just as much of an idol as the Joss to which the Chinaman bows. We cannot allow you to rule over us—we are the offspring of the universe, every one. In place of this monster, we have Nature doing the best possible for all."

Crowds of intelligent men and women flock to hear this lecturer, and those who utter similar sentiments, and the rising generation are led to scoff at every thing the christian holds sacred. Are not these "perilous times"? And when we consider that Spiritualism is but the ripe fruit of a belief in the natural immortality of the soul, we think the time has come for every christian to take his Bible and see if he can find any thing in the word of the Lord that teaches that any man during the present life is possessed of immortality. If so, why is he exhorted to seek for it "by patient continuance in well-doing?"

The truth of the Bible is a death-blow to Spiritualism, and all kindred systems in ancient and modern times, while the theology of the day nourishes and supports them. Let good men who see the light, and love God and his word, speak out boldly, but with much kindness.

GOOD BLACK INK.

We wish to call attention to Dr. Thomas' ink. We have tried many kinds of ink for the last twenty-five years, but have found none that we like as well as that made by Bro. Thomas, of Waterbury, Vt. It is well known that Messrs. Arnold, of London, manufacture a very valuable black ink, which is a greenish blue when first written; but afterwards turns very black. That of Dr. Thomas' is blacker when first written than Arnold's ever becomes. We wish those who write for the "Crisis" would use as black ink as they can obtain; because it is much easier read by the compositors.

QUITE ORTHODOX.—A little two-years-old found a dead mouse in the trap in the back-yard, and taking it up in her chubby little hand, ran in to her grandmother and held it up, saying, "O grandma, here's a little mouse just gone to his heavenly Father."

No doubt the little girl had heard her grandmother say of some one who had died in the neighborhood, that he had "gone to his heavenly Father"; hence her conclusion.

OUR DISCUSSION in Chelsea, with Eld. Cornell, on the Sabbath question, has been one of special interest. It is to be published from notes taken by a reporter.

"THE AGE OF DIRT."

We have come down to the period in the history of our world represented by the "iron and clay" in the metallic image of Daniel, second chapter. Instead of the world growing better, it is rapidly degenerating into sin and infidelity. The friends of Satan are doing all in their power to make people believe the opposite; but facts are all against them.

In a new weekly journal in London, called the Latest News, the opening article contains the following:—

"It is the age of dirty speech and unclean writing. Walk the streets of London by day or night, and the oaths and obscenity will sicken you: while the doubtful *double entendre provokes silvery laughter in many a drawing-room. As to dirty writing, no journal now, no work of fiction, no drama pays, unless it portrays the pleasures of sense. Our popular novels especially, to their endless shame be it said, those written by women, are full of the details of illicit passion, and eagerly devoured by hosts of unsuspecting girls. The drama has for some time been a vehicle for the exhibition of the ankles of certain young ladies who keep broughams on eighteen shillings a week. The popular songs of the day all turn upon such vices; in the stationers' shops the portrait of the everlasting lorette languishes side by side with venerable bishops and grave statesmen; go into society's ball-rooms, and the style of dress ladies adopt approaches the simplicity of that worn by Eve in Paradise; the records of our hospitals are full of the dire effects of the vices of the day; everywhere we see evidences of this miserable sensuality which is eating into the heart of society—this is verily the Age of Dirt."

* Double entendre [pronounced doble-ong-tongdr] signifies "a word or expression admitting of a double interpretation, one of which is often obscure or indelicate."

PAPAL ROME.

"THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL—THE CATHOLIC FAITH UNCHANGEABLE."

To the Editor of the Herald:

Last Sunday's Herald contained an article headed as above, in which a layman belonging to the Roman Catholic Church thinks it strange that the intelligent editor should forget to ignore that the Roman Catholic Church cannot change its fixed faith to suit the ever-varying ideas of the world. Now, whether to suit the ever-varying ideas of the world, or for some other purpose, certain it is that the Romish Church has changed its fixed faith, and how an intelligent layman should think otherwise is a fact stranger still. It is almost superfluous for the writer, who is only an humble layman of the Protestant Church, to seek to remove any wrong impression which the article above referred to would be likely to make upon the intelligent reader. But fearful that the writer might feel confirmed in his assertions, though honest in his intentions, and from the fact that he has cast reflections on all non-Catholic creeds, and charges their professors with ignorance and prejudice, it may be well to correct him in a few important points. The latter charge—viz., of ignorance and prejudice—comes with a bad grace from a Roman Catholic.

It is a well-known fact that the great mass of Romanists are strictly forbidden by their priests to read the works of Protestant theologians, while, on the other hand, Protestants are enjoined to read the writings of Roman Catholics. I would ask, then, who has the best opportunity of judging fairly—Romanists or Protestants? And now I would ask the writer of the article to attend to the examination of the following table, which exhibits the dates when the principal Popish errors were made articles of faith by the sanction of a general council:—

	Year.
Invocation of saints	760
Image worship	787
Infallibility	1076
Transubstantiation	1215
Supremacy	1215
Half communion	1415
Purgatory	1468
Seven sacraments	1547
Sacrifice of the mass	1563
Apocryphal books	1547
Priestly inertion	1547
Indulgence introduced in fifteenth century, but not sanctioned by a council till	1563
Venial sins	1563

Popery is, therefore, a new system; it is a piece of patchwork. One patch was added by one Pope or one Council, and another by another. The work was finished at Trent in 1564, when a few additional patches were added. It bears something of the semblance of Christianity, just as the counterfeit coin resembles that which is genuine. There is not a single doctrine, with the exception of the Trinity, in which Romanists do not differ from the ancient Catholic Church. How, then, can it be said that Popery is the religion of Jesus Christ, when its principles are not to be found in any of our Lord's discourses or in the writings of his apostles?—New York Herald.

For the World's Crisis.

PLANCHETTE.

Reference has been made to the above-named instrument, as a means of the furtherance of a satanic delusion, called "The new religion of Spiritualism." Although my personal experience may be limited, and my knowledge of this new system not so extensive as many, yet I wish to relate a circumstance that occurred about a year since.

I was preaching at the L— Station in Livingston Co., N. Y., and was occupying the hall of Mr. K., of the place, who is a decided Spiritualist. He courteously invited me to lodge with him for a night or two. I went with him, found him gentlemanly, and in the possession of apparent wealth. On entering his house, I was introduced to a young man (his visitor) from the city of New York, who soon after my entering the house spoke of leaving for a hotel.

"No," said Mr. K., "stay with us to-night, and we will have some sport with 'Planchette.'"

The New Yorker consented to stay, and my host said to me, soon after:

"Elder, being weary, I presume you would wish to retire."

"Yes, sir, please," said I.

He then showed me into an upper room, and bade me good night. But before I retired to rest, I bowed the knee, and talked awhile with the Invisible, saying, "Lord, I pray thee in the name of Jesus Christ, let not the devil, through the agency of planchette, deceive any one in this house this night. O Lord, let my presence in this house prevent the deception of Satan through this agency, this night. Amen."

After retiring I heard laughter below; and as I sat in the sitting-room in the morning with Mr. K. and wife, there being no one else in the room, I said to Mr. K.,

"I heard laughing last night after I retired; perhaps it was planchette that amused you."

"No," said he, promptly, "planchette did not do much last night."

His wife said quite earnestly,

"They might have known that planchette would not have answered such foolish questions as they asked"; and she continued to say that it was "all confusion" with planchette last night. But her husband replied,

"Why, planchette did answer two or three times; when asked what spirit was communicating, said it was the devil."

When I heard that, I said in my heart, God has answered my prayer. None can possibly be deceived through the agency of planchette, when its replies are "all confusion"; or, if intelligent, it declares itself to be propelled by the devil. But although I rejoice that "the devils are subject to us," in the name of Jesus Christ, in answer to prayer, yet it is a greater source of joy to my heart that my name is written in heaven, in the Lamb's book of life; and my greatest and most earnest effort shall be, to so honor his name and vindicate his word, that it may not be blotted out. C. F. SWEET.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, September 2nd, at the National Campmeeting, it was

Resolved, That we raise THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the Tract Fund the ensuing year.

It is proposed to raise this amount during the year for the publication and free distribution of tracts. The value of these little preachers in the work of enlightening and saving men from darkness and death can hardly be overestimated; and the generous and liberal stewards of the Lord's money are earnestly invited to contribute according to their ability in aid of the good work. Send on your dimes and dollars, brethren, with a liberal hand, and receive, by and by, the reward of the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec. Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments..........$113.29

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments..........$19.00

AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All donations and payments of pledges for this Society, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$275.50
Wm. Mitchell	1.00
Samuel Dodge	1.00
L. A. Hart	.40
E. A. Hudson	1.00

S. N. A. CAMPMEETING FUND.

(To help make up the deficiency in the receipts.)

Robert Allen (pledge paid)	$25.00
C. S. Hall " "	25.00
W. E. Hathaway	2.00

For the World's Crisis.

BETHEL, VT.

The work of the Lord in this place is going on. It commenced early last summer, and has been increasing in interest ever since. Our campmeeting at Camp Brook added much to the interest of the cause. The faithful labors of Brn. Mathewson and Couch, with others, have removed much prejudice, and opened the way more clearly for the truth. Thank God, it is doing much in that place. One man in the place said before the meeting he would give $20 to have his crops secured during the campmeeting. He said at the close of it, he would give $25 to have another meeting of the same kind. All who were against us and the meeting in the beginning, were for us and the meeting at its close.

The meeting was one of great interest; the best I ever attended anywhere. There was the most perfect order. There was so much of the good Spirit of the Lord with us, it kept everything straight, and perfect harmony prevailed; for which we thank God.

Souls were converted, and others reclaimed. Some were baptized during the meeting; others have been since. I have been there once since. Had a good time. Baptized three happy souls. Others are waiting to go forward at the first opportunity.

At our last meeting, sixteen went forward to the anxious seats, earnestly seeking the Lord. I could but thank the Lord to see so many starting for the kingdom of God. Bless the Lord for ever.

We had a good meeting at Randolph. No special interest. The saints were encouraged in the good way. Some seemed a little afraid of Adventism; others are bold in the cause, and ready to confess the truth.

A word to the brethren in regard to ground for campmeeting another year, if time continues. I have found a good grove at West Randolph, a mile and a half from the depot; the most splendid situation I ever saw; and if it should suit the rest of the committee, we will try and get the ground. Bro. Washburn and myself have seen it, and we think it the place for the next campmeeting, if we do not camp in the kingdom before the time comes to have another meeting in the grove. The brethren at Randolph and vicinity are anxious to have us get this ground. We wait to hear the minds of all the committee.

J. A. CLEAVELAND.

East Roxbury, Vt., Nov. 4th.

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITISTS CHALLENGED.

BRO. GRANT:—After circulating my notices in Laporte, Ind., I saw a city paper, in which the Spiritists of Laporte had challenged all the ministers of that city to discuss the question of Spiritualism, and the infallibility of the Bible. No reply to them by the ministers, I found by inquiry.

In my first lecture I noticed the challenge. There were a number of Spiritists present. I announced publicly in my lecture that I would meet them on their own ground, and discuss the question with any one of their standard-bearers or champions, who would come recommended as to good moral character for truth and veracity. I then gave a public challenge as follows:—

Resolved, That disembodied departed human spirits do communicate with mortals on earth, and this can be demonstrated to be true.

I deny. Their excuse was, of course, that they had no man "comeatable" just now, and that I would only abuse them. So you see the truth is called abuse.

In the name of the Lord I have challenged them here. I spoke in the Methodist church here last evening, and speak again to-night. May the Lord help me to sow the seed of truth. JOHN MCQUEEN.

Westville, Ind., Oct. 30.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR TENT ENTERPRISE.

Brethren and Sisters in Christ:—Do we all feel that this tent enterprise belongs to us individually? Let me call your attention to our last conference report. Will you look it over once more, and then decide if all have done their duty in this matter. Our dear Bro. Wendell has been laboring hard all this season with the tent, and, as nearly as I can learn, has received but very little if any more than to pay his expenses.

Now, dear brethren in the State of N. Y., this tent belongs to us as a conference, and we as a conference have sent Bro. Wendell out with it. Have we all done our duty towards him? Have we all complied with the request of the last conference? It was recommended that some one in each church take the matter in hand, and take a collection each month for the support of the tent and mission enterprise.

Now if all would take hold of this matter, and all do a little, how very nicely this enterprise would be sustained. I have no doubt all would be willing to do, but some one must move in the matter in each church.

Dear brethren, let us take hold of this matter at once, and send to our treasurer, B. C. SIMONDS, Darien, Genesee Co., N. Y., so that we may be able to pay Bro. Wendell what is his due, and also have a fund on hand to keep the tent in the field the coming season.

Do we believe that God hears prayer? If we do, let us all get down low at the foot of the cross, and lift up our hearts to him for help to do our duty in this matter, and then go to work ourselves; for God works by means. D. COGSWELL.

Dansville, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

EXPLANATION.

Some want to know where I found the statement that Father Miller said, "If the event for which I am earnestly looking does not occur in 1843, then A. D. 1873 will be the next and only reliable date for the termination of the 1335 days." It can be found in one of the last numbers of the "Midnight Cry," published before the tenth day of the seventh month in 1844, edited by Southard, New York. I also heard him say it in private conversation in Chicopee, and in other places. H. MUNGER.

For the World's Crisis.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

Pursuant to notice in the "Herald" and "Crisis," a goodly number of brethren professing faith in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, as taught in the Scriptures of truth, assembled at Antioch, Ind., Oct. 14th, 1869. At about three P. M., the exercises commenced with a social meeting, in which gratitude to the Giver and Preserver of life and health was commingled with expressions of hope, mutual congratulations, and encouragement. Bro. W. T. Griffin was chosen Moderator, the writer Secretary, and Brn. R. Corbaley, T. McDonald, and A. Drew, a committee of arrangements to supervise the exercises.

The report of the preceding conference was called for, read and concurred in, after which an invitation was extended to visiting brethren, among whom were A. F. Servis, of Benton Harbor, Mich.; W. L. Himes, of the "Advent Christian Times"; and D. R. Mansfield and wife, A. C. C. of Mich.; all from Buchanan, Mich., to participate in the deliberations of the body.

The questions produced and discussed were as follows, viz.:

1st. What are the relations and duties, social, moral and religious, of obedient believers in Christ to unbelievers?

2nd. What is comprehended in the phrase, "the things concerning the kingdom of God"?

The former, after some discussion, was considered indefinite, and laid aside. The latter was answered as follows:—

"The fifth universal kingdom will be the kingdom of God, to be set up after the preceding have completed their time of dominion. For this purpose Jesus Christ, as King of kings and Lord of lords, will return to earth, resurrect his dead, and change to immortality his living saints at his second appearing, constitute them co-rulers in the kingdom of God, under the title of kings and priests, and by a reign of one thousand years restore order in the world; thereby blessing all the families (nations) of earth through Abraham and his seed. The territory will be under the whole heaven; the subjects, all tribes and nations of earth, Jew and Gentile."

Next in order came reports of the various committees.

EVANGELICAL COMMITTEE. Whole amount expended for evangelical labor, from June 14th, 1869, to October 14th, 1869, $62.75.

SOLICITOR AND TREASURER. On hand at last report, $83.80. Received from June 14th, 1869, to Oct. 18th, 1869, $73.30. Paid on order of Evangelical Committee, $62.75. Refunded to Bro. S. G. Clark, Liberty Mills, Ind., $1.00. Left in treasury unexpended, $94.48. Subscriptions remaining unpaid, $90.00.

COMMITTEE ON TENT, FURNISHINGS, ETC.—1. A fifty foot tent is the best size for general use. 2. Its cost would be about $300. 3. It is thought more good can be accomplished in a given time with a tent, than by the present system of proclamation.

The following motions and resolutions were after consideration acted on and carried:

1st. Whereas, the spirit of proscription and intolerance has been and is manifested by some claiming our basis of union and co-operation; and whereas, this spirit from time to time is extended to many active members of the body because of difference of opinion in some of the collaterals of the gospel; therefore,

Resolved, That the churches of God in the State of Indiana, in conference assembled at Antioch, Ind., Oct. 16th, 1869, after due deliberation, condemn this spirit of proscription and intolerance, and recommend in its stead brotherly-love, condescension, humility, and kindness.

2nd. That Bro. E. C. Andrus continue to act as Solicitor and Treasurer.

3d. That Brn. A. Barnhill, C. Faber, and I. G. Roberts, constitute the Evangelical Committee. (Address, Plymouth, Ind.)

4. That the Evangelists be subject to the Evangelical Committee.

5th. That the Secretary furnish a copy of the proceedings of this conference for publication in the "Herald of the Coming Kingdom," "World's Crisis," and "Advent Christian Times."

Several able discourses were delivered on practical religion, man's awards, the signs of the times, the nearness of Christ's coming, and kindred topics; while social meetings, occasionally interspersed, gave room for interchange of thought, and expressions of love and friendship. The conference adjourned Oct. 18th, 1869, to meet again (with Divine permission) in June next, notice of which will be given. J. K. THOMPSON, Sec'y.

SPREAD OF PROTESTANTISM IN MEXICO.—According to a correspondent of the New York Observer, Protestantism is making rapid advances in Mexico. The writer says, in a letter from the capital:

"There are now, in the City of Mexico, eight organized bodies of native Mexican Evangelical Christians, converted from the Mexican Catholic church. They have their appointed places of public worship, which is conducted with as much propriety, zeal, and simple beauty as I have ever witnessed, by reading the Scriptures, singing, praying and preaching—teaching that the Scriptures alone are to be taken as the rule of christian conduct, and the inventions of men, whether as images of stone, wax, or metal, or the ridiculous imposture of the Virgin Guadaloupe, are to be rejected as idolatrous.

"In the surrounding country, say within fifty miles of the city, there are ten or twelve congregations, composed of men and women, who would suffer martyrdom rather than follow Judas by denying Christ. In the State of Zacatecas, several hundred miles from here, the great work has a firm foothold, and several congregations."

Correspondence.

From Sr. P. A. Walker.

BRO. GRANT:—Permit me through the columns of the Crisis to express my gratitude to those friends who forward your most excellent paper to me from week to week, while I am necessarily absent from them. Be assured, dear friends, that I am with you in spirit, in faith, and in purpose; desiring nothing so much as to see the cause of God prosper. Words fail me to express the comfort and encouragement I derive from the perusal of the Crisis, isolated as I am, suddenly deprived of kindred fellowship and meeting with the pilgrims and strangers from week to week; alone as it were; no one near that loves the great truths therein advocated; many that never even heard of immortality through Christ: yet I am not alone, for Jesus is with me every day, more precious than ever before. Being deprived of christian fellowship and counsel, I am also saved from making flesh my arm, and can fully rely on God. In my weakness he is my strength; able to save, to sustain, and to bear me up through all trials and temptations in these perilous times.

How precious is such a friend; subject to no change, ever present with every little one who is willing to count all things loss for his sake. I desire to love him more, to be more active in his service; for time is short; there is no mistake about that; and what is done must be done quickly. O that every one who loves the appearing of Jesus would "cast aside every weight," "strip for the race, and harness for the battle," that a few more may be gathered in ere the gathering storm burst upon their defenceless heads.

To the dear young brethren and sisters with whom I was wont to meet, I would say, Go on; make a full consecration to Christ. Eternal life is cheap enough if it cost our all. "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." Good enough. May the Lord keep you all without spot and blameless unto his appearing and kingdom. Your sister in Christ,

Hardwick, Vt. P. A. WALKER.

From Bro. S. W. Thurber.

BRO. GRANT:—You will be glad to hear about the good work of the Lord in Cabot, Vt. I came here three weeks ago and commenced a protracted meeting. Rev. Mr. Drew met me the first evening, and requested that it should be a union meeting. Bro. Childs, pastor of the Advent church, thought it advisable, and we have held our meetings alternately in each house, and have had a communion service in both churches. The Methodist church opened their house for us, and held two meetings there. The result has been glorious.

Our congregations have been large, with from twenty-five to a hundred forward for prayers, a goodly number of them new beginners. Brn. Childs (Advent), Drew (Cong.), and Hill (Meth.), have all been equally yoke-fellows in this great work. There is a general conviction resting on the people in this vicinity. We are looking for good times to come.

This is my old battle-field. Twenty years ago rejected by many on account of my faith, now they are ready to hear. It is truly pleasant to meet with so many old and tried friends, with whom I have labored for many years; and now, after an absence of seven years, we are together again, with the blessing of God resting upon us.

But we must part to-morrow. I shall leave them, never expecting to see them until the trump of God shall sound. It has been the best three weeks of my life; peace like a river, and righteousness like the waves of the sea.

I have preached twenty-three discourses to these churches, and have not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God. May God bless us all. To his name be all the glory.

Nov. 12th. S. W. THURBER.

From Sr. M. A. Miller.

How important it is that we, as professed followers of Christ, should keep our lamps trimmed and burning. If God has given us one talent, let us improve upon that till Jesus comes. We are sad to acknowledge that among professed christians we often see those who, we fear, have hid their talent in the earth. Dear readers, if you have put your light under a bushel, I warn you in the name of Jesus to let your light so shine that sinners may take knowledge of you, and be persuaded to come to Christ. We profess to believe that Jesus is soon coming. The signs we see daily indicate that the day is near, even at the door.

We read, "Many shall be called, but few chosen." Let us be of the chosen number. Let us be faithful in warning sinners to flee from the wrath of God. I feel for one I will be more faithful. God has blessed us here abundantly, and we can never praise him half enough for his goodness. Brethren and sisters, pray that God will continue to pour out his spirit here in Biddeford, and protect and keep the little ones just started on their pilgrimage. We read that "the love of many shall wax cold." Let us be faithful, and when Jesus comes he will save us. Your sister in Christ, MARIE A. MILLER.

Saco, Me.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. W. BREWSTER writes:—"Let us watch and pray night and day for Jesus to come quickly, that we may be found of him in peace, and be of that number whom God will avenge speedily; for it is very evident that the hour of judgment is very near, when the ten kings will receive power as kings one hour with the beast. Rev. 17. 'These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords and King of kings; and they that are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful.' And it is said of the woman Babylon, the great city, 'In one hour is her judgment come'; and (14: 7), 'Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come.'

I think this is prophetic time—fifteen days, in the last judgment hour. 'And (19: 19) I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered to make war against Him that sat on the horse, and against his army. And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet, that wrought miracles before him, . . . These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone.'

It is evident that the unclean spirits that went out from the beast have about done their work of gathering the world for the great day of God Almighty. Rev. 16. And I think that the gathering together of the Catholic world to the seat of the beast, will accomplish the last form of the beast and city, and prepare them to make war with the Lamb, and unite them with the ten kings in this work for one hour of time, or fifteen days, the last time of the Gentile reign, when the seventh vial will be poured out into the air; when the great voice will come out of the temple of Heaven, from the throne, saying, 'It is done'; and the Lamb will overcome, and reign over the Israel of God forever: and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

Beloved friends, let us watch unto prayer, and be sober. The great deceiver is making his last efforts. Let us all stand up for Jesus and the word of God boldly, that we may understand, and overcome evil with good."

Bro. O. W. Kimball writes:—"Christian brethren and sisters:—Having known considerable trouble among christians in consequence of speaking of the faults of others, and feeling that my whole attention is required at home, to set before the Lord and confess my own faults, I have resolved by the help of the Lord never to speak evil of my brethren, or of any one.

Brethren, now is a good time to make good resolves. Let us get quite ready for the Lord. He is about to come. Pray for me, that I may live good, and be found faithful at last."

Bro. N. Wheeler writes, Nov. 4th:—"We baptized two young men at Sugar Hill last Lord's day. The cause is gaining ground. There is some new interest also enkindled at Whitefield."

Obituaries.

Watson. Died, in Charlestown, R. I., Aug. 12th, 1869, Sr. Libby, only daughter of Bro. Cyrus and Sr. Sarah Watson, in the nineteenth year of her age.

Libby was a christian. She loved her Savior and his cause with unwavering affection and devotion, and died in hope of speedy and perfect redemption from death and the grave. She was calm and composed through all, even to the end, and frequently remarked to her sorrowing father and mother, "It will be but a little while, it is but 'just over there.'" She made all needed arrangements for her funeral as calmly as one would for a night's rest after a fatiguing day of labor. She selected the text (Job 14: 14) to be used, and the writer to speak at her funeral. A. Durfee.

Jones. Died, on Drum Creek, Kansas, Oct. 18th, 1869, in the blessed hope of immortality when Christ comes, Samuel D. Jones, aged sixty-six years.

For many years he had been trying to serve his Maker, but, like Cornelius, there was something more to be done. Last spring he went down to the water, was buried with Christ in baptism, and rose to walk in newness of life. He died with the full assurance of eternal life. He leaves a wife and six children to mourn his loss. May they sorrow not even as others who have no hope, but find great consolation in God's word. Libbie Cook.

Murdo. Died, in Bradford, Nov. 3d, 1869, Wilson Murdo, aged sixty-four.

Funeral sermon by Bro. H. Hubbard. He lies in his grave, waiting for the morn of the resurrection, to receive immortality.

Gibbons. Died, at Bunker Hill, Ill., Oct. 19th, 1869, Bro. Datus O. Gibbons, aged eighty-five years.

Henry. Died at Bunker Hill, Ill., Nov. 1st, Albert H. Henry, aged fifteen months.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 10. The cholera is raging with severity in the city of Kiev.

Paris, Nov. 11. It is now said that, after all, the dogma of the infallibility of the Pope will not be forced on the Ecumenical Council. Reports from Rome, apparently based on good authority, state that the Pope declares he must be assured of an imposing majority of Bishops in favor of the dogma, otherwise he would prefer that the subject should not be introduced, desiring to avoid an admission which might lessen the influence of the principle. Meantime the Jesuits are using every effort to secure an overwhelming majority.

London, Nov. 11. The Government has ordered a man-of-war to carry the remains of the late George Peabody to America.

Marseilles, Nov. 17. Arrivals here report that a fearful hurricane has passed over the Mediterranean causing much loss to shipping. The American steamer Leight was wrecked in the harbor of Oran on the coast of Algiers, and totally destroyed.

Paris, Nov. 11. Ledru Rollin, who was compelled to seek safety in England in 1848 on account of conspiracy against Napoleon, is expected to arrive here to-day. It is reported that he will be promptly arrested if he enters French territory.

Dresden, Nov. 12. The Saxon House of Deputies have unanimously resolved that the Government should endeavor to procure the abolition of capital punishment throughout North Germany.

Paris, Nov. 12. Monseigneur Dupauloup, Bishop of Orleans, has issued a pastoral letter expressing his approval of the proceedings of the Fulda Conference, but declaring in advance that he will abide by the decisions of the Ecumenical Council, whatever they may be.

It is rumored that the pastoral of the Archbishop of Paris, issued Nov. 7, opposing the adoption of the dogma of Papal infallibility without discussion, was inspired by the Emperor.

Ledru Rollin refuses to return to Paris, though he has not withdrawn from the canvass for the Corps Legislatif. A deputation of Electors has just returned from London with an acceptance by Louis Blanc to the Corps Legislatif, in the place of Ledru Rollin. The latter, however, insists on maintaining his candidature, and has published an electoral address, which is ridiculed by all the Paris journals.

London, Nov. 12. Advices from Alexandria state that the great bed of rock in the Suez Canal, at Ismailia, seventy-five miles south of Point Said, which has hitherto been a hindrance to dredging, will be at once blasted out. This rock is eighty feet thick.

The convoy at the opening ceremony on the 17th will consist of eighty ships. Notwithstanding this favorable news the underwriters of this city mostly decline to insure vessels through the canal.

Paris, Nov. 15. The manifesto of the opposition members of the Corps Legislatif is published. It is signed by twenty-eight deputies. They say that the demand by the people for the right to govern themselves, means an inevitable transformation, the necessity of which each day is found to be more and more imperative. The opposition intend to use peaceful means to that end, unless an attempt is made to silence them by force.

London, Nov. 15. A despatch from Alexandria announces the arrival of the Emperor of Austria at Port Said. The Empress Eugenie is expected to reach that place to-morrow.

The deputies from Porto Rico in the Spanish Cortes have demanded the abolition of slavery in that Island with indemnification to the owners.

DOMESTIC.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 11. The Joint Committee on reunion of the Presbyterian Assemblies reported informally in both bodies this morning, stating that they had agreed on all legal points and would this afternoon recommend the appointment of committees of both bodies to complete the details of reconstruction; also, that both bodies meet for devotional exercises to-morrow morning, and be dissolved in legal form at 10 o'clock, A. M., after which a Union meeting of both bodies will be held in Large street Hall of this city, the united assembly to meet for the first session at Philadelphia in May next. This report is regarded as deciding the question of reunion.

Washington, Nov. 12. The following telegram was sent to San Francisco to-day by the Russian Minister:

"Washington, D. C., Nov. 12, 1869.

Martin Kleukopatrom, Russian Consul at San Francisco, California:

President Grant having designated the 18th of this month as a Thanksgiving day, I instruct you to have a Thanksgiving service celebrated on that day in the Russian Chapel. Invite all Russian subjects to unite their prayers with those of the American people.

(Signed) Cotocazy, Russian Minister.

A New French Army Law.—The rumor runs that a new army law will shortly be promulgated in France. The National Guard, long so famous, will be suppressed, say those who profess to know; and it will be asserted that all citizens owe military service to the country. Exemptions are to be more frequent than at present; the situation of the family being oftener an excuse than at present. The period of service will be reduced to three years. It is now a fraction under nine. Conscription yearly will be preserved. All the young men who have completed their twentieth year in the twelvemonth before the conscription will be divided into two categories. The first, comprising 100,000 men yearly, will be drafted into active service. The second will comprise a reserve not held to regular military duty, but liable to be called at any time. Service in time of war does not admit of substitutes. If this law takes effect, France will have a great burden of tyranny lifted from its shoulders. It seems as if the Emperor, astonished at the rebellion against his severe laws of ten years ago, intended to be liberal in every possible manner for the rest of his reign.

The Abolition of the Bible from the Cincinnati Schools.—The Cincinnati Daily Gazette of Friday last, in a lengthy article on the exclusion of the Bible from the public schools of that city, says:

"The small faction in the Board of Education who, with the Roman Catholics, passed the resolution excluding the Bible from the public schools, are notwithstanding their professions, the most narrow-minded bigots within the limits of Cincinnati. They do not believe in the Bible or the moral code of the Bible, and they are Bible haters. Besides, they are intolerant toward those who differ with them. They hold up to ridicule every man's religion. They set down as fanatics or hypocrites every person who believes in the Christian religion, and they scoff at the ministers of the church. Their aim is not to build up but to tear down, and they will not consider their mission fulfilled until churches are abolished, ministers of the gospel cease to exist, and until children are educated to believe there is no Being superior to man. Yet these people call themselves liberal, and oppose the reading of the Bible because, as they allege, it violates the right of conscience."

The Insurrection on Austria.—The Dalmatians have been carrying on as formidable an insurrection on the borders of Austria as did the Spaniards in Spain a short time ago. The movement has extended even to the Sclavonic population, who have taken for their motto, "God and Liberty," and are frightening the government badly. The Austrian army began military operations October 18th, and sent a large number of regiments to Cattaro, where was the first decided outbreak. The battles there were much more serious than at first reported, and there were large losses of troops in taking the city of Cattaro. It was the story of Valencia translated from Spanish into Hungarian. The insurgents are now in the mountains, and are making a very bold resistance, which all authorities prophesy will outlast the year, and may terminate in their favor. Austria has become involved with the Prince of Montenegro, by allowing its troops to pass through his territory against his will.

Great Flood at Malta.—A letter from Valetta, Malta, Oct. 15th, says that island was visited by a very heavy fall of rain on the 10th, and great damage was done by the flood which ensued. The scene presented in the town of Cospicua was terrific. Men, women and children were saved from drowning by being lifted up with ropes from streets into the second floors of houses. Others, in their struggle for existence, broke through the roofs of the first-floor rooms into the rooms above; while others were picked up by boats which had been carried to the inundated town from the sea.—Boston Journal.

Keeping an Engagement.—The Springfield Republican relates that Hon. Charles Sumner, who lectured at Greenfield, Thursday night, had a rather singular experience in getting there, which proved his determination to "stick" to his engagements. Finding himself left at Rutland by the tardy train from Bennington, he chartered an engine and rode thereon at lightning speed to Brattleboro; there another, and rode to South Vernon, where he took a freight train, which had been delayed by telegram for his accommodation. He arrived at Greenfield only a few minutes behind hand.

The Asiatic Cholera.—It is reported that the cholera is raging with terrible severity in the city of Kiev, in Russia. Kiev is located on the Dnieper, one of the rivers of the Black Sea, up which, in 1831-2, the Asiatic pestilence took its desolating way toward the Baltic, thence to the British Islands, and thence across the Atlantic. Can it be that this fearful scourge in about to make a second march over the same course?

Passing Events.

☞ All Western Kansas was ablaze with prairie fires the latter part of October, and the farmers of Salina, Alma, Jefferson City and other places have lost heavily in fences, hay, grain and barns, and in many cases their houses have been destroyed. The heavy coat of grass and high winds made immense flames; some as high as forty feet are reported.

☞ A serious inundation recently occurred near Merida, the capital of Yucatan, which caused the loss of several lives and the destruction of considerable property. The country roads were rendered impassable. An earthquake occurred at Manila on the 27th of October, severe enough to shake down all the houses. Several persons were killed.

☞ A citizen of Montereau, France, caught, the other day, a fish of almost priceless value, for in opening it, it was found to contain a magnificent breastpin, ornamented with thirty precious stones—diamonds, rubies, sapphires, and emeralds of extraordinary beauty. The breastpin is valued by Paris jewelers at the fabulous sum of 1,500,000 francs.

☞ An immense bed of petrified fossil shells has been found near Saratoy, in Southeastern Russia. The interior of these shells contains beautiful crystals of sulphate of copper, from which it is proposed to extract the metal. In a scientific point of view this discovery is valuable, as many of the specimens are in such a good state of preservation that the shape of the shell-fish, their former occupants, can be traced.

☞ Some weeks ago a terrible conflagration occurred at the little village of Radoczin, in Hungary. While the men and women had left their houses to work in the fields, a fire broke out in a barn, and consumed 125 out of 130 houses composing the village. Twenty-one little children, who had been left by their mothers in their houses, perished in the flames.

☞ A new race of people, supposed to be of Asiatic origin, and resembling the Anglo-Saxons, called the Ovas, have been discovered in Southwestern Africa. They are an intelligent, honest, industrious, and temperate people, not idolaters, but believers in a Supreme Being, whose symbols are the sun and fire, to which they pay homage, but offer no sacrifices to them.

☞ The French Empress, while in Constantinople, said to the American Minister that there was nothing which she more desired than to visit America—that she was only waiting for some pretext for going, which she hoped would be found before long.

☞ Rev. Phebe A Hanaford is to deliver the Thanksgiving sermon, Nov. 18, in the chapel at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio. Her only son is a member of the Freshman class in that institution.

☞ A person who has long been engaged in the liquor traffic, was led to abandon it on ascertaining that of forty-four of his regular customers, thirty-two had gone down to a drunkard's grave, while ten of the rest were confirmed sots.

☞ Charles O'Connor, the eminent New York lawyer, goes to Europe to be present at the Ecumenical Council in Rome. Mr. O'Connor was once a newspaper carrier, delivering a paper to subscribers which his father published.

☞ Two Hindoo merchants, named Mooljee Thackeray and Toolsidass Jadavjee, are on a visit to this country, for the purpose of encouraging direct trade between the United States and their country.

☞ The Grand Master of Free Masons in France has summoned a general convention of the Masons of Europe, at Paris, on the 8th of December, in opposition to the Ecumenical Council.

☞ With the means of locomotion at present in use, a tour round the world may be made in eighty days; about the time which would formerly have been employed in going from London to St. Petersburg.

☞ The operation of transfusion of blood was recently performed at the Pennsylvania Hospital. Blood was transferred from the arms of two medical students into the person of an apparently dying young man, who rallied immediately.

☞ It is now sure that ex-Isabel of Spain and her husband will attend the Ecumenical Council at Rome, and that the little Prince of Asturias will receive his first communion there.

☞ The only picture of God, the Father, in European museums, so far as known, is that at Valencia, Spain. It is a face of severe aspect, with a divine light flashing from the eyes. The daring artist who painted it lived in 1500.

☞ It is estimated that carpeting requisite to cover the rooms and halls of the new hotel now in process of erection on the site of the old Lafarge House in New York will cover seven acres.

☞ Pere Hyacinthe disclaims all intentions of issuing an address to the Catholics of America.

☞ Austin, Texas, was visited by a very severe hailstorm on the 22d of October. The stones varied in size from that of a boy's marble to that of a teacup. One was found an hour after the storm ceased nine inches in circumference.

☞ The largest farm in England contains 3000 acres. S. T. Alexander's famous farm, near Homer, Illinois, consists of 26,500 acres. Six thousand four hundred acres are under cultivation.

☞ Paris has a population of nearly two millions of inhabitants. Its early history is involved in obscurity. We only know it was a place of prominence under Julius Cæsar, B. C. 56.

☞ The Chinese in California are shipping horned toads from the central part of that State to China, where they are used in the treatment of diseases of the lungs.

☞ Elias Jasper is a colored man of Norfolk who has invented a woodsaw that makes the workman to cut wood of any size with great celerity.

☞ The Governors of thirty-one States have united with the President in recommending November 18 as a day of thanksgiving and praise.

☞ It will take $80,000 to repair the damage done by the late floods on the Hartford, Providence and Fishkill Railroad.

☞ The schism in the Mormon church threatens to become serious enough to revolutionize the social system of Utah.

☞ Splendid easy-chairs, covered with red velvet, have been ordered in Paris for the prelates attending the Ecumenical Council.

☞ The snow is said to be two and a half feet in some portions of Northern Vermont.

Religious Items.

☞ Doctor and Mrs. Palmer are conducting revival meetings at Asbury Chapel, Indianapolis.

☞ The first Roman Catholic Church in Franklin County, Mass., has just been completed at Turner's Falls.

☞ Bishop Kingsley, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, expects to ordain nine native Chinese ministers on his reaching China.

☞ The Orthodox, Methodist, and Baptist churches in Athol have been holding a protracted meeting.

☞ The rector of St. Albans, New York, has been in Europe and brought back the latest fashions in Ritualism.

☞ The Rev. Shapharzi Edalzi, a converted fire-worshiper, of the celebrated sect of the Parsees of Bombay, commenced to officiate as assistant curate of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, St. Ebbe's, Oxford, England. The Rev. gentleman was ordained by the Bishop of Oxford.

☞ In the Friendly Islands, where, fifty years ago, there was not one native christian, but gross and unbroken darkness, the regular attendants on public worship now exceed thirty thousand, and contributions to religious objects are over fifteen thousand dollars a year. Two hundred and fifty day schools contain ten thousand pupils.

☞ The Mormons at Salt Lake City have no salaried preachers, and speak openly against an educated or paid ministry. President Young preaches about once each month. Two general services are held each month—one at ten o'clock in the Old Tabernacle, at which about three thousand usually attend, and the other at two o'clock in the afternoon, in the New Tabernacle, at which about 5000 are present.

☞ In Pettau, Styria, the Jesuit Fathers solemnly affirm that sinners, immediately after their arrival in hell, are besmeared with lard and covered with salt, and thus given over to the eternal fire. In this way they furnish most excellent burning material, and the stench emanating from them affords his Satanic Majesty a most enviable enjoyment.

☞ The Christian World contains a letter from Miss Rankin, in which she describes the cheering prospects of Christian labor in Mexico. The whole country is open to Protestant Christianity. Multitudes of the Catholics are inquiring after the truth as it is in Jesus. Cannot our missionary society give attention to this inviting field? A rich harvest may be gathered there.

Notices.

Protracted Meeting.

Dear brethren and sisters of Boston, Chelsea, and vicinity: We intend to hold a protracted meeting in Charlestown, Mass., on Main Street, No. 404, at Winthrop Hall, to commence Monday evening, Nov. 15th, at seven o'clock P. M., and continue every evening through the week. We want you to come with your hearts all warmed up with the love of God, and help us in this glorious work. We give a hearty and cordial invitation to all God's children, of whatever name or order, to come and labor with us for the conversion of sinners, the reclaiming of backsliders, and the perfecting of the saints. We expect Bro. S. S. Brewer to labor with us.
E. Cotton.
S. C. Hancock.

Notice.

In view of the lack of deep piety in the church, and a proper interest in the soon coming of Jesus to redeem his people and give them their Eden home, we, the undersigned, call for a general, free, and old-fashioned Conference, to be held in Richmond Village, Me., to commence Dec. 22d, at seven P. M., and continue over Lord's day. This conference is intended to benefit ministers and members; in which ministers will relate their call into the ministry, and members their experience in the proclamation of the Advent near; and to labor for piety of the church for the salvation of sinners and the piety of the church.
Israel Damman.
A. H. Walker.
B. Emery.

Notice.

The Lord willing, Sr. E. S. Jennings will commence a series of meetings in Knowlesville, N. Y., Nov. 24th, intended as a protracted effort, to continue as long as the Lord directs. Will the friends of Jesus pray that this whole village may be shaken by the mighty power of God; that sinners may be converted; and that this church-going community may know that there is a power as well as a form of godliness? P. Thurtle, Sec.

Protracted Meeting.

A protracted meeting will commence at Warren, Vt., Wednesday evening, Nov. 24th, and continue evenings through the week and over the Sabbath following, and as much longer as the interest may demand. The Lord bless the effort.
J. A. Cleaveland.

P. S. We had a blessed meeting at East Roxbury, Vt. Much good was done. We give God all the glory. J. A. C.

Dedication.

The new Advent Chapel just completed in Woodstock Valley, Ct., will be dedicated Thursday, Nov. 25th, at two o'clock P. M. Elders H. L. Hastings, H. F. Carpenter, P. S. Butler, A. Morse, and others, are expected to be present. Meetings will continue evenings through the week and over the Sabbath, and longer, if thought best.
For the church, I. B. Potter.

Discussion.

There will be a discussion held in the M. E. Church, at Antwerp, Paulding Co., Ohio, to commence Tuesday evening, Nov. 30th, and continue through the week.

Question.—Resolved, That all men have a conscious existence after the death of the body, before its resurrection.
E. B. Louden, Affirm.
J. Wendell, Neg.

New Hampshire State Conference.

The sixteenth annual session of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire will convene in Concord, N. H., commencing Dec. 9th, and hold over the following Sunday. Particulars hereafter. A. W. Sibley, Sec.

Notice.

Where shall the Maine Ministerial Conference be held? Those brethren wishing the conference held with their church, or in their town or city, the second Tuesday in January, 1870, will please notify me at Topsham, or R. K. York, Portland, at once. C. Goud, Pres.

Notice.

There will be a protracted meeting in Jay, Kennedy's Corner, commencing Nov. 18th, and continue over Sunday. Brethren in the place will care for all. H. B. Sevey.

Notice.

The next quarterly meeting with the church at Wilmot Settlement, Broom Co., N. Y., will be held Nov. 27th and 28th. Bro. and Sr. Hitchcock, of Kirkwood, N. Y., will be there to assist. All are invited to attend. For the brethren,
J. W. Taylor.

Notice.

Elder Wilson Morlatt will preach at Cohocton, (as T. C. Armstrong and others may appoint), Thursday evening, Nov. 25th, and over Sunday following, and thus fill my monthly appointment there at that time. C. F. Sweet.

☞ I have been detained from starting for Nova Scotia for the past week, but expect to start Tuesday, Nov. 16th, the Lord willing. Brethren, pray for us. John G. Hook.

National Conference.

The First National Advent-Christian Conference will assemble in the city of Rochester, N. Y., Wednesday, Nov. 17th, in the hall of the Advent Christian church of that city, at ten o'clock A. M.

This conference will be composed of delegates from the several Advent Christian Conferences of the various States and Canada, in accordance with the terms of the following call, issued by the Advent Convention, held at Buchanan, Mich., in November, 1868, which has been approved by most of the Conferences:

"A PROPOSITION TO THE ADVENT-CHRISTIANS OF NORTH AMERICA.

Whereas, The Advent-Christian body of this Continent, which has been called out of the world and the various sects, should be one in faith, hope, and work; and

Whereas, Unity of action is essential to the proper accomplishment of their great work for the present generation; therefore,

Resolved, That a General Conference of Advent-Christians be called, to be composed of representatives from all the States and Territories of the United States, and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Resolved, That this Conference shall consist of delegates from the several Advent-Christian Conferences of the United States and Canada, each Conference being entitled to three delegates. Provided, that in States, Territories, or Provinces where there are no Conferences, and isolated Advent-Christian Churches exist, such churches may unite and send one delegate.

Resolved, That a committee of seven be appointed: three from the East, three from the West, and one from the dominion of Canada, who shall make arrangements for the time and place of meeting of said General Conference. Provided, that the place of meeting be as central as possible. We suggest Rochester, N. Y., or Buchanan, Mich.

The above action in reference to this proposed General Conference is subject to the approval of the several Advent-Christian Conferences."

This Conference will meet in Rochester, by the special request of the church in that city, who will extend their hearty hospitalities to the delegates, and others who may attend in convention. Their invitation is to all who love and cherish, and desire to proclaim more successfully and widely, the great truths generally held by Advent christians.

The Conference will consider the condition, prospects, and wants of the cause it is to represent, and take action as it may deem wise in the premises, for such Scriptural organization of the body as shall tend to add to its effectiveness in the promulgation of the great Biblical truths which God has called us to proclaim in the last days.

We trust this important meeting will be made the subject of earnest prayer by all who love "the present truth."

John Couch, New Hampshire; Miles Grant, Massachusetts; S. G. Mathewson, Vermont; Joshua V. Himes, Michigan; Wm. Sheldon, Wisconsin; O. R. Fassett, Minnesota; John Porter, Canada, National Conference Committee.

A Call for Help.

Brethren of Vermont, the conference formed at our excellent campmeeting voted to send delegates to the National Advent Christian Conference, but made no provision to defray their expenses. Brn., is it right for them to bear their own expenses? I say No, and I think I hear a No from all over the State. Now sit right down, before you forget it, and write to Eld. J. A. Cleaveland, Marshfield, Vt., and inclose your contributions. The three delegates will need fifty or sixty dollars; so don't be afraid you shall do too much. If they should happen to get a little more than enough, it won't hurt them. Geo. U. Lewis.

Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the executive committee of the Maine Ministerial Conference have appointed Wm. H. Mitchell, of Kennebunkport, Me.; I. C. Wellcome, of Yarmouth, Me.; and F. A. Baker, of Levant, Me.; as delegates of said conference to attend the American Advent Christian Conference, to be held in Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 17th, 1869. C. Goud, Pres.

Notice.

Brethren and sisters of like precious faith, greeting: As I have been made the custodian of the Philadelphia Tent, which has been dedicated to the service of God, as a house in which to proclaim the truth we so much love; I would say to all who want to do good through this channel, to begin at once to lay plans for a tent-meeting next season, in some central place. Talk this matter over with the friends around you, and pray for direction and the spirit of sacrifice, and write to me at your earliest convenience if you think it best to have a meeting of that kind at your place. Write as early as the 20th of March, so that I can make proper arrangements for equalizing the expenses. If there should be any who may want a meeting at their place, or some village near by, and yet not able to determine what is best under the circumstances, let them give us all the favorable and also all the unfavorable circumstances, and we will decide about the matter ourselves.
P. W. Hough, Clerk.

Statistics Called For.

If any brother in any place within the bounds of the A. C. Conf. of the State of Conn., will furnish information, by letter or otherwise, as to date of commencement of Advent meetings, numbers in fellowship, means, expenditures, places of worship, etc., he will confer a favor. For this purpose, please address Elder A. H. Steele, 20 Franklin Street, New Haven, Ct.; B. Hitchcock, same No.; or, up to Nov. 13th, W. S. Campbell, 354 Pearl Street, New York City.

To the Churches in Connecticut.

Having been elected to the office of President of Conference, I would be happy to learn the wants of churches within this jurisdiction, and to this end would be glad to hear from the brethren and sisters. H. H. Dickinson.
Hartford, Ct., Oct. 1869.

Notice.

☞ Brethren who live near the Lake Shore R. R., who may wish me to call on them on my return from the Convention at Rochester, N. Y., will please address me at that place before its close, that I may know before I start back for Iowa. Peter S. W. Deyo.

Brighton Cattle Market.

Reported for the World's Crisis by Geo. J. Fox, for the week ending Nov. 11th, 1869.

Amount of Live Stock at Market.

	Cattle.	Sheep and Lambs.	Swine.
This week	1,787	919	1,875
Last week	2,227	992	1,160

Prices of Market Beef.

Extra, $12.25@12.50; first quality, $11.00@12.00; second quality, $10.00@10.75; third quality, $7.00@9.50.

Prices of Store Cattle.

Working Oxen, per pair, from $150@200 to $@250 300; Milch Cows and Calves, from $35, 50, 65, 75, to 100-115; Yearlings, $15 to 25; two years old, $27 to 40; three years old, $45 to 65; Western Fat Swine, live, 10¾ to 11¼ cts. per lb; Dressed, 12¾ to 13¼ cts. per lb; Store Hogs, Wholesale, 10¼ to 11 cts. per lb; Retail, 11 to 14 cts. per lb. Columbia Co., N. Y., Spring Pigs, 12 to 16 cts. per lb.

Prices of Sheep and Lambs.

In lots, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $3.25, $0.00 each; Extra, $3.75@4.00, or from 3 to 6¼ cts. per lb; Spring Lambs, $2.75 to 4.25.

Prices of Hides, Tallow and Skins.

Brighton Hides, 9 to 00 cts. per lb; Tallow, 7@00 cts. per lb; Country Hides, 9 to 00 cts. per lb; Tallow, 7 to 00 cts. per lb; Pelts, 75 cts. to $1.00 each. Calf Skins, 20 cts. per lb.

Remarks. Cattle.—Receipts of cattle from Albany for the week ending to-night are 1140, some 450 less than last week, and 900 less than two weeks ago. The quality generally runs no better than last week, only a few old bullocks, that were really superior cattle. The bulk were medium grade. Northern dealers that were unable to close out their lots at Cambridge, were trying this market, with but little success. No improvement on beeves from last week. Store cattle and young stock range lower.

Sheep and Lambs.—Receipts 919, mostly Western, via. Albany. Handled by Brighton butchers on commission.

Boston Markets.

Wholesale Prices.

Boston, Monday evening, Nov. 13th, 1869.

Gold.—$1.26¼.

Flour.—Superfine, from $5.25@5.75; Extra, from $5.75@7.00; Michigan, $7.00@8.00. St. Louis, from $7.00@10.00.

Corn.—Mixed, $1.11@1.13; Yellow, $1.15@1.20. Oats, 65@75 cts. Old Rye, $1.25@1.30.

Seeds.—Timothy Herds Grass, $4.75@0.00; Red Top, $3.50 to $4.25 per sack; R. I. Bent, $2.50 to $3.00 per bush.; Clover per lb., 14 to 15c.

Apples.—Per bbl., $4.00@4.50. Onions, $4.50@4.75 per bbl.

Pork.—$36@37. Lard, 18¼@19c. Hams, 18 cts. Butter.—36@38c. Cheese, Factory, 16 to 19c. Dairy, 15 to 18c.

Beans.—Extra Pea, $3.50@3.75; Common, $2.50. Eggs.—37@38c. Dried Apples (southern), 8¼ to 10c. Hay, per ton, $17@29. Potatoes, per bbl., $00@$2.25. Sweet potatoes, per bbl., $3.50@4.00.

Fresh Fruits, etc.—Pears, per bbl., $10.00@18.00. Grapes (Western), 12¼@15 cts. per lb. Quinces, $6.00@$10.00 per bbl. Cranberries, $10.00@14.00 per bbl. Marrow Squash, per cwt. $1.75. Hubbardston, $2.00.

Remarks.—The market for Flour remains steady; prices as previously quoted. Corn, Oats and Rye,—the demand is quiet, and unchanged prices. Seed,—no movement. Pork firm at last week's quotations. Butter market is only moderately active. Quinces dull. Eggs quiet, and will probably be lower after Thanksgiving.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.
A. Simpson........Sunday, Nov. 21st

Boston, South End, (Minot Hall), corner of Washington and Springfield Streets.)
Meetings at 10½ A. M. and 3 and 7½ P. M.
L. Boutell........Friday evening, Nov. 19th
Geo. A. Streeter........Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. S. White........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Wm. H. Mitchell........Sunday, Dec. 12th
J. G. Smith........Sunday, Dec. 19th

East Boston.
Meetings are held at Chase's Block, up two flights, at 154 Meridian Street, on Sundays, at the usual hours, also Monday and Thursday evenings.

Chelsea, Mass., (Library Hall.)
M. Batchelor........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Wm. H. Mitchell........Sunday, Dec. 5th

Charlestown.
Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.
S. S. Brewer........Sunday, Nov. 21st
W. S. Campbell........Sunday, Nov. 28th

Fayville, Mass........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Ashland (Town Hall)........Sunday, Nov. 28th
C. Goodrich.

Stowe, Mass., (communion)........Sunday, Nov. 21st
A. P. Moore.

Cambridgeport........Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. S. White.

Brockport........Sunday, Nov. 28th
A. A. Phelps.

Plainville, Ct........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Pownal Centre, Vt........evening, Nov. 26th
and over Sunday, the 28th.
Brethren meet me at Depot, at two P. M. train from North Adams. H. Munger.

Lynn, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 12th
M. Batchelor.

North Springfield, Vt........Sundays, Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th.
Plymouth, Vt........evenings, Dec. 9th and 10th
Bridgewater, Vt........Sundays, Dec. 12th and 19th
and during the intervening week.
Rutland, Vt........Sunday, Dec. 26th
H. F. Carpenter.

New Bedford........Sundays, Nov. 21st and 28th
Joseph W. White.

Portsmouth, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 21st
L. Boutell.

Dover, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 21st
C. W. Sargent.

Richmond Village, Me., Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 26th and 27th, and Sabbaths Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th.
West Waterville, Me., Saturday evening, Dec. 11th, and Sabbath, Dec. 12th, and as much longer as the interest demands. Allen Damon.

Nashua, N. H., (Isaac Chapman's), Sunday, Nov. 21st, at 11.45 A. M., and two P. M.
At S. W. Cole's at six o'clock P. M.
John H. Dadmun.

Murray, Orleans Co., N. Y., (as Bro. Sitzer may arrange), Sunday, Nov. 21st.
Red House, Catt. Co., N. Y., (as Bro. Deyo may arrange), Nov. 24th, 25th, 26th, and 27th.
Springfield, Mass., (as Bro. Bliss may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 5th.
Brimfield, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 12th
Charlton, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 19th
Three miles north of Warren's Corner, Niagara Co., N. Y., (as Bro. Adriance may arrange), Dec. 1st and 2nd.
Fives mile from Westfield, Mass., (as Bro. Phelps may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
If any of the above appointments conflict, write me at Rapids, Niag. Co., N. Y. Chas. P. Greenman.

Bradford, N. H., (Buck meeting-house), Sunday, Nov. 21st. Dustin W. Davis.

Westfield, Mass........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Cheshire Street, Ct........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Plainville, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 5th
Westfield, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 12th
East Haddam, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 19th
Wm. A. & M. L. Durand.

Hampton, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 21st
T. T. Farrell.

Meredith Neck, N. H., (baptism)........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Meredith Centre........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
Guilford, (Pond district)........Sabbath, Dec. 5th
N. Glidden.

Nottingham Centre, N. H., Wednesday evening, Nov. 17th, and over Sunday, the 21st. A. J. Glover.

Hampton, N. H........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
D. F. Leavitt.

Bowdoin, Me., (Skelton school-house), Sabbath, Nov. 28th.
Bowdoin, (Adams school-house)........Sabbath, Dec. 5th
Richmond, (Reed meeting-house), Sabbath, Dec. 12th, 10½ A. M. Levet school-house, two P. M. Reed meeting-house, evening.
Sabbattusville, Me........Sabbath, Dec. 19th
Bowdoin, Me........Sabbath, Dec. 26th
H. S. Mitchell.

Meredith Village, (with Sr. Tripp), evening, Nov. 17th
Meredith, (Dolloff Hall), evenings, Nov. 18th, 19th, and 20th, and over the following Sabbath.
Lake Village, N. H........evening, Nov. 22d
New Durham Ridge, N. H........evening, Nov. 23d
Great Falls, N. H........evening, Nov. 24th
Exeter, N. H........evening, Nov. 26th
A. A. Hoyt, Wm. C. Stewart.

South Casco, Me........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Bath, Me........Nov. 27th, and over the Sabbath
J. T. Jordan.

Hebron, N. Y........Tuesday evening, Nov. 16th through the week, and over the following Sabbath.
Ellen E. Towslee.
Will Bro. Lincoln please meet me at the nearest station by the second train?

Waterbury........evening, Nov. 21st
Haddam........Sunday, Nov. 28th
L. F. Moore.

Seabrook........Sunday, Nov. 21st
George W. Brown, of Elliot, Me.

Webster, N. H., (old meeting-house), Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Boscawen, N. H., (Gulf school-house), Sabbath, Nov. 28th.
Salisbury, N. H., (Academy Hall)........Sabbath, Dec. 5th
Simeon Roby.

Great Falls, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Strafford, N. H., (Robert's school-house), Sunday, Dec. 5th. A. Simpson.

Charlton, Mass........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Z. Ford.

Chicopee Falls, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 5th
E. McCulloch.

Wakefield, Mass........Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. G. Smith.

Warehouse Point, Conn........Sunday, Nov. 21st
West Meriden........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Geo. W. Brown.

Orford Indian Pond........Saturday evening, Nov. 20th
Piermont, (Clay meeting-house)........Sunday, Nov. 21st
C. W. Nelson.

Alton Corner, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Wm. Bodge.

Meredith Village........evening, Nov. 17th
Warren Summit........evening, Nov. 19th
Haverhill, N. H., (where Bro. Harriman may appoint), Sabbath, Nov. 21st.
Swiftwater........evening, Nov. 23d
Sugar Hill........evening, Nov. 24th
A. Mussey Tripp.

Mechanic Falls........Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. Albert Libby.

Nottingham, N. H., (school-house near Bro. George Randall's), Sunday, Nov. 21st.
Exeter........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Seabrook, N. H........Sunday, Dec. 5th
J. Pinkham.

Worcester, Mass........Sunday, Nov. 21st
E. Owen.

Hartford, (Talcott's and Post's Hall), Sunday, Nov. 21st. Wm. N. Pile.

West Abington, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 5th
W. S. Campbell.

Exeter........Sunday, Nov. 21st
East Rochester........Sunday, Nov. 28th
E. S. Moulton.

Lake Village........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Melvin Village........Sunday, Nov. 28th
T. W. Piper.

Dresserville, N. Y........Nov. 23d to 26th
Wilmot Settlement, N. Y........Nov. 27th and on as duty may direct. J. W. Taylor.

Bath, Me........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Lewiston, Me........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
N. G. Reed.

Grafton, Vt., (where Bro. Hubbard may appoint), Thursday, Nov. 25th, 6½ P. M.
Rossonville, Vt., Friday, Nov. 26th, 6½ P. M., and hold over two Sundays, Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th, and every evening through the week.
Will the brethren from Grafton and other towns come in and help in the meetings?
South Sanapee, N. H., (where Bro. Lear may appoint), Friday, Dec. 24th.
Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
Plymouth, Vt., Tuesday, Dec. 7th, 7½ P. M., and continue over Sunday, Dec. 12th.
Brethren in adjoining towns are invited to come and enjoy the meeting with us. There will be ample provision made for all who will come. We expect Brn. W. Dow and H. F. Carpenter will be with us to preach the word. Z. T. Wood.

Blooming Valley, Nov. 18th, and will be at the quarterly meeting there Nov. 19th to the 21st.
C. F. Sweet.

River Point, R. I........Sunday, Dec. 5th
Anthony, R. I., through the week.
Bristol, R. I........Sunday, Dec. 12th
If these conflict, please write me at North Dana, Ms.
Geo. A. Streeter.

Keene, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 21st
I. B. Potter.

Brunswick........evenings, 18th, 19th, 20th and 21st
Expect Bro. York and others to help preach the word. H. D. Reed.

East Haddam, Ct........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
O. D. Woodruff.

Hartland, (Town Hall)........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Collinsville........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Wm. J. Ripley.

New Britain, Conn........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Hartford, Ct., (Talcott & Post's Hall), Sunday, Dec. 5th
Warehouse Point, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 19th
Wm. Stuart.

Granby, Ct., (Salmon Brook)........Sunday, Nov. 21st
S. M. & H. E. Tatro.

Lunenburg, Mass........Nov. 26th
Vernon, Vt........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Northfield, Mass........evening, Nov. 29th
Athol, Mass........evening, Nov. 30th
South Ashburnham, Mass........evening, Dec. 1st
Clinton, Mass........evening, Dec. 3d
Stowe, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 5th
L. Boutell.

West Deerfield, N. H........Thursday evening, Nov. 18th
Epsom Mt. Dist........Nov. 19th
South Deerfield, (Birch school-house)........Nov. 20th
West Deerfield........Sunday, Nov. 21st
E. Morrill.

New Milford........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Wrightville........Sunday, Nov. 28th
New Milford........Sunday, Dec. 5th
A. D. Flagg.

New Haven, Conn........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
G. L. Teeple.

Webster, Mass........evening, Nov. 19th
Brimfield, Mass........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
North Somers, Ct........evening, Nov. 23d
Scitico, Ct........evening, Nov. 24th
South Windsor, Ct........evening, Nov. 25th
Collinsville, Ct........evening, Nov. 26th
Sharon, Ct., (as Bro. Mills may arrange), evening, Dec. 1st, and over the Sabbath.
Morris, Ct., (fourth district), evening, Dec. 10th, and over the Sabbath.
Wrightville, Ct........evening, Dec. 17th and over the Sabbath.
New York City (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sabbath, Dec. 26th. C. H. Sweet.

North Somers, Ct........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Westfield, Ct........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
East Haddam, Ct........Sabbath, Dec. 5th
G. L. White.

Abington, Ct........Lord's day, Nov. 21st
A. Morse.

Seabrook, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 21st
N. Whiting.

Scarboro, Me., (Broad Town road school-house), Saturday evening, Nov. 20th, and over Sunday.
Blue Point school-house........evening, Nov. 27th
and over Sunday, the 28th.
Colekill Corner (school-house)........Sunday, Dec. 5th
J. L. Chute.

Lawrence, Mass., (Advent Chapel.)
C. Cunningham........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
J. Hemenway........Sunday, Dec. 5th

Springfield, Mass., (Bethel Church.)
Wm. Stuart........Sunday, Nov. 21st
Wm. N. Pile........Sundays, Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th

Westfield, Mass.
W. J. Ripley........Sunday, Nov. 21st
G. L. White........Sunday, Nov. 28th

Stoneham, Mass.
J. W. Britton........Sunday, Nov. 21st
A. P. Moore........Sunday, Nov. 28th
J. S. White........Sunday, Dec. 5th

Hollis Centre, Me.
B. S. Emery........Sunday, Nov. 21st

Portland, Me.
Albion Ross........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
I. C. Wellcome........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
R. R. York........Sabbath, Dec. 5th

Biddeford, Me.
I. K. Lombard........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
Jeremiah Hill........Sabbath, Nov. 28th

South Elliott, Me.
D. M. Leavitt........Sunday, Nov. 21st
J. G. Smith........Sunday, Nov. 28th

Concord, N. H., (Centre Street.)
C. H. Fletcher........Sabbath, Nov. 21st
A. Ross........Sabbath, Nov. 28th

Manchester, N. H.
J. Couch........Sunday, Nov. 28th
D. M. Leavitt........Sunday, Dec. 5th

Pleasant Valley, Ct.
C. H. Sweet........Sabbath, Nov. 28th

Bristol, Ct.
H. H. Dickinson........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
R. Stark........Sabbath, Dec. 26th

Square Pond, Ct.
Rufus Baker........Sunday, Nov. 21st
A. Morse........Sunday, Nov. 28th
A. D. Flagg........Sunday, Dec. 19th

New Britain, Ct.
Geo. L. Hart........Sunday, Nov. 21st
William Stuart........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Chas. C. Barker........Sunday, Dec. 5th
H. H. Dickinson........Sunday, Dec. 12th
Dr. Luddington........Sunday, Dec. 19th

Portland, Me.
Meetings are held in Advent Hall, Cushman's Block, 353½ Congress Street, three times on the Sabbath, and Tuesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock.

New York City.
The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 405 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

Star of Hope Mission, 14 Laurens Street, New York City.
Sunday morning, prayer and conference, six o'clock
Sunday School, two o'clock P. M. Love feast, four o'clock P. M. Preaching, seven o'clock P. M.
Monday, (class meeting), seven o'clock P. M.
Wednesday, (preaching), seven o'clock P. M.
Friday, (prayer and conference), seven o'clock P. M.
Come one, come all. A. E. Smith, Principal.

Wyoming, R. I........1st Sabbath in each month
Westerly, R. I........2d Sabbath in each month
Riverpoint, R. I........3d Sabbath in each month
Bristol, R. I........4th Sabbath in each month
A. Durfee.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

☞ Preachers sending appointments to Wakefield, Mass., are particularly requested to correspond with John B. Adams.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Westfield, Mass., will please correspond first with Eld. E. A. Eggleston.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Portsmouth, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. James B. Trefethen.

☞ Bro. Joseph A. Philbrook has been chosen Corresponding Secretary for the church in Hampton, N. H. Preaching brethren will please notice.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Manchester, N. H., will please correspond with the following committee:—A. J. Mayhew, S. R. Davidson, O. Proctor.

☞ Brethren sending appointments for Loudon Ridge, N. H., will bear in mind that the fourth Sabbath in each month is engaged.

☞ Any Bro. wishing to come to Seabrook, N. H., to preach, will please address Bro. R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Bro. Charles Barton, of Seabrook.

☞ All preaching brethren who desire to communicate with the church at Rochester, N. Y., are requested to correspond with J. E. Wells, 32 Smith Street.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Portland, Me., will please correspond first with Eld. R. R. York, or with either of the following committee:—H. C. Freeman, James Berry, S. K. Dyer.

☞ Advent preaching brethren who may wish to visit Kennebunk Depot, will please address Edwin B. Wells, Kennebunk Depot, Me.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Lewiston, Me., will please correspond first with Albert Burgess, Cor. Sec.

☞ Brethren wishing to visit the church in Bristol, Ct., will please correspond with Elder B. Hitchcock, Forestville, Ct.

☞ Brethren desiring to preach in Hartford, Ct., will please correspond with Bro. L. Tiffany. Preaching the first Sabbath in each month by resident Elder H. H. Dickinson.

☞ Persons wishing to communicate with the church in New Britain, Conn., in regard to preaching, will please correspond with Bro. A. Powell, Cor. Sec.

☞ All preaching brethren desirous of going to New Milford Ct., to preach, will first correspond with Richard Hecock.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home.	16 pp.
2. Life Insurance.	16 pp.
3. Lost! Lost!.	8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet?	8 pp.
5. About God (for children).	4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing.	4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ.	4 pp.
8. Now.	4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent, postpaid:

One set (54 pp.)	6c.
1300 pp.	$1.00
1600 pp., (by express, not prepaid)	$1.00

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

Business.

Letters Received.

M V Saltmarsh, S F Wheelock, B G Getchell, W Sheffield, B W D., J Pinkham, R Lester, I Damman, J A Cleaveland, J Carr, Z D Baird, P W Baker, J S White, C H Sweet, M. S., P S W Deyo, W Brewster, S W Thurber, N Wheeler, B A Warren, L M Stoddard, M A Miller, J Smith, P A Walker, D. B., S Jackman, O Bendixon, N M Henry, C F Sweet.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

without the music.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9½ per dozen; $75 00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 16 cts. additional postage

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $5.00; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $4.00; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2 50; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $1.50; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.50; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

Any of the above will be sent by mail on receipt of the price.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; $3.50 per one hundred copies.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

376 pages. Price by mail, $1.25.

The above works for sale at this office.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.

Price in cloth........75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers........60 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers........50 cts., postage 6 cts.
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.75

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.
WHAT IS MAN?
THE SOUL—WHAT IS IT?
THE SPIRIT—WHAT IS IT?
THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

All the above works in one volume, flexible cloth, in a compact, durable form, for use and preservation, for 35 cents, postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

9. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.

10. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

SENT POSTPAID AS FOLLOWS:

1. I don't believe in Religion	16 pp.,	4c.
2. Did the World make itself?	16 pp.,	4c.
3. Is God everybody, and everybody God?	16 pp.,	4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible?	24 pp.,	4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament?	16 pp.,	4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?	16 pp.,	4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his apostles?	16 pp.,	4c.
8. Prophecy	32 pp.,	5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets	28 pp.,	5c.
10. Infidelity among the Stars	28 pp.,	5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise	36 pp.,	5c.
12. Telescope Views of Scripture	32 pp.,	5c.
13. Science, or Faith?	32 pp.,	5c

For the set (making 304 pp.)........50c. postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

An Admonition to Christian Churches on Church Festivals, Fairs, etc.

By I. K. Lombard.

A new edition, with additions and improvements. About twelve thousand of the above sheet have been scattered, and they are doing a practical service against these growing evils in the churches of our land. The picture of their proceedings is so faithfully drawn, that the guilty on reading it have several times furiously protested to those who offered them that it was written on purpose for them, with a full knowledge of the facts in their case. Price, postpaid, 15 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

For sale at this office, or by I. K. Lombard, South Windham, Maine.

The Berean's Casket and Repository.

This is a work just published, containing 492 pages with the tables of contents, in 358 sections, all in small type, embracing a great amount of matter. It is a Scripture Manual, to which is added much valuable history, showing the fulfillment of prophecy, signs of the times, and other important matter for every Bible reader, statistics, tables, and prophetic figures. Compiled by I. C. Wellcome. Price, cloth, bevel boards, postpaid, $2.00. Leather bound, $2.50.

For sale at this office.

ARE YOU READY?

What and if the day is breaking,
Day so long by seers foretold,
When from slumbers deep awaking,
Saints their Savior shall behold;
Are you ready? are you ready?
Or is still your bosom cold?

Is it cold to him who sought thee
In this wilderness forlorn?
Cold to him, the friend who bought thee,
Nor complained of nail or thorn?
Are you ready? are you ready?
Or do you his yearning scorn?

Are you clothed in bridal raiment,
Woven by anointed hands;
Given thee without thy payment,
Pledge of love's unwearied hands?
Are you ready? are you ready?
See the portal open stands.

Are you washed in holy water,
You so long by sin defiled?
Should he say, "My son," "My daughter,"
Can you say, "Behold thy child"?
Are you ready? are you ready,
Thus by Jesus to be styled?

Are you ready for the meeting
With the Savior in the air?
Longing for that holy greeting
With the ransomed myriads there?
If not ready, if not ready,
Oh! for that great day prepare.

—Selected by Mrs. G. A. Brown.

For the World's Crisis.

JUDGING PREACHERS.

"Let all things be done with charity."

It has occurred to me that there are three things that should never be separated in judging the words of those who proclaim the gospel of the blessed God. All who are christian laborers know how great is the demand upon the minds of those men who from Lord's day to Lord's day, and often in the week, stand up to address the saints, and show the way of salvation to those without.

Times are changed since apostolic days. Then, though they had teachers, the labor devolved not upon one exclusively, or nearly so, to communicate constantly for the strengthening of the whole flock in their neighborhood, and the salvation of outsiders; but each brother, according to the ability which God gave, ministered to the general profit. Some with glad psalm, others with fervent appeal, more with encouraging address or exhortation, and the rest with prevailing prayer, added mutually to the vitality of each other and the whole assembly.

But now the scene is changed, and certain men are chosen from their brethren specially, constantly, and almost exclusively, in certain buildings, to speak the word of the truth of the gospel to their fellows. How far this is for the greater well-being of all, or whether it is a wrong step, it is not my intention here to discuss. Suffice to say things are now so, and being so, as radical change is almost impossible, the next great question to occupy christian attention is—What are the relative duties devolving on preacher and people, that the gospel may be purely and beneficially proclaimed?

"Things new" as well as "old" are expected to come from the desk, platform, or pulpit, on every occasion. Some new thought must get wind. Some new idea must have birth. Some new aspect of the subject treated is looked for. And in desire to give the good old gospel from a fresh stand-point, many ministers miss their footing at times. And is it any wonder that they do? They are only men, and are liable at times to lean to their own understandings, instead of giving the meat as God has provided it. They make use of extravagant expressions, or misapply a passage, and the intelligent listener immediately takes him to pieces about it, or condemns the whole because of the small stone that has gritted on his teeth in eating the bread. But does not the listener do quite right in judging what is said? And is it not written, "I speak as unto wise men; judge ye what I say"? And again, "Let the prophets speak two or three, and let the other judge"? It is quite right to test what is heard; and quite right to try it by the word, to see if it has the right ring in it. It is written, "Let the other judge." Credulous too is the man, and unworthy the name, who is so gullible as to bolt everything that he hears; or devour all that is said, good, bad, or indifferent. "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good," is an excellent piece of advice. I wish that all followed it.

But at the same time, whilst I fully admit the right of the christian to judge, I do contend that isolated judgment is not right. It is all one-sided and improper. It is right for all who hear to be exercised to know if it is as God speaks. It is right for the christian to have discrimination between good and evil, so as to receive and say "Amen" to the good, and to refuse the evil. But there are two other things to be performed preparatory to passing sentence on a discourse, and he who omits them is not in a position to judge, seeing he himself is in condemnation and verily guilty. Let all such for the future, who may now hear them and not fulfill them, keep a sealed mouth on the work of judging. For if the preacher be robbed of these momentous and all-important helps, which are his lawful due, the hearer must expect to have his "ears pained," as it is said, with frequent misstatements.

Now I lay before you the way of preventing many such mistakes. This is the plan: "Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things."

Did the members of the early church ever so act with any not fully informed?

Yes, in the case of Apollos "whom, when Priscilla and Aquila had heard, they took unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly."—Acts 18.

Still, even when teachers have been set right on certain points of doctrine, the duty of the people is not fully performed till something else has been done. I state it in the words of the apostle: "Brethren, pray for us; that the word of the Lord may run and be glorified"; and, "That utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly, to make known the mystery of the gospel."

And did the early church accede to Paul's request?

Yes; for the apostle's testimony was that they also were "helping together" by prayer for him.

Here, then, are the three things: 1st, Communication; 2nd, Prayer; 3rd, Judging.

Of course the communication should be done in the most brotherly, kind, and unostentatious manner possible; and it is always best to bring it out in ordinary chat. And then, dear teaching brethren, having heads righted with the truth, hearts inflamed with the knowledge of the church's sympathy with them, and "the ability which God giveth," how much would be done for the glory of God! How many "talkings-to" saved! How many right hearts, but wrong heads, made doubly happy, minds fully informed, and perfectly equipped! I am thinking what a very, very little there would be to judge or complain of after a few months.

And last, remember, dear reader, if your preacher does make a mistake, he does not do it in malice. There is no malicious intent in him to pervert the Scriptures. It is a slip of the tongue, a mistake of the moment, or an error of ignorance; therefore, if there must be judging, "let all things be done with charity."

We should never be harsh with those who will willingly retract any erroneous statement or inadvertency of speech. Let us be lenient with them, and bear them on our arms of faith, that profit and blessing may accrue to all. O! let us never use them unkindly, for they work for the glory of the one true God; and they intensely love our Lord Jesus Christ; and if they thought one word of theirs had grieved, they would deeply regret it, and repent upon every remembrance of it. Theirs is a glorious occupation; let us love and esteem them highly for their work's sake. And, remembering how often our words have been astray, and how open we are to correction, deal mildly with those who are patient waiters for Jesus Christ.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

W. KELLAWAY.

26 St. Thomas St., Weymouth, Dorset, Eng.

Times, please copy.

For the World's Crisis.

GHOSTLY FOOD.

A Miss Pease recently lectured in New York on the following subject: "What do spirits eat, drink, and wear?" She stated that the spirits subsisted on the vapors arising from the food and products common to earth. This discovery is certainly very suggestive. The first idea we get from this disclosure is the following:

After the invisible, inside gentleman leaves this realm of materialism, the appetite becomes located in the nose, for this is the organ through which vapors are usually inhaled; and, of course, if the spirits partake of such food, it must be necessary; hence in times of famine, or in a scarcity of the material article on earth, the spirits must suffer hunger. And how they will long for a good smell to come up from the flesh pots of Egypt. And what a pleasing reflection it will henceforth be to our good wives and mothers, when they are boiling a pot of corned beef and cabbage, to know that the spirits are feasting themselves sumptuously on the savory vapor that ascends from the boiling pot. Yea, that perhaps Esau himself may be luxuriating on ghostly vapor arising from that mess of pottage you are cooking for dinner.

It would be desirable to know to what extent likes and dislikes exist in the spirit world in reference to articles of food. Here people have their preferences; some do not like corned beef and cabbage, and vice versa. Knowledge on this point would be of great advantage in preparing a repast for our spiritual friends.

There ariseth another question in this connection of some importance. Do good and bad spirits partake of the same food? or are the bad compelled to inhale the unsavory vapors, such as codfish when cooking, and decayed vegetable matter, etc., etc.?

But again, if the lowest grade of spirits inhabit the lowest sphere, the one nearest the earth, they would have the advantage of feasting at the first table of ascending vapors; consequently, those more advanced, occupying the seventh sphere, would stand a poor chance.

This is somewhat similar to the Chinese superstition, which provides food, garments, implements of manufacture, together with material for employment in the spirit-world; also gold and silver, tissue paper for the purpose of making money, with which to carry on business there. All these things, after being prepared, are burned, in order to send them to the spirit land!

To such absurdities are intelligent men and women driven by immaterialism. Commend us to the tangible hope of the Bible: "If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land."

GEO. THOMSON.

JEWISH CONVENTION.

IMPORTANT MODIFICATIONS OF JUDAISM.

Philadelphia. Nov. 6th. At the Jewish Rabbinical Convention yesterday, Rev. Dr. Hirsch called the attention of the conference to the death of the first great philanthropist, George Peabody, and warmly eulogized him, and moved that the conference express its sympathy. The President seconded the motion in fitting expressions, and requested the Convention to rise, in token of respect, which was unanimously acceded to, and the proceedings ordered to be entered in the minutes. The consideration of the marital laws was then proceeded with, and the following resolutions adopted: The dissolution of marriage pronounced by a civil court is of full validity in the eyes of Judaism, if the judicial documents furnish evidence that both parties have consented thereto. Where the court issues, however, a decree of divorce by constraint against one or the other party, Judaism recognizes the validity of such divorce then, only if the grounds on which such a decree issued are deemed sufficient in accordance with the moral spirit of the Jewish religion. It is recommended, however, that the deciding Rabbi obtain the concurrence of competent men. The decision of the question whether the husband or the wife is to be declared, in doubtful cases, as dead or lost, is to be left to the courts.

Resolved, that the command to marry the widow of a deceased brother and of taking off the shoe has lost for us all understanding, validity and binding force.

With reference to circumcision the following resolution was adopted:

The male child of a Jewish mother is by its birth, not less than the female, in accordance with a principle never disputed in Judaism, a member of the Jewish community.

Resolutions were offered to dispense with the ceremony of circumcision to proselytes to Judaism; also propositions in reference to the Sabbath, mixed marriages, the establishment of a college, the modification of the dietary laws, which were all referred to committees with instructions to report to a subsequent Conference. Committees were appointed on questions of public worship and marital relations, with Dr. Einhorn as chairman; on Sabbath observance, with Dr. Adler as chairman; on school and congregational affairs, with Dr. Deutch as chairman; on retreat questions, with Dr. Hirsch as chairman. On motion of Dr. J. M. Wise the Conference resolved to meet again next year in Cincinnati, and then adjourned sine die.

— A freedmen's teacher writes of a colored woman who, having learned her alphabet, said, "Now I want to learn to spell Jesus, for 'pears like the rest will come easier if I learn to spell the blessed name first." A good many things "come easier" if we learn that name first.

— He does right who does his best.

For the World's Crisis.

REJOICE!

For what shall we rejoice? We should rejoice for what God hath done for us. He has not only done much, but he has given much. He has not only brought you up out of the mire and clay, and set your feet upon a rock, and ordered your goings, and put a new song in your mouths; but he has given you a full and free pardon, bought with the precious blood of Christ, and sealed by the Holy Ghost, who testifies with your spirit that you are his children; and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ.

What has he given you? The riches of his grace; the fruits of the Spirit, which are love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, etc. Nay, more; "He that spared not his own Son, but freely delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?"

The Most High hath given you a gracious invitation to come boldly to the throne of grace, that you may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need; and hath told you to ask and receive, that your joy may be full.

Rejoice, then, for to you are given the true riches, the only imperishable treasure.

Rejoice, because of what you have in reversion. The Lord has not only promised that all things shall work together for good while here, but he has also something laid up for you. There is laid up "a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." Then, although while in this tabernacle you may sometimes groan, being burdened, yet "fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

H. S. MITCHELL.

For the World's Crisis.

PREACH THE GOSPEL.

Preach the gospel to the needy;
Preach it to the princely heir;
Preach it to the miser, greedy;
Preach it freely everywhere.
Boldly march when duty calls you;
Dare to do whate'er is right;
Do the work which God assigns you,
Do it with your will and might.

Preach the gospel to your neighbors,
Tell them what our Savior's done;
And, if faithful in your labors,
You may win them one by one.
Should you meet with daring scoffers,
Who will spurn the bread of life,
Persevere, 'tis Jesus offers
To protect you through the strife.

In the Sabbath school go preach it,
Give each child the precious truth;
Very soon they'll learn to love it,
Learn to serve God in their youth.
Let your prayers ascend to heaven
For fresh courage every day,
And believe his promise given
Will sustain you all the way.

MRS. ELIZA A. ROWLEY.

Strawberry Point, Clayton Co., Iowa.

THE VALUE OF THE BIBLE.

The following beautiful description of the Bible is accredited to T. Dewitt Talmage, late of Philadelphia, now of Brooklyn, N. Y.—ED.

It seems as if to the feet of the sacred writers the mountains had brought all their gems, and the sea all its pearls, and the gardens all their frankincense, and the spring all its blossoms, and the harvests all their wealth, and heaven all its glory, and eternity all its stupendous realities; and that since then, poets and orators and painters had been drinking from an exhausted fountain, and searching for diamonds amid realms utterly rifled and ransacked. Oh! this book is the hive of all sweetness; the armory of all well-tempered weapons; the tower containing the crown-jewels of the universe; the lamp that kindles all other lights; the home of all majesties and splendors; the stepping-stone on which heaven stoops to kiss the earth with its glories; the marriage-ring that unites the celestial and the terrestrial, while all the clustering white-robed multitudes of the sky stand round to rejoice at the nuptial. This book is the wreath into which are twisted all garlands, the song into which hath struck all harmonies, the river of light, into which hath poured all the great tides of hallelujah, the firmament in which all suns, and moons, and stars, and constellations, and galaxies, and immensities, and universes, and eternities, wheel and blaze and triumph.

Where is the young man with any music in his soul who is not stirred by Jacob's lament, or Nahum's dirge, or Habakkuk's dithyrambic, or Paul's march of the resurrection, or St. John's anthem of the ten thousand times ten thousand doxology of elders on their faces, answering to the trumpet blast of the archangel, with one foot on the sea and the other on the land, swearing that time shall be no longer? In the latter part of the Psalms, we see David gathering together a great choir, standing in galleries above each other; beasts and men on the first gallery; above them fire, and hail, and tempest; above them sun, and moon, and stars of light; until, on the highest round, he arrays the host of angels. Then standing before this vast multitude, reaching from the depths of earth to the heights of heaven, like the leader of a great orchestra, he lifts his hands, crying, "Praise ye the Lord; let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord." And all earthly creatures in their song, and mountains with their waving cedars, and tempests in their thunder and rattling hail, and stars on all their trembling harps of light, and angels on their thrones, respond in magnificent acclaim, "Praise ye the Lord; let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord."

Behold in this book faultless rhythm, and bold imagery, and startling antithesis, and rapturous lyric, and sad elegy, and sweet pastoral, and instructive ballad, and devotional psalm; thoughts expressed in style more solemn than that of Montgomery, more bold than that of Milton, more dreadful than that of Dante, more natural than that of Wordsworth, more impassioned than that of Pollock, more tender than that of Cowper, more weird than that of Spenser.

Within the last few weeks I carried to my home one of the richest trophies. It was the family Bible that my father and mother used to read. Dear old book! I feel like kissing it every time I look upon it. It is very old; no gilt edges or ridged cover. It is worn and faded, but it is one of the handsomest books I ever owned. Just after the marriage hour, that book was laid on the stand, and they consecrated their alliance by a chapter from its pages. That book they read, and studied, and caressed. I see it now lying on my mother's lap as she leaned over in her old age and studied the promises. Every morning of every day the sunlight gilded that page as father opened it. They read it when the children died, and there is where a tear fell at the story of the resurrection. That chapter of the Psalms is worn by oft perusal, and this verse which says, "Cast thy burden on the Lord, and he will sustain thee." Ah! this was the staff they leaned on for more than threescore years. This was the tree that oozed a balm for all their heart-aches. This was the light that shone when the world grew dark.

Handle it gently, for every page of that book has a tender history. I will yet wrap it up in purple and damask. In my dying hour I want it close by where I can see it. I will charge my children to let everything else go, rather than that Bible. Dear old book! I leafed you when on my mother's knee I looked at the pictures, while she looked into the mysteries of salvation! May all joy fly my heart, and my sight go out into darkness, and my every cup of gladness turn into wormwood and gall, and to me life become a plague, and all sweet sounds jar into discord, and my head be pillowless, and my name accursed, if ever I forget to honor, venerate, and love my mother's Bible.

Gems.

— Religion is not an art, a matter of dexterity and skill, but a new nature.

— The best way to bear crosses is to consecrate them all to God.

— The devil is as busy about careless hearers, as the fowls of the air in picking up seed above ground.

— True greatness is simple, self-oblivious, prone to unambitious, unselfish attachments.

— For those who have a living faith, there may be bitter sorrows, but there is no despair.

— Gentle must be the strain on fragile human nature; it will not bear much.

— The christian is made perfect through suffering.

— The ungrateful care for no favors but those that are to come.

— If God loves you, you need not fear what man can do unto you.

— Divine consolations are those nearest to us when human assistances are farthest from us.

— Words are poor and tardy interpreters of feelings to those who love one another.

— As trash on the water lodges at the pier-head, so the trash in a congregation lodges at the door of a church.

— Submission, courage, exertion, when practicable—these seem to be the weapons with which we must fight life's long battle.

— Those in whom the imagination is powerful know deeper sorrows than fall to the common lot, but they also know sweeter consolations.

— No person can be so feeble or so poor that he has not a duty to perform; which, being performed, makes him one with the highest and greatest.

— If young men would hang gates and doors and windows, instead of hanging round hotels, saloons and store-doors, they might escape hanging somewhere else.

— "When I was some years ago at Shields," says Whitefield, "I went into a glass-house, and there I saw several masses of burning glass of various forms. The workman took one piece of glass and put it into the furnace, then he put it into a second, and then into a third. I asked him, 'Why do you put that into so many fires?' He answered me, 'Oh, sir, the first was not hot enough, nor the second, and therefore we put it into the third, and that will make it transparent.' 'Oh,' thought I, 'does this man put this glass into one furnace after another, that it may be rendered perfect?' O my God, put me into one furnace after another, that my soul may be transparent, that I may see God as he is."

THE ACTOR.

"Mr. L——," said a young minister one day to a gentleman whom he had met very frequently for some months, "how is that you are not a communicant? Your life would be a reproof to many a professing christian; and I often see you reading the Bible."

"Sir, as long as I am an actor, I cannot consistently come to the table of the Lord. I have not acted for a number of years, but I have never taken a formal leave of the stage; and until I have done so, I shall never come out before the world and profess myself a christian."

"But, Mr. L——, if you consider the life of an actor wrong, and inconsistent with a christian profession, why do you not at once leave the stage?"

"Wrong, sir! Where will you find more self-sacrifice, more heroism, than among actors? But the profession is so engrossing, the mind is so full of thoughts alien to religion, that I should feel as if I could not serve God as I ought after making a profession. So you need not talk to me; many a minister has tried it, but it was of no use. As long as I am an actor, I shall not be a communicant."

Could there be a stronger testimony to thinking people against the theatre than this, although not intended as such?—American Messenger.

OLD BETSEY.

I scarcely ever hear the text, "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren," without thinking of old Betsey.

I was a thoughtless, giddy girl, and did not wish to attend the morning prayer-meeting held in our own church in a season of revival. But my mother, who believed in helping children heavenward, sometimes in ways displeasing to the natural heart, compelled me to go.

I took my school books, and each morning on my way to school stopped at the place of prayer and sat in sullen inattention, or slyly glanced at my lessons. Old Betsey particularly interested me. She was always early, with her "Village Hymn-book" in hand, and a large cotton pocket-handkerchief folded on her lap. Her hat was a problem of ugliness, and her dress threadbare and old-fashioned, though neat. Her look of peace and satisfaction, as she sat at her devotions, grated upon my disturbed feelings until I grew to hate her presence in the meetings. I more than once remarked at home that a prayer-meeting every morning might do for old Betsey, who was too aged and homely to enjoy life, but I was too young and happy to be forced to go.

My mother was immovable, and I took my revenge in mimicking the cracked, trembling voice with which old Betsey sung, and in drawing pictures of her "coal-scuttle," as I called her bonnet, for the amusement of my schoolmates.

It was not long before the Holy Spirit moved upon my young but sinful heart, and I saw my guilt and danger. In my distress I forgot old Betsey and all else. After many days of unrest, I hope I gave my heart to Christ, and began my journey heavenward. My feet turned joyfully to the once despised prayer-meeting, and I took my seat with a heart full of love to my Savior.

Where did I sit? Almost unconsciously I crossed the large lecture room to the retired place where old Betsey was worshiping with her head bowed in prayer. She opened her eyes with quiet surprise as I sat down close beside her, moved a stool for her feet, offered her a fan that lay on the seat, found the hymn, and looked over the same book with her. Her cracked voice had a charm that morning that brought tears to my eyes. I did not see the old hat and scant, faded dress, but I felt glad to be near a christian sister.

While those precious morning meetings lasted, my seat was taken by old Betsey's side, and more than once did I walk up Broadway towards my school in her company. She may have guessed, but never knew of my feelings towards her. I went away to school, and when I returned, the old hat and cracked voice were missing; but many times since that day have I taken sweet counsel, and sat in heavenly places with just such hats and dresses, and found it good to be there. Blessed old Betsey! May I endure to the end, and worship with her eternally.—Amer. Messenger.

ROMAN CATHOLIC SCHOOLS.

A Protestant young lady, whom her parents sent to a "Convent of the Sacred Heart," assured that her religious faith would not be interfered with, writes:

I find it very difficult to practice my own religion. They do not forbid it, but their rules and regulations render it almost impossible. In order to pray in secret and read my Bible by myself, I am obliged daily to disobey the rules.

Every Sunday they require us to learn a "gospel," and furnish us with Romish Testaments for that purpose. The girls generally use those Testaments, but last Sunday I used my own, and intend to do so hereafter, though they do not seem pleased with it. We are required every day, from half past eleven to twelve, to listen to a lesson on the doctrines of the Catholic church. The Protestants do not recite or answer questions, but they are required to put away their books, sit around the teacher, and listen respectfully to what she says. Her teaching lately has been on purgatory, and the distinction between mortal sins.

We are required to attend chapel service daily. We come in with long black veils thrown over us, and moving very slowly. On Sunday we have white veils. It seems very solemn, much like a funeral. On the altar are images of the Virgin and of St. Joseph, and we are all required to "bow down to them." We all conform to this regulation.

Since Lent came in, seven pictures have been hung on each side of the chapel, and in coming in we are expected to kneel before each one in turn on our way to the altar, while they pray to the Virgin. This is called "the way to the cross." The prayers are mostly for souls in purgatory. Several of us Protestants respectfully declined kneeling to the pictures, and were reprimanded for it in the chapel. Then we were taken into a room by ourselves, and talked to very severely."

SAPPING THE FOUNDATIONS.—The Romanists of this country are now making a united and determined onset against one of our most cherished institutions, the common school system of the United States, which is intended to educate all the children of the country alike. In New York and Ohio they demand its disestablishment, and politicians are found ready to comply, for the sake of securing their votes. The Catholic Telegraph, the organ of the bishop of Ohio, says, "The secular school system is a social cancer, presaging the death of national morality, devouring the little sense of religion that Protestantism instils into its believers. The sooner it is destroyed the better. It will be a glorious day for Catholics in this country when, under the blows of justice and morality, our school system will be shivered to pieces. Until then modern paganism will triumph." Protestants must prepare for this issue.

Agricultural Items.

— The potato crop of England falls short of the average.

— Apples are very scarce in some parts of Massachusetts. Hardly a peck for pies could be found in three large orchards in Richmond, and farmers who have heretofore had large quantities for sale, and cider to boot, have to import their fruit this season.

— From the most reliable data that can be had from all parts of the country, it is estimated that the corn crop will be 150,000,000 bushels short of the average, which is not far from 800,000,000 bushels; but other food crops more than make up for the failure in corn.

— During the first nine months of the present year there were exported from the port of New York 13,511,916 bushels of wheat; 1,572,706 bushels of corn, and 1,081,226 barrels of wheat flour.

— Farmers near the seashore in Maine have found that fish makes as good feed for sheep as hay, and that one fish makes a full meal for a sheep.

— It is estimated that over a million bushels of peaches were shipped from Alabama during the past season.

— In exporting living plants, the Japanese wrap the roots in a mixture of earth and carrots ground together.

— Corn sells at a higher price than wheat in some parts of Indiana.

— The price of land in some portions of Alabama has advanced one hundred per cent, in two years.

— Remove all straw and grass from around the trunks of fruit trees before snow falls.

— Troy, N. Y., is said to be the greatest potato market in this country.

— Pear trees growing in grass are seldom productive. The best way of treating them is, to dig away the grass and weeds from a wide space over the roots in the fall, taking care not to damage the roots in so doing, and to cover the ground with old barn-yard manure. This should be left undisturbed until spring, and then worked into the soil with a digging fork.

— We notice in an exchange the record of some experiments which tend to show that night is the proper time for transplanting. In the case alluded to, a gentleman transplanted ten cherry trees while in bloom, commencing at four o'clock in the afternoon, and transplanting one each hour until one in the morning. Those transplanted during daylight shed their blossoms, producing little or no fruit; while those planted during the darker hours maintained their condition fully.

— It is just as easy to make good, sweet, clean butter as to make poor butter. The best of butter is made from sweet cream, gathered as free from milk as possible. To make good butter requires more than ordinary care and attention. Everything should move on with the regularity of the sun. To make butter profitable, great care must be exercised in milking the cows. To milk clean is important. It not only adds to the quantity of butter, but saves the cow from positive injury. Let the farmer or his dairy get the name of keeping a good article of butter in every respect, and he will find it not only to pay but pay well, too.

PLOD AND PLUCK.—Henry Ward Beecher spoke the other day at the commencement exercises of a business college in New York. We quote a passage on plod and pluck:

"I do not believe a business man who says he has asked for employment and cannot get it. I know many out of employment, but they are drones; they are not business men of the world. A business man may lack a good many things, but he will get on if he has pluck. There is no business man who has not got pluck, and it is the business of Mr. Packard to teach you all pluck in life as the first incentive to business; and I hope that he teaches you another word, which is the greatest business word in the world—I name it in its homeliness, and it is an old Saxon word—it is called plod. 'Oh,' says somebody, 'he is only a plodder.' Only a plodder! Ah! there never was a man—the most brilliant genius in the world, who did not owe much to this process of being a plodder. It is very well for genius to consecrate the light of the path of life, but it must be pluck and plod that carries a man over the paths of life. I would have these words inscribed over the walls: The pluck of life; the plod of life."

Domestic Recipes.

TO KEEP BRITTANIA BRIGHT.—Wash the ware every time it is used, in hot suds of fine soap; rinse with boiling water inside; when hot, pour over it boiling water, and dry while hot with a soft towel. Once each week rub the metal with wash leather and a very little whiting. Take care of silver in the same manner.

SWEETENING STONE JARS.—A housekeeper writes: "Having some stone jars in which lard had been packed, until they became unfit for use, I made them perfectly sweet by packing them full of fresh earth and letting it remain two or three weeks. This course would be equally effective in any case of foul earthern or stone ware."

WATERING HORSES.—A patent has recently been granted for a method of refreshing horses while in harness, which consists in making the bit hollow and having perforations in it. A rubber tube extends from one side of the bit to the carriage, and by pressing a rubber bag which contains water, the driver is enabled to refresh horses whenever he chooses without stopping. For saddle horses the water bag is suspended from the horse's neck, or upon the pummel of the saddle.

A CHEAP DISH.—Set new, rich milk to boiling; keep it boiling smartly, and thicken it with white winter wheat meal (Graham flour); eat with syrup, sugar, cream-molasses, or milk. The milk must be kept boiling as you sift in the meal, or the mush will have a raw taste, which no amount of after-cooking can remove. I particularly entreat poor people to give this article of food a fair trial. I know it is an article which they particularly should not be without.

CANNING EGGS.—When two or three dozen eggs are obtained from the nests, place them in a dish, and pour scalding water over them, and immediately turn it off. This process is repeated three times, by which means the albumen is fixed or coagulated, the pores of the shell closed, and the egg, as it were, canned in its own covering. The eggs thus prepared are then packed in salt, with the apex downward, and they are said to keep perfectly fresh for many months.

BUGS AND COCKROACHES.—Boil one ounce of poke-root in one pint of water until the strength is extracted; mix the decoction with molasses, and spread it on plates in the kitchen or other apartments which are infested by these insects. All that have partaken of this luxury during the night will be found "organic remains" the next morning.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

"ISN'T THAT FAITH?"

Little Annie Bailey said to her mother one day, "Mother, what makes you so patient when the baby is sick, and everything goes wrong? I can't be so."

"Because, my dear, I try to have faith in God, and you do not."

"What is it to have faith, mother?"

"It is to believe God will do right, even if you cannot see the meaning of what happens."

Annie thought of this answer for a moment, looked puzzled, and then, childlike, forgot the whole subject for her play.

A few days after this conversation, she went with her parents and little brother and sister to spend the day in the country. When they returned at night, and were walking up, tired and sleepy, from the ferry-boat, her father suddenly let go her hand, and taking little Susy in his arms, ran from them with all his might, telling Annie to take hold of his mother's hand, and hurry.

On seeing his father run away, little Harry, who was only four years old, began to cry, "Father's run away, and left us alone in the dark."

"Don't cry, Harry; father wouldn't leave us for anything," said Annie, trying to comfort him.

"He is only stopping the stage, darling, and if he did not run we should be left," said Harry's mother; but nothing could quiet his fears till he reached the corner of Broadway, and saw his father's face.

When his mother had got into the stage, and Annie and Susan had taken their seats by her, and he was lifted into his father's arms, and sat on his knee, then Harry began to smile for the first time; and putting his arm about his father's neck, he said, "You didn't run away and leave us, did you?"

"Mother," said Annie, as soon as she got a chance to speak privately, "Harry wouldn't have cried if he had had faith in father, would he? I knew father loved us too much to run away and leave us. I wasn't frightened. Isn't that faith, mother?"

Alas, how many people feel like little Harry, that their heavenly Father has run away and left them in the dark, and some of them do not get over it as soon as he did either. Let us try, like little Annie, to have "faith in Father."

"For one thing secures us, whatever betide;
The promise assures us the Lord will provide."

—Little Christian.

A LITTLE MISSION GIRL.

A little mission girl knelt down by her bed to pray. She was thinking of her Sunday School teacher, and of what she had heard of Jesus, and she began to hear a soft voice saying, "Sarah, Sarah, I died for you on the cross. I love you. Sarah, won't you love me?"

This soft voice she heard in her heart, not in her ear; so she began to feel her heart getting warmer, and it whispered to her, "O how he did love me! Yes, I must love him. I am going to begin now." So she said to Jesus, for she knew that it was his voice she heard in her heart, "Jesus, I am only a poor little girl, but I want to love you. It is hard to do right, but I want to do it, and I want to come to you."

She got up the next morning, and the next, and the next; and pretty soon the lady she was living with began to say, "Why, what is the matter with Sarah! What has come over her? How nice she keeps everything! and how careful she is! When she takes the baby to nurse she does not drop it, and she does not tell any more lies. What has come over her?"

Ah! she has something in her heart. What is it? Jesus! Jesus! Yes. Who was helping her every day? Jesus. And by-and-by the mistress said, "Sarah has something in her heart that she did not use to have." It was Jesus.

Do not you want to have Jesus in your heart? Do not you want to take him home to your house? He will come if you want him to. Does he not love little children? O, yes, dearly.

OLD RATTLEBONES.

Says one writer, "I shall never forget an incident of my childhood by which I was taught to be careful not to wound the feelings of the unfortunate.

"A number of us school-boys were playing by the road-side one Saturday afternoon, when the stage-coach drove up to a neighboring tavern, and the passengers alighted. As usual, we gathered around to observe them. Among the number was an elderly man with a cane, who got out with much difficulty, and when on the ground, he walked with the most curious contortions. His feet turned one way, his knees another, and his whole body looked as though the different limbs were independent of it and each other, and every one was making motions to suit itself. I unthinkingly shouted, 'Look at old Rattlebones!' while the poor man turned his head with an expression of pain which I can never forget.

"Just then, to my surprise and horror, my father came around the corner, and immediately stepping up to the stranger, shook his hand warmly, and assisted him to walk to our house, which was but a little way off. I could enjoy no more play that afternoon, and when tea-time came, I would gladly have hid myself, for I knew that he would be in, and so tremblingly went into the sitting-room. To my great joy and relief, the stranger did not recognize me, but remarked pleasantly to my father as he introduced me—'Such a fine boy was surely worth saving.'

"How the words cut me to the heart! My father had often told me the story of a friend who had plunged into the river to save me as I was drowning, while an infant, and who, in consequence of a cold then taken, had been made a cripple by inflammatory rheumatism; and this was the man I had made a butt of ridicule, and a laughing-stock for my companions!

"I tell you, boys and girls, I would give a great deal to have the memory of that event taken away. If ever you are tempted as I was, remember that while no good can come of sport whereby the feelings of others are wounded, you may be laying up for yourselves life-long painful recollections."

GEORGY'S NEGG.

In the little magazine, Good News for Young People for December, 1862, we find a touching story of an infant's faith as follows:

A little child, being very weakly in body, was ordered a fresh egg every morning. On one occasion, the supply of country eggs being exhausted, his mother said to him at the breakfast table, "There is no egg for Georgy this morning." The little child paused, and looking up, said, "Lord, Georgy, negg, negg, Amen." The mother, in astonishment, said, "Well, we shall surely have an egg to-day, no matter where it comes from."

No more was thought of the matter, until the mother, in the course of the day, called at the butcher's to purchase some meat, not imagining for a moment that the prayer of her infant boy would be so markedly answered. The butcher said to her, "Ma'am, would you be offended, if I were to send up a lovely fresh egg for the baby? It is just laid, and I thought, as he is delicate, he might like it." Now, he had never done aught like this before, nor has he ever done it since; neither was he aware of the fact that the child really needed the egg. The Lord, I believe, made him think of it, in order that the infant's prayer might be answered and the unbelief of older hearts rebuked. Oh, for a more artless, childlike confidence in Him, who is the hearer, the answerer, and the lover of believing prayer!—The Christian.

ZINZENDORF AND THE DOVE.

Cruelty to animals is always a sign of a mean and little mind, whereas we invariably find really great men distinguished by their humanity.

I remember having read, some time ago, a beautiful story of Count Zinzendorf when a boy. He was, as I dare say you know, a great German noble, and lived to do a great deal of good in the world.

One day, when he was playing with his hoop near the banks of a deep river, which flowed outside the walls of a castle where he lived, he espied a dove struggling in the water. By some means the poor little creature had fallen into the river, and was unable to escape. The little Count immediately rolled a large washing-tub, which had been left near, to the water's edge, jumped into it, and though generally very timid on the water, by the aid of a stick, he managed to steer himself across the river to the place where the dove lay loating and struggling. With the bird in his arms, he guided the tub back, and got safely to land. After warming his little captive tenderly in his bosom, the boy ran with it into the wood, and set it free. His mother who had watched the whole transaction, in trembling anxiety for his safety, from her bed-room window, now came out.

"But were you not afraid?" she asked.

"Yes, I was, rather," answered the boy, "but I could not bear that it should die so. You know, mother, its little ones might have been watching for it to come home!"—Arthur's Home Magazine.

LITTLE STINGNETTLE.

A little boy grumbled one day at the dinner-table because he had too much potato and too little pudding on his plate. His father, anxious to please this little stingnettle, removed part of the former, and gave him more of the latter. Still the frown remained on the little fellow's brow. Pushing his drinking cup aside, he said,—

"This isn't my mug! I want my own mug!"

His own mug was given him; but he was still out of humor. His "chair didn't suit him," he said. So his father took him on his lap, and said as he did so,—

"Are you all right now?"

Upon this the fretful fellow, looking round the room, spied the old cat. Bursting into tears, he cried out,—

"There! the old cat's tail sticks up"

Wasn't he a cross little goose? I think a moderate dose of rattan would have had a wholesome effect upon his temper. A child with such fretful humors is more trouble in a house than a boy with the toothache. Nothing pleases him. He pleases no one. Everything goes wrong where he is. I hope none of you have such a temper: if you have, I beg you to get rid of it as quickly as you can. Go and tell Jesus about it, and ask him to take it from you, and give you such a happy heart that you will be like a beam of sunshine wherever you go. Which will you be,—stingnettle, or sunshine?—S. S. Advocate.

WHAT TO HATE.—"I hate to learn my lesson," cried a little fellow, shoving back his book as if he never wanted to see it again. "Hate, my boy, hate! Do you know what a terrible word that is? Never hate any thing but sin.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance....................$2.50 a year
Five copies six months to one address........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.

PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 736. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1869. VOL. XXX.—NO. 10.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL, A. ROSS.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
D. MATHEWSON, H. V. DAVIS,
M. BATCHELOR, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

THE CROWN OF THORNS.

"And unto Adam he said, ... Cursed is the ground for thy sake. Thorns ... shall it bring forth."
"And the soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head."

In bitterest sorrow did the ground bring forth
Its fatal seed. Thine eyes beheld the birth,
Beheld the travail of accursed earth;
E'en then, O Lord, in greater love than wrath!

Thou sawest the sin that none could gather out—
The vineyard covered with the thorn and briar;
Thou sawest the fair land ready for the fire—
And still thy pity compassed it about.

Thou, O most merciful! didst spare the brand;
Thou didst redeem the paradise of God;
The thorns were rooted from the stubborn sod,
In pain and toil, by thine own blessed hand,

How was our path to heaven o'ergrown with sin—
Bramble, and thistle, and the poisonous weed!
Though hearts should break, and patient feet should bleed,
And strive and struggle, none could walk therein.

And thou did'st call us when we went astray—
Didst make our high-road straight for evermore;
And, for our guidance, passed on before,
Leaving thy shining foot-prints in the way.

Still do the wild thorns hedge us round about;
Still grow the thistles from the ancient stock;
Still trails the bramble on the blasted rock—
But we can dig, and thou wilt pull them out.

Ay, we can work—O help us in the strife!
Labor is sweet, for thou dost share it now;
And we shall eat, in sweat of furrowed brow,
Not earthly food, but thine own bread of life.

And there are thorns of suffering left behind—
Sorrow and loss—that weigh our courage down;
But ah! we know thy sacramental crown
Was made of sin and sorrow—intertwined.

Give us of thy sweet patience, Lord, we pray!
We would not spurn them with rebellious tricks;
Nor fret and strive—for thou canst feel the pricks;
We too would wear them as a crown for aye.

We would put on thy likeness—we, the least
And most unworthy. Ay, each piercing thorn,
In thy name patiently and meekly worn,
Shall bear a blossom for the bridal feast.

Look down, O Brother, with the yearning eyes!
Behold us kneeling at thy bitter cross!
Grant us a share in all thine earthly loss,
That we may share thy gain in Paradise.

O weary Head! we see thee drooping now
Beneath that diadem of mortal pain;
We see thee sprinkled with the scarlet stain;—
Drop down the chrism on our polluted brow!

O sacred Head!—pale, beautiful, benign—
On our heads be thy precious blood, we cry!
So the destroying angel, passing by,
Shall spare to smite us—reverencing the sign.

—Sunday Magazine.

For the World's Crisis.

HELP FROM THE LORD.

"Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name; and deliver us, and purge away our sins, for thy name's sake."—Ps. 79: 9.

My beloved brethren:—By reading the history of the ancient people of God, we shall learn their different conditions, both in the state and church, towards the world and God. This is a very profitable and needful study for every true christian man and woman. It is a known fact that this study of the old Scripture has been neglected to a very great extent in the different churches. Until recently, there has been little true knowledge of the plan of salvation, the promises of the Lord to his people, the connection between the Old and New Testaments; how the doctrine of the one must absolutely be the same as the other.

But we see the fruit of this neglect to-day. How so? you may ask. Yes, my friend, in the greatest of all errors in theology to-day—immortality of mankind; on which again the greatest of all delusions—Spiritualism, is based. Think you that this damnable doctrine would have had such footing to-day, if the people had searched the whole Bible truth? No! no! But they have ignored that the whole Bible is inspired of God; that the Old Testament belonged to the Jews, and to the old dispensation; that the Old Testament teaches that man (the wicked) would be burned up root and branch; but the New, that he would be burned with fire unquenchable; and as they could not get this doctrine to agree, they thought best to leave it alone, and only read the New, as they were sure this told the truth (the Lord help us and guide us!); that the Old does not tell us much about the way of salvation.

Our text will contradict the truth of this last phrase, and show that the way of salvation is taught alike in the Old and New Testaments; and may the Lord help us to search and dig into this great treasure, be filled with his grace, and led by his truth, until we with eternal joy shall behold the great Author of this truth in the eternal world.

The text shows us the condition of the people of God at this period. By reading the whole Psalm, you will perceive that they were in great trouble; how the enemy had come within their borders, ready to destroy them and their land.

It is evident from this Psalm that their sins and backslidings were the cause of this trouble and distress, and they felt it. They would remember what the Lord had spoken to them (see and read the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth chapters of Deuteronomy); and the Lord would convince them that through sin and disobedience they were now without a helper and comforter.

You will observe three prayers in this, and we will consider each one and apply it to ourselves; and may the Lord lead us, and bring every word home to our hearts, that we may search ourselves, and be saved.

The first prayer is, "Help us, O God of our salvation, for the glory of thy name."

My friends, shall a prayer ascend above the roof of our house, or through the skies, as before the throne of grace and justice? it must be in earnestness and from the depth of our hearts; and it seems to me it is enough to bring us to be in earnest, and to cry aloud to the Lord.

Every man has trouble in this world, more or less, and of various kinds. Not one man, from the Emperor or President down to the lowest beggar, but has his troubles and sorrows, and groanings and sighings are heard everywhere. The world is full of tears and sorrows, and mankind seem to be comfortless and in despair. They are seeking comfort and solace in this sinful and death-sinking world; forgetting, ignoring, or ignorant of, the one only and true way that leads upwards, above this world of vanity and corruption, where the only true Friend and Comforter resides, always ready to help us, and bring us safely through all our troubles and cares to our journey's end; where a crown of eternal life is laid up for us in the glorious mansions which he is preparing for us, which he will give us at his appearing very soon.

It seems to me when I am listening to all these groanings and mournings, that more heartfelt prayer should be heard; that more inquirers after the true and almighty Friend should be heard; that seeking release and comfort in this world should be lessened; but it is not so; no! no! On the contrary, the people forget more and more the one thing needful, and are roaming about in darkness, trying to drive away their troubles and difficulties, and satisfy their hearts' desires and wishes in the things which are visible.

But, my friends, will all this do? Can a man find comfort and peace in the things of this world? The Author of all truth, our Lord and Savior, solemnly declares, "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but in me ye shall have peace"; and, "There is no peace for the ungodly." There must, therefore, be something in the way, that man will not see nor acknowledge; and so it is. Something is in the way, and that our text tells us in very plain words; it is our sins, which arise as a great mountain and hedge the way for us; and this mountain must be removed, if we would ever see the face of Him who can help us in all our troubles.

But do we realize we are sinners? that it is our sins which separate us us from God, and leave us so empty and restless in this friendless world, and so hopeless for the one to come? This is the great mountain which so few will see and acknowledge, and therefore never pray from the depths of their hearts, as the Jews did in our text, and as every true child of God has prayed when he was convinced that his sins had separated between him and God.

Shall the earnest prayer, then, "Help us, O God of our salvation," flow from the depths of our hearts and ascend up before the throne of grace? we must see and feel that we are sinners condemned to die if we remain in our sins, and that God is the only way to salvation. If we feel that we are sinners, and that God is our salvation, will not this prayer of our text in spirit and truth ascend from our hearts? Shall we not cry aloud to the Lord? Yes. And shall we there bring forth all our good works and ask to be forgiven for their sake? No. We shall now see that our works have in a great measure kept us away from God; and, stricken with amazement and wonder, we look up and cry, Is it possible that such a wretch as I may be allowed to call upon thy great and holy name? and from the heart and tongue will burst forth the next words in our text: "For the glory of thy name." Before, we never thought of the glory of God; it never entered there; but now we realize this; yes, we understand and feel it. And why is this? Because the love of God becomes manifest to us, inasmuch as we see our many and great sins, and how God could have had patience with us. And the more we look at this, the more the love of God appears in all its splendor, and, filled with holy awe and fear, we cry with reverence and bowed head, "Keep us, O God of of our salvation, for the glory of thy name."

2. The second prayer of our text is: "And deliver us"; and is inseparably connected with the first and the last.

How mysterious and incomprehensible these words seem; for, as long as we were groping about in darkness we never saw any danger; we never knew that we had enemies who encompassed us about; we never saw them, when always ready to entrap and entangle us, and ready to destroy us at every movement, and forever. We thought that everything was peace, and that we were living in safety.

But now we see what danger and enemies we have escaped. We now see the great chains with which Satan has bound us, and we feel them; we see that no human power can break them; but the great "Lion of Juda," "the God of our salvation," must do this work, and set the captive free. We now feel that we are enwrapt in a dangerous net—"the lust of the eye, the lust of the flesh, and the pride of life." And when we see this enemy, the devil, the world, and ourselves; how the devil has got us fast in his chains; how we are entangled in that soul-destroying, but for the natural man so desirable net; I say, when we realize our condition, how we cry for deliverance. It will not be with the old confession—We are all sinners; no! but it will be "I am the greatest of all sinners." The enemy is after me to destroy my soul; "Help us, O God of my salvation, for the glory of thy name, and deliver us." And right away is heard the third prayer in our text: "And purge away our sins, for thy name's sake."

3. We will now consider briefly the last prayer in connection: "Purge away our sins." We see that this was the process of conversion in other times; that this is the doctrine of the old Scriptures, and so it is now. You will never remain in your sins, dear friend. It would be a very poor conversion, that does not go further than to seek pardon from God, and to be free from all danger, and still remain in sin. No, that will never do. Many have tried, and are trying this, but it will not do.

Would to God that all those who profess to be christians, but practise so differently, would feel and understand this. We should hear a better report about religion, both from the family and workshop; from the world and the church. It is an old experience in every child of God, and an indisputable fact, that wherever an earnest christian walks in the footsteps of his Master, his light will so shine that the people will see his good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven. And the more he now, through God, whom he has for his salvation, sees all his faults and weaknesses, the more he sees the need of being purged from all his sins, and hourly needs the "balm in Gilead" to cleanse him from sin and uncleanness.

Then the last words of our text will be the first and the last and the dearest Name to him. In this name he performs all his duties; in this name his prayer is asked and ended. It will be his highest aim to glorify this name, by proclaiming through his words and deeds that salvation belongs to this great name, and always ready to be had for every one who asks earnestly for that which is the greatest of all—salvation and eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

But how is it with you, my reader? Is it your meat and drink to do your Father's will? Is it your highest aim to glorify that name which brought salvation to your soul? and is it your constant cry, "Purge away my sins"? Let us be more faithful. Soon we shall with immortal eyes see Him to whom this precious name belongs. But should you be without God and without hope in the world, careless about your soul's salvation, know that you have sinned, come to a loving Savior with all your iniquities; trust in him, and be baptized, and you shall be saved. Friends, Jesus is waiting to be gracious. Come now. Accept his mercies, and soon he will come and give you life eternal in the glorious mansions which he is preparing for us. "O God of our salvation," help us all to be there, for thy name's sake. Amen. O. Bendixon.

For the World's Crisis.

WHAT IS MAN?

It is most essential we know ourselves in order that we may know our responsibilities, and our relations to God. Shall we go to popular theology to ascertain the nature of man, or to the Creator of the heavens and earth, and the former of man? God says, "Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness." "And the Lord God [made a house for man to live in? No, but the Lord God] formed man of the dust of the ground." And with this the Scriptures agree. "The first man was of the earth, earthy." Why? Because he was formed out of the dust of the earth. He subsisted on the productions of the earth, and all there was of him was from the earth. Hence he was of the earth, earthy.

Man being thus formed of the dust of the ground, God breathed into his nostrils (an immortal soul? No; if so, then our souls are in our nostrils) "the breath of life; and man became a living soul"; became a living animal being. This is the record of the creation of man.

But, says one, I believe in the immortality of the soul. So does one I heard preach the other day. Said he, "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive spiritually. This is the reason children are saved. The Lord God so loved the world of mankind while they were spiritually dead, that he disrobed himself of all of heaven's high honors, and came in the flesh to redeem man from spiritual death." (I wonder if he thinks Christ died spiritually?) He said that temporal death is no part of the penalty; if so, then being raised to life from the grave is no part of the life which we receive through Christ; and places us on the same footing with Adam. We only have to answer for our own actual sins. Adam broke God's law, and became spiritually dead; even so if we break God's law, we shall become spiritually dead again as a consequence; and if it required the sacrifice of the Lord from heaven to redeem us to hope as long as we have scorned and broken God's law, is there yet another Savior to come to die and redeem us? Nay, verily; so we must perish.

But the learned preacher may say that there is virtue enough in Christ's death to redeem man from as many spiritual deaths as a man may die by backsliding; if so, when he has backslidden for the last time, he will be redeemed and saved; which would save all mankind, and is contrary to the Bible. I claim that temporal death is the penalty. God said to Adam, "In the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."

That God counts time differently from us, is evident from the Bible. God says, "In the day that I stretched out my hand to deliver them, Moses led them forty years in the wilderness." He speaks of this time as a day; and again, "the day of judgment," that great day of a thousand years. Peter also says that "one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day."

With this view of the case all is plain. "And the Lord God said, Because thou hast done this, cursed is the ground for thy sake; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth unto thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field; in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return to the earth; for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." "And all the days that Adam lived were one hundred and thirty years, and he died." So, "as in Adam all die [a temporal death], even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ, the first-fruits; afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming." "Then will be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? . . . . But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." J. H. Loucks.

New Haven, Mich.

For the World's Crisis.

TRUST IN JESUS.

O, let us trust in Jesus,
Our best and dearest friend,
May we never get discouraged,
But trust him to the end.

If troubles and afflictions
Do in our pathway come,
Let us ever trust in Jesus,
He will lead us safely on;

And soon, if good and faithful,
When Jesus comes to reign,
He'll take us home forever,
Free from sickness, care, and pain.

Then let us trust in Jesus,
Though afflictions come severe,
His grace is all-sufficient,
And we have no cause to fear.

East Randolph, Mass. Mary J. Pratt.

For the World's Crisis.

MY SHEPHERD.

"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want."

How comfortable is such an assurance as stands at the head of this paper. How exquisitely happy the soul that can with the Psalmist make use of such language! Blessed be the Lord that it is the writer's privilege to join with the jubilant and triumphant singer in such words of holy assurance. And many readers of the Crisis will doubtless be able to say, It is true—"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want."

Notice, beloved, what faith there is in the outburst; what belief manifests itself in the ejaculation. And here may be seen the stretch of faith. It believes in the present; for its voice is, "The Lord is my shepherd." It believes for future good: "I shall not want."

The first part of the verse is the stock, out of which the latter clause grows. The first part is the root, which bears the branches that follow. The fact stated first is the parent of the after consequence. It is the same as though it was written: "Because the Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want." What an admirable and good reason the Psalmist had to warrant him to believe that he should not want. The Lord was his shepherd.

This could be said of no other shepherd. It could not be said of any earthly shepherd. We could not say, "Because So-and-so is the shepherd of that flock, they shall never want for anything." The man may be gentle, he may have the interest of the sheep at heart, but that would be no guarantee that they should always be supplied. Circumstances may occur over which he had no control. Drought, or famine, or many things may happen, which may make it impossible for him to provide necessaries for his flock. It is the shepherd's office to choose pasturage for his sheep; but no earthly shepherd can make the pasturage, and if it fails, well, then the sheep must want.

But, says the Psalmist, "The Lord is my shepherd." The maker of all pasturage is mine. And is he not the Creator? Yes, he is the Almighty; the Creator of the ends of the earth. And if the grazing land should become barren, which it can not whilst God can make his benefits to grow, why, then we could not want; for creative power could immediately call into being fresh food to support us who are his sheep. Unlike all earthly pastors, God is the maker as well as the chooser of good for those who follow him, and we are certainly assured that "no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly."

The Lord is shepherd for both soul and spirit. He is shepherd for our bodies. Lift up your eyes and behold the fields in harvest time. Look abroad on your gardens. Gaze on the animals from whose coats much of our clothing is made. And there is a truth inscribed on them all—"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." Food, then, and raiment for the body are secured through the shepherdizing care of our Good Shepherd. He is shepherd for the soul. He fills the vast expanse that surrounds our globe with air and light to support the soul of man, or man's life. He is the shepherd for our spirits. O! the "green pastures of his love in Jesus" that the mind wanders in. O! the satisfaction and peace that we find in receiving Jesus as our Atonement and Righteousness, or, in one word, Savior.

The Lord is their shepherd to all men in a general way. He "is good to all, and his tender mercies are over all his works." He is kind even to the ungrateful. Munificent God! how extensive thy love, even to the unthankful. As he is Savior of all men, especially of believers; so he is shepherd of all men, especially of those who believe; for he makes them hungry, fills them with good things, and makes them fat with his love. Their spirits are life, because of righteousness, into which path he leads them.

He is called the great Shepherd. Is not he great to whom heaven does obeisance; before whom cherubim cast themselves as nothing in awe and adoration? Is not he great who holds hurricanes and winds just in the hollow of his hand? Is not he great who takes up the world as a very little thing? Is not he great who by power infinite makes every orbit roll in its course and changes the face of the sky in a moment? Is not he great who darts his flame in the heavens, and chills the heart of man with his thunder?

O, can it be? It is. It is. This Lord is my Shepherd. He notices this worm, and he will exalt it, and change it to his own all-majestic likeness. He is chief Shepherd—chief in every way. Chief in power, chief in affection, chief in riches, chief in resources. He is the long-lived Shepherd who can never, by reason of death, be succeeded; for an endless life is his.

He is the good Shepherd. The sheep were to go the slaughter, and he stood in the way and was slaughtered for them. He laid down his life for the sheep. What goodness of charity is here; who shall jot it down?

Now, then, we know the Lord is our Shepherd in Jesus, who is our shepherd-Savior, our shepherd-King. He is rich; oh, so rich! How can he ever fail us? All things are God's; all things are Christ's; all things are ours; and how can he who has all things want? But what if the world be burnt up? Well, then here is the promise, "Behold I make all things new." Here are riches of creative power and riches of possession to warrant us in believing we shall not want.

Therefore, "Although the fig-tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labor of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls; yet will I rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation"; for the Creator is the all-sufficient God. "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want."

We who trust in him shall never want life, preservation, salvation, glory, and honor; for they are all given to us in and through Jesus Christ our Lord. Let all who desire to dwell longer on this consoling theme read the twenty-third Psalm, and ask God for wisdom to be able to get the sweetness out of it.

But a few words to the godless, and I will cease. Sinners! you have enjoyed the mercies of God for a long time past; but you shall verily want unless you know not only the mercies of the Shepherd, but the Shepherd himself. He has been leading for a long time, and is leading still, those who have gone unto him, hearing what provision there was in him. But you have never gone. No, never. Never said from the heart, "I have erred and strayed from thy ways as a lost sheep; but I pray thee look not at my unworthiness, but for thy great mercies' and name's sake, take me into thy fold. Let me never want. Let me not cry; let me never wail out the sad appeal—'Fetch me water to cool my tongue in this flame.' Let me never be in want of living water and heavenly bread, as thou dost permit. (I believe thou dost.) I appropriate thee to my need, thou Christ of God, who hast said, 'Him that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth in me shall never thirst.'" May this be your hearty address to the good Shepherd; and he will know you, and be known of you. Amen.

W. Kellaway.

Times, please copy.

For the World's Crisis.

CHARITY.

"And now abideth these three; faith, hope, charity; but the greatest of these is charity."—1 Cor. 13: 13.

Christian reader, do you ever pause in contemplating this beautiful and sublime sentiment the apostle has enjoined upon us with such an earnest appeal? He would in no way have us neglect this most essential of spiritual gifts. It differs widely from all others in its nature divine; they are not counted worthy in comparison with it. And when we realize the most excellent effect it produces upon this human nature of ours, usually so prone to evil that we at times almost lose sight of this most transcendent quality, we might well exclaim with St. Paul, "Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift!" Do you profess to love your fellow creatures, to love your God, and your Savior's appearing; to aim at a degree of high moral culture, and labor to alleviate the trials and afflictions of the suffering world? You can never accomplish this divine mission without charity; meek and lowly, but most godlike of all; for it "beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things." Without it you are but the beautiful casket robbed of its brightest jewel; and have "become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal."

In the broad field of labor now before us, how much it will strengthen our zeal and ambition to accomplish the desired end. The task so great, the work so arduous, that many may yield in despair, thinking, perhaps, their labor will prove vain, their best efforts be perverted and become useless, and the earnest striving lost; but obstacles like these must never come between us and a duty so imperative and all-responsible; which must be fulfilled, and which can only be done with an abundance of charity, and such a faith "in all things good," that we may never "weary in well-doing," but live so that our example may be to others a convincing proof that we have something better,—a reward we shall never receive in this life, a harvest we shall never reap.

In our unceasing attempts to do the will of our Father, may faith come to us as if borne an angel's wings; and hope, "the holy instinct of the heart," cheer us through our weary pilgrimage, and with uplifted finger point to that morning that will ere long dawn upon a scene of glory unsurpassed.

Finally, let charity guide us to the last, and in letters of living gold write upon our hearts its divine errand of love and mercy, that it may be the talisman by which we shall call the weak and erring back to repentance and virtue. Faith, hope, and charity; yet is the greatest charity; great in its utter self-abnegation. It is the very spirit of kindness and sympathy embodied. Faith and hope are not to be compared with it; no matter how highly esteemed are other qualities, they all fall below the intrinsic value it bestows upon the heart of its possessor. It shuns no path of duty, however drear and toilsome it may look, but seeks opportunities in every walk of life for benefiting others, and throws over all the erring its divine mantle of forgiveness.

Its reward is not only a crown of righteousness laid up for us in the mansions of our heavenly Father, but daily and hourly that sweet peace of mind that arises only from the consciousness of a life well spent.

"Let Charity be law and letter,
Forgiveness in us have a place,
We shall then ourselves grow better,
Mighty to improve our race."

Brookfield, Mass. S. F. Wheelock.

THE ETERNITY OF EVIL.

Finding that great misconception prevails with regard to the views propounded in a course of sermons lately preached at Eaton Chapel, I think it well to give the following summary of them.

1. Scripture declares, that the "everlasting punishment" of the wicked will consist of "everlasting destruction," after, or by means of the infliction of "many" or "few stripes," according to their several deserts. The popular theory teaches, that it will consist of everlasting pain.

2. Scripture declares, that God will "destroy both body and soul in hell." The popular theory teaches, that he will destroy neither one nor the other; but preserve both of them alive forever, in unmitigated agony.

3. Scripture declares, that "our God is a consuming fire." The popular theory teaches, that he is only a scorching fire.

4. Scripture declares, that the "fiery indignation" will "devour the adversaries." The popular theory teaches, that it will do no such thing, but only torture them.

5. Scripture declares, that the wicked will perish "like natural brute beasts." The popular theory teaches, that there will be no analogy whatever between the two cases.

6. Scripture declares, that whosoever "will save his life" by unfaithfulness to Christ, shall ultimately "lose it" in a far more terrible manner. The popular theory teaches, that no man can lose his life more than once, and that "the second death" is no death at all, but eternal life in sin and misery.

7. Scripture declares, that whosoever "doeth the will of God abideth forever." The popular theory teaches, that every man will abide forever, whether he does the will of God or not.

8. Scripture declares, that if we desire "immortality" we must seek it "by patient continuance in well doing." The popular theory teaches, that every man possesses inherent, indefeasible immortality, and what we have to seek for is, that it may prove a blessing and not a curse to us.

9. Scripture declares, that "the wages of sin is death." The popular theory teaches, that it is eternal life in misery; in other words, that God will inflict upon impenitent sinners a punishment infinitely greater than what he has pronounced to be their due.

10. Scripture declares, that "the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." The popular theory teaches, that eternal life is the common possession of all men, and that the gift of God through Christ is the privilege of spending it in holiness and happiness.

11. Scripture declares, that "the Son of God was manifested that he might destroy the works of the devil." The popular theory teaches, that they will never be destroyed at all, but that a portion of the universe will be specially set apart for the eternal exhibition of them in their fullest maturity.

12. Scripture declares, that Christ is to "reconcile all things to God." The popular theory teaches, that all things will never be reconciled to God; that discord and disorder will never cease, but only be confined to one particular locality.

13. Scripture declares that in Christ "all things consist." The popular theory teaches, that a whole kingdom will "consist" for ever, although not "in him."

14. Scripture declares, that "he that hath the Son hath life, but he that hath not the Son of God hath not life," that "if we live after the flesh we shall die, but if through the Spirit we mortify the deeds of the body we shall live."

The advocates of the popular theory say, that the life of believers and unbelievers, of natural men and spiritual men, must be of equal duration—that the doctrine of eternal happiness, and the doctrine of eternal misery must stand or fall together—in other words, that if what the Scripture asserts to be true, what it denies must be true also.

I take my stand, therefore, on the plain, consistent, emphatic teaching of the whole Bible from beginning to end, as opposed to the "traditions of men," which have so grievously perverted it, and thereby obscured the glory of Christ, reduced to an unmeaning form the declaration that "God is Love," produced a frightful amount of infidelity, robbed the law of its terrors by making it threaten sinners with what they are sure will never be executed, incalculably weakened the saving power of the gospel, and damaged the believer's whole spiritual constitution, by putting an unnatural strain upon it that God never intended it to bear.

The three or four passages that are thought to confirm the traditional view have been examined in a volume entitled "The Glory of Christ in the Creation and Reconciliation of all things" (Longman), and been found either entirely to fail in lending it even the appearance of support, or to be but as dust in the balance against the overpowering weight of testimony on the other side.

Samuel Minton.

Incumbent of Eaton Chapel, Eaton Square.
—Rainbow for November.

For the World's Crisis.

NOT COMFORTLESS.

"I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you."—John 14: 18.

These are the soothing and cheering words of Him of whom the prophet wrote, that he was "a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief." It is thus that our blessed Savior addressed his sorrowing disciples, just after they had eaten the passover. He had apprised them of the mournful scenes and events which were near; of the malice, cruelty and death which awaited him; and of the temptations and dangers which awaited them. "Little children, yet a little while I am with you."

And when he told them these things, their hopes were smitten down with an overwhelming sorrow. Their hearts were troubled and afraid. Clouds of gloom and darkness seemed to gather thick around them and all their prospects. Jesus observed the melancholy and dejection which had seized them, and administered support and consolation. How their hearts rejoiced when Jesus said, "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you."

One of the many causes of sorrow which act powerfully upon us is the removal of near and dear connections by death. When a loving and beloved object is torn from our embrace; when a tender tie is broken; when one with whom we had taken sweet counsel, and long gone hand in hand down the vale of life; who had shared in our labors and anxieties, in our pleasures and pains;—when such a one is taken away from us, not to feel and mourn the loss would argue insensibility to the blessing, and ingratitude for the bestowment of it. In these afflictive dispensations we listen to the voice of the Savior himself, saying to us, "Blessed are they that mourn; for they shall be comforted." "Let not your hearts be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me." "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." "Because I live, ye shall live also." "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

When the celestial voice speaks thus to us, we will not remain comfortless. A heavenly light will gild our darkest hour; an invisible arm will ease us of our heaviest burden. God has promised to be a Father to the fatherless, and the widow's God. In seasons when social and friendly bonds are broken; when the objects of our firmest and fondest grasp are forced from us; when those we love fade and fall, and all that made life desirable expires; in seasons of disappointment, misfortune, and affliction, when sickness shows us the emptiness of the world; how sweet it is to go to Him who has "the words of eternal life" for support and comfort.

Mourning christian, hearken to the words of your Savior: "I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you"; and also to the words of your heavenly Father: "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." Rejoice! our loved ones will come again from the enemy's land. Who has not lost a friend? Who has not been called to bury some loved one in the dark earth? But, thanks be unto God, the grave must give up its dead; in a little while our loved ones will rise again. In that blest morn they will look back on the grave and say, "O grave, where is thy victory? O death, where is thy sting?"

That will be a glorious morn. I long to see my dear father, who now sleeps in the cold grave. A year ago we laid him away, and how lonely we have been since; but, thank God, we expect to meet him in a little while. O, my Lord, hasten thy coming! I long to see Jesus. I am glad that we are almost home. Let us be faithful. Jesus is coming in a little while. M. L. Green.

Charlton, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

"MARVEL NOT."

"Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again."—John 3.

Did Christ say again of water and the Spirit? No. Did he refer to more than two births? Certainly not. To which birth belongs the water? to the first or second? If we say the first, it answers to the facts of every case of a human birth, so as to fix a date of human recognition in this mortal life. If we say it belongs to the second, we must apply it to baptism, just where the Romish church does; and then we shall see a good reason for baptizing children. Thus it actually did start, and ran into sprinkling, as it is this day.

But you will say, Did he not say except a man be born of water and the spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God? Yes. Does not the above cover this ground? Most certainly. But does not your position savor strongly of universal salvation? Most certainly it would, if the means necessary had not been explained to Nicodemus in that same conversation concerning all who had a chance to hear the gospel; that whosoever believeth might not perish, but have everlasting life, as a gift when so born or raised from the dead. For you will not suppose that the perishing is this side of death and resurrection, or born from the dead, if it is right to call the resurrection a birth from the dead irrespective of the faith of the gospel.

This view makes it appear consistent. So that the Judge of all the earth will do right in consigning all who reject the Son of God, together with all those heathen who are murderers, and robbers, and defilers of themselves, sinners without law, to a second death.

Pittsburgh. D. B. Rogers.

— "No retreat," should be the motto emblazoned on the standard of every christian warrior, as he goes forth to battle—"not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of spiritual wickedness in high places."

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Boston, Wednesday, Nov. 24, 1869.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Money Orders.

☞ Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

☞ TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis, we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber has his or her name, with the date of the month and year to which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or on the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ E. S. MELLEN—You are referred to Crisis of Nov. 10th, fourth page.

☞ B. S. COLBY—Bro. Roby keeps the Harps for sale in your place.

☞ ROYAL P. CLARK—Please let us know where your Crisis now goes.

☞ BRO. O. BENDIXON'S P. O. address is No. 2 Bowling Green, New York.

THE NATIONAL CONFERENCE.

We have only time now to say to our readers, that up to this date (Friday morning, Nov. 19th), the conference has been a happy success, surpassing our most sanguine expectations. The Spirit of the Lord is with us in power, producing heavenly harmony. We feel as though a new era was dawning upon those who are looking for the "blessed hope." Let us rejoice in the Lord.

POULTNEY.

We spent Sabbath, Nov. 14th, in Poultney, Vt., and had a very pleasant time. The Poultney church has passed through some sore trials in the last few years by the hands of death, and the removal of active members, but there is a goodly number of faithful souls left, who are pressing earnestly for the kingdom. It seems very pleasant to greet the dear saints again, after a three years's absence. Bro. J. B. Cook has been preaching there for some time in the past, to good acceptance, but has now removed, and they are without a pastor.

Eleven years ago, we preached our first sermon in the Stone meeting-house, and have now preached our last, as the room we have occupied is to be used for other purposes. We felt sad to learn the fact, as it is a discouraging circumstance to the church; yet the dear Brn. and Srs. seem determined to press forward.

In one of our meetings, a Bro. who had come some distance to the meeting, arose and said he had been in a low state of mind, and it was because he had been keeping a beer saloon, and had used some of the beer himself. He said he was resolved to quit it if he died, and had to beg for a living. No one can be free in the Lord, and at the same time be engaged in doing what he knows to be wrong in the sight of heaven. Christianity makes people do right in all things. It is perfectly adapted to the wants of man.

We had a pleasant interview with Bro. S. G. Mathewson, at Castleton, Vt., whose faithful labors have been of great value to the church in that place during the last five and a half years. He lives in the hearts of the people, and enjoys their warm sympathies. He and his wife are worthy of the esteem they receive.

COMING OF CHRIST.

The interest in the coming of Christ, as an event near at hand, is increasing in all parts of the world where there are any living christians. The evidences keep multiplying that show we are near the glorious day. The following is from one of our exchanges:—

"The body of Christians in Amsterdam and Enkengen known as "Apostolic Congregations," are publishing through the German papers that the personal advent of the Savior is near at hand; and that the Lord, speaking through the Holy Ghost, has revealed to them the great fact, and requires that they proclaim it to the world."

STRANGE THINGS.

It is a little remarkable how many strange things are occurring in these days, that are calculated to set people to wondering in relation to coming events. The people seem satisfied that they forbode some event of no ordinary character, and often intimate that they indicate the second coming of Christ. The following are samples:—

"The sun's atmosphere, say the scientific men, is in a highly excited condition. A column of magnetic light is shooting out further and further from the solar sphere, and it is now stretching out forty-five millions of miles. In other words, it has accomplished half the distance between us and the sun! The interesting question, and one on which, perhaps, we do not wish any more light of this character, is—How long will it be before the rest of the distance shall bridge the gigantic chasm between the earth and the sun? Is it a messenger sent out to snatch us up as food for the insatiate monster that keeps himself warm by devouring planets, and whose fire-eating propensities this whole earth would satisfy for a few days only? If so, how long will this emissary be in reaching us, and carrying the globe away as if we were a gigantic lump of coal for a roaring furnace? This column of light at intervals indicates its approach by flashing and corruscating with fresh brilliancy. So decided are its effects that two astronomers, one at London, the other at Oxford, and neither knowing the experiences of the other, supposed that the dark glass of their telescopes had been broken or put out of range, so strong was the flash of golden light upon the vision. It is predicted that before the end of next year this magnetic light will have got near enough to us to make its immediate and actual influence upon the earth distinctly felt. It is announced that in consequence we may expect to see phenomena that have never been seen or known before by the human race. If any of our readers are therefore yet disposed to complain of the weather and the earthquakes, let them remember that, by this time next year, that they may have an entire new line of experiences to explain and endure, in comparison with which the fitful winter and rough, rude autumn of to-day, may seem like a June morning in paradise, and the earthquake's shock and lightning's storm, a placid rocking in the cradle with a pleasant lullaby of thunder."

WHO WAS MELCHIZEDEK?

A correspondent writes:—"There has been considerable inquiry here concerning who was Melchizedek? Some asked their preacher, but he could not tell. Will you please give your opinion in the Crisis?" R. LANNING.

There is very good evidence to show that Shem, the eldest son of Noah, was the one called Melchizedek. This name first occurs in Gen. 14: 18. In the Book of Jasher, chap. 16: 11, it is expressly declared that he was Shem, the Son of Noah. When it is said in Heb. 7: 3, that he was "without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life," it is understood to signify that the genealogy of Shem was not recorded or preserved so that the date of his birth and death could be referred to, as was required in the case of the Levitical priesthood. Shem lived both sides of the flood, and appears to be the first priest on this side. He had a sort of pre-existence with reference to the life he lived before the flood, of which the inhabitants this side of the flood had no knowledge; hence, it might be said, he was without "beginning of days. On this account, he was a representative of Christ, who was a priest after the order of Melchizedek, instead of the order of the Levitical priesthood.

In the Book of Jasher, Melchizedek is called Adonizedek. The precise language is as follows:—"And Adonizedek, king of Jerusalem, the same was Shem, went out with his men to meet Abram and his people, with bread and wine, and they remained together in the valley of Melech. And Adonizedek blessed Abram, and Abram gave him a tenth from all the spoil of his enemies, for Adonizedek was a priest before God."

PRESBYTERIAN UNION.

For some time the Old and New School Presbyterians have been making efforts to unite, and the union is now accomplished, as the following will show:—

PITTSBURG, PA., Nov. 12. The Presbyterian Assemblies met in their respective churches this morning, and after devotional exercises the assembly finally dissolved. An announcement was made that the United Association would meet in the First Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia on the third Thursday in May, 1870, after which each Assembly formed into a line and marched to the street fronting the First Presbyterian Church, where the New and Old School Commissioners joined and locked arms, the union being greeted with the clapping of hands and waving of handkerchiefs by the immense crowd present. The procession proceeded to the Third Church, where a Union meeting was held. A telegram was ordered to be sent to the Presbyterians of Great Britain announcing the union. The Scriptures were then read, and an address made by Dr. Fowler, who at the close clasped the hand of Dr. Jacobus and announced the union complete. Impressive addresses were made by Drs. Jacobus, Musgrove, Adams, Hall and Day, and by Judge Strong, Senator Drake, Hon. Wm. E. Dodge, and others.

Dr. Fisher offered a resolution calling on the church for a thank offering of $5,000,000 for mission purposes. The resolution was adopted."

NAPOLEON'S POLICY.

Those who are well posted in the facts connected with the plans and policy of Napoleon, are compelled to admit that he is very shrewd, and managing with great skill. He outwits his opponents in almost every move he makes. When his enemies think they have him in a corner, they find him turning it to his own advantage, and appearing in advance of all his competitors. The following is from the Albany Argus, Nov. 16th, and gives, we believe, a proper view of Napoleon's situation:

"The recent policy adopted by the Emperor Napoleon towards his enemies, proves him to have lost little of that shrewdness for which he has always been remarkable. Indeed, it must be acknowledged that his mental faculties, instead of being impaired by age or disease, have become more acute as he has advanced in years. Napoleon's clemency in the cases of Rochefort, Hugo, and a score more of his most inveterate enemies, is both timely and politic. By freely overlooking their personal malignity towards himself, as well as ignoring their revolutionary opinions, and extending to them perfect freedom to return and reside in their native land, the Emperor has succeeded in removing most effectually the stings of these malcontents, while he has achieved a reputation for liberality and moderation that will be of excellent service to him. A master-stroke of policy is this which deprives these powerful enemies of their ability to injure the Emperor and his dynasty, while it gains for the monarch himself the reputation with the people which he most needed.

It was only while Rochefort, Hugo, Rollin and others were persecuted at home for a too free expression of opinion, and finally banished for the same reason, that the people cared anything about them or their political opinions: only while they were martyrs were they at all interesting to the Parisians or Frenchmen in general. Now that they can live where they please, act almost as they may choose, and say about what pleases them, their popularity and influence will soon decrease, if it does not entirely vanish. It is true that Rochefort received a grand reception upon his arrival in Paris, and also that one or two demonstrations have been made in his favor since his return, but to the surprise, and, probably, mortification, of many, no notice was taken of these matters by the police, and the excitement has already about died out.

When it is found that these men are no longer to be made martys, and that political capital cannot be made out of them, they will be allowed to sink very soon into comparative insignificance. Some few of the pardoned ones have refused to return home, but this will not have the effect to lend any interest to their movements, as they can return at any time if they desire to. Enemies as we all are to monarchical institutions, and heartily as we desire to see a republican form of government prevail in every land, we cannot but admire the shrewdness of the policy adopted by the French Emperor, which has had the effect to completely disarm the most bitter among his enemies. By adopting these conciliating measures Napoleon has not only disarmed his enemies, but he has succeeded in gaining the good will of his people, and taken the most effectual measures to secure the succession of his dynasty."

FEET OF THE ANGEL.

BRO. GRANT:—I have been so far gone in Spiritualism, I find some trouble with certain texts, especially Rev. 22; 9. Will you please give me some light on the subject, as it seems to favor Spiritualism. It appears that one of the old prophets came back. How do you harmonize this with your belief in the sleep of the dead? E. D. KENTFIELD.

The passage with its context reads as follows:—"I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which showed me these things. Then saith he unto me, See thou do it not; for I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book; worship God." It will be observed that the one who appeared to John was an angel, not a spirit of a man. It does not say he was one of the prophets; and even if it did, it might have been either Enoch or Elijah, who were translated, and did not see death. This angel who appeared to John, had been a servant to the prophets, and was then sent to John to instruct him in relation to coming events. Tyndal's old version reads: "I am thy fellow servant, and the fellow servant of thy brethren the prophets." The same idea is in our present version. There is not a word to show that this angel was the spirit of a prophet; but he was a being who had feet,—a real, tangible person. When men die, they do not take their feet away with them, and return with them again. The whole physical organism dies—the whole man,—and does not come back as a man. Angels have forms resembling men, and have been mistaken for men when they have come to this planet to serve the prophets and others.

THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN QUARTERLY for October is at hand, and filled with interesting matter. We were specially pleased with the first article, by Bro. O. R. Fassett, entitled "The Comforting Hope," in which he does well in exposing the fables and fallacies of popular theology. The Quarterly is well edited by Bro. Wm. Himes, Buchanan, Mich. Price $1.00 a year.

STIR IN EUROPE.—There is much stir in Europe on the coming of the Lord. The following was clipped from a secular paper:—

"The eccentric Father Ignatius is now preaching the second advent, and placards London with posters announcing, 'Christ is coming!'"

MOSES AND ELIAS.

How could Moses and Elias be on the Mount of transfiguration talking with Jesus, unless they were alive? A. SHELDON.

Elijah, who is called Elias in the Greek, was translated, and did not see death; hence could return and be on the Mount with Christ. Moses died, and after his death and burial, as recorded in Deut. 34: 5, 6, the Lord says to Joshua, "Moses, my servant, is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan." Josh. 1: 2. At this time it is certain that Moses was dead. Then he could not be on the Mount of transfiguration, unless he was raised from the dead. In Jude 9, we read:—"Yet Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil, he disputed about the body of Moses, durst not bring a railing accusation against him." We esume Michael gained the victory over the devil, hence Moses could have been raised and appeared on the Mount. There is not a word, nor a hint about its being the spirit of Moses or the spirit of Elias that was present on the Mount. If there, they were as litally so as was Jesus and the apostles.

The word horama, rendered "vision" in the account, frequently signifies a supernatural appearance, and was used to represent the "vision" seen by Peter, when the sheet was let down from heaven; and the "vision" seen by Cornelius, and also by Paul, when he saw in a "vision" "a man of Macedonia," "saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us." It is not to be understood that the man did actually appear, but only in "vision," as John saw the new heavens and earth, which have not yet become realities.

For the World's Crisis.

A NEW FIELD.

BRO. GRANT:—There is an interesting and inviting field at West Rumney, N. H., for any who have a free gospel to declare, there being only a few sisters in that region interested in the preaching of the truth, and they poor in the things of this world, but rich in faith and good works.

They have a large and pleasant school-house in that district, which will be open for any who desire to preach, and will be filled with an interesting congregation of young people, if due notice is given.

They have Baptist preaching Sabbath evenings during the warm season, but the truth sown in those young hearts will spring up and bear fruit in after years, if not immediately. I look over the appointments in the Crisis every week, to see if some Bro. has not an appointment there. It is an important field, and I hope to see it occupied by those who believe in the truth as it is in Jesus.

I hope that Bro. C. W. Nelson, or some other Bro., will arrange a series of appointments for that place (Plain school-house), the coming winter. The brethren will find a home at Sisters Swain's, Simpson's, Hardy's, or French's. S. W. D.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, September 3rd, at the National Campmeeting, it was

Resolved, That we raise THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the Tract Fund the coming year.

It is proposed to raise this amount during the year for the publication and free distribution of tracts. The value of these little preachers in the work of enlightening and saving men from darkness and death can hardly be overestimated; and the generous and liberal stewards of the Lord's money are earnestly invited to contribute according to their ability in aid of the good work. Send on your dimes and dollars, brethren, with a liberal hand, and receive, by and by, the reward of the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec. Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$113.20
Ira Hodgkins	2.50
J. D. Sheridan	3.00

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$19.00
"Charity" (by M. Grant)	10.00

AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All donations and payments of pledges for this Society, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$278.90

For the World's Crisis.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

BRETHREN AND SISTERS:—I reached my field of labor three days since. Met the colored people on Sunday, and explained to them the object of my mission. They are much elated with the prospect of a school and a house in which to worship. They look up to me with confidence for instruction and encouragement. May God in mercy give wisdom and strength, or I shall faint by the way, for this is indeed one of Satan's strongholds. O that prayer may be offered for me continually, that the Master may be honored, and some sheaves be gathered for the harvest. My heart is oppressed with the moral and religious condition of all this region. O that earnest and true laborers might be sent to proclaim God's truth.

Previous to my departure I received the following sums, to complete paying for the house: A friend, Minneapolis, $5. Z. Marsh, Morris, Ill., 50 cts. E. S. Willard, Haddonfield, N. J., $2. John Stockwell, Lancaster, N. H., $2. Z. A. Waterhouse, So. Poland, Me., $2.35. Mrs. E. S. Brigham, Westboro, Mass., $2.30. Mrs. H. H. Nash, Great Falls, N. H., 25 cents. V. H., Waterbury, 25 cts. William Jefferson, Berlin, O., 50 cts. Bro. Eddy, Norwalk, O., 25 cts.

I hope to have the house seated so as to commence Sabbath School on Sunday next, and day school on Monday. The friends may rest assured that all funds entrusted to me shall be faithfully appropriated. The debt upon the house will weigh upon me till paid. But the impression comes continually, "Trust, and go forward."

Please direct communications to West Point, Ky. I could use tracts and Sabbath School papers to good advantage among the white people, if I had them. Your sister in hope,

CAROLINE TULLER.

For the World's Crisis.

FROM FLORIDA.

BRO. GRANT:—The churches at Oak Grove and Suwuannee Shoals have instructed me to request an able and well recommended minister of our faith to come South and preach regularly at the above churches, and to endeavor to spread the gospel of the kingdom in other places.

In consequence of Bro. P. A. Smith's visit north and his ill health since his return, we have had but one day's preaching from him since last May; and he informs me by letter that he contemplates going two hundred and fifty miles south of Jacksonville to spend the winter for his health.

Any brother who desires to come South will please write to me at once, and state his ability to spread and preach the Advent doctrine as preached by Bro. P. A. Smith, and advocated by the Crisis, and what he will expect of us pecuniarily. Any brother of Bro. Smith's zeal and ability can do a great work in Florida among the whites; but for the colored people a colored man should be sent, as the races are not at all disposed to hold meetings together. The colored people very often adopt the views of their employers. I have three colored men and their families working on my farm, who adopted the Advent faith as soon as I became a member of the Advent church.

There is a colored minister here, Monroe Robison, who reports that he is doing a great work in Columbia and Hamilton Counties. He has been supplied with a horse to ride by one and another of the white citizens, and he has been going steadily for the last four months. Bro. T. J. Green is laboring zealously in Baker and Bradford counties, I hear, with good success. Yours in hope,

W. A. SHEFFIELD, Steward.

Suwuannee Shoals, Fla., Columbia Co., Nov. 10th, 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

SABBATH.

BRO. GRANT:—I returned from Maine in time to attend the discussion of the Sabbath question, the last evening, between yourself and Eld. Cornell. Not being present the former evenings, I could not appreciate so well what was said this evening; but from what I heard, I should not think any would be induced to keep the fourth commandment. Eld. Cornell was so zealous for the law of the ten commandments, that he could not see or admit any testimony which went to show the abrogation of them; and before he got through with his argument, he gave up (I think) the two important items of their creed; viz., their third angel's message, receiving the mark of the beast by keeping Sunday, and not keeping the fourth-commandment Sabbath, written on tables of stone, as necessary to salvation. While Eld. Grant said that they believed and preached that the third angel's message, with keeping holy the seventh-day Sabbath, was essential to the saving of men in the time in which we live, Eld. Cornell denied it in toto, and said it was false; that they believed no such thing, taught no such thing; that if the people did not see it in the light they saw it, they were safe, or might be saved, or words to that effect.

Now this is giving up the whole thing. If the letter of it is binding upon us, then it must be kept, and salvation depends upon keeping it; but if [illegible] as well without keeping it, [illegible] position of Eld. Cornell, on his evening, I see no reason why he should make any great bluster about it for our sakes. We don't see it, and are as well off in his concession, and I think much better, in the sight of Jesus our Well Beloved.

They claim the Sabbath of the fourth commandment is binding on all in this generation, and still they break it. I said to Bro. R., one of the defenders of this gone-by covenant (declared so by Christ and his apostles, to make place for a better one), "The Lord knows, you know, and I know, that you, as a people, do not keep the Sabbath of the fourth commandment"; and he said, "We do not claim to keep it to the letter, but the spirit of it." This is giving up the whole question; for if not kept according to the commandment, how shall it be kept? Has it been altered, so that man may say how he will observe it? If so, where? Yes, where? But do they break it? I think they do, and I will mention one case among a thousand and one, that might be mentioned.

Bro. James White and wife came in the cars with me from the Springfield campmeeting, Friday, Sept. 3d. He left the cars at Worcester, saying to me that he was going to Lancaster, Mass., to hold a meeting. This was just at night, Friday evening. I rode directly on to Boston, thence to Chelsea, my home. I saw on my way over the ferry one who attended the Sabbath meeting. She said to me that Bro. James White and wife were to be at Chelsea the next day—Sabbath, and preach. I said, No; for I had just left them at Worcester. Their Sabbath had begun.

The morning came. Eld. Cornell was there to teach and preach, and I think others of the same faith; but where is Bro. James White? Saturday evening in comes Bro. James White, carpet bag in hand, to urge upon them the necessity of keeping the Sabbath, but he does not happen to get there till the holy time is over; he had come forty or fifty miles, breaking the commandment he came to teach them not to break. But "we may do work of necessity, and errands of mercy on the Sabbath day," "take an ox out of the ditch," etc. Yes, but there was plenty of help in Chelsea at this time. Consistency, where art thou? Not here.

Now, brethren, if the fourth-commandment Sabbath is binding upon us, then it must be kept as directed in the commandment, or else we come under the truthful charge of Sabbath breaking, with its heavy penalties weighing upon us. In love with brethren, if they do err from the truth, L. BOUTELL.

Chelsea, Nov. 13th, 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTER FROM BRO. J. G. HOOK.

To the brethren and friends in Nova Scotia: Last Tuesday evening I took passage on board steamship Linda, of Yarmouth, for the Province. In less than two hours after we left Tea Wharf, some of the machinery gave out, and the steamer was soon anchored in sight of the lights in Boston.

While lying there for repairs, I thought of the remarks made by some of God's dear children at Chicopee Falls, Mass., last Monday morning, as I was about to leave for Nova Scotia; they were in substance as follows: Bro. Hook, we think you should stay here awhile, and labor for the perishing in Chicopee, as there is an ear to hear, and we have been praying that God would send you here, etc. I told them that I was expected to dedicate a chapel in Shelburne, and must go. Well, said they, we feel that you will be hindered; we do not know how, but are satisfied your duty is here at present.

So I pondered those things over in my mind, and the suggestion came to me, Perhaps, after all, it is not your duty to go now. Perhaps this trouble is to prevent you from going. It may be in answer to the prayer of faith of those few faithful ones who are struggling so hard for the suffering cause of Jesus.

So I said, "Lord, if it is duty to go back, I want to go, and do thy bidding; and if this boat is taken back to the wharf so I can leave it, I shall be satisfied it is duty." After a while, she was steaming away for Nova Scotia. Towards morning we had unmistakable proof of a heavy gale, and our able captain gave orders to run the steamer into Gloucester harbor and cast anchor. So we found ourselves at anchor, with many vessels near by.

We lay there until Thursday P. M., when the boat was hauled to the wharf. Then my duty was plain. The steamer was somewhat disabled, and I left for Chicopee Falls. Truly,

"God moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform;
He plants his footsteps on the sea,
And rides upon the storm."

I cannot now tell when I shall visit the Province, but soon as the Lord will.

Boston, Nov. 19th. JOHN G. HOOK.

ACCURACY OF SCRIPTURE.

We read in Dan. verse 30, that when Darius took Babylon, Belshazzar, the king of it, was in the city, and in "that night was Belshazzar, king of the Chaldeans slain." Herodotus, the Greek historian, gives an account of the matter, which, until of late years, seemed totally irreconcilable with Daniel's narrative. He informs us that Labynetus was absent when the city was taken; that he sought shelter in Barsippa; that Cyrus attacked him there, took him, stripped him of his regal dignity, but allowed him to retire and to spend the rest of his life in ease in Caramansa. The two statements appear to be contradictory, and that the credit of historic veracity must be denied either to Daniel or to Herodotus.

Thus stood the matter, when Sir Henry Rawlinson, the celebrated Oriental scholar, discovered, in his eastern researches, one of those cylinders, on which historic records used to be written in the cuneiform character by the ancients. Having deciphered the writing on this relic of antiquity, it was discovered that at the time of the capture of Babylon, referred to by Daniel and Herodotus, there were two kings presiding over the empire, a father and his son; and thus we can understand that Herodotus speaks of the father who escaped, while Daniel speaks of the son, who was slain.

This unsuspected fact not only reconciles the prophet and the historian, but explains an otherwise inexplicable expression in Daniel, where it was promised to the prophet by Belshazzar that if he could explain the handwriting on the wall, he would make him the third ruler in the kingdom. Dan. v. 16. Now, why not the second ruler, as Joseph in similar circumstances had been made in Egypt? The cylinder answers the question; there were two kings in Babylon, and therefore the place next to the throne could be only the third rulership in the kingdom.

A very short time before the discovery which so triumphantly reconciles the seeming contradiction, which casts a shade of suspicion on Daniel's accuracy, Mr. F. W. Newman had written these words in Kitto's Cyclopedia: "No hypothesis will reconcile this account with the other;" an instructive lesson this, teaching us to give the sacred writers credit for accuracy, even though we may be unable to explain facts which seem to impeach it.—Church Herald.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN WORK.

All christians claim that work is necessary. Laziness is condemned by the word of God. People are commanded to be diligent in business. The christian's work is admitted to be the most important of any, yet but few are willing to engage in it; and fewer still, after they profess to engage in it, are found ready to work faithfully at this business.

Lazy professors of christianity are numerous in the world to-day. "Nothing to do" seems to be the plea of thousands. What is the trouble? Is there no work to be done? Has God called men and women into his vineyard with nothing for them to do? One would suppose this to be true, judging from many of those who profess to be in the vineyard; but it is not so. God has work enough for all, and he who claims to be in the vineyard of the Lord and finds nothing to do, you may know to be lazy; for any eye looking out on this world of suffering humanity cannot fail to see something to do, if there is a disposition to see it.

A lazy person is very likely to not let work attract his attention much. He sits down at his ease to enjoy himself in the very midst of work which is suffering to be done. You find a lazy housewife; she can sit down in the dirt, surrounded by unmade beds, unwashed dishes, and unswept floors, and be perfectly at ease; "nothing to do"; while one who is a "worker" could not rest one moment until matters were adjusted properly.

So it is with many who profess to be christians. They seem supinely easy when there is an abundance of work all around which should be done.

The gospel ought to be preached, but they can do nothing to help about the matter. Money must be had to aid in this work, but their eyes are closed to the fact. In their easy laziness they can "smoke" (!) out enough perhaps in a little while to do a large amount of good in helping the cause.

There are poor around them who are suffering for life's necessaries. There are ministers preaching the gospel who with their families are suffering with hunger and cold, while they are striving to preach salvation, to get people ready for eternal life, sacrificing almost every social comfort for the sake of engaging in this work of saving men; so faithfully devoting their time to the work, that they have but little for manual labor. But these easy, lazy christians (?) must seek their own worldly comfort first, and when that is secured they forget the wants of others, for their laziness is of a selfish character. People who do not love work are usually selfish.

Here we are, down close to the judgment; fields are white, all ready for the harvest, and faithful laborers so few that the cause is languishing for want of them. People are perishing for the want of salvation, eager to hear the truths with reference to the times in which we live. But there are so many lazy professors who claim even in their laziness to be at work, that our hearts are made sad as we listen to the cries of those in distress, as they say, Come and help us, and see so few ready to go to their assistance.

There are places even in this enlightened, boasting New England, where the gospel is scarcely ever preached, and where the truths of Jesus' coming soon have never been heard. What is the reason that these places are neglected? It is simply because there are so many lazy ones who are unwilling to work.

Ministers are frequently as guilty on this point as others. How sad the thought that even those, professing to be watchmen on the walls of Zion, and true watchmen, who claim to stand where they can see where we are living, and what is coming upon the earth, and yet too lazy and selfish to make an effort to warn the people. How many there are to-day who love ease and comfort so well, that they will seek that rather than the good of the cause; and if they work at all, do it where it can be done the easiest, bring the most pay, and make them the most popular.

It is true of lazy persons, if they ever do work any, they want to get as much or a little more, if possible, than any one else; and all the way you can prevail upon them to work, is to offer them big pay. Though this may seem a little hard, yet we fear that such motives are sometimes the only things which prompt men to preach. The proof of it is here: we see them, instead of seeking the lost and destitute, loving to go where meetings are already established, and where they can be sure of receiving the most money; and when asked to visit some new place, where people are poor and the prospect of getting much looks discouraging, they refuse to go, saying, "We cannot afford to go; doors are open to us where we can get more pay." Such things are common at the present time.

Even among the people who are looking for the Lord to come soon, and have been known before the world as a class of people opposed to ministers stipulating for money and preaching for salaries; right at home among us, are men who, if they do not stipulate and say, "I will not preach unless you will give me so much money," are very sure to go where they will get about so much. So we find them sticking to large flourishing churches, following each other round in succession, while the suffering, perishing ones, perhaps not more than ten miles off, are crying and praying for help. God pity such ministers who, for the love of ease and money, will neglect the destitute and poor.

God wants men and women to preach his word who are willing to take him for paymaster, and go forth, being willing to work with their hands, if need be, that they may reach the destitute and get prepared to meet the Lord. The poor need to hear the gospel preached as well as the rich, and if we preach a free gospel it belongs to the poor, with others.

Who, then, is willing to engage in this important work in these last moments of time, and trust in the Lord to take care of them? Thank God, there are a few, and we pray that the number may increase. "Go work in my vineyard, and what is right I will give thee."

God help us all to arouse ourselves, and enter more heartily into the work than ever before; that at the harvest we may come rejoicing, bringing our sheaves with us.

M. MCKINNEY.

[illegible], N. H., Nov. 16th.

For the World's Crisis.

MURDER.

Yes, cruel murder; and the perpetrator one that professes to be a christian; goes to meeting; talks about serving God; advocates many truths; has many good ideas and principles, and is hoping and expecting, even, to be gathered with the wheat in the great harvest day. But, oh! sad mistake; "For no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." But who is it that has been committing murder? inquires the reader. I am sure I have not. Well, perhaps not; but I fear there are more murders among us than we are aware of; for John says whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer. But perhaps some argue in this way. Such and such an one is not my brother or my sister. I know they profess to be good, but I don't like them. Well, possibly the reason may be the same that made Cain slay his brother; because his own works were evil and his brother's righteous; or they may be laboring under some infirmity of the flesh that we are ignorant of, or have not yet got so far advanced in the light as we have, to know right from wrong; or, perchance, when they have trespassed against us, we have not gone to them alone, and told them their fault, but have kept it in our own breast working like leaven, until it has ripened into a chronic hate; and we, not considering the wrong we do them ourselves, suffer it to remain there, thinking that if we do not carry it to our neighbors, we are all right.

Now Christ commanded his children to love one another; and only a few hours before he was crucified prayed that they might be one as he and his Father are one. Now if we have this Scripture charity, and another whom Christ pinned up in the same bundle with us, and from whom we have a right to expect this same charity, but in its place we find hatred, can we find any better term to express it than the one the apostle has made use of—murder? The stronger the tie, the more emphatic the name. Dying by inches it has many times literally proved, especially when coupled with family connection. But it does more; kills spiritually; it throws a stumbling-block in the way of those that would go in, so that we neither go in ourselves and those that would go in we hinder. We are sometimes inclined to consider some things as little sins; but who can tell how large the ball will be before it stops rolling? But supposing the one you or I hate should prove to be a real hypocrite; do we gain anything from the word of the Lord to approve of it? Nay, verily; for although we must hate and abhor all sin, yet nowhere are we permitted to hate the sinner. His condition should call forth our pity, our patience and forbearance. LAURA ANN WHEELER.

Plainfield, Mass.

Correspondence.

From Sr. L. M. Stoddard.

Brethren and sisters in the Lord:—I feel to thank God this day, as did Hezekiah of old, that I am alive, that God has prolonged my days, and that I am not in the grave where "the dead praise not the Lord as I do this day."

Nearly five weeks I have been confined at home by sickness, and at times almost felt the "chilly waters" nearly overwhelming me: yet by the goodness of God I am recovering, and hope soon to be in the field sounding the notes of alarm to a perishing world. I never saw the work so great and the laborers so few as now; infidelity coming in like a flood, and so few to lift the standard of truth. God bless the faithful watchmen, and the Ruths who are gleaning after, trying to pick up some heads of wheat, is my prayer.

War clouds are gathering in Europe and in various parts of the world; and shall we who profess to be looking for Jesus at the door be stupid, and regardless of the words of Christ to "take heed to yourselves," etc.? Shall we, who hold the same position to this generation as did Noah to the antediluvian world, be engaged in building houses and putting money where it cannot be easily got if the Master calls for it, and people around are "perishing for lack of knowledge," when they might be reached perhaps with a tract?

God is wonderfully blessing the distribution of tracts, but I am pained to see how little comes into the Tract Fund. Many a person will read a tract who would not go to hear the truth because of prejudice. And many a dear Bro. or sister feel they can do nothing in the vineyard of the Lord because they think they have no talent. But you can all be distributors of tracts, and scatter the precious seed, which may result in more good than what a preacher could say.

May the Lord enable us all to find our place in this great work of these last perilous days, for when Jesus comes he will say to the faithful servant, "Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," "because thou hast been faithful over a few things,"

Many thanks to kind friends who have blessed me with letters of comfort and consolation on my bed of pain. Many thanks for the many prayers which have ascended in my behalf. I believe God has answered them. I am not sufficiently strong to speak yet in public, but shall answer the calls that come to me as soon as prudent.

Continue to pray for me in my weakness of body. I feel strong in faith, giving glory to God, and rejoicing in hope of eternal life. Yours in the patient waiting for Christ,

Worcester, Nov. 12. L. M. STODDARD.

BRO. W. F. GAUSON writes:—"Bro. H. Gregory and others proposed to have a tent meeting here in New Milford, and wrote to Bro. A. D. Flagg to attend, which he did, commencing the latter part of August. The Lord was there, and that to bless. The interest seemed to increase until they moved the tent to Zanesville over the following Sunday; but they came back the following week, and almost every night some rose for prayers. The meetings lasted two weeks.

Bro. A. D. Flagg comes here every two weeks, and the Lord is continuing to bless his labors. He has buried with Christ in baptism twenty-five happy souls, who one year ago were going down the broad road to ruin, but to-day are rejoicing in the blessed hope of a coming Messiah. As this is a new church, we desire an interest in the prayers of the brethren and sisters."

BRO. W. CHURCHILL writes:—"Eld. P. W. Hough has been preaching in our school-house for two weeks with good success. He preaches the gospel of the kingdom, and we are truly thankful that the good Lord put it in his heart to come and break the bread of life to us. The truth was well received by most that heard it, and six were baptized. We have arranged so as to have the Elder with us every fourth Lord's day for one year."

☞ The Pope lately described himself to a friend as the "old man who sits in his corner in the Vatican and sees the world tremble."

Obituaries.

HODGDON. Died, in Great Falls, N. H., Nov. 1st, 1869, Isaac N. Hodgdon, only son of John C. and Melinda Hodgdon, aged seventeen years, eleven months, nineteen days.

May the Lord bless and sustain the afflicted father and mother, who for the first time have been visited by the last enemy of man, whom Christ died to destroy, and will when he comes. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, from 1 Thess. 4: 18. J. PINKHAM.

COOLBROOTH. Died, in West Scarborough, Me., Sept. 9th, 1869, Joseph Coolbrooth, aged forty-five years.

Bro. Coolbrooth was converted a number of years ago, and has been a bright and shining light in the world ever since. Amid all the darkness and false doctrines of these last days, he has stood for the true faith once delivered to the saints. In all his sickness he was calm, possessing the blessed assurance that if he fell asleep, he should awake in the morning of the first resurrection.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, from Job 14: 12. J. L. CHUTE.

DARBEE. Died October 25th, my wife, in the ninety-fourth year of her age.

At the age of twenty-four Sister Darbee experienced a change of heart and joined the Free Baptist church in Buffalo, and since then has been a member of that church. About three years ago she was attacked with a cancer, which kept her lingering in great suffering until she died. While on her sick bed she got hold of the Crisis, and it was a source of great comfort to her.

Sermon at her funeral was preached from 2 Cor. 5: 1, (her selection), by Bro. Curry, of the Free Methodist church, in the absence of her pastor. L.

LOCHART. Died, at the close of July, in Philadelphia, Frank B. Lochart, aged two years.

He was the much loved son of Geo. and Sarah Lochart, disciples of Jesus, who have been called again and again to lay their little ones in the dust. The Spirit of the Lord sustains them in their sore afflictions, and the prospect of the speedy return of the Shepherd assures them that soon he will gather the little lambs to his bosom. Funeral services conducted by the writer. F. H. BURBANK.

HOLMES. Died, in Tolland, Oct. 22d, 1869, of lung and typhoid fever, Phineas C. Holmes, aged fifty-five years.

He leaves a wife and daughter to mourn the loss of an affectionate husband and parent, and also a brother and sister. The funeral sermon by A. Moss, at Square Pond. H. B. DUNLAP.

HOLMES. Died, in Stafford, Oct. 26th, 1869, of paralysis, Lemuel Holmes, father of the above, aged seventy-nine years.

He leaves a wife, and son and daughter. Funeral sermon by I. B. Potter, at the house of the writer. H. B. DUNLAP.

Married.

In this city, 17th inst., by Rev. E. Edmunds, Mr. LORENZO D. BERRY, of Portsmouth, N. H., and Miss EMMA M. MACE, of Boston.

By Eld. P. W. Hough, Oct. 24th, 1869, at a public meeting in Brunswick, Eau Clair Co., Wis., Mr. SAMUEL C. CONVERSE and Miss HELEN M. CHURCHILL, both of Brunswick.

At Fredonia, N. Y., Nov. 8th, 1869, by Eld. C. W. Low, Mr. MILO STRONG, of Darien, Genesee Co., N. Y., and Miss LEPHA A. CRAWFORD, of Alexander, N. Y.

At North Dana, 10th ult., by Eld. Geo. A. Streeter, SANFORD WEAVER, and LIZZIE A., adopted daughter of Mrs. Luther Sage, of Springfield, Mass.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 12. A project for a treaty of alliance, offensive and defensive, between France, Austria and Russia, has been submitted by Prince Gortschakoff to Fleury, the French Minister, and sent by the latter to Napoleon. The duration of the alliance is to be three years, and it is to be renewed upon six months' notice. Each party is to keep a certain standing army.

LONDON, Nov. 16. The Pope has written a letter to Archbishop Manning, in which it is stated that, although Protestants are excluded from the Ecumenical Council, facilities will be offered outside for making explanations.

According to a new arrangement the Government will dispatch the steamer Monarch from Portsmouth, on Friday, the 26th inst., with the remains of the late George Peabody. The Monarch will remain at Spithead for a few days, until she is joined by the American squadron, when they will sail for America in company. It is likely that several French war ships will also join the fleet.

PARIS, Nov. 16. The Emperor gave an audience to Baron Werther, the newly appointed Ambassador from Prussia, at Compigne yesterday. Much good feeling was manifested. M. Werther, in presenting his credentials assured the Emperor that the Prussian Government desired to preserve the present amicable relations with France. Napoleon replied at considerable length, concluding by saying that he much wished the development of a good understanding between Prussia and the German Confederation on the one part and France on the other.

The journals publish a communication from Ledru Rollin, in which he withdraws as a candidate for the Corps Legislatif, assigning as his reason for this step that he does not desire to cause a division in the Liberal party.

Nov. 19. M. Baucel, one of the Deputies who signed the recent opposition manifesto, has written a letter explaining that that document is but a minimum programme of the policy of the party whose labors will not cease until on the ruins of the personal government they establish the Republic.

MADRID, Nov. 17. Five steamers have sailed for Havana since Sunday, carrying from three to four thousand volunteers well armed and equipped.

VIENNA, Nov. 18. The Presse asserts that when the celebration of the opening of Suez Canal is terminated, the Sublime Porte will send another ultimatum to the Viceroy of Egypt, ordering him to accept the Turkish proposals without conditions, or to consider himself suspended from the Viceroyalty.

PORT SAID, Nov. 17, via ALEXANDRIA, Nov. 17. To-day was devoted to religious ceremonies in connection with the opening of the canal. The solemn blessing of the canal was given by Pere Baur, the almoner of the Empress Eugenie. He preached a sermon, in which he congratulated the world on the success of this grand enterprise, and thanked the Khedive, who, he said, immortalized his name and reign by his co-operation in one of the greatest undertakings of modern times. He dwelt in terms of lively gratification on the liberty of worship which had been granted to Christians, thanked the Empress for the sympathy she had shown, and M. De Lessups for the exertions he had made to bring the work to completion. He also returned thanks to all the illustrious personages who had honored this occasion with their presence. The Emperor of Austria, the Empress Eugenie, the Viceroy of Egypt, the Princes of Prussia and Holland, and many foreign Envoys assisted at the ceremonies, and the multitude of spectators was immense. The greatest enthusiasm was manifested.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Nov. 16. The festivities preliminary to the inauguration of the Suez Canal commenced at Port Said yesterday. The Emperor of Austria landed at noon, and was received by the Khedive with great ceremony and a magnificent civic and military display. The houses were decorated, arches were raised over the principal streets, and hundreds of flags were flying. Salutes were exchanged between the street and the shore. At night the town and harbor were ablaze with fire-works, and illuminated. The heavens were as bright as day, all the house-tops being covered with lighted torches. The rigging of the men-of-war and shipping in the harbor was hung with lanterns of every color, and showers of rockets were rising and falling. The Khedive gave a grand ball on board of his yacht, which was a superb affair. It was attended by the Emperor Francis Joseph and all the distinguished guests now assembled at Port Said. The ball lasted until an early hour in the morning.

To-day the Empress Eugenie arrived, and was received by the Viceroy and Austrian Emperor, and landed amid the thundering of cannon and the acclamations of the multitude which lined the shore. Among the events of to-day was the dedication of a Christian church and of a Mahommedan mosque. Priests and ministers of all creeds were invited to be present on both occasions.

ISMALIA, Nov. 18. Thirty-four steamers have arrived here and others are expected. At the shallowest point between Ismalia and Port Said the water in the canal is nineteen feet deep and the depth is generally twenty-five to thirty feet along the whole line. The festivities here are continued with magnificence and enthusiasm. An immense crowd of visitors from all parts of the world are here. The number of guests who have been specially invited by the Khedive will exceed three thousand Europeans and twenty-five thousand Orientals. The expenditure of money is unlimited. The entire fleet will start for Suez to-morrow.

DOMESTIC.

THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL.—The date of the grand Papal Council at Rome is not yet fixed upon, but the Holy College is expected to choose the 8th of December, the anniversary of the Immaculate Conception, to give more eclat to the affair. The first day will be devoted entirely to the ceremonies of mass, a sermon, and the communion of the prelates—all of them receiving the sacrament from the Pope's hands. The number of prelates expected to take part in the Council has been singularly exaggerated. The exact number of the Episcopal seats of the Roman Catholic Church is to-day 1009, of which 140 are actually vacant. A great number of bishops, whose great age prevents them from making long journeys, have been relieved from the task of going to Rome. Only about eight hundred in all are expected at the Vatican. All the princes of the church, without distinction, are the invited guests of the Pope while the Council lasts. But most of them, remembering the meagre state of the Holy Father's pocket, will stop at the hotels or in the palaces of the Cardinals living in the Eternal City.

RAISING OF A BRITISH MAN-OF-WAR.—Curious Relics of 1777. From the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin we learn of a successful effort to raise the hull of the British 64-gun ship Augusta, sunk in the Delaware river, about a mile and a half below Fort Mifflin in the year 1777. The ship was one of his Royal Highness King George's fleet, and was blown up, the concussion driving one of her sides out. After surmounting many difficulties, the parties to the enterprise succeeded on Friday last in bringing the old craft to the surface and towing her hull into Gloucester. An intense excitement was created along the river and among the Jersey folks, who were anxious to see the vessel they had read of and heard so much about. Among the relics already secured are two heavy cannon bearing the British coat-of-arms; a wonderful looking silver watch, small in size, and almost round in shape; a silver spoon, on which is engraved "H. W., 1748;" a piece of metal four inches long and an inch wide, on which is engraved the Lord's prayer, and appended to which is the name of David Pyett, 1774. A number of British guineas of the date of 1765, very perfect, have also been recovered. Battle axes, cutlasses, guns, pistols, and all of the paraphernalia of a man-of-war are visible, and much of it will be saved. The timbers of the ship are in a good state of preservation, and a novel feature of her construction is that she was put together by trunnels, no bolts being used.

THE MORMONS—A NEW REVELATION.—The shrewd Mormon Prophet has had a new revelation, it is reported, bidding him to collect together the faithful, with their goods and chattels, their harems and their children, and to shake the dust of Utah from their feet, and journey to the Sandwich Islands for a new abiding place. It is evident that the system of Brighamy cannot long withstand the pressure of the "Gentiles." Brigham said, not long ago, that "it must be a d—d poor religion which will not stand one railroad," and so it is; but the effect of the Pacific Railroad on Mormondom, already observable, shows that Brigham's religion is of the character mentioned. If he has had a revelation, telling him in the forcible language of the Pacific slope to "get," we venture to say that it is the best one he ever had. The Mormons might find a permanent resting place and a pleasant one in the beautiful islands of the Pacific. They would make them "blossom as the rose," and there would be no travelling Congressmen or interviewing reporters to disturb their devotions. They have shown wonderful results of thorough organization and discipline under one master mind, and Salt Lake is probably the best governed municipality of its population in the country; but polygamy does not belong to our place and time in the world, and the whole system is as much opposed to the popular government as any despotism in the Old World. It must be wiped out. How to do it may become a question of vital importance; but a voluntary hegira to the Sandwich Islands would be a peaceable, and welcome solution.—Boston Herald.

HOW A RAILROAD KING TRAVELS.—Mr. Torrence, Vice President of the New York Central Railroad, keeps for his own use, and constantly ready, an elegantly fitted up locomotive, the seats of which are on steel springs and richly upholstered, while every appliance is visible to keep out sparks and dust. It is in charge of a first-class engineer, whose only business is to run his machine wherever and whenever the Vice President wishes him to. Should Mr. Torrence (who resides in New York city) consider that his presence is important in Buffalo, the engineer is ordered to fire up, the telegraph conveys the intelligence that Torrence is on the road, and away goes the horse through towns and villages like a streak of lightning, resting not till the destination is reached. Business finished, the return is made, the horse is put in the stable, and not taken out again till the Vice President issues the order for another ride.

SOLAR DISCOVERY.—By means of the spectroscope, which has of late years unlocked a number of mysteries in the solar system, Mr. Lockyer, an English observer, has discovered that the red protuberances seen on the sun are local accumulations of a gaseous envelope, which completely surrounds the sun. He finds this to be marvelously regular in its contour, and to have a thickness of about five thousand miles. To this envelope he has given the name of the sun's chromosphere. It lies immediately contiguous to the bright surface of the sun. It consists chiefly of hydrogen; while the protuberances that break up the continuity of its outline are vast masses of incandescent hydrogen and other vapors, ejected from time to time from the luminous mass of the sun into the chromosphere.

A CURIOUS PILGRIMAGE.—Among the attractions of the Suez Canal excursion, the most curious one is that offered by the Viceroy and suggested by him alone. An excursion to the Elephantine Island, where stands the ancient Nilometer, built many centuries before Christ's birth, is proposed. The Nilometer has not been visited before since 1799. It consists of some gigantic calcareous blocks on the shores of the river, near the tropic of Cancer. The ancient Egyptians built it to mark the rise and fall of the Nile, and to know when to avert an inundation. The island on which it stands is uninhabited; but, strange to say, is almost a paradise, glorious with tropic beauty. A French company propose to take along two balloons, the prospectus of the company saying, with the usual national wit: "The forty centuries have looked down upon us long enough; let us mount into the sky and contemplate them." This same company will take people on ballooning expeditions above the Pyramids, thus saving the troublesome ascent and the cry for "backsheesh."

THE SUEZ CANAL.—It is a great enterprise in all respects, though it makes a small show on the map. The canal is only one hundred miles in length, uniting points which are but seventy miles apart in an air line. The width of the canal on the surface of the water varies from 190 feet to 492—which is not much like the popular idea of a canal in this country, where uniformity of width is the rule. The depth of water is to be nowhere less than twenty six feet, nor more than thirty-three feet. The width of the bottom of the channel varies from 72 to 311 feet. It is calculated that the canal will be navigable for ships of three thousand tons, but none drawing over twenty-four feet will be admitted. There are no gates or locks. The one hundred miles of the route lies through almost all kinds of soil—solid rock, quicksands, marshes, salt lake basins, etc., and the difficulties of prosecuting the work of construction have been immense. It was begun on the 25th of April, 1859, and it has cost nearly $60,000,000 in gold. The canal is to remain the property of the company which constructed it for ninety-nine years. After that time it will pass into the hands of the Egyptian Government. The honor of the achievement belongs incontestably and preeminently to Ferdinand de Lesseps.

A Plain President.

As to the management of his time, President Grant consults his own judgment, instead of his thousand and one advisers. As he traveled to suit himself in vacation, so he appears to have arranged his daily habits at Washington with a like independence. After a long morning walk by himself, he is ready to begin office work at nine o'clock, continuing till three. By four o'clock, at the latest, all visitors have retired and the White House is closed for the day. After dinner the President drives his family out, taking the reins himself; and, much as has been said of his fondness for horses, his equipage is among the most modest in Washington. In the evening, friends and acquaintances find the President in the parlors with his family. On the Sabbath the order and stillness of any private household reign throughout the Executive mansion. These are homely details to be sure; but they are quite unlike what has been witnessed at the residence of the nation's Chief Magistrate even within a short time. They have an immense influence, too, upon the manners and morals of the country; for though we trust that the toadying attention to court circles will never be known here, the social power of the Capital and of its great officials is necessarily extensive. Had Generals Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Thomas been arrogant, conceited and corrupt men, their bad influence upon the young would have been immeasurable. Particularly would this have been the case with respect to him who, in addition to the first military honors, has received the highest civil distinction in the gift of the people. As it is, these apprehensions are turned into grateful admiration as we contemplate the orderly and exemplary life of our President. Evidently the man's heart is in the right place, and his head is yet unaffected by the adulations of power, when he can say, as President Grant recently said to some Western friends, who asked him if he recollected a certain lady in St. Louis: "O, yes, I remember her well. She was a charming woman. The last time saw I her, I delivered her a load of wood."—Journal.

The Presbyterian Reunion.

The reunion of the two branches of a great religious denomination after a separation of over thirty years, is an event almost unparalleled in ecclesiastical history, and is certainly of marked significance. Such was the recent formal coming together again of the Old School and New School Presbyterians at Pittsburg. The parent denomination began to be convulsed, not so much on points of doctrine as on the strict or liberal methods of interpreting and applying those points, in 1837, and the difference culminated in open separation in the following year. So decided was the disagreement, overpowering all the ties and reasons of inherited union, that it was then thought that the division must be permanent. Since then, however, a new generation has arisen, and we would fain hope that a new era has dawned in which the tendencies to brotherhood and Christian union are felt as they never were before. While the world of evil demands the joint efforts of those who would reform it, while the Roman Catholic Church, though spread through all lands, is yet marching with a united front and locked step, it becomes the component parts of the Protestant Church to consider why they should not draw closer together and cultivate the invincible strength of perfect union.

This action of the Presbyterian Church is instructive as an example for general imitation, in its spirit at least. The two recent branches do not renounce their right of belief in their respective doctrines. They rather affect their union upon the basis that "the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments shall be acknowledged to be the inspired Word of God, and the only infallible rule of faith and practice; the confession of faith shall be continued to be received and adopted, as containing the system of doctrine taught in the Holy Scriptures." In order, also, to guard against needless and irritating references to the old cause of division, constant endeavor shall be made "to conform to the practices in relation to the usages of the church, as far as consistent with convictions of duty to the general customs of the church prior to the controversies which resulted in separation." It will be obvious, therefore, that both sides have yielded something to gain the common end. The "strict constructionists," as would be said in politics, have agreed not to enforce their extreme views in others, while the liberals are content to limit their aspirations to the old forms and usages. There is no doubt that the increased wisdom of both sides, the more humane and affectionate spirit, will soon merge all traces of division in a common purpose and unity, to the great edification and efficiency of the entire Presbyterian body.—Journal.

Passing Events.

☞ A geographical discovery, which will rather astonish map publishers, has been made in the country north of Lake Superior, by a party under Prof. Bell, which was recently engaged in a geographical survey of that region. Lake Neepigon, lying only 30 miles north of Lake Superior, hitherto considered too insignificant to find a place in the American atlases, is announced by the Professor to be larger than Lakes Ontario or Erie.

☞ A Jewish rabbi from Jerusalem is now in Washington, for the purpose of consulting with the President with reference to the affairs of the American Colony at Jaffa. He will ask the President to use his influence toward securing the appointment and confirmation of a Consular Agent or some other officer who will see that the rights of the colonists are not infringed.

☞ Since stays have gone out in Paris, we are told that the mortality among the women and girls there has decreased 18 per cent. As a counterpoise to this it is added that the use of chignons has increased brain fever seventy-two and three-fourths per cent.

☞ The Grand Master of Freemasons in France has summoned a general convention of the Masons of Europe, at Paris, on the 8th of December, in opposition to the Ecumenical Council.

☞ A Roman Catholic priest in Bolivia, having become a Mason, has been excommunicated by his Bishop, who has ordered him to be imprisoned "until he should abjure Masonry and fulfill the penance imposed upon him."

☞ There was an extraordinary high tide in the Thames on the 3d inst. The water rose three feet three inches above high water mark at London, and and along the banks all the way from London to Greenwich great inconvenience and much damage was caused by the overflow.

☞ The Paris correspondent of the London Times, writes that the Emperor continues well, and goes out shooting. His Majesty is thinner than he was, and his complexion may have a yellower tint than before his illness, but in both mind and body he appears more active and vigorous.

☞ Sportsmen in Europe predict a severe winter because the woodcock have arrived in their haunts usually frequented only in November—a fortnight before time.

☞ Steamers drawing fifteen feet can navigate the canal from Port Said to Suez with ease, in fifteen hours. The water does not wash away the bank as much as was apprehended. The complete success of the work exceeds all expectations.

☞ Pere Hyacinthe's secular name is Charles Loyson. He is forty-two years old.

☞ Father Hyacinthe arrived in this city last evening (19th) from New Haven, and is the guest of Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, at his residence in Brookline.

☞ The Universalists in the United States have 792 societies and 588 ministers, connected with 82 associations.

☞ St. Petersburg was lately threatened with total inundation, and the inhabitants deserted the place.

Notices.

Notice.

In view of the lack of deep piety in the church, and a proper interest in the soon coming of Jesus to redeem his people and give them their Eden home, we, the undersigned, call for a general, free, and old-fashioned Conference, to be held in Richmond Village, Me., to commence Dec. 22d, at seven P. M., and continue over Lord's day. This conference is intended to benefit ministers and members; in which ministers will relate their call into the ministry, and members their experience in the proclamation of the Advent near; and to labor for the salvation of sinners and the piety of the church.

ISRAEL DAMMAN.
A. H. WALKER.
B. EMERY.

Protracted Meeting.

Meetings in Charlestown, Main Street, No. 404, Winthrop Hall, will commence Monday evening, Nov. 22d, at seven P. M., and hold every evening through the week. Our meetings last week were very interesting. Quite a number have started to seek the Lord. We heartily and cordially invite the brethren of Boston, and Chelsea, and vicinity, to come and help us. Come with your hearts warmed up with the love of God, and help us in this glorious work.

E. COTTON.
S. C. HANCOCK.

Notice.

The Lord willing, Sr. E. S. Jennings will commence a series of meetings in Knowlesville, N. Y., Nov. 24th, intended as a protracted effort, to continue as long as the Lord directs. Will the friends of Jesus pray that this whole village may be shaken by the mighty power of God; that sinners may be converted; and that this church-going community may know that there is a power as well as a form of godliness? P. THURTLE, Sec.

Protracted Meeting.

A protracted meeting will commence at Warren, Vt., Wednesday evening, Nov. 24th, and continue evenings through the week and over the Sabbath following, and as much longer as the interest may demand. The Lord bless the effort.

J. A. CLEAVELAND.

Dedication.

The new Advent Chapel just completed in Woodstock Valley, Ct., will be dedicated Thursday, Nov. 25th, at two o'clock P. M. Elders H. L. Hastings, H. F. Carpenter, P. S. Butler, A. Morse, and others, are expected to be present. Meetings will continue evenings through the week and over the Sabbath, and longer, if thought best.

For the church, I. B. POTTER.

Notice.

Brethren and sisters of like precious faith, greeting: As I have been made the custodian of the Philadelphia Tent, which has been dedicated to the service of God, as a house in which to proclaim the truth we so much love; I would say to all who want to do good through this channel, to begin at once to lay plans for a tent-meeting next season, in some central place. Talk this matter over with the friends around you, and pray for direction and the spirit of sacrifice, and write to me at your earliest convenience if you think it best to have a meeting of that kind at your place. Write as early as the 20th of March, so that I can make proper arrangements for equalizing the expenses. If there should be any who may want a meeting at their place, or some village near by, and yet not able to determine what is best under the circumstances, let them give us all the favorable and also all the unfavorable circumstances, and we will decide about the matter ourselves.

P. W. HOUGH, Clerk.

Discussion.

There will be a discussion held in the M. E. Church, at Antwerp, Paulding Co., Ohio, to commence Tuesday evening, Nov. 30th, and continue through the week.

QUESTION.—Resolved, That all men have a conscious existence after the death of the body, before its resurrection.

E. B. LOUDEN, Affirm.
J. WENDELL, Neg.

New Hampshire State Conference.

The sixteenth annual session of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire will convene in Concord, N. H., commencing Dec. 9th, and hold over the following Sunday. Particulars hereafter. A. W. SIBLEY, Sec.

Notice.

Where shall the Maine Ministerial Conference be held? Those brethren wishing the conference held with their church, or in their town or city, the second Tuesday in January, 1870, will please notify me at Topsham, or R. K. York, Portland, at once. C. GOUD, Pres.

Notice.

The next quarterly meeting with the church at Wilmot Settlement, Broom Co., N. Y., will be held Nov. 27th and 28th. Bro. and Sr. Hitchcock, of Kirkwood, N. Y., will be there to assist. All are invited to attend. For the brethren,

J. W. TAYLOR.

Notice.

Elder Wilson Morlatt will preach at Cohocton, (as T. C. Armstrong and others may appoint), Thursday evening, Nov. 25th, and over Sunday following, and thus fill my monthly appointment there at that time. C. F. SWEET.

Statistics Called For.

If any brother in any place within the bounds of the A. C. Conf. of the State of Conn., will furnish information, by letter or otherwise, as to date of commencement of Advent meetings, numbers in fellowship, means, expenditures, places of worship, etc., he will confer a favor. For this purpose, please address Elder A. H. Steele, 20 Franklin Street, New Haven, Ct.; B. Hitchcock, same No.; or, up to Nov. 13th, W. S. Campbell, 354 Pearl Street, New York City.

To the Churches in Connecticut.

Having been elected to the office of President of Conference, I would be happy to learn the wants of churches within this jurisdiction, and to this end would be glad to hear from the brethren and sisters. H. H. DICKINSON.

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 1869.

Protracted Meeting.

There will be a protracted meeting in Bradford, N. H., at the Bush meeting-house, commencing Thursday. Dec. 2nd. Bro. D. W. Davis and others will be there. Come one, come all, and work for the Lord. M. E. HAWLETT.

Notice.

☞ LOST, on the camp-ground at Springfield, a sledge that I borrowed for the use of the ground. It might have been packed up with some of the large tents' baggage, as they used it often. If so, please inform me. H. MUNGER.

An Admonition to Christian Churches on Church Festivals, Fairs, etc.

BY I. K. LOMBARD.

A new edition, with additions and improvements. About twelve thousand of the above sheet have been scattered, and they are doing a practical service against these growing evils in the churcher of our land. The picture of their proceedings is so faithfully drawn, that the guilty on reading it have several times furiously protested to those who offered them that it was written on purpose for them, with a full knowledge of the facts in their case. Price, posdpaid, 15 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

For sale at this office, or by I. K. Lombard, South Windham, Maine.

Brighton Cattle Market.

Reported for the World's Crisis by GEO. J. FOX, for the week ending Nov. 18th, 1869.

Amount of Live Stock at Market.

	Cattle.	Sheep and Lambs.	Swine.
This week	1,763	1,732	700
Last week	1,787	919	1,875

Prices of Market Beef.

Extra, $12.00@12.50; first quality, $11.00@11.75; second quality, $10.00@10.75; third quality, $7.00@9.50.

Prices of Store Cattle.

Working Oxen, per pair, from $150@200 to $@250 300; Milch Cows and Calves, from $35, 50, 65, 75, to 100-115; Yearlings, $15 to 25; two years old, $26 to 38; three years old, $40 to 62; Western Fat Swine, live, $10½ to 11 cts. per lb; Dressed, 12½ to 13 cts. per lb; Store Hogs, Wholesale, 10½ to 11 cts. per lb; Retail, 11 to 14 cts. per lb. Columbia Co., N. Y., Spring Pigs, 12 to 15 cts. per lb.

Prices of Sheep and Lambs.

In lots, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $0.00 each; Extra, $3.50@4.25, or from 3 to 6½ cts. per lb; Spring Lambs, $2.75 to 4.50.

Prices of Hides, Tallow and Skins.

Brighton Hides, 9 to 00 cts. per lb; Tallow, 7@00 cts. per lb; Country Hides, 8½ to 00 cts. per lb; Tallow, 7 to 00 cts. per lb; Pelts, 75 cts. to $1.00 each. Calf Skins, 20 cts. per lb.

REMARKS. Cattle.—The supply from Albany was larger than expected. At the close of market cattle changed hands at reduced figures. The bulk of the stock was sold at last week's quotations. The demand for good beeves has been decently fair. There were some few choice steers brought in by W. H. Munroe, commissioned to J. W. Taylor, of Brighton. Twelve Ohio cattle averaged, live, 1904 lbs.; and it was estimated that they would cost $13.75 per cwt. Twenty-nine Kentucky steers averaged 1578 lbs.; estimated to cost $13.25 per cwt., d. w.; and one four-year-old steer weighed 2530 lbs.

Sheep and Lambs.—Receipts, 1732. These were turned into the hands of Brighton butchers on commission.

Boston Markets.

Wholesale Prices.

BOSTON, Monday evening, Nov. 22nd, 1869.

Gold.—$1.26½.

Flour.—Superfine, from $5.25@$5.75; Extra, from $5.75@$6.75; Michigan, $7.00@$8.50. St. Louis, from $8.00@$10.00.

Corn.—Mixed, $1.11@$1.13; Yellow, $1.15@$1.20. Oats, 65@75 cts. Old Rye, $1.25@$1.30.

Seeds.—Timothy Herds Grass, $4.75@0.00; Red Top, $3.50 to $4.25 per sack; R. I. Bent, $2.50 to $3.00 per bush.; Clover per lb., 14 to 15c.

Apples.—Per bbl., $4 00@4.50. Onions, $4.50@4.75 per bbl.

Pork.—$36@$37. Lard, 18½@19c. Hams, 18 cts.

Butter.—36@37c. Cheese, Factory, 16 to 18½c. Dairy, 15 to 18c.

Beans.—Extra Pea, $3.50@$3.75; Common, $2.50

Eggs.—38@39c. Dried Apples (southern), 8½ to 10c.

Hay, per ton, $17@$25; per cargo, $25@$29 per car-load. Potatoes, per bbl., $2.00@$2.25. Sweet potatoes, per bbl., $2.50@4.50. Marrow Squash, per cwt., $1.75. Hubbardston, $3.00.

Fresh Fruits, etc.—Pears, per bbl., $10.00@$18.00. Grapes (Western), 10@15 cts. per lb. Quinces, $6.00 @12.00 per bbl. Cranberries, $10.00@14.00 per bbl.

REMARKS.—Since Thanksgiving, the market for almost everything is quiet. But little movement in Flour the past week. Corn, Rye and Oats are quiet, without change. Seeds, nothing doing of any account. A fair demand for Apples. Pork will probably advance this week. Butter dull at quotations.

Cambridge Cattle Market.

Reported for the World's Crisis by GEO. J. FOX, for the week ending Nov. 23d, 1869.

Amount of Live Stock at Market.

	Cattle.	Sheep and Lambs.	Swine.
This week	1,040	2,862	3,700
Last week	700	5,597	3,243

Prices of Market Beef.

Extra, $12.00@12.75; first quality, $11.00@11.75; second quality, $9.50@10.75; third quality, $7.00@9.00.

Prices of Store Cattle.

Working Oxen, per pair, from $150@200 to $250@300; Milch Cows and Calves, from $35, $50, $64, $75, to $100@115; Yearlings, $15 to $25; Two years old, $27 to $38; Three years old, $40 to $62.

Prices of Sheep and Lambs.

In lots, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, to $3.00 each; Extra, $3.25 to $4.25, or from 3 to 6½ cts. per lb. Spring Lambs, $2.75 to $4.50.

Prices of Hides, Tallow, and Skins.

Hides, 8½ to 00 cts. per lb; Tallow, 7 to 00 cts. per lb. Pelts, 75 cts. to $1.00 each. Calf Skins, 20 cts. per lb.

REMARKS. Cattle.—The demand for good cattle has improved, and prices are a shade firmer. There are but few extra cattle at this market. Medium grade and common cattle are slow of sale, without any perceptible change in prices from last week.

Sheep and Lambs.—There is a call for sheep; and with nearly 10,000 head, they changed hands with fair promptness at last quotations.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

BOSTON, SOUTH END, (Minot Hall), corner of Washington and Springfield Streets.) Meetings at 10½ A. M. and 3 and 7½ P. M.

J. S. White........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Wm. H. Mitchell........Sunday, Dec. 12th
J. G. Smith........Sunday, Dec. 19th

EAST BOSTON.

Meetings are held at Chase's Block, up two flights, at 154 Meridian Street, on Sundays, at the usual hours, also Monday and Thursday evenings.

S. S. Brewer........Tuesday evening, Nov. 23d
" " ....Wednesday evening, Nov. 24th
" " ....Communion Thursday evening, Nov. 25th

CHELSEA, MASS., (LIBRARY HALL.)

S. S. Brewer........Sunday, Nov. 28th
C. Goodrich........Sunday, Dec. 5th
T. M. Preble........Sabbath, Dec. 12th
M. Batchelor........Sunday, Dec. 19th

CHARLESTOWN.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 33 Main Street), every Lord's day.

W. S. Campbell........Sunday, Nov. 28th

Ashland (Town Hall)........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Stoneham, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 19th
C. GOODRICH.

Brockport........Sunday, Nov. 28th
A. A. PHELPS.

Pownal Centre, Vt........evening, Nov. 26th and over Sunday, the 28th.
Brethren meet me at Depot, at two P. M. train from North Adams.
Scitico, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 5th
H. MUNGER.

Lynn, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 12th
Worcester, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 26th
M. BATCHELOR.

Fayville, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 5th
W. H. MITCHELL.

North Springfield, Vt........Sundays, Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th.
Plymouth, Vt........evenings, Dec. 9th and 10th
Bridgewater, Vt........Sundays, Dec. 12th and 19th and during the intervening week.
Rutland, Vt........Sunday, Dec. 26th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Holden, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass........Dec. 17th
Hartford, Ct........Dec. 19th and 26th
New Britain, Ct........Dec. 22d
Forestville, Ct........Dec. 23d
J. S. WHITE.

New Bedford........Sundays, Nov. 28th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Chicopee Falls, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 19th
GEO. A. STREETER.

Clinton, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 19th
Square Pond, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 26th
North Somers, Ct........Sunday, Jan. 2nd
A. SIMPSON.

Holden, Mass........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
Worcester, Mass........Sabbath, Dec. 5th
T. M. PREBLE.

Wakefield, Mass........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
Stoneham, Mass........Sabbath, Dec. 12th
B. FINNEY.

South Sutton, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 28th
C. H. FLETCHER.

Barnstead, N. H., (Clark Corner)........Nov. 28th
Elliott, Me........Dec. 5th and 12th
JOHN PARSONS.

Chichester, N. H., (Pine Ground)........evening, Dec. 4th and over Sunday, Dec. 5th. N. B. MCMURPHY.

Milford, N. H., (Daniel's Block)...evening, Nov. 26th
Nashua, (Isaac Chapman's), Sunday, Nov. 28th, at 11.45 A. M. and two P. M.
At S. W. Cole's at six o'clock. JOHN H. DADMUN.

Clinton, Mass........evening, Dec. 1st
Manchester, N. H........evening, Dec. 3d
Suncook, N. H........Sunday, Dec. 5th
Z. FORD.

Strafford, N. H., (Robert's school-house)....Nov. 28th
Barnstead, (Clark meeting-house)........Dec. 5th
J. T. LIBBY, C. H. WILLEY.

Manchester, N. H........Sunday, Dec. 12th
Fairhaven, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 19th
L. BOUTELL.

Seabrook, N. H........Sundays, Dec. 19th and 26th
E. S. MOULTON.

Epsom, New Rye, (where Bro. Jesse Smith may appoint), Sunday, Nov. 28th.
Allentown, (school-house near Bro. Haynes'), Saturday evening, Nov. 27th.
Chichester, (Pine Ground)........Sunday, Dec. 5th
Epsom, (Marden Corner)..Saturday evening, Dec. 4th
L. E. SAULPAUGH.

Richmond Village, Me., Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 26th and 27th, and Sabbaths Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th.
West Waterville, Me., Saturday evening, Dec. 11th, and Sabbath, Dec. 12th, and as much longer as the interest demands. ALLEN DAMON.

Red House, Catt. Co., N. Y., (as Bro. Deyo may arrange), Nov. 24th, 25th, 26th, and 27th.
Springfield, Mass., (as Bro. Bliss may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 5th.
Brimfield, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 12th
Charlton, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 19th
Three miles north of Warren's Corner, Niagara Co., N. Y., (as Bro. Adriance may arrange), Dec. 1st and 2nd.
Fives mile from Westfield, Mass., (as Bro. Phelps may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
If any of the above appointments conflict, write me at Rapids, Niag. Co., N. Y. CHAS. P. GREENMAN.

Cheshire Street, Ct........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Plainville, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 5th
Westfield, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 12th
East Haddam, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 19th
WM. A. & M. L. DURAND.

Warehouse Point, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 5th
Feeding Hills, (as Bro. David Allen may arrange), Tuesday evening, Dec. 7th.
Collinsville, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 12th
Lovely Street, Ct........Tuesday evening, Dec. 14th
Unionville, Ct........Wednesday evening, Dec. 15th
Bakerville, Ct........Thursday evening, Dec. 16th
Pleasant Valley, Ct........Friday evening, Dec. 17th
Hartland Hollow, (Town House)........Sunday, Dec. 19th
I can preach three or four evenings of this week. Address me before Dec. 7th, at Warehouse Point, Ct.
New York City, (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 26th. H. K. FLAGG.

South Berwick, Me., (Great Works), Sunday, Dec. 5th
J. G. SMITH.

Meredith Centre........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
Guilford, (Pond district)........Sabbath, Dec. 5th
N. GLIDDEN.

Bowdoin, Me., (Skelton school-house), Sabbath, Nov. 28th.
Bowdoin, (Adams school-house)....Sabbath, Dec. 5th
Richmond, (Reed meeting-house), Sabbath, Dec. 12th, 10½ A. M. Levet school-house, two P. M. Reed meeting-house, evening.
Sabbattusville, Me........Sabbath, Dec. 19th
Bowdoin, Me........Sabbath, Dec. 26th
H. S. MITCHELL.

Great Falls, N. H........evening, Nov. 24th
Exeter, N. H........evening, Nov. 26th
A. A. HOYT, WM. C. STEWART.

Haddam........Sunday, Nov. 28th
L. F. MOORE.

Boscawen, N. H., (Gulf school-house), Sabbath, Nov. 28th.
Salisbury, N. H., (Academy Hall)...Sabbath, Dec. 5th
SIMEON ROBY.

Great Falls, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Strafford, N. H., (Robert's school-house), Sunday, Dec. 5th.
A. SIMPSON.

Chicopee Falls, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 5th
E. MCCULLOCK.

West Meriden........Sunday, Nov. 28th
GEO. W. BROWN.

Sugar Hill........evening, Nov. 24th
A. MURRAY TRIPP.

Exeter........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Seabrook, N. H........Sunday, Dec. 5th
East Rochester........Sunday, Dec. 19th
J. PINKHAM.

West Abington, Mass........Dec. 8th
W. S. CAMPBELL.

East Rochester........Sunday, Nov. 28th
E. S. MOULTON.

Melvin Village........Sunday, Nov. 28th
T. W. PIPER.

Dresserville, N. Y........Nov. 23d to 26th
Wilmot Settlement, N. Y........Nov. 27th and on as duty may direct. J. W. TAYLOR.

Grafton, Vt., (where Bro. Hubbard may appoint), Thursday, Nov. 25th, 6½ P. M.
Rossonville, Vt., Friday, Nov. 26th, 6½ P. M., and hold over two Sundays, Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th, and every evening through the week.
Will the brethren from Grafton and other towns come in and help in the meetings?
South Sunapee, N. H., (where Bro. Lear may appoint), Friday, Dec. 24th.
Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
Plymouth, Vt., Tuesday, Dec. 7th, 7½ P. M., and continue over Sunday, Dec. 12th.
Brethren in adjoining towns are invited to come and enjoy the meeting with us. There will be ample provision made for all who will come. We expect Brn. W. Dow and H. F. Carpenter will be with us to preach the word. Z. T. WOOD.

River Point, R. I........Sunday, Dec. 5th
Anthony, R. I., through the week.
Bristol, R. I........Sunday, Dec. 12th
If these conflict, please write me at North Dana, Ms.
GEO. A. STREETER.

Collinsville........Sunday, Nov. 28th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

New Britain, Conn........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Hartford, Ct., (Talcott & Post's Hall), Sunday, Dec. 5th
Warehouse Point, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 19th
WM. STUART.

Lunenburg, Mass........Nov. 26th
Vernon, Vt........evening, Nov. 27th
Northfield, Mass........evening, Nov. 29th
Athol, Mass........evening, Nov. 30th
South Ashburnham, Mass........evening, Dec. 1st
Clinton, Mass........evening, Dec. 3d
Stowe, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 5th
L. BOUTELL.

South Livermore, Me....evening, Nov. 26th and 27th
Canton, (Swansey Hall), (as Bro. Kimball may arrange), Sunday, Nov. 28th.
West Poland, (Chapel)........Dec. 5th
J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Wrightville........Sunday, Nov. 28th
New Milford........Sunday, Dec. 5th
A. D. FLAGG.

Bath, Me........Nov. 27th, and over the Sabbath
J. T. JORDAN.

Lewiston, Me........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
N. G. REED.

Scitico, Ct........evening, Nov. 24th
South Windsor, Ct........evening, Nov. 25th
Collinsville, Ct........evening, Nov. 29th
Campville, Ct........evening, Nov. 30th
Sharon, Ct., (as Bro. Mills may arrange), evening, Dec. 1st, and over the Sabbath.
Morris, Ct., (fourth district), evening, Dec. 10th, and over the Sabbath.
Wrightville, Ct........evening, Dec. 17th and over the Sabbath.
New Preston, Ct........evening, Dec. 21st
Lanesville, Ct........evening, Dec. 22d
Salem, N. Y., (Pine Tree school-house)........Dec. 24th
New York City (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sabbath, Dec. 26th.
Rocky Brook, R. I........Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
C. H. SWEET.

Westfield, Ct........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
East Haddam, Ct........Sabbath, Dec. 5th
G. L. WHITE.

Farmington Village, N. H........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Alton Corner, N. H........Sunday, Dec. 5th
Strafford, N. H., (Roberts' school-house)...Sunday, Dec. 12th
East Boston, Mass........Sunday, Dec. 19th
☞ NO NAME.

Cold Spring, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 12th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Hartland, Ct., (Town Hall)........Sunday, Dec. 5th
Cheshire Street........Sunday, Dec. 19th
East Haddam, Ct........Sunday, Jan. 2d
S. WOODRUFF.

Woodstock Valley, Ct........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Putnam, Ct........Sunday, Dec. 12th
I. B. POTTER.

Southington, Ct........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
SETH WOODRUFF.

Square Pond, Conn........Dec. 19th
West Strafford, Ct........evening, Dec. 21st
North Somers, Ct........evening, Dec. 24th
Scitico, Ct........Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Springfield, Mass........evening, Dec. 28th
Brimfield, Mass........evening, Dec. 29th
Charlton, Mass........evening, Dec. 30th
Webster, Mass........evening, Dec. 31st
Abington, Ct........Sabbath, Jan. 2d
A. D. FLAGG.

Blue Point school-house........evening, Nov. 27th and over Sunday, the 28th.
Colekill Corner (school-house)........Sunday, Dec. 5th
J. L. CHUTE.

LAWRENCE, MASS., (ADVENT CHAPEL.)

C. Cunningham........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
J. Hemenway........Sunday, Dec. 5th

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., (Bethel Church.)

Wm. N. Pile........Sundays, Nov. 28th and Dec. 5th

WESTFIELD, MASS.

G. L. White........Sunday, Nov. 28th
A. Simpson........Sundays, Jan. 9th and 16th

STONEHAM, MASS.

A. P. Moore........Sunday, Nov. 28th
J. S. White........Sunday, Dec. 5th

WILBRAHAM, MASS.

Z. Ford........Sunday, Nov. 28th
A. M. Higgins........Sabbath, Dec. 5th
P. S. Butler........Sabbaths, Dec. 12th, 19th and 26th

PORTLAND, ME.

I. C. Wellcome........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
R. R. York........Sabbath, Dec. 5th

BIDDEFORD, ME.

Jeremiah Hill........Sabbath, Nov. 28th

SOUTH ELLIOTT, ME.

J. G. Smith........Sunday, Nov. 28th

CONCORD, N. H., (CENTRE STREET.)

A. Ross........Sabbath, Nov. 28th

MANCHESTER, N. H.

J. Couch........Sunday, Nov. 28th
D. M. Leavitt........Sunday, Dec. 5th

HAMPTON, N. H.

D. M. Leavett........Sunday, Nov. 28th
E. S. Moulton........Sunday, Dec. 5th
T. T. Farrell........Sunday, Dec. 12th

PLEASANT VALLEY, CT.

C. H. Sweet........Sabbath, Nov. 28th

BRISTOL, CT.

H. H. Dickinson........Sabbath, Nov. 28th
A. Ellecott........Sunday, Dec. 12th
R. Stark........Sabbath, Dec. 26th

SQUARE POND, CT.

A. Morse........Sunday, Nov. 28th
A. D. Flagg........Sunday, Dec. 19th

NEW BRITAIN, CT.

William Stuart........Sunday, Nov. 28th
Chas. C. Barker........Sunday, Dec. 5th
H. H. Dickinson........Sunday, Dec. 12th
Dr. Luddington........Sunday, Dec. 19th

WOLCOTTVILLE, CT.

G. L. Teeple........Sunday, Dec. 5th
B. Hitchcock........Sunday, Dec. 19th

PORTLAND, ME.

Meetings are held in Advent Hall, Cushman's Block, 353½ Congress Street, three times on the Sabbath, and Tuesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock.

NEW YORK CITY.

The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 405 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

STAR OF HOPE MISSION, 14 LAURENS STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Sunday morning, prayer and conference, six o'clock
Sunday School, two o'clock P. M. Love feast, four o'clock P. M. Preaching, seven o'clock P. M.
Monday, (class meeting), seven o'clock P. M.
Wednesday, (preaching), seven o'clock P. M.
Friday, (prayer and conference), seven o'clock P. M.
Come one, come all. A. E. SMITH, Principal.

Wyoming, R. I........1st Sabbath in each month
Westerly, R. I........2d Sabbath in each month
Riverpoint, R. I........3d Sabbath in each month
Bristol, R. I........4th Sabbath in each month
A. DURFEE.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

☞ Preachers sending appointments to Wakefield, Mass., are particularly requested to correspond with JOHN B. ADAMS.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Westfield, Mass., will please correspond first with Eld. E. A. EGGLESTON.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Portsmouth, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. JAMES B. TREFETHEN.

☞ BRO. JOSEPH A. PHILBROOK has been chosen Corresponding Secretary for the church in Hampton, N. H. Preaching brethren will please notice.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Manchester, N. H., will please correspond with the following committee:—A. J. Mayhew, S. H. Davidson, O. Proctor.

☞ Brethren sending appointments for London Ridge, N. H., will bear in mind that the fourth Sabbath in each month is engaged.

☞ Any Bro. wishing to come to Seabrook, N. H., to preach, will please address Bro. R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Bro. Charles Barton, of Seabrook.

☞ All preaching brethren who desire to communicate with the church at Rochester, N. Y., are requested to correspond with J. E. WELLS, 32 Smith Street.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Portland, Me., will please correspond first with Eld. R. R. YORK, or with either of the following committee:—H. C. Freeman, James Berry, S. K. Dyer.

☞ Advent preaching brethren who may wish to visit Kennebunk Depot, will please address Edwin B. Wells, Kennebunk Depot, Me.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Lewiston, Me., will please correspond first with ALBERT BURGESS, Cor. Sec.

☞ AUGUSTUS E. SNOW, 1715 Markham Street, Philadelphia, has been chosen Cor. Secretary of the church worshiping at Ninth and Spring Garden Streets.

☞ Brethren wishing to visit the church in Bristol, Ct., will please correspond with Elder B. HITCHCOCK, Forestville, Ct.

☞ Brethren desiring to preach in Hartford, Ct., will please correspond with Bro. L. Tiffany. Preaching the first Sabbath in each month by resident Elder H. H. Dickinson.

☞ Persons wishing to communicate with the church in New Britain, Conn., in regard to preaching, will please correspond with Bro. A. POWELL, Cor. Sec.

☞ All preaching brethren desirous of going to New Milford Ct., to preach, will first correspond with Richard [illegible].

Business.

Letters Received.

I B Potter, E H Porter, [illegible]

Cash received for Books and Tracts.

A Thompson $1.00, L A Hart $1.00, [illegible]

Books and Tracts Sent.

By Mail—P A Smith, Mrs S Smith, W K Knowles, [illegible]

By Express—H H Brigham, R Elwell, H F Carpenter, A B Hill.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"HYMNS OF THE JUBILEE HARP."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; [illegible] per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 16 cts. additional postage.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $5.00; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $4.00; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.50; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $1.50; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.50; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

Any of the above will be sent by mail on receipt of the price.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; $3.50 per one hundred copies.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

376 pages. Price by mail, $1.35.

The above works for sale at this office.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.

Price in cloth........75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers........50 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers........50 cts., postage 6 cts.
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.75

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.
WHAT IS MAN?
THE SOUL—WHAT IS IT?
THE SPIRIT—WHAT IS IT?
THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

All the above works in one volume, flexible cloth, in a compact, durable form, for use and preservation, for 35 cents, postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. THE DAYS IN WHICH WE LIVE. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.05; single, by mail, 13 cts.

2. AN EXPOSITION OF THE SEVEN SEALS. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. THE SLAYING OF THE WITNESSES. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

4. A TREATISE ON REVELATION XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. THE KINGDOM OF GOD AND SIGNS OF THE TIMES. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.35; single, by mail, 25 cts.

6. THE LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7, "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets," showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the devoted nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, [illegible] cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.

7. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity; [illegible] Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 25 cts.

8. LAST DAY TOKENS. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; the meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last days wonders. [illegible]

9. THE HISTORY OF AN IMMORTAL SOUL. [illegible]

10. RICH MAN AND LAZARUS. New edition, [illegible]

POST NUBILA PHOEBUS.

There is no peace, no love, no truth,
This life is dark and cold, I said,
And I longed for the restful quietness
Of those who silently sleep with the dead.
The lark soared up from its dewy bed—
There is love and peace towards the skies, he said.

God's ways are fathomless, deep and dark,
He leads us in long hard paths, I thought;
It is hard to trust him with childlike faith,
O, so hard to trust him, as Jesus taught.
The daisy looked upward towards the sky,
Trusting in God, and why could not I?

Oh! the grave is so cold and dark, I sighed,
As it closed o'er a dear loved head,
And those we love most in this cruel world
Go first to the realms of the dead.
The woodland flowers lay withered and dead,—
We shall wake in the spring, when God smiles, they said.

There is no friendship, again I said,
When one whom I trusted grew coldly unkind;
I have searched in vain for one truthful heart,
For goodness, consistency, highness of mind.
'Twas a baby's smile and an infant's kiss
That put me to shame for thoughts like this.

God has forgotten his graciousness,
He rules not in love as of old, I said;
The clouds above us are fearfully black,
And the linings are not of gold, but of lead.
Through the coldness of deep winter's night,
The blest Son of Righteousness rose in his might,
And again all the earth was flooded with light.

Lois Laurie.

THE SECRET OF EFFECTUAL SERVICE TO GOD.

Beloved Christian Friends, we have through the Lord's goodness, been permitted to enter upon another year; and the minds of many amongst us will no doubt be occupied with plans for the future, and the various spheres of service in which, if our lives be spared, we shall be engaged. The welfare of our families, the prosperity of our business, our work and service for the Lord, may be considered the most important matters to be attended to; but, according to my judgment, the most important point to be attended to is this—Above all things, see to it that your souls are happy in the Lord.

Other things may press upon you; the Lord's work even may have urgent claims upon your attention; but I deliberately repeat, it is of supreme and paramount importance that you should seek, above all other things, to have your souls truly happy in God himself. Day by day seek to make this the most important business of your life. This has been my firm and settled conviction for the last five and thirty years. For the first four years after my conversion I knew not its vast importance; but now, after much experience, I specially commend this point to the notice of my younger brethren and sisters in Christ. The secret of all true effectual service is, joy in God, and having experimental acquaintance and fellowship with God himself.

But in what way shall we attain to this settled happiness of soul? How shall we learn to enjoy God?—how obtain such an all-sufficient, soul-satisfying portion in him as shall enable us to let go the things of this world as vain and worthless in comparison? I answer: This happiness is to be obtained through the study of the Holy Scriptures. God has therein revealed himself unto us in the face of Jesus Christ.

In the Scriptures, by the power of the Holy Ghost, he makes himself known unto our souls. Remember, it is not a god of our own thoughts, or our own imaginations, that we need to be acquainted with; but the God of the Bible, our Father, who has given the blessed Jesus to die for us. Him should we seek intimately to know, according to the revelation he has made of himself in his own most precious word. The way in which we study this word is a matter of the deepest moment. The very earliest portion of the day we can command, should be devoted to meditation on the Scriptures. Our souls should feed upon the word. We should read it, not for others, but for ourselves. All the promises, the encouragements, the warnings, the exhortations, the rebukes, should be taken home to our own bosoms. Especially let us remember not to neglect any portion of the Bible: it should be read regularly through. To read favorite portions of the Scriptures, to the exclusion of other parts, is a habit to be avoided. The whole divine volume is inspired, and by degrees should be read regularly through. But to read the Bible thus is not enough; we must seek to become intimately and experimentally acquainted with him whom the Scriptures reveal—with the blessed Jesus, who has given himself to die in our room and stead. Oh, what an abiding, soul-satisfying portion do we possess in him!

But another point here needs especially to be noticed. It is, that we seek habitually to carry out what we know—to act up to the light that we have received; then more will assuredly be given. But if we fail to do this, our light will be turned into darkness. It is of the deepest moment that we walk with a sincere, honest, upright heart before the Lord. If evil be practiced or harbored and connived at, the channel of communication between our souls and God, for the time being, will be cut off. It is all important to remember this. Infirmities and weaknesses will cleave to us as long as we remain in the body; but this is a different thing from willingly allowing evil. I must be able, with a true, honest, upright heart, to look my heavenly Father in the face—to say, "Here I am, blessed Lord, do with me as thou wilt."

Then let us remember that we are his stewards. Our time, our health, our strength, our talents, our all, are his, and his alone. Let us seek to remember this, and carry it out this year, and then what happy Christians shall we all be! It is a divine principle, "To him that hath shall more be given;" and as assuredly as we seek to make good use of that which is confided to us, more will be imparted. We shall be used of the Lord, and shall become increasingly happy in his own most blessed service.

Brethren, we have only one life—one brief life; let us seek, with renewed purpose of heart, to consecrate that one life wholly to the Lord—day by day to live for God, and to serve him with our body, soul and spirit, which are his. Let it be our unceasing prayer, that, as we grow older, we may not grow colder in the ways of God. As we advance in years, let us not decline in spiritual power; but let us see to it that an increase of spiritual vigor and energy be found in us, that our last days may be our best days.

Our holy faith does not consist in talking. "Reality, reality, reality," is what we want. Let us have heart work; let us be genuine. Brethren, we should live so as to be missed—missed both in the Church and in the world when we are removed. Oh, how rapidly is time hastening on! We should live in such a manner as that, if we were called hence, our dear brethren and sisters might feel our loss, [illegible] in our midst again! We ought to be missed even by the world. Worldly persons should be constrained to say of us, "If ever there was a Christian upon earth, that man was one."

But to revert to the Scriptures. In them, through the teaching of the Holy Ghost, we become acquainted with the character of God. Our eyes are divinely opened to see what a lovely being God is! and this good, gracious, loving heavenly Father is ours—our portion for time and for eternity; and our adorable Lord Jesus, who gave himself for us, is that blessed One to whose image and likeness we shall be conformed; and to serve him should be our greatest joy and privilege as long as we remain on earth.

But then, when trial and affliction come—when God deals with us as though he were not the lovely, kind and gracious Being presented in his Word—shall we murmur and despond? Ah, no! Beloved in Christ, let us trust our heavenly Father; let us, like little children, hang entirely on him, reposing in the sweet assurance of his unchangeable, eternal love. Let us remember how he acted towards his saints of old—what his dealings were with them. Let us remember what is recorded concerning their history; for now, as he has ever done, God will most surely act according to his Word.

This intimate experimental acquaintance with him will make us truly happy. Nothing else will. If we are not happy Christians—I speak deliberately, I speak advisedly—there is something wrong. If we did not close the past year in a happy frame of spirit, the fault is ours, and ours alone. In God our Father and the blessed Jesus our souls have a rich, divine, imperishable, eternal treasure. Let us enter into practical possession of these true riches; yea, let the remaining days of our earthly pilgrimage be spent in an ever-increasing, devoted, earnest consecration of our souls to him.—Address by George Muller.

THE POWER IN MAN TO OVERCOME EVIL.

All men are clothed with ability efficiently to resist evil. Therefore, I affirm the existence of a plenary power of men over themselves, by which they can control their whole being, so that it shall be coincident with natural law and with moral low. This is the side which has been made weak in every age of the world by philosophy. Different philosophies, springing from different roots and elements, have agreed very largely in attempting to show that men were in some way compelled to follow their nature. In our day these philosophies, if possible, are more rife than they ever were before, for they are coming to be used on the side of physiology. A fuller knowledge of natural law, the introduction of many elements of knowledge that have hitherto been hidden from our understanding, is bringing the attendant evils of new discoveries in truth. There is a great deal of skepticism springing out of the bosom of a great deal of good.

Men once erred by giving too little influence to the constitution of things in men. There have been a great many that have taught that all men were born substantially alike. Certainly the influence of this teaching has been to make it appear that all men were alike responsible—responsible, that is, as if each one was just as liable to temptations, and was indorsed with just as much power of resisting temptation as every other.

But now the tendency is to go to the opposite extreme. Since men have found out that organization is a fact; that men differ from each other according to the various elements in the composition of their body and mind; that different men carry different qualities in them, in different proportions; and that the responsibility of each man is to be estimated, not by any comprehensive philosophical principle, but by his own nature—since this truth has become more popularly diffused and believed, there is a tendency among men to go over the laxity and demoralization on that side, and to argue that men are so made that their nature is inevitable and irresistible; that their being placed in certain conditions and circumstances will determine what they shall feel and will and do; and that their being good or bad is the result of the out-workings of two necessities, one psychological within, and the other circumstantial without. This is a favorite ground in our day. It is a kind of physiological naturalism and fatalism.

The organization of men will certainly have great influence upon them. A man's organization, for instance, will determine the relative strength of the various parts of mind and body. Some are strong in one part of the body, and some in another. Some are swift of foot, some are strong of hand, some are powerful in the chest, some have their power in their loins, and the power of some is equally distributed; in some the muscular system predominates; in others the cerebral; and in still others the assimulative and circulatory.

And as it is with the body, so more signally is it with the mind. Men are organized differently in mental as well as physical respects. Some are strong in the intellect—and of course in the intellect there are various gradations. Some are perceptively intellectual, and others are reflectively intellectual. Some are both perceptibly and reflectively intellectual. Some are stronger in the moral than in the intellectual elements. Some are weak in the moral elements. Some are strong in the social faculties, and others are weak in those faculties. Some are strong in appetites and passions, and some are almost free from them. A great men are so strong basiliary that they do not answer the end of life. They are too strong at the bottom, and too weak at the top, to be of much use. Other men are too strong at the top and too weak at the bottom, and are useless for that reason. They are strong in the moral nature, but they no impelling force. They have neither courage nor power. Though they carry a good head, it is an inefficient head. It is good but not powerful.

We must recognize these facts; and we must recognize them just in the proportion in which we teach by a knowledge of men, rather than by a knowledge of books. Let a man learn his theology in the study, let him shape his views of truth according to the schools, and he will be apt to substitute mere philosophical ideas or conceptions for the truth. But let a man learn his theology from men, and let his business be not so much to authenticate certain systematic views, as to look at men individually and in classes; let him, like a physician, examine their nature, and see what they are, and how they can be made better; let him see where they are too strong and where they are too weak, and how their strength can be rightly distributed; let him make sermons from men, and preach them to men again, with his eye upon the living, palpitating human heart, feeling first what they want, and then attempting to supply their deficiency—let a man do this, and in the proportion in which he does it he will have to recognize the difference between one man and another.

It is supposed by some that this will lead to laxity; and that it will tend to make men feel that sinning is merely the result of their constitution. Sinning is the result of men's constitutions—and so is everything else that they do. It is so, whether the act itself is right or wrong. But that does not touch the question. I hold that there can be no doctrine of freedom from general responsibility based upon the peculiarity of a man's constitution. This constitutional condition will determine which part of a man will be most active, and which part he can use with most facility. It will go far to determine whether he shall work by force, by feeling, by thought, or by imagination. It will determine whether he shall be engineer, philosopher, poet, orator, artist, or loving friend. It will go far to determine what elements shall predominate in a man—whether caution, or hope, or vigor, or gentleness, or love, or courage, or firmness, or yieldingness. What part of a man's feeling shall act, will depend largely upon his organization.

But there we must stop. We have come to the end. Organization merely shows which of the instruments of a man are strongest. It does not determine either of these two things; first, the objects to which we shall apply our several mind forces; and, secondly, the restraint of stronger feelings from excess. In these two things lies the whole of sinfulness—namely, wrong direction or wrong application of our faculties, and inordinateness or excess in them. Sin, traced back from the technical to the physiological, comes to be one of two things—either using right feelings in wrong directions, or using right feelings in wrong degrees. It is misapplication, or it is excess—one or the other. There is not a sin or a vice that is not the misapplication of the normal feeling, or the excess of it.

Now organization does not touch either of these two things. It may determine that a man should be cautious, but it does not determine where his caution should work. It may give him the power of excessive caution, but it does not take from him the power of limiting it and holding it within due bounds by other faculties. There is in every man who is fit to be out of the lunatic asylum, a power by which every faculty may be held to right objects.

And here lies the popular fallacy. It is supposed by many who believe that Phrenology reveals the true science of the human mind—I believe it is far from being a perfected science, but that it is further toward the truth than any other—it is supposed by many such, that a man's character is determined by his constitution. They teach substantially that if a man has large Secretiveness he must be a thief; that if he has large Cautiousness he must be a coward; that if he is swift of foot he must always be running away from danger. You might as well say that because a man is exceedingly ingenious and inquisitive, he must be a maker of false keys and a pick-lock to open other people's doors! You might as well say that because a man is adapted to engraving, and has great powers of imitation, he must be a counterfeiter! Just as though there was but one way in which secretiveness can act, and that the furtive way, the illicit way, the immoral way. Just as though it were not a faculty world-wide in its beneficence. Just as though it were not what walls are to defend a city, or what vails are to hide things sacred from the gaze of vulgar eyes. Just as though it were not a diviner feeling, lent for a divine purpose. To use it for a wrong purpose is a sin. The sin is not in having the feeling, but in putting it to a wrong use.

Some men suppose that if a man is born with large Combativeness he must be a pugilist. But are there no right objects in life that call for combative forces? To him that tunnels the mountain, combativeness is indispensable. In boring, and cutting, and grinding physical things we need combativeness. Combativeness is the engineer's dependence. You will find contractors, nineteen out of twenty, have this faculty large. It is a gift peculiar to those whose business it is to subdue material things.

Some philosophers argue that because a man is born with a large brain behind the ear, and above it, he must be a fighting man or a murderer. They say that some are born thieves, that some are born liars, and that some are born murderers. This theory may gain currency among people that are ignorant, but it has nothing to do with the fact. The fallacy is this: the supposition that there is but one direction in which Secretiveness, Combativeness,, Destructiveness, or any animal appetite or passion can act, and that is inevitably the wrong way; whereas, the fact is that no man has any of these faculties in excess, who has not also the power to direct them right as well as wrong. For each of them, and for every passion, there is a life-work, indispensable, and in its degree noble, and the very guilt of wrong use is that it perverts a legitimate right use.

Organization, then, will determine what part of a man is strongest, and indirectly it will determine what his tendencies and ambitions in life will be; but it does not determine the use to which his strength shall be put. Actions may be good or bad; regulated or unregulated; but whether good or bad, regulated or unregulated, they have nothing to do with organization. That inheres in every man. And there is where responsibility takes hold. God has given you great forces, not to be held for promiscuous, unregulated uses, but to be directed in right channels. In the stalls of the human soul, in all the lower range of faculties, there is not one steed for which there is not harness or bridle, and which, being bitted and trained, a man can not ride and drive.

We are not to attempt to suppress the faculties with which God has endowed us. Do you suppose that when God gave the fabric of your being, that he put into it one thread too many? Do you suppose that he erected you with one faculty which you do not need? Do you suppose that when he implanted pride in good nature that he meant that it should be rooted out? You might as well take the backbone out of a man, as to deprive him of this faculty. What is a man without a backbone? and what is a man without this central element of self-respect? It is called self- [illegible] in its effects. It is to be not eradicated, but properly controlled.

Imagine a dove saying, "I dislike this glossy green on my neck," and trying to remove it, it may rub the feathers off, but they will speedily come again. It can not eradicate the color of its feathers. The sunflower will be yellow, however much it may prefer to be violet. Every thing will have its own peculiar form, its own peculiar color, its own peculiar juices, its own peculiar odors, and its own peculiar constitution. God meant that it should be so; he watches to see that it so; he holds things down in their places, and you among them, and your faculties in you. He gives you liberty to control one faculty by another, but he never gives you liberty to rub out one figure. The problem you are to work out in life requires that you should use every thing that is put into you.

You must go through the world with just such faculties as God has given you. Every man looking at himself, should say, "With this hull, with these spars, with these sails, with this compass, I must make the voyage of life." Are you finely built? Are you an object of beauty? Do you sit like a duck on the water? It will be comparatively easy for you to make the voyage alone. Are you—the next one—blunt at the bow? Are your spars clumsy? Is your rigging unwieldly? You need not cut your bow. You may cut it till the vessel sinks, but you cannot change her form. And you need not attempt to change the spars and rigging. You must take that bow, those spars, and that rigging, and make the voyage with them as they are. God shoves you out and says, "There, put to the other side!" And you must go through the same storms and the same currents that those of better build are obliged to go through. Some are built like noble steamers, some like fine sailing vessels, and some like scows, and each is to take what God has given him, and go across the ocean with it.

Now many men are lying on the beach, whining, "Oh, if I were built so!" That has nothing to do with it. You are built just as you are. Your form is just what it is, and you cannot change it. If a man's power is basilar, it is worse than useless for him to lament that it is not intellectual.

We are not to attempt to make ourselves over; we are not to struggle to change our nature; we are to take what God has given us, and make our voyage homeward with it. Whether a man has large endowments or small ones, if he accepts them, such as they are, and applies them to their highest use, he answers the object for which he was created. This is the end of life.

In order to do this, there is of course to be resistance in some spots, and solicitation in others. We can not change the fundamental elements of our nature, but we can change the results of those elements upon our character and conduct. By a timely, thorough, persistent determination in the use of all proper means, men can resist every tendency to deflect and go to wrong courses. Of course, casual and momentary inducements to evil can be resisted; but I affirm that dispositional causes tending toward evil can be restrained, can be rightly directed, can be entirely controlled.

Or, to come close to the matter, a hot, irritable nature may not be made to be an even and calm one. But a man who has a great deal of nerve, who is like a flame of fire, who is constitutionally quick and imperious, can teach his nature to work in such a way as to make his quickness and imperiousness a benefit and not a curse.

When a steed is first brought into the ring to be broken, he is wild and fiery; he snorts at the sight of the bridle and saddle, he is restless under the rider; there is nothing at which he does not shy; he has no such thing as a regular gait. But patient, firm, diligent training by-and-by subdues him, so that he becomes docile. His original frantic efforts become nimbleness and fine action. He is not changed so that he has other than a quick, sensitive disposition; but his quickness and sensitiveness are disciplined, so that he is steady and easily manageable. He is broken not in his absolute nature, but in the way in which he carries that nature, which is tantamount to the eradication of it.

You must learn how to direct the elements of your being aright, and then you must make your physical, intellectual, social, and moral powers co-operate in the accomplishment of that object. You must use the whole man to build up the whole man. Men may go far toward equalizing their very moods. The disposition to have moods will never change, any more than the disposition of the ocean to have tides will change. If a man is so made that his blood courses in his veins like tides in the Bay of Fundy, how can it be otherwise than that when the tides go out he should be on the sand? So long as a man's constitutional tendency to have moods is uncultured and uncared for, he will be unable to control them; but let that tendency become a matter of culture and care, and he can keep them within bounds, so that he shall habitually be in a joyful state of mind, instead of a dismal one. Such control over men's moods can be attained, but not without pains and time.

Men may overcome stinginess, closeness, avarice itself. Not by defending it; not by saying they do not care; not by building up expenses out of other men's examples; not by hoping and praying, and putting forth no effort; but by authenticating God's promises, by making use of all proper agencies to fulfill his commands. A man can change himself from being avaricious, so as to be really generous. He can so far restrain his disposition as to overcome the littleness which that disposition begets. Carefulness becomes avarice, and avarice corrected may be but carefulness again.

Men must not compare their own peculiarities with their neighbor's, and say "Their constitutional tendencies are such that they can easily restrain their faculties from working in wrong directions, and they ought to do it; but I am so organized that I can not do it, and it is of no use for me to try." I assure you that by faith and patience you can do it. There is release for you from your evil inclinations if you will but employ the powers which God has given you to overcome them. As a crooked piece of timber can be made straight, though its nature can not be changed, so a man's faults can be corrected, though his natural disposition can not be rooted out.

Men may overcome timidity and cowardice so that they shall not appear to be what they are. Timidity when rightly manifested is [illegible] hateful, but where a man ought to be timid it is beautiful. On the field of battle where a man should be fearless, it is despicable, but in places where timidity is becoming it is admirable. In many situations it is beautiful in men, women, and children—or was when children were timid.

Indolence, carelessness, heedlessness—all these spendthrift tendencies men may overrule and readjust.

Men may so direct and modify those two opposites, that yet always work together, Self-esteem and Love of Aprobation, or vanity and pride, that they shall be wholesome and abundant in whatever is pure and noble and right. Approbativeness—it is the broad road through which God sends angels down to the soul. The love of approbation, if wrongly directed, leads a man to want to be loved for things low and ignoble; but love of approbation, if rightly directed, leads a man to want to be loved for things high and noble. It is harmful or beneficent, according as it works up or down. And so it is with pride.

Men may overcome passions and appetites. Not by simply letting the sun shine upon them, any more than great swamps can be improved by letting the sun shine on them. The engineer, by striking channels through the low, level morass, where nothing thrives but noisome reptiles and insects, can drain it and make it capable of yielding luxuriant growths useful to men. A man may subsoil and drain himself. To succeed, he needs to take hold of the work with discretion and firmness. Physicians and ministers are consulting engineers in such work. It is a work which requires to be carried on in the body and in the soul co-ordinately.

In order that men may succeed in this great work of overcoming what is evil in themselves, they must have such a sense of being, here and hereafter, as to make it seem worth their while to employ every motive of time and eternity in endeavors to control the powers of their nature and put them to right uses. They must make the right ordering of themselves a business of life, as much as engineers do the undertaking to which they devote their energies in physical things.

All about the island of Great Britain, on every out-jutting rock, in every mountain district, along every river, and at every shipyard, there are indications of what engineers can do. Smeaton could take a rock against which the whole ocean seemed to thunder a declaration of war, and build thereon a lighthouse. During many a wild and screaming storm has the light which he kindled in Eddystone Lighthouse shone forth to warn from danger the imperiled mariner.

And think how, by means of immense banks, half of the kingdom of Holland has been reclaimed from the ocean. Now, like a vast spirit of evil, that scowling enemy lurks, raging along the coast, beating in every bay and estuary and river, and undermining with every tide, seeking to regain its lost possession. But the same watchful eye, the same bold heart, the same industrious hand which put the ocean out, has kept it out.

And is there not here an image of that lurking foe, temptation, by which every man is beset? If you keep out the ocean of evil, you must throw up dykes of resistance. In that way you can exclude it, and once having excluded it, by watchfulness, and boldness, and industry, you can keep it out. No man can by indolence overcome evil, but for him that has a will to do it, there is a way. No matter what our organization may be, we may keep ourselves from going wrong if we are willing to faithfully employ the powers which have been given us for that purpose.—H. W. Beecher.

RESOLUTION.

If you've any task to do,
Let me whisper, friend, to you,
Do it.

If you've any thing to love,
As a blessing from above,
Love it.

If you've any thing to give,
That another's joy may live,
Give it.

If some hollow creed you doubt,
Though the whole world hoot and shout,
Doubt it.

If you know what torch to light,
Guiding others through the night,
Light it.

If you've any debt to pay,
Rest you neither night nor day,
Pay it.

If you've any joy to hold
Next your heart, lest it get cold,
Hold it.

If you've any grief to meet,
At the loving Father's feet,
Meet it.

If you're given light to see
What a child of God should be,
See it.

Whether life be bright or drear,
There's a message sweet and clear
Whispered down to every ear—
Hear it.

—Harper's Magazine.

Gems.

— Men may live in a crowd, but they must die alone. Friends and ministers can only accompany us to the pass. None of them can speak from experience and tell us what it is to die.

— If we study christians, not in the sharp angles of their creeds, but in the pleasant roundings of their lives, we shall find good men of every name, alike in spirit and practice.

— To love an enemy, to listen kindly to a tale of sorrow told by the poor, and to wage successful war on besetting sins, are three features of a christian But they never subsist without grace.

— Never attempt to do anything that is not right. Just as sure as you do you will get into trouble. If you even suspect that anything is wrong, do not do it till you are sure your suspicions are groundless.

Lord, many times I am aweary quite
Of my own self, my sin, my vanity;
Yet be not thou, or I am lost outright,
Weary of me!

— God renders earth desolate to induce you to seek a better country. He strikes away every human prop, and puts failure and vexation into every worldly scheme, that you may turn from your idols unto Him.

— A white garment appears worse with slight soiling than do colored garments when much soiled; so a little fault in a good man attracts more attention than great offences in bad men.

— Make no more vain resolutions, but proceed at once to duty. Know your weakness, trust and pray. God will help you through and give you patience.

— In the voyage or life we should imitate the ancient mariners, who, without losing sight of the earth, trusted to the heavenly lights for their guidance.

— God is the safety of his people, but we tempt Providence if we do not make use of the necessary means for our preservation.

— We should think less of what we are in the view of others, than of what we are in the view of God.

— Insults are like counterfeit money; we cannot hinder their being offered, but we are not compelled to take them.

— He hath but hath God, hath all things; [illegible]

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

For the Hygiene Column.

A CHAPTER IN MY EXPERIENCE.

Bro. Grant:—As much has been said about the use of tobacco, I thought I would give my testimony. It is the most filthy habit man ever contracts. I was a perfect slave to it for fifty years. The last seventeen years my work was nights, where I had full swing to chew and smoke as much as I wished. I was engaged eleven hours, and I smoked as much as seven of them, and chewed the rest of the time. I would smoke all the way home in the morning, go to bed as soon as I got home, and many a time have got up by nine o'clock, sat by the window to have a good smoke, then go back to bed and finish my sleep.

Well, in June, 1866, I was converted to the Lord, but stuck to the old pipe. Then I began to think it was not right. The last night in 1866, at our "watch meeting," at twelve o'clock, I put my old pipe, tobacco, and knife, into the stove, in presence of all, and said I would not use it any more, God helping me.

For three days I was like a fish out of water, and the fourth day I thought I should die. A friend advised me to smoke or chew a little, or I should die. I told him I had asked the Lord to help me, and he would do it.

From that day to this (June 25th, 1869), I have had no more desire for tobacco than I have for dirty woolen rags. Glory to God. Our friend Trask advises us to get gentian root to help us leave it off. I want nothing but the "root and offspring of David" to help me.

I have been asked why I left it off. My answer has always been, A man who professes to be a christian, and asks God every day to cleanse him from all sin and filthiness of the flesh, and that prayer coming out over a big quid of tobacco, insults the Almighty. I think so yet. George Bailey.

24 Grafton Street, Worcester, Mass.

For the Hygiene Column.

THE WOODS.

The following, from the pen of Horace Greeley, contains some valuable suggestions. C. H. S.

"The woods are my special department. Whenever I can save a Saturday for the farm, I try to give a good part of it to my patch of forest. The axe is the healthiest instrument that a man ever handled, and is essentially so for habitual writers and other sedentary workers, whose shoulders it throws back, expanding their chest and opening their lungs. If every youth and man, from fifteen to fifty years old, could wield an axe two hours per day, dyspepsia would vanish from the earth, and rheumatism become decidedly scarce. I am a poor chopper, yet the axe is my doctor and delight. Its use gives the mind just occupation enough to prevent its falling into reverie or absorbing thought; while every muscle of the body receives sufficient yet not exhausting exercise. I wish all our boys would learn to love the axe."

TO KEEP LADIES FROM CONSUMPTION.

The best plan known to preserve ladies from consumption, is some active, light business, that would keep them ever employed. It should be of a kind not to weary them, but to busy them. It must not be sewing, for this is as bad for their health as anything they can possibly do. The modes of education now in vogue for young ladies are about as pernicious as they well can be. The time that girls are kept immured in schools, deprived of the free use of their limbs, should be better employed. When a girl has been kept in one of our schools from the age of four to sixteen years, she has ordinarily become so debilitated that she is unfitted for any active occupation. Her energy is broken down, and she has relapsed into a kind of quiescent state, in which nothing but some unnatural excitement can rouse her.

The occupation of females has been a fruitful subject of discussion for many years; and, for aught that appears, is likely to occupy philanthropists for many years to come.

A physician writing upon this subject more than half a century ago, said: "Ladies shun with abhorrence any exertion that approaches to labor, and cherishing a fatal indolence, fall into consumption, or are suspended by some cruel disorder over that devouring gulf. But at what, if they were ever so willing, shall ladies,—I beg pardon for the expression,—shall ladies labor? Yet he who established it as a maxim,—that the gods sell all good things for labor—if the state of society in which he lived had required him to be more pointed and particular, might have laid it down,—that the gods do not sell health, the best of things, but for labor.

"I have known instances where unhealthy women, and even those who were predisposed to consumption, have acquired vigor in consequence of accidental inducements to such exertions as to them were laborious. What they did they did cheerfully, at least without anxiety or repugnance. What is generally wanted is a series of occupations, lasting, and not liable to grow wearisome. It were to be wished, that by any inducement, the elegant and beautiful study of the vegetable world could be made to supersede the too great devotion of our female youth to music. In its present state, indeed, it is to be lamented that botany is a pursuit that too frequently proves distasteful to beginners."

Though the above has been written three-fourths of a century, yet the evil complained of still exists, and young misses now spend much more time at the piano than is good, either for their physical, intellectual, or moral welfare. We do not look for sudden changes, and yet it were desirable that some progress should be made in seventy-five years in such an improvement.

Occupation, some active occupation, is necessary to preserve health, and in persons predisposed to consumption, to prevent the development of this fatal disease; for it is a well demonstrated fact that it can be warded off to an indefinite period.—Dr. Cornell.

NIGHTMARE.

The following remarks on nightmare, from the Aug. No. of "Good Health," should be known to all:—

Nightmare generally happens to us when lying on the back, but this is not invariable; and it is often difficult to say whether or not the person has not turned on his back during the struggle which precedes recovery. What we have said of delusions about the lapse of time in reference to dreaming, appear also to nightmare. It is, therefore, impossible to determine how long an attack may have lasted. A minute of such misery may well appear an hour.

Indigestion is unquestionably the chief cause of nightmare. Any one whose digestion is not the strongest, may almost infallibly bring it on by taking a late heavy supper. An excellent receipt for it would be a veal pie in which the solid indigestible meat is combined with pastry. The disorder also plagues people who are asthmatic.

The cure of nightmare, unconnected with organic disease, consists in avoidance of suppers, attention to diet in general, as well as to a sufficiency of fresh air and [illegible]

P. O. Address of Preaching Brethren.

Massachusetts.

C. Goodrich—No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.
Enoch Morrill—Crisis Office, Boston.
J. S. White—86 Decatur Street, East Boston.
L. Boutell—Chelsea.
S. W. Thurber—Chelsea.
T. M. Preble—Lynn.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls.
Geo. A. Brown—Plymouth.
Geo. A. Cole—Plymouth.
D. Churchill—Lowell.
Matthew Batchelor—New Bedford.
S. S. Brewer—Ashburnham Depot.
H. Pratt—Springfield, 57 Cedar Street.
E. Ford—Box 392, Springfield.
W. N. Pile—Springfield.
P. S. Butler—Collins Depot.
Geo. A. Streeter—North Dana.
C. H. Sweet—Millville.
Alvah Bean—Lowell.
J. W. Thomas—Lowell, 49 Worthen Street.
Benj. Finney—Wakefield.
S. S. Brazee—Cold Spring.
W. R. Hathaway—North Carver.
Rufus Baker—Warren.
J. W. Brittan—Westboro.
Dr. A. M. Higgins—Palmer.
E. M'Culloch—Savoy.
E. Owen—Westfield, Lock Box 616.

Maine.

S. K. Partridge—North Whitefield.
I. C. Wellcome—Yarmouth.
H. D. Reed—Richmond.
H. S. Mitchell—Richmond.
J. Carr—South Albion.
Allen Damon—Corinna.
N. F. Nason—Weeks Mills.
C. Goud—Topsham.
Jesse Gay—Casco.
Thomas Smith—Bangor.
I. K. Lombard—South Windham.
Thomas Rhynes—Augusta.
R. R. York—Portland.
M. B. Patterson—Richmond.
J. Albert Libby—West Poland.
J. T. Jenjan—West Poland.
R. M. Haggett—Livermore.
F. A. Baker—Levant.
Israel Damman—Corinna.
Jared Whitman—Mechanic Falls.
H. B. Sevey—Mt. Vernon.
M. W. Corliss—Milltown.
N. G. Reed—Bath.
Wm. H. Mitchell—Kennebunk.

New Hampshire.

L. C. McKinstry—Tamworth Iron Works.
A. W. Sibley—West Thornton.
J. Couch—Concord.
A. Simpson—Concord.
D. N. Chadsey—Whitefield.
Caleb Richardson—Salem Depot.
N. C. Twombly—Strafford Centre.
Levi Allen—Gilmanton Iron Works.
J. B. Brown—Laconia.
A. A. Hoyt—North Haverhill.
T. R. Lang, Jr.—Meredith Village.
John H. Evans—Holderness.
O. D. Eastman—Landaff.
Joseph Kimball—Unity.
Joseph Pinkham—Dover.
N. B. McMurphy—Gilmanton.
A. Ross—Amherst.
C. H. Fletcher—Newport.
T. L. Hall—Keene.
Wm. W. Sutherland—Newport.
S. S. Mooney—Pittsfield.
N. Wheeler—Whitefield.
C. W. Sargent—Box 426, Concord
Simeon Roby—Warner.
D. F. Leavitt—London Ridge.
T. W. Piper—Melvin Village.
D. M. Leavitt—Holderness.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia.
J. G. Smith—New Durham.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth.
N. Glidden—Meredith Center.

Vermont.

H. F. Carpenter—North Springfield.
J. A. Cleaveland—Marshfield.
A. Gordon—Canaan.
R. G. Chadsey—Richford.
C. P. Dow—Franklin, Vt., or Stanbridge, C. E.

Rhode Island.

M. R. Phetteplace—West Gloucester.
D. O. Hopkins—North Foster.
B. Roberts—Knightsville.
A. Durfee—Woodville.
J. T. Dixon—Rocky Brook.

Connecticut.

William J. Ripley—Pleasant Valley.
S. M. Tatro—No. 51 Windsor St., Hartford.
W. S. Campbell—New Britain.
H. Rockwell—West Winsted.
Wm. A. Durand—Cheshire.
L. F. Moore—Somersville.
S. Woodruff—Unionville.
B. St. John—Wolcottville.
Dr. Samuel Wellis Treat—Middlebury.
Geo. L. Teeple—Monroe.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville.
A. D. Flagg—Torrington.
I. B. Potter—West Stafford.
E. Bellows—South Killingly.
B. Hitchcock—Forestville

New York.

Anna E. Smith—Star of Hope Mission, New York City, 14 Laurens Street, above Canal.
E. S. Jennings—President of "F. U. M. Association," Honeoye, Ontario Co.
J. K. Bellows—19 Orchard Street, New York City.
J. B. Cook—Brooklyn.
Wm. Ingmire—Lincklaen, Chenango Co.
Jacob Blain—Buffalo.
Chas. P. Greenman—Rapids, Niagara Co.
Arthur King—145 Nassau Street, New York.
Wm. A. Fenn—Rochester.
Phineas A. Smith—Rochester.
Z. Dubois Baird, Centre Falls, Washington Co.
C. H. Leverton—Honeoye, Ontario Co.
C. F. Sweet—Albion, Orleans Co.
Warren J. Hobbs—Honeoye Falls.
C. W. Low—Fredonia.
M. R. Miles—Wolcott, Wayne Co.
A. C. Newell—Darien City.
C. H. Williams—West Martinsburg.
B. P. Stevens—South Butler.
D. Cogswell—Dansville.
Herbert H. Brown—Honeoye, Ontario Co.
Cornelius Pike—Caldwell, Warren Co.

New Jersey.

H. K. Flagg—Camden.
S. P. Babcock—Malaga.

Pennsylvania.

W. Taylor—Little Marsh, Tioga Co.
John T. Ongley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co.
Jonas Wendell—Edenboro, Erie Co.
R. Cotton—Edenboro, Erie Co.
Wm. Stuart—1814 Vineyard Street, Philadelphia.

Ohio.

H. G. McCulloch—Nevada, Wyandot Co.
G. W. Stetson—Olena.

Tennessee.

Dr. I. I. Leslie—Box 634. Memphis.
L. F. Cole—Memphis, Box 634.

Kentucky.

John B. Wadsworth—166 No. 2nd St., Louisville.

Indiana.

R. H. Scott—Scottsville, Floyd Co.
G. W. Green—Box 16, Memphis, Clark Co.

Illinois.

George W. Foster—Victoria, Knox Co.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy.
J. W. Burroughs—Neponset.
F. Burr—New Rutland.
Wm. McCulloch—New Rutland.

Michigan.

J. R. Preston—Wallaceville, Wayne Co.
Wm. Deverell—Millbrook, Mecosta Co.
J. M. Snook—Romeo.
A. N. Seymour—Reading.

Iowa.

Peter S. W. Deyo—Strawberry Point, Clayton Co.
A. F. Dugger—Simpson.
Ambrose H. Eggleston—Parkersburg

Wisconsin.

Wm. Sheldon—Brodhead, Green Co.
J. Wilbur—Box 882 Janesville.
N. A. Hitchcock—Prairie Du Lac.
George Thompson—Attica, Green Co.
P. W. Hough—Mendoro, La Cross Co.

Minnesota.

Edwin T. Himes—St. Paul, Box 258.
Wm. Sweet—Backsville, Brown Co.
Philip Ramer—Winona.
Ruth M. Rowell—Winona, Box 621.
D. D. Reed—Crow Wing.
O. R. Fassett—Minneapolis.

Nova Scotia.

Wm. M. Ingham—Clemensport.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..........................$2.50 a year
Five copies six months to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address..........$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—Private.
Over all business matters, write—Business.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's Name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write Private on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,
THE YOUNG PILGRIM,
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS.
PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.
Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, [illegible]

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 737. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1869. VOL. XXX.—NO. 11.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL, A. ROSS.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
D. MATHEWSON, H. V. DAVIS, M. BATCHELOR, J. G. HAMBLIN, H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

"BLESSED TO GIVE."

The kindly sun gives forth his rays,
Asks no return, demands no praise;
But wraps us in strong arms of life,
And says distinct through human strife,
"If thou wouldst nobly live,
Give—ever give."

The rustic flowers, up-springing bright,
And answering back the regal light,
Fills all the air with fragrant breath,
And writes in myriad hues beneath,
"If thou wouldst daily gladly live,
Give—ever give."

The merchant rain, which carries on
Rich commerce 'twixt the earth and sun;
The autumn mist, the spring-tide shower,
All whisper soft to seed and flower,
"We know no other life to live
But this—we give.

Suggestive warnings crowd the earth,
Glad sounds of labor, songs of mirth
From creatures, both of field and air;
Who, whilst they take their rightful share,
Still truly chant, "We chiefly live
To give—to give."

Oh, man, the gem and crown of all,
Take thou this lesson—heed the call
Of these less gifted creatures near;
The rather—that Christ's voice most dear,
Once said, whilst here he deigned to live,
"Blessed to give."

—Apostolic Times.

For the World's Crisis.

RESURRECTION.

"But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. . . . But every man in his own order; Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end." 1 Cor. 15: 20-24.

"And the feast of harvest, the first fruits of thy labors, which thou hast sown in the field; and the feast of ingathering, which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labors out of the field." Exod. 23: 16.

We see that Christ is the first fruits of them that slept. Somebody has waked up after his resurrection. Now we want to know who they are. John the Revelator will tell us. Rev. 7: 4,—"And I heard the number of them which were sealed; and there were sealed an hundred and forty and four thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel." Not a Gentile in this company. Rev. 14: 1,—"And I looked, and lo, a Lamb stood on the mount Sion, and with him an hundred and forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads. . . . . Which were redeemed from the earth. These are they which were not defiled with women; for they are virgins. These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth." These were redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God and the Lamb.

Now take the type in Lev. 19: 10. "Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye be come into the land which I give unto you, and shall reap the harvest thereof, then ye shall bring a sheaf of the first fruits of your harvest unto the priest. And he shall wave the sheaf before the Lord, to be accepted for you; on the morrow after the Sabbath the priest shall wave it. And ye shall offer that day when ye wave the sheaf an he-lamb without blemish, of the first fruits, for a burnt offering unto the Lord."

Here we see very plainly by the type that Christ was the first fruits of them that slept; not of them that are asleep, but that slept. Look at Jesus' words in Matt. 27: 50:—"Jesus, when he had cried again with a loud voice, yielded up the ghost. And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain, from the top to the bottom; and the earth did quake, and the rocks rent; and the graves were opened; and many bodies of the saints which slept arose, and came out of the graves after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many."

Some have told me that they went into the graves again, but I believe the Bible, which says they "went into the holy city." "But Jerusalem which is above is free, which is the mother of us all."—Gal. 4: 26. Now we see where those went which were raised after Christ's resurrection; into the holy city, Jerusalem, which is free, and is above.

John "saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband." John did not see it on the earth, but coming down from heaven; and it will be on the earth when Jesus comes, destroys all the wicked, and cleanses the earth. Then he will take his saints home into the new earth, into the holy city, with those that arose after his resurrection. What a blessed thought! "Wherefore he saith, when he ascended up on high he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men." He was on earth forty days before he ascended up on high. Then he led a multitude of captives, and gave gifts to men. Rom. 8: 29,—"For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first-born among many brethren. Moreover, whom he did predestinate, them he also called; and whom he called, them he also justified; and whom he justified, them he also glorified." Then it was the company which arose after his resurrection, and went into the holy city, and appeared unto many. Now they were glorified, not made perfect, for they can not be made perfect without us; they have not their inheritance, nor their crown. Paul says there is laid up a crown of glory for them that love His appearing. They will never get into the kingdom till Jesus comes; and then all the saints will enter at the same time.

Hear Isaiah (26: 20),—"Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee; hide thyself as it were for a moment, until the indignation be overpast; for, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity; the earth also shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain." Ps. 30: 5,—"For his anger endureth but a moment; in his favor is life; weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

I understand that the "mansions" in John 14: 2 are the same as in Isa. 26: 20; the "chambers" are the same. John saw the city coming down from heaven. Isaiah called them chambers. Blessed be God, it will be good enough if we can get there. God help us all to be ready. Benj. P. Manning.

Goffstown, N. H.

For the World's Crisis.

THE SIGN OF THE SON OF MAN.
WHAT IS IT?

It has often been a query with myself, and with many others whom I have heard speak of it, as to what would constitute this sign; some concluding that it would be the Savior himself; but I think this would not be a fair inference from the language employed, and that it certainly indicates a something that will immediately precede the coming of Christ, but which will be of so unmistakable a character, or so portentous and awful, as to cause "all the tribes of the earth to mourn"; for by it they will know that the end is at hand. This, too, may mark the time indicated by the act of the five foolish virgins, who are at last fully aroused and go to the five wise ones and desire "to buy oil," their lamps having gone out. But, alas! it is then too late. There will be "silence in heaven," and he "that is holy will be holy still," and he "that is filthy will be filthy still."

In the twenty-first chapter of Luke, from the twenty-first to the twenty-fourth verses, we have a period covered, extending from the destruction of Jerusalem to the ending of the times allotted the Gentile nations. In conjunction with this ending we are informed, at the twenty-fifth verse and on, that there shall be "signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations [not peoples], with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth." Then, as a reason why things are coming on the earth, it says, "For the powers of heaven shall be shaken."

Here Luke next introduces the coming of Christ. Matthew, in his account of the same conversation and replies of our Savior, particularizes the signs of the sun, moon, and stars; but while he does not tell us of the distress of nations and their perplexities, the sea and waves roaring, he does speak of the shaking of the powers of the heavens; and then adds (24: 30), "And then shall appear the sign of the Son of man in heaven; and then shall all the tribes of the earth mourn; . . and they shall see the Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory."

I wish now to call attention to the character of the language employed. Our Savior always indicates his points of time by the adverb then; as, for instance, "When ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then," etc. But as invariably groups events intervening between the thens with the conjunction and. If this fact was more generally observed, much confusion would be avoided.

We have now passed the darkening of the sun and moon, and the stars have fallen, and we are now having distress of nations, with perplexity, the sea and waves roaring; men are looking and exclaiming about the things coming on the earth; expressing their fears, and wondering what will be the end of it. Some are, no doubt, and others will soon be, disheartened. Sage philosophers and journalists tell us that passing events are "strange," and "extraordinary," and "unparalleled," and that the storms, as the result of siderial phenomena, exceed this year any previous history. They call it a "perturbed state of the heavens." Perturbation, agitation, and shaking, are synonymous terms.

When the electricity of the heavens, or our atmosphere, is in a state of equilibrium, the seasons are normal, and all goes right; but when it is disturbed by conjunctions of electrical currents, our atmosphere and even the earth itself become "perturbed," and we experience the effects in storms of greater or lesser extent and duration, and earthquakes. The powers of the heavens, i. e., the electricity thereof, has been agitated (say all our philosophers and secular papers) to an extent hitherto unknown. And they say, moreover, that this is but the beginning; for the causes that operate now are still at work, and augmenting, and that next year being the anniversary of the cycle of electrical storms which occur every eleven years, we may look for an increase of the unusual siderial phenomena we are now experiencing.

Is not this, then, the "shaking" predicted by our Savior in conjunction with the "distress of nations," "sea and waves roaring"? Most certainly it is; it is characteristically and chronologically correct; and we shall never have two fulfillments of the same event.

These signs are the grand pillar of light to the children of God, and speak to us in thunder tones, telling us we are there. If we were to lift up our heads and rejoice when we see these things begin to come to pass, we ought to shout for joy now all the time. If the apostles with their long night before them could endure, how ought we to glory in the cross!

O! blessed be God, dear brethren, the time hasteth greatly. Your prayers are being heard. Pray on a little longer. But then,—then what? Then, when you see the powers of the other events named; then, not some other time, then shall you see the sign of the Son of man in heaven.

The agitation of the heavens must continue till the sign is seen with the naked eye; for that is the obvious meaning. It will even then be a good way off, but coming; while the nations tremble at their inevitable doom. For the great hailstorm of the seventh vial will then be upon them, and men will seek the dens of the earth, and call for the mountains and rocks to fall on them and hide them from the face of Him who sitteth on the throne. W. K. Everson.

BLINDNESS OF THIS WORLD.

The blindness to the future exhibited by men, of this world is astonishing. Were they all unbelievers, their conduct would not seem so inexplicable. But acknowledging the truths of the Bible, and confessing the danger before them, they are madly rushing on to ruin. It must not be supposed that it is the ignorant or the weak alone of whom we speak. The brightest intellects of every age, with the greatest acquirements of earthly science and wisdom, are in the number. A Byron, a Chesterfield, a Webster, and a Raymond are but representative men of this class. Possessing extraordinary mental powers, and a vast fund of knowledge, man may yet be a fool, and in theory knowing what he is doing, involve his immortal interests in eternal bankruptcy. This seems so strange, that did we not see it proved by such a multitude of examples, we should certainly not receive it as true. The Scripture explains it: "The God of this world" hath blinded their eyes. "Seeing, they see not, and hearing, they do not understand." Their theory and conduct are paradoxical. They believe, and yet do not believe—do not realize. It may be fitly compared to the delusions of dreams, when the sleeper sees the dead, and yet knows that they are in the grave, and then examines his eyelids to determine whether he is dreaming.

It may be inquired whether man is necessarily in this condition. It will be readily answered that he is not. It is doubtless the result of stifling early convictions, and refusing that consideration which only can save us from stolid indifference. It is the result of doing violence to one's own conscience, and rejecting the counsels of God's Holy Spirit. It is a fearful, an awful thing; and yet it is what multitudes are doing in enlightened christian lands. There are only a few, comparatively, who are really awake to the dreadful condition of blinded sinners; and they are often considered as half-crazed enthusiasts. Many, to avoid such a charge as this, have endeavored to conform to the taste of perishing, deluded sinners. One has truly said that "the church is dying of respectability." The cry, "Thou art mad—these are drunken with new wine—these have come to turn the world upside down—it is he that troubleth Israel," would frighten those polite soothers at the bedside of spiritual death! They would not cry louder than Bottom's lion would roar: "gentle as a sucking dove." They decry all fervor as fanaticism, and all manifest interest as "animal excitement." A multitudinous cry of, "What shall we do?" or the loud, importunate cry of some Bartimeus, "Jesus, thou son of David, have mercy on me!" or the sight of some healed cripple, "walking and leaping and praising God," would so awaken those sleeping dumb dogs which nestle in some pulpits and pews, that they would growl if they cannot bark.

It is men of earnest prayer; it is such as "go forth weeping," and "warn every one night and day with tears;" it is live christians that a perishing world needs. It is those whose hearts beat warmly within their bosoms, and those whose very being is alive with interest for the salvation of a perishing world, who are needed as laborers in the ministry or in the laity. We are glad that every evangelical church has such men. We think, too, while the indications of the times are to worldliness, that there are equally strong indications all over the land of an awakening to the interests of evangelization. The christian church of America is furnished with not a few who are as a flame of fire in their Master's service, and of whom as of him the saying is true, "The zeal of thine house hath eaten me up." We need the spirit of the old prophet, who said: "For Zion's sake I will not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth." We need an earnest ministry, and an earnest church, to keep pace in righteousness and gospel simplicity with an age fast in folly and wickedness.—Telescope.

For the World's Crisis.

ORIGEN.—WHO WAS HE?

We often refer to this man when we are calling attention to the two methods of interpretation, the literal and the spiritual, and perhaps a few facts of his history and opinions may be interesting.

He was born in Alexandria, Egypt, on the coast of the Mediterrean, in the year A. D. 185, and died A. D. 254, aged sixty-nine years.

When quite a child his father used to say, "Something great is hid in his breast." And no man ever proved the peculiarity of that sort of greatness he possessed than he, for he stands as the prince of spiritual interpreters of the word of God. His position was, that "there is a double sense to the Bible, the literal, which all can understand, and another, deeper meaning, which is the real meaning, the spiritual; and, hence, the spiritual is superior to the literal. He had been in his grave ninety-three years when Chrysostom was born, who was acknowledged to be more clear and sober than he in understanding the word, and who said of him that "he advanced many strange and erroneous opinions."

Perthes, Origen's biographer, says, "In the Bible he found much which neither the fathers nor we could find in it, and, instead of interpreting out of the Bible, he interpreted many strange things into it."

It was Origen's favorite theory, that "that which is holy can only be understood by the holy. The word is in me, and I can understand the word."

He was converted from heathenism to christianity and became remarkable for his abstemiousness and asceticism, even resorting to such rigorous means as but few think advisable. Being a heathen, and of the school of immortal-soul philosophers, he introduced the doctrine into the church, and "interpreted" it "into the Bible," and by his mystical, allegorical interpretations spirtualizing the Bible to harmonize with his views.

He was a restorationist, and to him belongs the honor of the wonderful discovery of a doctrine in the Bible which never was there; to wit, that happiness, and bliss eternal, are the ultimate destiny of all the race of Satan. The modern restorationists and universalists, and even the so-called evangelicals, so far as they adopt the spiritual method of interpretation, are Origenistic, whether they acknowledge his leadership or not.

Origen taught that the account of Eden and the fall was allegorical; that the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead is to be understood as relating to a spiritual awaking. And all other truths of the Bible, which a clear, literal, sensible view of the word reveals, are mystified and buried out of sight by his system.

The literal rendering of the word—that which makes the Bible read like any other book, and applies the same rules of interpretation as apply to all other books, to wit, the laws of language, with the literal primary meaning as the basis, and all rhetorical figures and tropes to be understood in harmony with the plain statements—that rendering is the only true one; and he who abuses the Bible and language so much as to spiritualize it, and leave no certain literal basis of interpretation, does it at his peril, and at the sacrifice of truth. L. C. McKinstry.

For the World's Crisis.

THERE'S A BRIGHTER WORLD THAN THIS."

World of sorrow, world of sighing,
Everywhere it seemeth drear;
Friends are fading, drooping, dying,
How can we be happy here?
Oft out hearts are filled with sorrow
'Mid the changing scenes of night,
Flowers may bloom, but ere the morrow
They are faded from our sight.

Earthly friends despise and leave us,
Prove to us unkind, untrue;
But though all the world forsake us,
We've a brighter land in view;
Where there are no tears, nor sadness,
Partings then will all be o'er,
All our grief be turned to gladness,
Friends we love will change no more.

Then, amid the gloom and suffering
That surround our pathway here,
We can wait in patience, knowing
Our redemption draweth near.
We shall evermore be happy
When we see that beauteous day;
We shall wear a crown of glory,
That shall never fade away.

Glad we'll change this world of sorrow
For a home of fadeless joy,
Where no sin will e'er disturb us,
Naught our comfort will destroy.
Till we hear our Savior calling,
We will wait, and watch, and pray;
Soon we'll hail the glorious dawning
Of that bright, eternal day.

Concord, N. H. Mary V. Saltmarsh.

For the World's Crisis.

WIN CHRIST AND WIN SOULS.

What should be the chief aim and object of our labor and effort in this life? Will the reader pause and answer this question for himself before reading further?

It is easy to tell what men do strive and labor for; but the question is, what should they seek, and what should be the object at which they should aim?

Paul had his eye on the mark, and the prize—the object which all should strive to obtain. What was his aim? The race which he was running was not an uncertain one, and in the battle which he fought he was well assured of final victory.

Was it not the chief object of Paul's life (1) to win Christ, and (2) to win souls to him? He suffered the loss of all else, and rejoiced in all his sufferings, counting all the treasures of earth but dross, and all its pleasures unworthy of a thought, while he sought to "win Christ, and be found in him . . . that I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, . . . if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead." Phil. 3: 7.

Let this be our aim, to win Christ for ourselves, and to win souls for him. "He that winneth souls is wise." Prov. 11: 30. Daniel says, "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars forever and ever." And Jesus says, "Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father."

To know Christ and to be made like him; to be clothed in his righteousness, and to lead others also to him, should be the constant aim of every one. The reward is great, even life eternal, and all the untold and uncounted treasures of bliss prepared for those who are saved at last. F. H. Chamberlain.

Webster, Mass.

— Jesus hath many lovers of his heavenly kingdom, but few bearers of his cross. All desire to rejoice with him; few are willing to endure anything for him. Many follow Jesus unto the breaking of bread, but few to the drinking of the cup of his passion. Many reverence his miracles, few follow the ignominy of his cross.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CHURCH THEN AND TO-DAY

Bro. Grant:—In reading the seventh chapter of Luke a few days since, the last clause of the twenty-second verse attracted my attention more particularly than ever before. You will recall the words ("To the poor the gospel is preached"), as one of the proofs which our dear Lord sent back to John the Baptist of the former's Messiahship. It will seem so appropriate when we consider a moment the sad condition of the poor in that Pharisaical age. Borne down by the handwriting of ordinances and the traditions of the learned rabbis, who, wrapped up in self-righteousness, looked down upon them in scorn, and treated them as outcasts and sinners.

The glory of Israel fast departing, and the beautiful Temple which was erected as the house of God made a house of merchandise and a den of thieves, to whom could the poor suffering Jew go for hope and consolation? But One came who was touched with tender compassion for them, and who talked to them about the promises made to Abraham, and of the coming kingdom; and in a plain, simple, yet sublime manner told them how to go in and possess it. O how glad they must have been to have heard him. How they hung upon his lips as they flocked from all quarters to hear him. So John knew that "He was he who should come and restore all things."

But the great fact I wish to bring out more particularly in this communication is the analogy between the state of the Jewish church in the time of John the Baptist, and the Christian church (so-called) of to-day. First, then, as at that time the Jewish church was divided into numerous sects, so is the nominal Christian church of to-day. As the learned (?) Rabbis were then ever wrangling in profound debate upon old, dead dogmas founded upon a false interpretation of the Scriptures, while the poor, perishing for pure gospel food, went out gladly to hear Jesus; even so now, the learned Reverends, Right Rev's, and D. D.'s, are ever disputing and contending over ceremonies and non-essential dogmas, while poor sinners are perishing all around them for the want of gospel nourishment.

As then the pride of the Jews, especially of the rich and honored, was in their costly synagogues and great Temple, and their delight was in having the highest seats in them; so now, the nominal Christian churches vie with each other in erecting costly church edifices, and the greatest desire of wealthy christians seems to be to get the best and choicest pews in them. As then the poor, the sick, and the maimed, were shut out from the society of the learned and rich, and were compelled to take the lowest seats in the synagogues; so now, by reason of the pride and fashion of wealthy christians, the costly display of dress and jewelry, are the poor completely separated from them, and thousands, yea, millions of hard-working sons of toil, are kept away from our churches, or, if crucifying their pride they do occasionally go to them, are by reason of "rented pews" compelled to take the back seats. And so the poor are starving for gospel food, as in the time of our Savior's first advent.

Suppose some one, like John, should to-day send a messenger to one of our Reverends, or D. D.'s, or Right Rev. D. D.'s, and ask him if he was a disciple of the true Messiah; could he truthfully send back word, as did the Savior, for proof of such discipleship, that "to the poor the gospel is preached"? I fear, if he did, in most cases it would not be true. I am certain that in many cases it would not be true.

Again, in the time of John the Baptist, the great truth which God wished preached was repentance, preparatory to the coming of the Lord; and, said John, "One mightier than I cometh," etc., etc. (Luke 3: 16); for the people had wondered whether or not John could be the promised Christ. So John told them better, and also told them when he would come, and what he would do after he had come. So now, the great truth which it seems to me that God wants his messengers to proclaim is, "Behold the Bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him"; and millions are perishing for lack of such preaching.

But do they hear it in our churches? O how the masses need the gospel of the kingdom preached unto them. How they would like to hear all about the King—his territory, and his subjects; his beautiful government, and the eternal joy and happiness with which he will reward his faithful people when he comes to reign. These are the living, present truths which the masses long to hear about, and for the lack of which they are scattered abroad like sheep without a shepherd. But the churches are as silent as the grave upon them.

O Zion! how I mourn over your low estate. I greatly fear that the nominal Christian church is in much the same condition as was the Jewish church in the time of John the Baptist. And I believe that this is the reason why the masses are losing interest in religion and in church going.

They do not have the gospel of the kingdom preached unto them when they go there, and so they keep away. Oh, that Christ would raise up a few brave and earnest christian men in this city to go forth full of the love of souls, and full of the Holy Ghost, to preach the gospel to the poor.

We have all read of what became of the proud Jews, and their costly temple and synagogue, a few years after Jesus left them. And may we not fear that a like reward is awaiting our modern churches, and their proud and wealthy communicants, when the Bridegroom shall come and shut to the now open door?

God grant they may arouse themselves, and go and fill their lamps and cans with oil before it is forever too late, is the earnest prayer of one who expects soon to meet his Lord. Yours in the good hope,

Chicago, Ill. G. R. Clarke.

For the World's Crisis.

LONG SERMONS.

Cannot something be said or done to bring about a reform, and stop such a universal complaint about long sermons?

A few days ago an old, tried brother in Connecticut said to me, "Bro. Munger, cannot something be said to induce our preachers to stop before they kill us all out?" He was willing to pay liberally to sustain meetings, but he got tired out with long sermons.

Said he, "Two weeks ago we sat one hour and a half to hear a forenoon sermon, hoping the one in the afternoon would be shorter; but it was two hours lacking ten minutes, and a hint was given to the preacher while eating supper by candle light, which made him promise to be short in the evening; but it availed nothing. We had to endure two hours more, and then liberty was given for others to speak, but it was a dead set."

"The last two preachers have tired us all out, and if you know of any one who will come to preach a sermon in fifty or sixty minutes, and then let the people talk, tell me who he is."

I could not. There are but few, and those he could not get. There is a general complaint of long sermons. I asked this brother why he did not speak to the long-winded preachers about it.

He replied, "They will not write against their own course."

I have got tired of writing on this subject, and suppose Bro. Grant and others have, for it does seem that most if not all of this class of preachers are given over to hardness of heart in this respect, and will not take advice, even when courtesy and common sense demand it. When the experiences of such godly men as Wesley, Fletcher, Luther, and a host of reformation preachers agree that a sermon of forty-five to fifty minutes is better than an hour, then think of those so far inferior to them running an hour and a half to two hours! I feel thankful to God and his people that they do not lay this sin to my charge.

While writing this, a woman told me how tired she got attending an Advent meeting in Chicopee Falls, when the preacher held them till nearly ten o'clock, and preached all of the good feeling out of her.

Some of the tent meetings have failed of doing the good that they would have done if they had been wisely managed. A lady who went to one of the tent meetings at Hampton, N. H., last fall, tells me that the meeting began at seven o'clock and held till half-past ten. The sermon began with a large audience, and closed an hour and three quarters later, with one half the number of hearers. Then followed several long exhortations, consuming another hour, and making the congregation still smaller, after which sinners were invited forward.

This lady was at Rye Beach for her health, rode four miles to meeting, and sat three hours and a half on a hard seat, which had no back, and came away with a poor opinion of the Advent tent meeting on this account. Who would n't?

I think that within three months I have heard fifty just such complaints. It takes but a few good points to make up an interest in a meeting, and then others will work in the filling, which always makes a good web.

Our Advent ministers are missing it in preaching such long sermons. God does not bless it, as you know, if you are a man of good judgment. The very ones who preach long admit that short sermons are best. One brother said the church clock was of no use to most of the preachers, and they had let it run down. It has become a proverb among outsiders in some places that Adventists preach so long they will not go to hear them.

Sermons are one third too long on an average for the good of the cause. There is something for each church to do in this matter. Set your seal to this by dropping a letter to Bro. Grant for the Crisis, and speak out as a church; this will be effectual, if anything will. Let us all go in for a reform in this thing.

H. Munger.

Chicopee Falls, Nov. 24th, 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

HOAG'S VISION.

In a recent number of the "Crisis" is published "Joseph Hoag's Vision," as published in his book, which has been largely circulated among the society called "Friends." It stands to-day a significant fact that, up to the present history of our country, the "vision" has been literally fulfilled. This being true, many eyes, both among the "Friends" and all other classes, are turned with deep interest to the remaining part of the vision.

The grand items that remain yet to be fulfilled, according to the vision as published, are the springing up of a "monarchical power," and the establishment of a "national religion." Here the vision leaves us in the dark, only assuring us that "this power shall not always stand." "With it the church is chastised," and that all this is for "iniquity," and the "blood of Africa."

I had read this vision before, and regarded it with interest; but always felt that it closed in rather an abrupt and unsatisfactory manner. Upon reading it in the Crisis, my interest became much intensified by your statement that "the closing part of the vision was omitted by those who published it," and that the "personal coming of the Lord" was seen by him, "closing the scene." Now I wish to inquire, through the "Crisis," to what extent can this statement be authenticated? i. e., that "Hoag saw the personal coming of the Lord."

It is not a matter of idle curiosity that leads me to further inquiry in regard to this vision, but I consider it of vital importance just in these present times, inasmuch as a large portion of the so-called vision has come to pass. Many anticipate confidently that the remainder will be fulfilled. And if the Lord spake through Joseph Hoag, directly warning us of coming events, it is doubtless agreeable to his will that the whole should be revealed. And perhaps it remains for us who look and hope for his glorious appearing, to be instrumental in bringing to light the remainder of the vision.

I reside in a vicinity where there are many of the society of "Friends." I have conversed with some in regard to your statement that a part was omitted. By some it is stoutly denied; by others frankly admitted, that it was said to be published only in part. I learn that the vision in original manuscript is held by some of Hoag's descendants, but cannot now tell by whom, or where. Let us search out the hidden things that remain.

H. J. Munson.

For the World's Crisis.

FORBEARANCE.

There is a great lack of forbearance among those who are looking for Jesus. We see failings in some brother or sister, and because we do not happen to be possessed of the same kind, we misjudge and denounce them as christians, when perhaps our own failing or besetting sin is equally as bad or worse than theirs, only we cannot see them in ourselves, unless we have the Spirit of Christ continually abiding with us. Hence the necessity of keeping in the unity of the Spirit, and also having an understanding of human nature; for we are all differently constituted, and probably no two have dispositions exactly alike. It will be impossible for us to see and understand all points of doctrine alike, though possessed of the same spirit; and as most of us are a little inclined to be willful, trouble will arise, unless forbearance holds the reins now and then; and we do not have much to bear from the world, seemingly, if crucified to it, then we ought to bear with each other; for Satan sees just how it is; if he cannot allure us with worldly things, he will of course try some other method. Nothing will be left untried by him. He creeps into the church and creates discord among its members; sets them to backbiting, tattling, and faultfinding; hence the necessity of understanding each other's dispositions in order to rightly know how to deal with each other.

But some may say there is no necessity of that, if we only have the Spirit of Christ. Very true. But any one who does not have and never had the Spirit of Christ, will possess much greater forbearance by having an understanding of human nature and the great difference in dispositions, than if he had paid no attention to the study of it.

Paul's understanding of human nature did not hurt him, but was beneficial. When he was with the Romans, he understood in what way to do as the Romans did, and in what way not to. How often we find those in the church whose self-esteem predominates over the other faculties; consequently he requires distinction: wishes to be looked up to, and if willful wants his say and own way in every respect. If all do not yield, there is trouble, especially if there are others some like him. Thus it needs much forbearance and wisdom to deal with such. Experience and observation teach us that the less we multiply words with them, and the less notice we take of them, the better.

Others, we find, whose reverence and caution predominate, cause them to be backward and diffident. These have to be dealt with the reverse of the others. Another permits his combativeness to take the reins; then there is trouble enough; for if a point of doctrine is discussd which does not happen to meet his views, he flies into a passion, and discards all who will not yield to his arguments, and thus keep up a broil unless others are wise enough to take no notice of him. Others are led by their approbativeness and certain other faculties, which cause them to be so jealous and sensitive, that if one word is spoken amiss, or not particularly in their praise, they think they are misused and abused, and so withdraw themselves from the church, or something worse.

Another is fault-finding. This is most almost always caused by backsliding a little No matter what faculties predominate, whether good or bad, as soon as one begins to backslide he begins to find fault and criticise. If the minister or the other members talk too loud, too low, or ungrammatically, or not exactly to his mind, then they are discarded as christians. And if the other members get revived, and are striving hard for the right, the more there will be for the fault-finder to do and say. Thus if he is noticed, there will be trouble in the camp continually; but the best way is to shame him out of it, by letting him alone.

So there are many other things which might be spoken of pertaining to the necessity of forbearance, but these examples will suffice. These faculties are all good in their places, and can be cultivated for good or for bad use; if we have the Spirit of Christ continually abiding with us it will keep each in their place.

I hope we shall each study ourselves, that we may have that forbearance which was so marked a characteristic of Christ our great pattern. D. B.

— Some have borne crosses painted upon their backs. It is to be feared that many among ourselves take up crosses which sit just as lightly—things of ornament, passports to respectability, a cheap substitute for a struggle we never made and a crown we never strove for.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Boston, Wednesday, Dec. 1, 1869.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Money Orders.

☞ Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

☞ TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis, we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber has his or her name, with the date of the month and year to which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or on the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ D. W. ELLENWOOD—You paid only $1.25 at campmeeting.

☞ M. G. S.—It was received all right, and will be forwarded Dec. 1st, as desired.

☞ C. COLEGROVE—You will see by this paper that your duplicate is not needed.

THE NATIONAL CONFERENCE.

The late National Conference, held in Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 17th to 22nd, was the best we ever enjoyed, without exception. We never felt more conscious of the guiding hand of the Lord in any meeting than this. So far as we could learn, everybody present was delighted with it. It was very cheering to hear the expressions of gratitude to the Lord for the privilege of being present, and for the great benefit received. This conference has opened a new era in the history of the people looking for the coming of Jesus. A new cord has been added to the bond of union by which we are united to Christ and each other; our hopes have been brightened, our faith strengthened, hearts cheered, courage increased, and new life has been given to those who stand as watchmen upon the walls of Zion. When we parted we felt a oneness not before experienced for twenty-five years.

When subjects were up for debate, on which there was an honest difference of opinion, the discussions were conducted in a kind, christian spirit, which made them very pleasant and interesting; and when the final vote was taken, the minority might be seen smiling with as cheerful countenances as though they had been on the side of the majority. We think a conference has rarely been held, in which so much has been done with such a general good feeling among all its members. The more we have of such conferences the better.

Our conferences and prayer-meetings were seasons of special refreshing to all who were lovers of Jesus. We think no one regretted their travel and expense necessary to be present at the convention. It was one of those scenes upon which memory loves to dwell and feast, when not necessarily employed upon other things. It was an oasis in this sin-cursed earth, where we enjoyed the smiles of the Redeemer, and feasted on heavenly manna, on the strength of which we may live more than "forty days."

During the conference we had excellent preaching, which was highly appreciated by the large audiences present. The armory hall, in which the conference, was held, is in a fine building, and is one hundred feet long and eighty feet wide. This hall is on the ground floor. Over this is another of the same size, where the church in Rochester spread liberal tables for the entertainment of the members of the conference. At night there was no lack of good homes and kind friends where we found a hearty welcome. We all felt that the conference was located at the right place.

At the close of the Sabbath evening sermon by Bro. Couch, we gathered around a long table to commemorate the death and sufferings of Jesus. Some two hundred and fifty sat around the table. It was a heavenly season, and a beautiful sight. Tears flowed from many eyes, as thoughts of Gethsemane's sorrow and Calvary's agony came fresh to mind, suggested by the surrounding scenes, the bread and wine. With the tears were mingled joyful emotions, when we looked forward to the coming antitype—"the marriage supper of the Lamb," now so near, when all the dear saints will meet to part no more for ever. The whole scene seemed like the ante-chamber of heaven. The memory of it is blessed.

As the secretary's minutes are to be published in the Crisis, we will not say more.

ROCHESTER.

At the close of the National Conference, the interest was such that the church in Rochester, in connection with Bro. H. Pratt, their faithful and devoted pastor, decided to continue meetings every evening during the week. Accordingly, we began on Monday evening, Nov. 22nd, when some dozen came forward for prayers, and confessed they wished to be christians. Last night (Nov. 23d), some eight or ten new ones came forward, and all spoke of their earnest desire to become the followers of Christ. The prospect for good is very promising. We hope to see many give their hearts to Jesus before the close of the meetings. Pray for us.

THE UNRIGHTEOUS MAMMON.

BRO. GRANT:—Will you please give your opinion upon Luke 16; 9? C. W. NELSON.

The verse reads as follows:—"Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that when ye fail they may receive you into everlasting habitations." The word "mammon" is equivalent to "riches." This unjust steward had "wasted" his Master's goods; so, "the children of this world" are wasting the goods of our heavenly Master; i. e., they are not using them for his glory. When the steward diminished the debtors' bills, they evidently supposed it was by the authority, or consent, of their noble creditor, through the advice of the steward; hence both the steward and the creditor were esteemed and loved by the debtors more than ever, causing them to feel a pleasure in doing what they could for the steward's comfort. In this act of diminishing the bills, the steward was not wasting the goods as before; but he was using them so as to exalt the goodness and benevolence of the noble creditor. It may be said, He gave to the debtors what was not his own. Very true; so, when the christian gives to the needy, or forgives a debt, he gives what is not his own; for all the treasures of the earth are the Lord's, and his children should use them to aid the poor and needy; and then these gifts stand as witnesses in their favor, having been used for the glory of the Author of all good, instead of being "wasted" for selfish purposes.

FATHER HYACINTHE.

There is much of interest connected with "Father Hyacinthe," the late Superior of the Barefooted Carmelites of Paris, and preacher of the conferences of Notre Dame. He is a man of no ordinary talent. His countenance very much resembles that of Napoleon I. He has been the preacher for Napoleon III.; and we think there is but little room for doubt that his visit to the United States is in the interests of his Emperor. A work is issued this day (Nov. 25th,) entitled "Father Hyacinthe's Discourses and Life." Price $1.25. It is a book of no ordinary interest. The style is elegant, beautiful, eloquent. The book is full of rich thoughts, on themes in harmony with the policy of Napoleon III.

We give below his "Preparatory Letter" to Leonard W. Bacon, Brooklyn, N. Y., as follows:—

PREFATORY LETTER FROM FATHER HYACINTHE.

To the Rev. Leonard W. Bacon, Brooklyn:—

Reverend Sir.—I am as much gratified as surprised at the honor you are disposed to do to the few discourses I have published in Europe. Some of them are actually the production of my pen; but these are very few, and relate to circumstances of time and place which I fear will have no interest for American readers. The others, more important in their object, since they are part of the course of Conferences instituted at Notre Dame by the Archbishop of Paris, are extant only in detached parts, taken down hastily in short-hand, and the gaps filled by an imperfect summary.

I should have been glad, I acknowledge, if I could have brought to America something less unworthy of the sympathy with which I have been welcomed here, and which I shall always reckon among the greatest honors and the purest joys of my life.

Such as they are, however, I commit these rude productions to the indulgence of your readers. Frenchman and Catholic as I am, I present them, through your hands, to that great American public of which you are a citizen, to those numerous and flourishing Protestant churches of which you are a minister.

I am proud of my France, but I deem it one of its most solid glories to have contributed to the independence of this noble country, which it has never ceased to love, and which it shall some day learn to imitate;—a people with which liberty is something else than a barren theory or a bloody practice; with which the cause of labor is never confounded with that of revolution, and never divorced from that of religion; and which, rearing under all forms and denominations its houses of prayer amid its houses of commerce and finance, crowns its noisy and productive week with the sweetness and majesty of its Lord's day. "And on the seventh day it ends the work which it has made, and rests the seventh day from all its work which it has made." Gen. 2: 2.

I remain faithful to my Church; and if I have lifted up my protest against the excesses which dishonor it and seem bent upon its ruin, you may measure the intensity of my love for it by the bitterness of my lamentation. When He who is in all things our Master and our Example armed himself with the scourge against the profaners of the Temple, his disciples remembered that it was written, "The zeal of thy house hath eaten me up." I remain faithful to my church; but I am none the less sensible of the interest which will be taken in other churches in what I may say or do within the pale of Catholicism. And on the other hand, I have never deemed that the Christian communions separated from Rome were disinherited of the Holy Ghost, and without a part in the immense work of the preparation of the kingdom of God. In my intercourse with some of the most pious and learned of their members, I have experienced, in those depths of the soul where illusion is impossible, the unutterable blessing of the communion of saints. Whatever divides us externally in space and time, vanishes like a dream before that which unites us within,—the grace of the same God, the blood of the same Christ, the hopes of the same eternity. Whatever our prejudices, our alienations, or our irritations, under the eye of God, who seeth what we cannot see,—under his hand, which leadeth us whither we would not go,—we are all laboring in common for the upbuilding of that church of the future which shall be the church of the past in its original purity and beauty; but shall have gathered to itself, besides, the depth of its analyses, the breadth of its syntheses, the experience of its toils, its struggles, and its griefs through all these centuries.

In the sad days of schism and captivity, the word of the Lord came to the prophet Ezekiel, saying, "Thou Son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, 'For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions;' then take another stick, and write upon it, 'For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and all the house of Israel his companions;' and join them one to another into one stick, and they shall become one in thy hand."—Ezk. 16: 17.

To me, likewise, who am the least of christians, in those spiritual visions which are ever vouchsafed to longing souls, the Lord hath spoken. He hath placed in my hand these two sundered and withered branches—Rome and the children of Israel who follow her; the churches of the Reformation and the nations that are with them. I have pressed them together on my heart, and under the outpouring of my tears I have so joined them that henceforth they might make but one tree. But men have laughed to scorn my effort, seemingly so mad, and have asked of me, as of that ancient seer, "Wilt thou not show us what thou meanest by these things?" Ezk. 16: 18. And while I gaze upon that trunk so bare and mutilated, even now I seem to see the brilliant blossom and the savory fruit.

"One God, one faith, one baptism."

"And there shall be one flock and one shepherd." BROTHER HYACINTHE.

Highland Falls, All-Souls Day, Nov. 2, 1869.

ORDINATION.—At the National Conference, held in Rochester, Bro. D. Lawson, of Quebec, P. Q., was set apart to the work of the ministry. He is a worthy brother, and we commend him to the sympathy and support of all the churches, where he may be called to labor.

DISCUSSION.—We purpose to have a discussion with Elder E. Fletcher, in Bonney Eagle, Me., commencing Tuesday evening, Dec. 14th, to continue four or five evenings. The subject for discussion relates to the nature of man.

INQUIRY.

BRO. GRANT:—We read in Rom. 6: 23, "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." The sinner has gone down in death; has he received the wages of sin, or will he be raised to life again in the resurrection, to receive punishment, and then be put back to death again? JOHN W. STOKES.

The apostle Peter informs us that "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished." 2 Pet. 2: 9. This scripture, in harmony with all other, most plainly teaches that the final punishment of the wicked is not till after the judgment; therefore they must be raised from the dead before it can take place. This position is in full harmony with Rev. 20: 13, as follows:—"The sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged, every man according to their works." Here it is shown that the dead in the sea and hades, are not judged till after their resurrection from the dead; consequently, their punishment does not begin with the first death. During the time they remain in the grave, they are simply reserved "unto the day of judgment to be punished." This we think is the plain teaching of the Bible.

THE SPIRIT OF SPIRITUALISM.

The following from Moses Hull's Monthly Clarion, Oct. 1866, shows the true feeling of an advanced Spiritualist. Such only mock at the Bible, and the God of the Bible. They are most deadly hostile to all that is pure and holy, connected with Christ and christianity. Let the article speak for itself:—

"GOD WAS THERE.—His Excellency the President of the United States has been 'swinging around in a circle,' drinking rum and making speeches on 'my policy.' He has been near us, yet we had not regard enough for him to go and see him; but another more important personage has been to visit the editor of the Voice of the West, and about seven hundred others; which, had he advertised, so that the thing could have been known in time, several of us Wisconsin sinners would have gone to see.

The Voice of the West, in describing the Wilbraham (Mass.) campmeeting, says: 'In the evening, after the people departed, the camp family attended to the communion. Over seven hundred sat down to the table of the Lord. It was one of those scenes that the pen lacks power to describe. God was there! and his people had an unspeakable blessing.'

Elder Himes, of course, does not mean to say that 'God was there' in the general sense that he is everywhere. That would be no news, and the 'seven hundred' of the 'camp family' would have enjoyed no more than some of us who remained at home. He must mean that God left his great big throne to attend Elder Himes' campmeeting. Such a tete a tete is worth going to Wilbraham for, and if the Elder will positively assure us that we will see the old gentleman there next year, we will certainly join the delegation from Wisconsin."

THE TALENTS.

BRO. GRANT:—It is expected that preachers and teachers know every thing, therefore I write to you for an explanation of the parable recorded in Matt. 25: 14–30. Why was the "one talent" not divided between the other two servants, as they both receive the same blessing from their Lord? Does Luke 19: 11–28 refer to the same subject.

Yours in Christ, B. W. DAVIS.

The scripture referred to reads as follows:—"For the kingdom of heaven is as a man traveling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods. And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey. Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents. And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two. But he that had received one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money. After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them. And so he that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents; behold, I have gained besides them five talents more. His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. He also that had received two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliveredest unto me two talents; behold, I have gained two other talents beside them. His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. Then he which had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed; and I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth; lo, there thou hast that is thine. His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed; thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury. Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents. For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance; but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath. And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

We understand that the "man traveling into a far country" represents Christ; the "talents," the light and truth entrusted to our care, to be used for the glory of God, according to our ability. All men have not the same ability to comprehend all points; hence, are not required to do as much. Some can understand prophecy, chronology, and all the great truths of the Bible. If the man who has the ability to comprehend all this should only let a part of his light shine, he would not meet the approval of his Lord. The man with the one talent has only to improve that one, then he will have done all that is required at his hands. He has not the ability to do but little, hence is required to do no more than his ability will allow. The reason why the man with the "one talent" was condemned as a wicked and slothful servant," was because he had done nothing. Because he could not be first, he would not do any thing. Pride has much influence in keeping the one-talented from doing their duty. Like the one in the parable, they are "afraid."

We understand the parable in Matt. 25: 14–30 to teach that some men have greater ability to do good than have others; and that each is required to do what he can in order to be accepted. Had the man with the one talent improved what was intrusted to his care, he would have met the same approval as the others.

In answer to the inquiry, "Why was the one talent not divided between the other two servants?" we would remark, we do not know as the talent could be divided; if not, it should be given to some one; and the man who could do the most would be the most proper individual to improve still more.

It seems very probable that Luke 9: 11–28, does refer to the same as Matt. 25: 14–30. Much more might be said on the subject, but this may suffice for the present.

THE "COLLOQUY."—We have received a pamphlet, entitled "A Colloquy between Dr. A. Campbell's 'extra' on life and death, as extracted by 'Bosworth' and C. F. Sweet." It is published by Bro. C. F. Sweet, Albion, N. Y. Price 10 cts. single; two copies 15 cts.; four for 25 cts.; 60 cents a dozen; twenty-five for $1.00; $4.00 a hundred.

THE COMING OF OUR KING.

The coming of Jesus is a precious theme, never ceasing to afford consolation and refreshment. It is not soon tiresome and exhausted of interest, but a perpetual fountain of joys; frontmost, midmost, and topmost, amid all hopes the most fruitful of themes, and lending sweetness to everything related to it. It stands a tower of glory amid Bible topics and promises, itself the best and fairest promise. Why is it unwelcome to many who profess a love for the Savior? Why is it disapproved, discouraged, disrelished, and dismissed, when, where, and by whom it should be welcomed, loved, cherished and defended? Why is it not eagerly received into Christian societies and associations as the most delightful subject of conversation? Why is it so hard and so rare to find an avenue or a means of its introduction into religious assemblies? Why is there such an array of opposition to it?

Alas! it is deemed an innovating and obtrusive theme. But it is sweet, grand, and powerful, notwithstanding. Around it revolve a glorious array of vital Bible truths, and from it issue unspeakably important results. The coming of Christ is the great hope of the church, and, rightly understood, is her only hope and supreme necessity. It is not a subordinate concern, but first, single, and absolute, as a fixed condition to any and every future fruition beyond this life. Without it there can be no immortality, no eternal life.

No wonder then, it is of such towering proportions in the teaching of the word of God, and in the esteem of the rightly instructed believer. But in what a maze of darkness is the mass of christiankind in our day involved respecting it! Darkness, which is nevertheless disavowed and unperceived. Darkness in regard to related events, both as signs and consequences; darkness in regard to the order and manner and time of the advent, a darkness which amounts, to a great extent, to a practical negation of the fact itself, and a practical neglect of the event in the very time and act of its nearly prepared and tremendously imminent advance. Why is it thus, and how long shall it be thus? Nevertheless, the wise can understand and rejoice in the onward march of events, as couriers going just before the hour and power of the return of the High Priest and Prince of the people of God, to reign forevermore.—Ex.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR WORK TELLS.

It is a source of encouragement to see disciples of our Lord multiply as the results of our labors; and to realize that society is made better by the truths we teach, and the influence of our example.

It is also gratifying to see the friends of Jesus giving up errors to accept the precious truths of the gospel in their stead. But these results are not seen fully nor understood in all their realities by the faithful workers in the vineyard.

Those who are opposed to our work and stand on the watch to guard our citadels, their darling sectarian lines, and their disciples, against the encroachments of innovators, errorists, and disturbers of their peace, often see and mark our progress and the effects of our labors much quicker than we do; and from their cry and counter operations, we may be sure that we have not labored in vain.

This index also gives us much satisfaction. Apply this rule to our efforts to reform the minds and teachings of theological thinkers and teachers. While many are known to have given up their false ideas of the immortality of the soul, conscious intermediate state of the dead, and the eternal misery of the wicked, for the scriptural doctrine on these points, to gladden our hearts; yet the thousands who are under conviction on these points may be safely counted by the mighty efforts of opposers, shown in their sermons, religious papers, books and tracts, which swarm like bees; seeking by all their silence, wit and cant, to retain their theology uninjured, or to repair damages where it has been exploded. Let us continue to work. I. C. WELLCOME.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, September 2nd, at the National Campmeeting, it was

Resolved, That we raise THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the Tract Fund the ensuing year.

It is proposed to raise this amount during the year for the publication and free distribution of tracts. The value of these little preachers in the work of enlightening and saving men from darkness and death can hardly be overestimated; and the generous and liberal stewards of the Lord's money are earnestly invited to contribute acording to their ability in aid of the good work. Send on your dimes and dollars, brethren, with a liberal hand, and receive, by and by, the reward of the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec. Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$118.79
E. Hall (by M. Grant)	5.00
M. E. Stone	.75

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$29.00
John Dick	.31

AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All donations and payments of pledges for this Society, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments		$278.90
J. M. Stetler	Collected by J. V. Himes	10.00
John Kern		5.00
A Lady		1.00
		1.00

EUROPEAN MISSION.

Previous acknowledgments	$17.00
E. Hall	5.00
J. M'Clellan	1.00
P. W. Higgin	5.00

For the World's Crisis.

OUR MISSIONARY WORK.

We wish to inform the brethren and friends of Missions among us, that the General Conference just organized will, without doubt, take this department of our work into their hands, as soon as it can be arranged in a legal form. Till then, the present Board will act in the councils of the new Board of the General Conference. At Rochester, members of the two Boards met in council, and decided upon the following things:

First. That the St. Louis Mission be discontinued for the present.

Second. That the Memphis Mission be continued.

Third. That we do not open any new Mission among the freedmen at present.

Fourth. That two able missionaries be appointed, by request of the General Conference, to go into the South, and raise up new societies, and otherwise spread the truth.

The Board have no funds on hand at this time to carry on their operations: and so they make their appeal to the friends of missions for help.

Our present expenses, after discontinuing the St. Louis Mission, are much reduced. We can carry on the present missions of the Board for about one thousand dollars a year. But if we appoint and send out the two new missionaries, as proposed, we shall need, at least, three thousand to meet expenses.

The special attention of the brethren and sisters is called to this subject, and we appeal to all for help. It is for the brethren to say what we shall do. Let all consider the subject, and respond without delay, or the work will cease. In behalf of the Board,

J. V. HIMES.

P. S.—Send to GEO. T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover St., Boston, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

THE DISCUSSION.

We had the privilege of attending the discussion at Chelsea between Brn. Grant and Cornell, two of the most able disputants in the field. Bro. Grant having the laboring oar, i. e., the affirmative, gave Bro. Cornell the advantage, which he improved very ingeniously in throwing blocks under the wheels. I never saw a man that had learned his lesson better, or a lawyer that was well fed stick for their client bettter than the Battle Creek lawyer did for that doctrine. He is as ingenious in putting the old law in different shapes and meanings, as a potter could make varieties out of a lump of clay. The ingenuity of arranging the text to establish the old covenant, or decalogue, was calculated to establish in the minds of some the shadow so strongly, they could not see the substance when it was presented.

This is the first time I ever heard the argument on both sides with interest, and following the spinal cord of the body of the Scripture. Life is only discovered in the spinal column from the feet to the head, which was Christ. The old law and decalogue was only a schoolmaster to point to Christ, who only could give life. The spinal marrow of all the laws was the sacrifices where blood was shed, all typical of Christ, who can be traced from the blood of Abel's sacrificial lamb, and his own blood by Cain, which was typical of Christ, whose blood speaketh better things than the blood of Abel. So says Paul in Heb. 12, touching this very subject, running from Abel to the Mediator of the new covenant, which was Christ.

Now as Bro. Cornell repeatedly run the law back to Adam, we saw both the law and the gospel typified in his two sons: Abel, by the blood of his sacrifice, which pleased God, as it pointed to the spilling of the blood of Christ, the new law given; and Cain carried out the old law for the first time, by killing his brother. If it is to be carried back to Adam's family, as he said, we have the types of both: the oldest son, typical of the oldest covenant, which was death, from the beginning to the end; the second son, typical of the second covenant, which Paul calls the better one.

Now following these two sons, we can follow the two dispositions down to Christ. Who killed Christ? The old law-keepers, answering to Cain, Christ answering to Abel, who was innocent, and pleased God.

Now all through the old law there were ceremonies annexed, one of which was the offering of sacrifices for sin, and this was kept up. See Job offering sacrifices by the command of God to atone for the sins of his three opponents, Bildad, Zophar, and Eliphaz. This, like a host of others, strikes the spinal cord of the whole law of God touching forgiveness for sin by offering sacrifices.

Such looked through the sacrifice to Christ, not to the decalogue, for forgiveness. To obey the decalogue was for a national distinction, and not eating pork for the same reason; also the mode of marriage; this was for all of them to observe, if they expected victory in driving and killing their enemies, which was "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth."

Says Christ, touching the old law, keeping the law never justified for sins; offering sacrifice did. Bro. Cornell played the most tunes on one string that I ever heard. He is the man for that side of the house. His fox wit will take better with some than sound argument without sarcasm. He was smart, and worked like a hired man for wages, to confuse the minds of some from the main point at issue, i. e., the law yet binding. He denied, what we have all heard them preach, that the keeping the seventh day was salvation, and without that those had the mark of the beast and would be damned. This was drawn out by Bro. Grant's assertion concerning their faith. Perhaps Bro. Cornell does not endorse all the fooleries of the Battle Creek visionaries; we hope not. I feel from God to enter my protest against it, as being ungodly and unsound, calculated to lead astray and divide the flock that others have gathered, by false pretences, shadows, and mesmeric visions; and there is a certain class that can be taken in such a net, instead of believing the word of God and common sense.

A few scriptures this side of the law. Acts 3: 22. Peter says God was to raise one greater than Moses, and Christ was that prophet. Paul. When the priesthood changed, the law was changed and made honorable by the church, by accepting the teaching of the schoolmaster, or shadow, up to the substance, Christ; and those that did not know the law, and establish it by accepting Christ, kept the shadow and went astray. See the young man in the gospel. He kept the law from his youth up, and yet he lacked something, as all others do who undertake to be justified by keeping the old law of works. The law of works submerged in the law of grace by one Jesus Christ, say the apostle. See Acts 13: 38–40. "Be it known unto you, that Christ is preached unto you for the forgiveness of sins."

What can be plainer than that through grace you are saved; not obedience to the old law, or bond-maid, which is dead. The children of the free woman are not obliged to draw around that old, dead carcass, thank God. It appears to me that most of the adherents or promulgators of the seventh-day Sabbath are of very small calibre, or they could not be so duped as to believe that silly, out-of-date, visionary, unscriptural stuff palmed off in community for prophecy. But nothing will affect a bigot, nor a mesmerized dupe.

I have written this as a duty, to warn all to keep out from under that influence, which is poisonous to the spirit of Christ and the law of grace. HIRAM MUNGER.

For the World's Crisis.

"SHE HATH DONE WHAT SHE COULD."

Many are the discouragements of the "little preacher," as we sometimes hear some of God's humble servants called, whom he has sent into the highways and hedges (the schoolhouses and log cabins), to sound forth the last message of truth—the near coming of Jesus. Many, I say, are their trials. They feel that God says, "Go, preach," and start out with hearts burdened with a sense of the responsibility resting on them. They go to work, do the best they can, but some brother or sister is hard to please, and they stay away from meeting, leaving the brother to talk to empty seats, so far as they are concerned, and perhaps find fault, or speak disparagingly of his labors, and thus destroy his influence for good; when, if they would take hold and help in the work, good might be done, and men and women saved in the soon coming kingdom.

Small gifts, when used in unison and with an unwavering faith in God's promises, are sure to bring the blessing. Then toil on, ye little, humble ones, in the way that Jesus leads, and in the day of final accounts it will be said, "You have done what you could."

Perhaps that tract given to that stranger (you never saw before and may never see again until you meet at the bar of God) may be the means God may bless to his conversion. Then toil on. Your words spoken to that unconverted mother (as you called to get a drink of water) of her responsibility in training her little ones in the way of truth, may prove good seed sown in good ground, and yield an hundred fold.

That swearer reproved may learn to bless instead of cursing God, in consequence of your timely admonition. Work on, and ever remember that "he that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."—Ps. 126: 6. Be faithful. God seeth not as man seeth, and he is soon coming to take his weary ones home, and to reward every man according to his work. 1 Thess. 4: 9, 13; Rev. 22: 12. Labor on till Jesus comes. S. TENNEY.

THE SECOND ADVENT.

In the New Testament, the second Advent of our Savior is like a central sun, holding all other truths in their proper orbit. It is presented as the world's crisis; as the pivot on which time swings into eternity. Here faith ends in sight; hope is lost in realization; all the appliances of the strictly temporal are forever laid aside, and only the things which cannot be shaken continue on. Even inanimate creation, as realizing the glorious results of the changes then to be wrought in our world, is presented as groaning and travailing in pain while waiting in earnest expectation for the full revelation of the glorious liberty of the sons of God. The New Testament Church seems fallen in love with a personal Savior, and never tires of reiterating in varied form his parting promise to come again. It is not only to them a blessed hope, but it is their only hope. If they indulged any other (save hopes distinctly stated to be subsidiary to this,) they failed to record it.

What a different relation this hope of the return of a personal Savior occupies in most of the modern systems of theology claiming the New Testament as their basis! Instead of a central sun, it is mere nebula, often quite invisible, even to the telescope of faith, and without any obvious relations in their systems. Its time, objects, and manner are so indefinite and uncertain as to subject one who is disposed to thoroughly investigate them to the suspicion of being a meddler in the secret things declared to belong to the Almighty.—A. C. Quarterly.

— The ancient city of Troy had but one gate. Go round and round the city and you would have found no other. If you wanted to get in there was but one way. So to the Golden City of Heaven there is but one gate. Christ says, "I am the door."

— Sin has many tools, but a lie is the handle that fits them all.

For the World's Crisis.

THE TENT MEETINGS.

Through the agency of tent-meetings in Yorkshire, Springville, and Sardinia, great light has shone through all this region, in former years wholly unvisited by such means of illumination and blessing. Some (though fewer than last year) have been converted and baptized; while in the town of Eagle, especially, there is a community of christians, I learn, eagerly interested in the subjects presented, with promise of permanent and increasing fruit.

At Springville, Bro. Wendell met the somewhat active champion of "orthodoxy," Prof. Rogers, Principal of Griffith Institute, in a discussion of questions, as drawn up by the latter, viz: "Death, the total extinction of conscious existence"; and, "The penalty of sin, eternal conscious misery."

Prof. Rogers is learned, and adroit, but in my judgment was very decidedly and often irrelevant and rambling. Bro. Wendell laid with powerful effect on the professor the testimony of God, in a solid array of Scriptures. That testimony we heard with delight, standing forward with converging force, like the bayonet points of infantry, an irresistible front of truth, keen and glittering.

But there is never wanting sophistry, in league with opposition, and regretfully we watched the misapplied zeal of a man, with far worse than wasted energy, torturing and distorting the word, but abating not one whit in the minds that God had enlightened, the settled conviction of the truth. It is sad, indeed, to think what master his zealous service is obliging. O, how sad, and fearful too! The votaries of the loved delusions of tradition joy in their adherence thus encouraged, and their faith thus championed. But we found in Bro. Wendell a man who knew how to wield the sword of the Spirit, swift, skillful and effective. We felt that he was worthy of the confidence of the friends of the precious word—"a workman that needeth not to be ashamed."

In view of the labored industry of Prof. Rogers during the year past to strengthen the confidence of people in the "old lie" of the deceiver, it was concluded that during a few days' interval, in which the tent could be consistently spared for the purpose, Prof. Rogers should be met the second time on the same questions in Sardinia; and accordingly Bro. Fenn met the professor, and with somewhat changed tactics, but decided effect, refuted the popular fancy of human consciousness in death.* The argument was in a large degree physiological, but unanswerable; and Prof. Rogers appeared surprised and unprepared for this particular course of debate, and was again irrelevant, in theories of vegetable life, and scriptures bearing on spiritual death, which was not under discussion.

Bro. Fenn did effective and excellent service in the good cause, and when after preaching service on the Sabbath the sad farewell was spoken, and the congregation dismissed, there was a large remnant of the assembly lingering on the hallowed spot, some tearful, and many grieved to have the friendly canvass forsake the hill which it had adorned with its heaving and tranquil expanse of light.

We feel kindly toward Prof. Rogers, and especially pray God that he may be enlightened, and engage his trained abilities on the side of truth; and to this end I would ask the prayers of christians.

The tent we may possibly never have again in this vicinity, but whether so or not, may God bless the cause of truth, and the faithful men who are arduously employed in advocating and defending it.

I ought to mention the valuable aid of Bro. Pratt of Rochester, for a few evenings, including Sabbath, and the quiet, patient, faithful service of Bro. Cotton.

In conclusion, I may add that, although some were inclined to doubt whether discussion would be as useful and efficient and scriptural an agency as preaching, especially on the ground of the liability of the development of partisan feeling, yet a bookseller testified that, as a consequence, his sale of Bibles was suddenly much augmented; and we think Prof. Rogers has no further eagerness for discussion, in view of his declination to resume it at a proposed future time. Truth has been magnified. C. COLEGROVE.

* The second question was not reached for want of time.

[The above letter was mislaid, hence the delay.—ED.

Correspondence.

From Bro. H. A. King.

BRO. GRANT:—While I was at the conference in Rochester, many friends inquired about our dear Bro. J. K. Bellows, who resides at No. 19 Orchard St.; and he desires me to say to them, through the Crisis, that he has not been able to travel and preach much outside of New York City this summer. He is very sick now, and has not been out to our meetings but once for six weeks. It was our communion day, and we had a blessed season. He is one of the old revolutionary soldiers of our blessed cause, and it is not strange that he should have many friends who remember him. We miss him in our meetings, and the responsibility of preaching the word to the little flock at 405 Grand St. has been thrown upon me. O, may the Master enable me to honor his cause and truth in this great city. May he give Bro. Bellows grace and strength in his day of trial, and soon save us all in the kingdom. H. A. KING.

New York, Nov. 25th.

From Bro. J. S. Hinds.

BRO. GRANT:—It has been a long time since I have sent you anything. I shall be very brief. We still live in Wilmington, in our hired house in Essex Co., N. Y. We are old, and cannot work as we once could; but we by labor and prudence support ourselves. But I do not feel very poor, for I call God my Father, and I know that he is rich and can help in every time of need.

My wife and I joined the Close-Communion Baptists in 1831. But there were two articles we did not know of till we had joined: viz., "Once in grace, always in grace," and "Close communion"; and we did not like them. But immortal-soulism and eternal misery we believed. In 1865, in February, I happened to get hold of a Crisis two or three years old, and when I found it was "Millerism" I threw it down quick, and looked to see if my fingers were poisoned. But seeing the heading of something, I thought I would see what they said about that, and I read it and liked it much, and continued reading tell I read the paper through. Then I called for a new one, to see if these Second Adventists were going ahead or backsliding. I soon learned that they were going ahead, and then I borrowed a half dozen of them and took home with me.

Being poor I wrote Miles Grant, that if he could send me anything to help me, I wished he would,—some tracts, or some of the "World's Crisis"; for the "World's Crisis" had so snarled up my doctrine that I could not unsnarl it. The paper and tracts came in due time, and three weeks from the time I first saw the Crisis, my doctrine agreed with it.

My wife would not read any of the papers or tracts, but when I read them she would take the Bible, to see if these things were so, and if the Scriptures were quoted right. Well, she came out about as soon as I did. But there was one thing that puzzled our minds a short time; viz., How the punishment of the wicked could be eternal, and they be burned up in unquenchable fire. But we understand it now, and believe the doctrine held by the "Crisis" agrees with the Bible.

I would like to scatter tracts if I had them. Could the brethren help me to do it? I earnestly ask you to help me to get folks ready for the second coming of this same Jesus.

J. S. Hinds.

Wilmington, Essex Co., N. Y.

Extracts from Letters.

Bro. J. E. Mabey writes:—"I am truly thankful for the Crisis. I must do something for it in a practical way. My time is wholly occupied in working to provide things convenient and honest for quite a family, and in preaching at Amboy, Mineral, and Yorktown, Henry Co., in which region the interest is great to hear on the blessed hope and glorious appearing of Jesus to give eternal life and immortality to them who have sought for it by a patient continuance in well doing. The Lord has blessed his own truth and people in Yorktown, by adding some to their number lately, among them Bro. J. Drain and daughter. He had been a regular authorized preacher among the Episcopal Methodists for some years. From some cause his connection with them was broken. He has been under a cloud for six years, but after hearing some preaching, attending the tent meeting held by Bro. Clark in that vicinity, and investigating thoroughly, he has cast his lot with us, and is going to proclaim the truth in his own vicinity. The cloud is dispelled, and he is happy in God. The little band of brethren are wide awake in trying to get others ready for the kingdom so soon to come."

Bro. J. D. Sheridan writes:—"I am daily admonished that there is a great work to be accomplished, but the laborers are few. I pray that the Lord will send forth laborers to work in his vineyard. I have no co-laborers near me, except the Crisis, and the tracts you sent me. There are plenty of shepherds among us, but they are described in the thirty-fourth chapter of Ezekiel. They feed themselves, and tread down the remainder; or, in other words, keep from us the best of the fodder,—the blessed news of the soon coming kingdom and literal reign of Christ on the earth.

How much I desire to see the time when the watchmen will see eye to eye. I think the flock will not be scattered long after that; but there will be one fold and one Shepherd, and he will judge between the fat cattle and the lean cattle; and he will cause his flock to lie down in safety, and nothing shall hurt or destroy in all his holy mountain. I am confident that the darkness is nearly past, and the morning will soon dawn."

Bro. C. A. Metcalf writes:—"I am a seeker after truth, and have been taught in the popular theology of the immortality of the soul, but have become interested to know if it is scriptural. I cannot find it as plainly taught in the Bible as I supposed when I came to study for myself. Brn. I. K. Lombard and A. Walker have held some meetings here in Litchfield, Me., and they preached so much Bible that I was induced to learn more of your faith. As I study the Bible, I find some passages that I cannot harmonize with your faith, but perhaps they will all appear plain when they are perfectly understood.

Clear Grit.—In the threefold sense of austerity, unselfishness and enthusiasm, clear grit is the best I am, blossoming into the best I can do, as naturally as a rose blossoms or a bird sings; it is that stern manhood and womanhood that is always true to the true, no matter what may befall, as the diamond is a diamond all the same whether it blaze on the brow of an emperor or lies hid in the sunless boulders of the mountains. It is that noble hardness of brain in a man or woman that can never give way, except in a true fashion and for a true reason: the power to say no to what may seem a multitude of angels, if they want to counsel you away from a downright loyalty to your instant duty. But right here is a distinction, for the next thing to being true grit ourselves is to know the false from the true.—Robert Collyer.

Hiding the Faults of Others.—A painter was once engaged upon a likeness of Alexander the Great. In the course of his battles Alexander had received an ugly scar on the side of his face. The artist was desirous of giving a correct likeness of the monarch, and at the same time desirous of hiding the scar. It was a difficult task to accomplish. At length he hit upon a happy expedient. He painted him in a reflective attitude, his hand placed against his head, while his finger covered the scar. The best men are not without their failings, their scars—but do not dwell upon them. In speaking of them to others, adopt the painter's expedient, and let the finger of love be placed on the scar.

Obituaries.

Merrill. Died, in North Norway, Oct. 4th, 1869, Francisco, only son of Enoch and Esther Merrill, aged twenty-two years.

This heavy affliction came quite unexpectedly to a happy family circle, the sickness of the dear one being short. Yet their deep sorrow has a mixture of joy, knowing that death found the beloved one ready. He had sought the Savior in younger days, and the few years of his christian experience won the confidence and admiration of all, and prepared him for the calm and happy sleep in Jesus.

It was our sad privilege to meet with the many mourners to talk of the dreamless sleep and the glad awaking of all the good in a little while, and we remember still their sorrow. May the Lord's grace sustain and keep them ready for a happy meeting with the loved and lost in the morning of endless life.

J. Albert Libby.

Tiplady. Died, in East Boston, Oct. 1st, 1869, of paralysis, at the house of her son-in-law, Mr. Elisha Gunnison, Mrs. Ann Tiplady, aged eighty years.

She was converted to God in the year 1836, in Salem, Mass., and united with the second Baptist church in that city, and from that time was a devoted servant of the Lord. At an Advent campmeeting held in Salem in 1842, she experienced a change in her religious views on some points, and adopted the sentiments advocated at that meeting.

During her confinement of twenty-one months, her mind and her vocal powers were greatly impaired; still, when Christ was the theme of conversation by others, her eyes glistened, her countenance lighted up, and her looks expressed what her lips could not utter. At length the summons came, and she quietly closed her long pilgrimage.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, and W. Richardson, of the Union Chapel, East Boston.

L. Boyden.

Albro. Died, at Peacedale, R. I., Sept. 8th, 1869, Sr. Nancy, wife of Bro. Wm. H. Albro.

Sr. Albro was a loving, faithful wife, a fond and devoted mother, a consistent, humble christian. She sleeps in hope of a part with those in the first resurrection, on whom the second death will have no power. Her bereaved husband and children lament her loss, as well they may, but they sorrow not as those that have no hope.

Funeral services by the writer. A. Durfee.

Hazen. Died, in Sutton, N. H., Oct. 28th, 1869 Sister Rachel Hazen, aged eighty-eight years.

Sister Hazen had professed faith in Christ for over fifty years. She became a believer in the immediate coming of Christ to earth to reign with his saints in 1843. Now the aged mother sleeps, but we trust that when the Master appears, she will "awake with his likeness." Services by the writer.

C. H. Fletcher.

Prior. Died, very suddenly, and was gathered to his fathers, in Warehousepoint, Ct., Oct. 10th, Bro. Joel Prior, aged seventy-six years.

Bro. Prior was among the first who embraced the Advent doctrine in Warehousepoint, and continued firm in the belief of the Lord's speedy coming until his death. He lived a life consistent with his profession. He was much interested in the prosperity of the cause, and for the church with whom he had lived for many years.

Funeral services conducted by the writer.

I. B. Potter.

Hall. Died, in Moultonborough, Sept. 27th, 1869, Sister Annie Hall, aged eighty-four years.

She has lived an exemplary christian all through her long life. She lived to see a great many of its disappointments, but was never known to murmur or complain. Her last sickness was very distressing, but she bore it like a devoted christian. She sleeps in Jesus, and such will God bring with him in the morning. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, from Job 14: 14.

F. Mudgett.

Davis. Died, in Brewer, Me., Sept. 19th, Alvah L. Davis, aged twenty-four years and three months.

The only son of a widowed mother, her husband having fallen asleep in Jesus some two and a half years since. There was hope in his death.

Thomas Smith.

Church. Died, in Pontiac, R. I., Nov. 3d, 1869, Ira Allen, son of Benjamin J. and Eliza Church, aged two years and five months.

The funeral was attended by the writer.

E. H. Porter.

Estes. Died, in North Adams, Mass., Nov. 4th, 1869, S. Matilda Estes, aged twenty-five years. E. Blanchard.

Married.

In Janesville, Wis., Nov. 3d, 1869, by Elder Jacob Wilbur, Mr. Albert Broadbent and Miss Philena Moor, all of the above place.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

Madrid, Nov. 22. Accounts have been received of a destructive earthquake in the Phillipine Islands. The sea rose, buildings were thrown down and the loss of property was very great. At the port of Manilla eight persons were killed and many injured.

There is not a whole roof in town and the rainy season has commenced. Reports from the interior were received of the falling of churches and other large buildings. The shock was felt at a great distance from the coast. One ship reported that it was felt while she was one hundred miles away.

London, Nov. 23. It is now absolutely certain that the great African traveler, Dr. David Livingstone, is safe. The Duke of Argyle yesterday received a telegram from the Governor of Bombay, containing the information that he, the the Governor, had just received a letter from Dr. Livingstone himself, dated Vjije, May 13th, 1869. Mr. L. was in good health and was everywhere well treated.

Nov. 24. The sailing of the steamship Monarch with the remains of the late George Peabody has been postponed until Friday, Dec. 3.

Madrid, Nov. 24. Gen. Dulce, recently at the head of the Government in Cuba, died yesterday.

Rome, Nov 23. About one hundred and fifty Bishops have already arrived here; many of them are from America.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 26. The old law limiting the residence of the Jews has been enforced in some parts of the Empire. Recently two thousand of these people have been removed from the Besarian frontier to the interior of Russia within a few days. The impression prevails that the Emperor will disapprove of these proceedings.

Paris, Nov. 28. The Patrie to-day makes the following statement: "The ultimatum recently sent to the Khedive by the Sultan admits of no discussion. If the Viceroy of Egypt does not comply with its demands, he will be deposed, and his brother Mustalpha Fasil, recognized in his place. There are hopes, however, that the affair will be settled by the advice of the European Powers.

Dispatches from Rome state that the members of the Ecumenical Council will meet at the Vatican on the 8th of December, and at the conclusion of the preliminary ceremonies the Pope will announce the opening of the Council.

M. Lesseps, the chief engineer of the Suez Canal, has publicly denied the unfavorable reports which have recently been circulated about the great enterprise. He calls attention to the fact that in ten days no less than fifty vessels sailed safely through the canal and back.

DOMESTIC.

The Last Baudin Memorial Gathering.—On the day when the Paris people visit the graves of their dead friends, a political manifestation is always anticipated and prepared against by the Emperor. The Montmartre Cemetery, where are the tombs of Caodiquac and Baudin, is generally visited by an excited crowd of editors and literary men, who get up a procession of citizens, say a few liberal words and are then dispersed by the police. But the manifestation on this last November was quite inferior to those of previous years. The police literally swarmed about the tomb, trampling under foot the graves which occupied humbler positions, and whenever any one attempted to make a speech, the assembly was at once dispersed. The people were less numerous during the "day of the dead," than usual—as nearly every one feared some tumult, and postponed his pilgrimage of sorrow until the following day. Every day seems to bear witness that France will have no more bloody revolutions. The people will do their utmost for a peaceable reform of all the present abuses.

The Globe we Inhabit.—Prof. Loomis of New Haven considers the earth a very unsafe place to stay on any longer, from the fact that the late volcanic manifestations have been so general in their character that there is no longer any doubt about the theory that all volcanoes have not a local but a general and common origin in the central liquid parts of our globe, where the most intense heat prevails. In comparison to this interior liquid mass the crust on which we live is exceedingly thin.

Prof. Loomis thinks that it is proved now that these eruptions are caused by water getting into the central fire, where, after having been converted into steam by the heat, it exerts a most enormous pressure upon the earth's crust, upheaving, shaking, bursting it open, ejecting the interior liquid mass which we call lava, etc. He thinks there is now great danger of a part of the water in the ocean getting through the crust into the central fire, and having been changed into steam, at any moment, blowing the whole ball to pieces. In fact he compares our earth to a huge boiler under extra pressure.

Great Engineering Projects.—M. de Lesseps, the distinguished French engineer, who has now completed the great ship canal across the Isthmus, linking the waters of the Mediterranean with those of the Indian Ocean, having ascertained that the great desert Sahara is twenty-seven feet below the level of the Red Sea, proposes to connect them by a canal, thus making an inland sea by which to open up navigation and trade with Central Africa. The Emperor Napoleon is also seriously considering the plan of making Paris a seaport. This is to be done by a canal 250 feet wide, 32 feet deep, and 116 miles in length to Dieppe, to be supplied with water from the ocean, by which vessels of the largest class can come directly to the wharves of that great inland city.

Bridging of the English Channel.—Chimerical as the project would seem, a French engineer has drawn up two plans for an international bridge between France and England. One plan is for a single span, the other for ten spans of two miles each, the bridge to spring from the chalk cliffs at Dover to the chalky Cape Blancnez, on the French coast opposite. The exact distance is 315 feet less than 16¾ miles. Each span of the bridge is to consist of five vertical frames or trestles, firmly fastened together. Upon this will be laid the floor, which will be strong enough to support twelve full trains. The resistance to the wind is estimated at thirty-six times the strongest gale. The spans are to rest on pillars laid in the sea. The estimated cost of the structure is fifty millions of dollars.

Protection of the Pope.—A letter from Rome asserts that General Dumont has offered to the Pope, on the part of the French Government, five thousand men, who are to stay in Rome during the Council. It is said this proposal has been accepted. The Papal Government fears some Garibaldian movement, and does not trust implicitly to the fideltiy of his troops. The deficit caused by the great number of deserters is to be filled by recruits from different parts of the Catholic world. Two thousand men are said to be on their way to Rome.

Passing Events.

☞ It is predicted that Florida will become one of the largest sugar-producing localities on this continent. The character and soil are admirably adapted to its culture, and the crop is a sure one.

☞ The voting of the Ecumenical Council will be done with colored balls. Red will signify affirmation, blue dissent, and white, doubt, hesitation or skepticism.

☞ English Underwriters have recently lost heavily by the destruction of steamers. Since last August no fewer than twenty-five have been wrecked

☞ The steamer Nipsic has been detailed to go to Panama for the purpose of assisting in the survey of the Darien Ship Canal. The Government having secured the treaty, giving it sole control over the canal, is determined to push the work, and will make rapid progress during the coming winter in surveying for the route.

☞ In regard to the removal of the Capital project, it is said that Attorney General Hoar expresses the opinion that it is no more possible for Congress to wipe out the District of Columbia than to wipe out any State of the Union.

☞ M. Rochefort, who has returned to Paris, says he will only take the oath of allegiance to the empire in order to overthrow it and substitute for it a republic.

☞ Queen Victoria's eldest daughter, the crown princess of Prussia, is said to be showing signs of insanity, caused by domestic trouble.

☞ A few days since a beautiful bird, with wings of golden brown color, and breast of white dotted with black, fell down from the sky, and died on the pavement in front of the City Hall, New Haven. On taking up the bird it was quite warm from its recent life, but its neck had been cut, and the feathers were stained with blood. It is supposed to have received its death wound by flying against a telegraph wire.

☞ Within the past three weeks 24,000 volunteers have sailed from Spanish ports for Cuba.

☞ A negress named Anna, in the colored Home in New York, is known to be upward of 105 years of age. She is toothless, but has good eyesight, and enjoys the best of health. She came to New York the year after it was evacuated by the British.

☞ The average longevity in England is 40 years and 10¼ months; in France, 36 years and 1 month; in Sweden, 43 years and 5 months; and, by males, in the United States, 41 years.

☞ The eminent French writer, About, is preparing a treatise on the financial management of the United States Government, an article which is likely to create quite a sensation among the solid men of France. He will show how much more it costs to keep an empire than a Republic; and will, it is said, give the new administration, and Secretary Boutwell especially, the praise that all the Union haters in France and Europe generally are so tardy to accord.

☞ The Sultan protests against the act of the Viceroy of Egypt, proclaiming the neutrality of the Suez Canal, as a trespass on his sovereignty.

☞ Few who have read that beautiful hymn by Dr. Watts commencing "How vain are all things here below," are aware of the fact that he composed it after his suit had been rejected by Miss Singer, afterward the celebrated Mrs. Rowe.

☞ Tea has been grown in North Carolina for thirty years, but a knowledge of the proper manner of curing it has never been acquired.

☞ New York expects to enjoy its elevated Rail-Road to Thirtieth Street by Christmas.

☞ A solution of gum arabic will remove dirt and stains from marble. Let it remain till it dries, when it will peel off or can be washed off.

☞ Carrying umbrellas with a dagger in the handle is one of the pleasures of life in Rome, which the police try to suppress.

☞ The city of Bogota, New Granada, is ravaged by fatal diseases. La Patria says the mortality increases daily in a manner that is truly alarming. Almost all the inhabitants are in mourning. Unknown diseases become multiplied, and the number of victims is already terrifying.

☞ Three Santee Indians in Nebraska have been ordained ministers in the Episcopal Church by Bishop Clarkson. They are to be missionaries among the Indians.

☞ It is rumored on good authority that the French government has offered to send an extra guard of 5,000 troops of the line to guard the city of Rome during the duration of the Council.

☞ In Switzerland the milkman who adulterates, or reduces his milk, is liable to eighteen months imprisonment, a heavy fine and loss of civil rights.

☞ A Maine man, now residing in Minnesota, writes that farmers there are obliged to sell their wheat for less than the cost of production.

☞ The Empress Carlotta passes a great part of her time in sending telegrams to all the sovereigns of Europe to complain of the captivity in which she imagines she is detained.

☞ The illness of the Empress of Russia, from which she cannot recover, is the result of a cold taken at a charity ball which she gave for the relief of the poor children of St. Petersburg. The Emperor's health is likewise precarious.

☞ The Empress is expected to arrive in France on the 2d December.

☞ Father Hyacinthe intends to deliver a lecture in French at the Cooper Institute, New York, on the ninth of December.

☞ The managers of the Pacific Railroad are preparing fuel and provision cars to run with every train during the winter, so that in case a train gets snowed in, the passengers will not freeze or starve to death.

☞ It is said that Jenny Lind is to return to the practice of her former vocation by necessity, her husband having squandered her property by a dissolute life so that the musical couple are on the verge of poverty.

☞ The celebrated Dr. Gregory, in the course of one of his medical lectures at Edinburgh, stated: "One cannot stand perfectly motionless for half an hour; that he had once tried to do so, and had fainted at the end of twenty minutes, the blood requiring the aid of motion from the body in order to retain its full circulating power."

☞ A paper manufacturer in Buffalo has been buying a large quantity of wire grass for the purpose of manufacturing it into wrapping paper. He pays thirty dollars a ton for it, delivered. The grass comes from Michigan. The manufacturer claims to be able to make a better, tougher, and cheaper article of wrapping paper from it than from any other material now in use.

☞ The most healthy counties, with regard to consumption in Vermont, are those bordering on Lake Champlain, save Essex county, which for ten years lost only one person to every 680 living, and for the year ending 1867 Essex lost one to every 723 living. The other counties for the ten years lost one in every 397.

☞ The Russian town of Seniseisk, in Eastern Siberia, was completely destroyed by fire on the 8th of September.

☞ It is reported that the Emperor, in giving commands to prepare his speech for the opening of the Chambers, said: "I desire the widest and most absolute affirmation of liberty."

☞ The music in the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher's church costs $7000 a year.

☞ The meteoric shower of the 13th inst., as seen in Florida, was exceedingly brilliant.

☞ There are six thousand printing houses in the United States.

☞ Russia is ordering revolving artillery from America.

☞ There are probably in America, to-day, 1,500,000 Baptists.

☞ Wisconsin State prison contains 807 convicts.

☞ It costs $200,000 per week to bury the dead of New York.

☞ Henry Ward Beecher's salary last year was $28,000. This year it will be $31,000.

☞ There will be six eclipses in 1870, four of the sun and two of the moon.

☞ Four London theatres are managed by Misses.

The Nova Scotia papers state that the crops in that country have been more than the average, and have been secured in the best possible condition.

Notices.

New Hampshire State Conference.

The sixteenth annual session of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire will convene in Concord, commencing Dec. 9th, at ten o'clock, A. M., and continue over the following Sabbath.

Dear brethren and sisters in Christ, make one more effort to attend the annual re-union of the soldiers of Christ in the old Granite State; whose hearts are beating quick with the animating hope of speedy deliverance and eternal redemption in the kingdom of God. We hope that every preacher in the State will attend this Conference, but if any are not able to do so, let them not fail to report themselves by letter. We also most earnestly hope that every church and meeting looking for Christ's speedy coming will be represented by one or more delegates. Let us know your wants, and we will supply them as far as possible. Speak to us words of sympathy and christian friendship, for the hour is dark and perilous.

Ample accomodations by the good people of Concord will be made for all who come. Their hearts and houses will be open to welcome all.

Come to labor for God. Come filled with the Spirit. Come to admonish the backslider, and to warn the sinner of the approaching judgment and his impending doom.

The following arrangements have been made with the railroad companies: Those who come over the Boston, Concord and Montreal R. R. will pay full fare to Concord, and there will receive a return ticket, signed by the Secretary, which will take them to the station from which they started, free.

Those who come over the Concord R. R. and its branches, can purchase tickets at Portsmouth, New Market Junction, Lawrence, Nashua, Manchester, Pittsfield and Suncook, which will take them to Concord and return at the rate of two cents per mile. Call for tickets to attend the State Conference in Concord, at the above named stations.

Those who take the cars at stations where no tickets can be purchased to attend the Conference, can pay full fare to where those tickets can be had, and then procure them.

Those coming over the Northern C. and Claremont and Contoocook River Railroads, from White River Junction, Bradford, Hillsborough Bridge, and all intermediate stations, will purchase special tickets for the N. H. Advent Christian Conference, Concord, which will be signed by the Secretary, and return the passenger free.

The meetings will be held in Phœnix Hall, near the depot, on Main Street.

J. Couch, President.
A. W. Sibley, Secretary.

Notice.

In view of the lack of deep piety in the church, and a proper interest in the soon coming of Jesus to redeem his people and give them their Eden home, we, the undersigned, call for a general, free, and old-fashioned Conference, to be held in Richmond Village, Me., to commence Dec. 22d, at seven P. M., and continue over Lord's day. This conference is intended to benefit ministers and members; in which ministers will relate their call into the ministry, and members their experience in the proclamation of the Advent near; and to labor for the salvation of sinners and the piety of the church.

Israel Damman.
A. H. Walker.
B. Emery.

Notice.

Where shall the Maine Ministerial Conference be held? Those brethren wishing the conference held with their church, or in their town or city, the second Tuesday in January, 1870, will please notify me at Topsham, or R. K. York, Portland, at once. C. Goud, Pres.

Statistics Called For.

If any brother in any place within the bounds of the A. C. Conf. of the State of Conn., will furnish information, by letter or otherwise, as to date of commencement of Advent meetings, numbers in fellowship, means, expenditures, places of worship, etc., he will confer a favor. For this purpose, please address Elder A. H. Steele, 20 Franklin Street, New Haven, Ct.; B. Hitchcock, same No.; or, up to Nov. 13th, W. S. Campbell, 354 Pearl Street, New York City.

To the Churches in Connecticut.

Having been elected to the office of President of Conference, I would be happy to learn the wants of churches within this jurisdiction, and to this end would be glad to hear from the brethren and sisters. H. H. Dickinson.

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 1869.

Notice.

The Quarterly Advent Christian Conference of New York State will meet with the church at Knowlesville, Orleans Co., Thursday evening, Dec. 16th. Provision will be made for all. We request a full attendance, that we may devise means for carrying the gospel into new fields.

W. J. Hobbs, Clerk.

Protracted Meeting.

There will be a protracted meeting in Bradford, N. H., at the Bush meeting-house, commencing Thursday. Dec. 2nd. Bro. D. W. Davis and others will be there. Come one, come all, and work for the Lord. M. E. Hawlett.

Notice.

☞ Lost, on the camp-ground at Springfield, a sledge that I borrowed for the use of the ground. It might have been packed up with some of the large tents' baggage, as they used it often. If so, please inform me. H. Munger.

☞ A short poem, "The Blissful Vision," may be had for 30 cents per dozen, of the author, J. Albert Libby, West Poland, Maine.

Churches in Mass.

Will some brother in each church, or place where meetings are held, inform me by letter, giving the town, and number of believers in the town, as near as possible? In doing this you will confer a favor, and assist in doing something for the interest of the cause at large.

J. Hemenway, Athol Depot, Mass.

Brighton Cattle Market.

Reported for the World's Crisis by Geo. J. Fox, for the week ending Nov. 25th, 1869.

Amount of Live Stock at Market.

	Cattle.	Sheep and Lambs.	Swine.
This week	2,869	1,798	600
Last week	1,763	1,732	700

Prices of Market Beef.

Extra, $12.00@13.00; first quality, $11.00@11.75; second quality, $10.00@10.75; third quality, $7.00@9.50.

Prices of Store Cattle.

Working Oxen, per pair, from $150@200 to $@250 300; Milch Cows and Calves, from $35, 50, 65, 75, to 100-115; Yearlings, $15 to 25; two years old, $27 to 38; three years old, $40 to 62; Western Fat Swine, live, $10¼ to 11¼ cts. per lb; Dressed, 12¾ to 13¼ cts. per lb; Store Hogs, Wholesale, 11¼ to 00 cts. per lb; Retail, 11¼ to 13 cts. per lb. Columbia Co., N. Y., Spring Pigs, 14 to 16 cts. per lb.

Prices of Sheep and Lambs.

In lots, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00, $0.00 each; Extra, $3.50@4.25, or from 3 to 6¼ cts. per lb; Spring Lambs, $2.75 to 4.50.

Prices of Hides, Tallow and Skins.

Brighton Hides, 9 to 00 cts. per lb; Tallow, 7@00 cts. per lb; Country Hides, 8¼ to 00 cts. per lb; Tallow, 7 to 00 cts. per lb; Pelts, 75 cts. to $1.00 each. Calf Skins, 20 cts. per lb.

Remarks. Cattle.—The supply of Western cattle figure 1972 head, and quite a share are very nice steers, selling at $12.75 to $13 per cwt. Prices are not really any higher than last week, although quotations would indicate it. Extra cattle range from one fourth to one-half cent per lb. higher, from the fact that there is that difference in quality. Receipts of Maine cattle were larger than usual, mostly steers. Working oxen are selling about the same as last week.

Sheep and Lambs.—Receipts 1798, all Western; handled by Brighton butchers on commission.

Boston Markets.

Wholesale Prices.

Boston, Monday evening, Nov. 29th, 1869.

Gold.—$1.24¼.

Flour.—Superfine, from $4.50@$5.25; Extra, from $5.75@$8.00; Michigan, $7.00@$8.50. St. Louis, from $7.00@$10.00.

Corn.—Mixed, $1.11@$1.13; Yellow, $1.15@$1.20. Oats, 65@75 cts. Old Rye, $1.25@$1.30.

Seeds.—Timothy Herds Grass, $4.75@0.00; Red Top, $3.50 to $4.25 per sack; R. I. Bent, $2.50 to $3.00 per bush.; Clover per lb., 14 to 15c.

Apples.—Per bbl., $4 00@4.50. Onions, $4.75@5.00 per bbl.

Pork.—$37@$38. Lard, 19¼@20c. Hams, 18 cts.

Butter.—36@39c. Cheese, Factory, 16 to 18½c. Dairy, 15 to 18c.

Beans.—Extra Pea, $3.50@$0.00; Common, $2.50.

Eggs.—38@39c. Dried Apples (southern), 8¼ to 10c.

Hay, per ton, $17@$25; per cargo, $25@$29 per car-load. Potatoes, per bbl., $2.00@$2.25. Sweet potatoes, per bbl., $3.50@4.50. Marrow Squash, per cwt., $1.75. Hubbardston, $3.00. Carrots, $2.00 per bbl.

Fresh Fruits, etc.—Pears, per bbl., $8.00@$25.00. Grapes (Western), 10@15 cts. per lb. Quinces, $6.00 @12.00 per bbl. Cranberries, $10.00@12.00 per bbl. Citron, per bbl., $1.50.

Remarks.—There is no special change in the tone of the market. Wholesale dealers are generally having a quiet trade. Low grades of Flour are still lower by 50 cts. per bbl.; the best unchanged. Corn, Oats and Rye unchanged. Seeds quiet; there will be but little movement until the first of January, when the new crop will be marketed. Butter, Beans and Eggs remain quiet. Pork has advanced $1.00 per bbl.; also Lard one cent per lb. Potatoes unchanged.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

A. Ross .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
S. S. Brewer .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
J. Couch .... Sunday, Dec. 19th

Boston, South End, (Minot Hall), corner of Washington and Springfield Streets.) Meetings at 10½ A. M. and 3 and 7½ P. M.

John G. Hook .... Friday and Saturday evenings, Dec. 3d and 4th. Also Sunday, Dec. 5th. [Baptism at Mystic River.
Wm. H. Mitchell .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
J. G. Smith .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Geo. A. Streeter .... Sunday, Dec. 26th

East Boston.

Meetings are held at Chase's Block, up two flights, at 154 Meridian Street, on Sundays, at the usual hours, also Monday and Thursday evenings.

Enoch Morrill .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
John G. Hook .... Monday evening, Dec. 6th
J. W. Britton .... Sunday, Jan. 9th

Chelsea, Mass., (Library Hall.)

C. Goodrich .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
T. M. Preble .... Sabbath, Dec. 12th
M. Batchelor .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
J. W. Britton .... Sunday, Dec. 26th

Charlestown.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.

J. T. Dixon .... Sunday, Dec. 5th

Stoneham, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
C. Goodrich.

Scitico, Ct. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
H. Munger.

Lynn, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Worcester, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
M. Batchelor.

Fayville, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
W. H. Mitchell.

North Springfield, Vt. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Plymouth, Vt. .... evenings, Dec. 9th and 10th
Bridgewater, Vt. .... Sundays, Dec. 12th and 19th and during the intervening week.
Rutland, Vt. .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
H. F. Carpenter.

Holden, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass. .... Dec. 17th
Hartford, Ct. .... Dec. 19th and 26th
New Britain, Ct. .... Dec. 22d
Forestville, Ct. .... Dec. 23d
J. S. White.

Sandy Hill, N. Y. .... Dec. 5th, 12th, and 19th
A. A. Phelps.

Clinton, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Square Pond, Ct. .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
North Somers, Ct. .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd
A. Simpson.

Worcester, Mass .... Sabbath, Dec. 5th
T. M. Preble.

Cambridgeport, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Lawrence, Mass. .... Monday eve., Dec. 13th
Haverhill, Mass. .... Tuesday eve., Dec. 14th
Exeter, N. H. .... Wednesday eve., Dec. 15th
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Thursday eve., Dec. 16th
Hampton, N. H. .... Friday eve., Dec. 17th
Lynn, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Geo. A. Brown.

If these appointments conflict, please write immediately to Geo. A. Brown, Box 204 Plymouth, Mass.

Great Falls, N. H. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Joseph W. White.

Concord, N. H., (new school-house, near the "break of day"), Sunday, Dec. 5th. L. Locke.
L. Brown.

Milford, N. H. .... evening, Dec. 4th
Nashua, N. H. .... Saturday, Dec. 4th and over Sunday, the 5th. John H. Dadmun.

Wakefield, Mass. .... Sabbath. Dec. 5th
S. S. Mooney.

Stowe, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
J. W. Britton.

New York City, (Cooper Institute), Sunday, Dec. 12th
Hartford, (Talcott & Post's Hall) .... Dec. 19th
New Britain, Conn. .... Dec. 26th
Geo. W. Brown.

East Stoneham .... Saturday evening, Dec. 11th and over the following Sabbath.
Elisha Johnson.

Campton, N. H., (Bump school-house), Sun., Dec. 5th
West Rumney, N. H. .... Saturday eve., Dec. 11th and over Sunday, the 12th. John B. Brown.

Meredith Centre, N. H., (Hall) .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Concord (Conference) .... Dec. 12th
Manchester .... Dec. 19th
Melvin Village .... Dec. 26th
T. W. Piper.

Salisbury, N. H., (Academy Hall) ... Sabbath, Dec. 5th
Webster, N. H., (Old meeting-house), Sab., Dec. 12th
Boscawen, N. H., (Gulf school-house), Sab., Dec. 19th
Simeon Roby.

Biddeford, Me. .... Sabbath, Dec. 5th
B. S. Emery.

Corinna, Me. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Holden, (Cluley neighborhood) .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Bangor .... Sunday, Jan. 9th
Israel Dammon.

Gardiner, Me., (Booker school-house) .... Dec. 5th
Bath, Me. .... Dec. 12th
East Bowdoinham .... Dec. 19th
Brunswick .... evening, Dec. 25th and over the Sabbath. H. D. Reed.

Stoneham, Mass .... Sabbath, Dec. 12th
B. Finney.

Elliott, Me. .... Dec. 5th and 12th
John Parsons.

Chichester, N. H., (Pine Ground) ... evening, Dec. 4th and over Sunday, Dec. 5th. N. B. McMurphy.

Clinton, Mass. .... evening, Dec. 1st
Manchester, N. H. .... evening, Dec. 3d
Suncook, N. H. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Z. Ford.

Barnstead, (Clark meeting-house) .... Dec. 5th
J. T. Libby, C. H. Willey.

Manchester, N. H. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Fairhaven, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
L. Boutell.

Seabrook, N. H. .... Sundays, Dec. 19th and 26th
E. S. Moulton.

Chichester, (Pine Ground) .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Epsom, (Marden Corner) .. Saturday evening, Dec. 4th
L. E. Saulpaugh.

Richmond Village, Me. .... Sabbath, Dec. 5th
West Waterville, Me., Saturday evening, Dec. 11th, and Sabbath, Dec. 12th, and as much longer as the interest demands. Allen Damon.

Springfield, Mass., (as Bro. Bliss may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 5th.
Brimfield, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Charlton, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Three miles north of Warren's Corner, Niagara Co., N. Y., (as Bro. Adriance may arrange), Dec. 1st and 2nd.
Fives mile from Westfield, Mass., (as Bro. Phelps may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
If any of the above appointments conflict, write me at Rapids, Niag. Co., N. Y. Chas. P. Greenman.

Plainville, Ct. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Westfield, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
East Haddam, Ct. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Wm. A. & M. L. Durand.

Warehouse Point, Ct. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Feeding Hills, (as Bro. David Allen may arrange), Tuesday evening, Dec. 7th.
Collinsville, Ct. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Lovely Street, Ct. .... Tuesday evening, Dec. 14th
Unionville, Ct. .... Wednesday evening, Dec. 15th
Bakerville, Ct. .... Thursday evening, Dec. 16th
Pleasant Valley, Ct .... Friday evening, Dec. 17th
Hartland Hollow, (Town House) .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
I can preach three or four evenings of this week. Address me before Dec. 7th, at Warehouse Point, Ct.
New York City, (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 26th. H. K. Flagg.

South Berwick, Me., (Great Works), Sunday, Dec. 5th
J. G. Smith.

Guilford, (Pond district) .... Sabbath, Dec. 5th
N. Glidden.

Bowdoin, (Adams school-house) .... Sabbath, Dec. 5th
Richmond, (Reed meeting-house), Sabbath, Dec. 12th, 10½ A. M. Levet school-house, two P. M. Reed meeting-house, evening.
Sabbattusville, Me. .... Sabbath, Dec. 19th
Bowdoin, Me. .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th
H. S. Mitchell.

Strafford, N. H., (Robert's school-house), Sunday, Dec. 5th. A. Simpson.

Chicopee Falls, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
E. McCulloch.

Seabrook, N. H. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Portsmouth, N. H. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
East Rochester .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
J. Pinkham.

West Abington, Mass. .... Dec. 8th
W. S. Campbell.

South Sunapee, N. H., (where Bro. Lear may appoint), Friday, Dec. 24th.
Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
Plymouth, Vt., Tuesday, Dec. 7th, 7½ P. M., and continue over Sunday, Dec. 12th.
Brethren in adjoining towns are invited to come and enjoy the meeting with us. There will be ample provision made for all who will come. We expect Brn. W. Dow and H. F. Carpenter will be with us to preach the word. E. T. Wood.

River Point, R. I. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Anthony, R. I., through the week.
Bristol, R. I. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Millville, Mass. .... evening, Dec. 3d
North Dana, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Holden, Mass .... evening, Dec. 23d
If these conflict, please write me at North Dana, Ms.
Geo. A. Streeter.

Hartford, Ct., (Talcott & Post's Hall), Sunday, Dec. 5th
Warehouse Point, Ct. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Wm. Stuart.

South Ashburnham, Mass. .... evening, Dec. 1st
Clinton, Mass. .... evening, Dec. 3d
Stowe, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
L. Boutell.

West Poland, (Chapel) .... Dec. 5th
J. Albert Libby.

New Milford .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Square Pond, Conn. .... Dec. 19th
West Stafford, Ct. .... evening, Dec. 21st
North Somers, Ct. .... evening, Dec. 24th
Scitico, Ct. .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Springfield, Mass. .... evening, Dec. 28th
Brimfield, Mass. .... evening, Dec. 29th
Charlton, Mass. .... evening, Dec. 30th
Webster, Mass. .... evening, Dec. 31st
Abington, Ct. .... Sabbath, Jan. 2d
A. D. Flagg.

Sharon, Ct., (as Bro. Mills may arrange), evening, Dec. 1st, and over the Sabbath.
Morris, Ct., (fourth district), evening, Dec. 10th, and over the Sabbath.
Washington, Ct., (at Bro. French's), eve., Dec. 14th
Wrightville, Ct. .... evening, Dec. 17th and over the Sabbath.
New Preston, Ct. .... evening, Dec. 21st
Lanesville, Ct. .... evening, Dec. 22d
Salem, N. Y., (Pine Tree school-house) ..... Dec. 24th
New York City (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sabbath, Dec. 26th.
Rocky Brook, R. I. .... Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
C. H. Sweet.

East Haddam, Ct. .... Sabbath, Dec. 5th
Morris, Ct. .... Sabbath, Dec. 12th
G. L. White.

Alton Corner, N. H. .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Strafford, N. H., (Roberts' school-house) ..... Dec. 12th
East Boston, Mass. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
☞ NO NAME.

Cold Spring, Ct. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Wm. J. Ripley.

Lake Village (North Church) .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Porter, Me. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house), evenings, Dec. 23d and 24th.
Warren Summit, N. H. .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
Will Bro. Cyrus Nelson go with me to West Rumney? T. Elwin Lang.

Lunenburg, Mass. (at Sr. Burrage's), Sunday, Dec. 5th
Lake Village, N. H. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Others wishing my labor in that vicinity, will please address me at Lake Village, N. H. S. C. Hancock.

Windsor, Me. (Preble school-house), every second Sabbath of the month until further notice. Church Hill, Augusta, third Sabbath. Mud Mills, Augusta, fourth Sabbath. Thomas Rines.

Mexico, Me. (Angier Mitchell school-house), Sunday, Dec. 5th.
Roxbury, Me. (Philbrick school-house), Sunday, Dec. 12th.
Byron, Me. (where Bro. Ireland may appoint), Sunday, Dec. 19th.
Buckfield Hill in the evening. Sam'l Collins.

Andover, (where Bro. Rollins may appoint), Dec. 5th
Wm. H. Shaw, C. W. Nelson.

Bradford, Vt. .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
North Haverhill .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
Wm. H. Shaw.

Belgrade Depot .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
H. B. Sevey.

Abington, Ct. .... Sabbath, Dec. 12th
J. W. Bentley.

Rutland, Vt. .... at 10.30 A. M. and 7 P. M., Sabbath, Dec. 5th. Z. Dubois Baird.

Richmond, R. I., (Clark's Hall) ..... Sunday, Dec. 5th
A. Durfee.

Warehousepoint, Ct., (Simond's Hall) .... Dec. 12th
Lynn, Mass. .... evenings, Dec. 14th and 15th
Salem, Mass. .... Dec. 16th, and over Sunday, the 19th
Springfield, Mass. ... Sundays, Dec. 26th and Jan. 2nd
Hartford, (Talcott and Post's Hall), Sunday, Jan. 9th
W. N. Pile.

Hartland, Ct., (Town Hall) .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
Cheshire Street .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
East Haddam, Ct. .... Sunday, Jan. 2d
S. Woodruff.

Putnam, Ct. .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
I. B. Potter.

Colekill Corner (school-house) .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
J. L. Chute.

Lawrence, Mass., (Advent Chapel.)

J. Hemenway .... Sunday, Dec. 5th

Springfield, Mass., (Bethel Church.)

Wm. N. Pile .... Sunday, Dec. 5th

Westfield, Mass.

A. Simpson .... Sundays, Jan. 9th and 16th

Stoneham, Mass.

J. S. White .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
J. W. Britton .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd

Wilbraham, Mass.

A. M. Higgins .... Sabbath, Dec. 5th
P. S. Butler ...... Sabbaths, Dec. 12th, 19th and 26th

Portland, Me.

R. R. York .... Sabbath, Dec. 5th
J. A. Libby .... Sabbath, Dec. 19th
W. H. Mitchell .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th

Concord, N. H., (Centre Street.)

J. Couch .... Sabbath, Dec. 5th

Concord, N. H., (at the Bethel.)

H. L. Hastings .... Sunday, Dec. 5th

Dover, N. H.

A. P. Moore .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
W. H. Mitchell .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
C. Goodrich .... Sunday, Dec. 26th

Manchester, N. H.

D. M. Leavitt .... Sunday, Dec. 5th

Hampton, N. H.

E. S. Moulton .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
T. T. Farrell .... Sunday, Dec. 12th

Bristol, Ct.

A. Ellcott .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
R. Stark .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th

Square Pond, Ct.

A. D. Flagg .... Sunday, Dec. 19th

New Britain, Ct.

Chas. C. Barker .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
H. H. Dickinson .... Sunday, Dec. 12th
Dr. Luddington .... Sunday, Dec. 19th

Wolcottville, Ct.

G. L. Teeple .... Sunday, Dec. 5th
B. Hitchcock .... Sunday, Dec. 19th

Portland, Me.

Meetings are held in Advent Hall, Cushman's Block, 333¼ Congress Street, three times on the Sabbath, and Tuesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock.

New York City.

The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 405 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

☞ Preachers sending appointments to Wakefield, Mass., are particularly requested to correspond with John B. Adams.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Westfield, Mass., will please correspond first with Eld. E. A. Eggleston.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Portsmouth, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. Thomas J. Spinney.

☞ Bro. Joseph A. Philbrook has been chosen Corresponding Secretary for the church in Hampton, N. H. Preaching brethren will please notice.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Manchester, N. H., will please correspond with the following committee:—A. J. Mayhew, S. R. Davidson, O. Proctor.

☞ Brethren sending appointments for Loudon Ridge, N. H., will bear in mind that the fourth Sabbath in each month is engaged.

☞ Any Bro. wishing to come to Seabrook, N. H., to preach, will please address Bro. R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Bro. Charles Barton, of Seabrook.

☞ All preaching brethren who desire to communicate with the church at Rochester, N. Y., are requested to correspond with J. E. Wells, 32 Smith Street.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Portland, Me., will please correspond first with Eld. R. R. York, or with either of the following committee:—H. C. Freeman, James Berry, S. K. Dyer.

☞ Advent preaching brethren who may wish to visit Kennebunk Depot, will please address Edwin B. Wells, Kennebunk Depot, Me.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Lewiston, Me., will please correspond first with Albert Burgess, Cor. Sec.

☞ Augustus E. Snow, 1715 Markham Street, Philadelphia, has been chosen Cor. Secretary of the church worshiping at Ninth and Spring-Garden Streets.

☞ Brethren wishing to visit the church in Bristol, Ct., will please correspond with Elder B. Hitchcock, Forestville, Ct.

☞ Brethren desiring to preach in Hartford, Ct., will please correspond with Bro. L. Tiffany. Preaching the first Sabbath in each month by resident Elder H. H. Dickinson.

☞ Persons wishing to communicate with the church in New Britain, Conn., in regard to preaching, will please correspond with Bro. A. Powell, Cor. Sec.

☞ All preaching brethren desirous of going to New Milford Ct., to preach, will first correspond with Richard Hecock.

Business.

Letters Received.

F Mudgett, N B McMurphy, S Tenney, B Banton, J. Couch, P M London, T Smith, C F Lothrop, J L Roberts, C Wilder, H A King, A Durfee, Geo. Thompson, S Marritt, I C Wellcome. S P Hinds, G R Clarke, H Munger, C Colegrove, J A Cleaveland, D N Brown, L B Weaver, F H Chamberlain, S Tout, E A Gardiner.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9½ per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 16 cts. additional postage

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $5.00; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $4.00; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2 50; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $1.50; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.50; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

Any of the above will be sent by mail on receipt of the price.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; $3.50 per one hundred copies.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

376 pages. Price by mail, $1.25.

The above works for sale at this office.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.

Price in cloth .... 75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers .... 60 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers .... 50 cts., postage 6 cts.
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.75

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.
WHAT IS MAN?
THE SOUL—WHAT IS IT?
THE SPIRIT—WHAT IS IT?
THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

All the above works in one volume, flexible cloth, in a compact, durable form, for use and preservation, for 35 cents, postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

9. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.

10. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

An Admonition to Christian Churches on Church Festivals, Fairs, etc.

By I. K. Lombard.

A new edition, with additions and improvements. About twelve thousand of the above sheet have been scattered, and they are doing a practical service against these growing evils in the churches of our land. The picture of their proceedings is so faithfully drawn, that the guilty on reading it have several times furiously protested to those who offered them that it was written on purpose for them, with a full knowledge of the facts in their case. Price, posdpaid, 15 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

For sale at this office, or by I. K. Lombard, South Windham, Maine.

The Berean's Casket and Repository.

This is a work just published, containing 492 pages with the tables of contents, in 358 sections, all in small type, embracing a great amount of matter. It is a Scripture Manual, to which is added much valuable history, showing the fulfillment of prophecy, signs of the times, and other important matter for every Bible reader, statistics, tables, and prophetic figures. Compiled by I. C. Wellcome. Price, cloth, bevel boards, postpaid, $2.00. Leather bound, $2.50.

For sale at this office.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home .... 16 pp.
2. Life Insurance .... 16 pp.
3. Lost! Lost! .... 8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet? .... 8 pp.
5. About God (for children) .... 4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing .... 4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ .... 4 pp.
8. Now .... 4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent, postpaid:

One set (54 pp.) .... 6c.
1300 pp. $1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid) $1.00

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

WAITING FOR DAY.

I am waiting, watching,
  For the night to pass away;
I am sighing, longing,
  For the breaking of the day.
I am seeking, striving,
  For the strait and narrow way;
I am hoping, praying,
  For help divine, day by day.

I am sometimes weary,
  For the day seems slow to dawn;
I am sometimes dreary,
  For the night seems dark and long.
I am sometimes doubting,
  For the clouds obscure the sun;
I am sometimes grieving,
  That my Savior does not come.

I am sometimes saddened,
  For our hope seems long deferred;
I am sometimes gladdened,
  For the promise in his word.
But I'm waiting, watching,
  For the dawn of that bright day;
When the King of glory
  To this earth shall speed away.

SOPHIA JACKMAN.

QUIETNESS BEFORE GOD.

SELECTED BY MRS. G. A. COLE.

Quietness before God, especially in dark hours of trial, is one of the most rare and difficult of graces. Yet when it is gained, it proves one of the most wholesome in its influence. None pleases God more; none renders religion more beautiful in the eyes of men. Yet how we dread the hour of trial! How fervently we beg that "This cup may pass from us."

No one loves to be afflicted. No one loves to have his plans defeated, or his hopes dashed; or to be stripped of his property, or to be cast down; or be bereaved of his household treasures. We shudder at the sight of that surgical knife which God employs upon us. Our self-love rebels against the excruciating operation; but when God who wounds in order to heal is engaged in his providential process of amputating a darling lust, or cutting out an ulcer of besetting sin, our strength is to sit still.

When he works on the heart by sharp trials, the first duty of his child is perfect, submissive, unquestioning quietness. "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," is the very core and essence of our model prayer.

A Sabbath School teacher once asked his class, "How do the angels in heaven do God's will?"

After several answers, one little girl answered,

"Without asking any questions!"

Here was a definition of quietness before God. It is a rare grace, because it is so difficult to exercise. A score of christians can pray, and give, and work for God, where one can be found ready to sit down and suffer.

God puts especial honor on the grace of passive submission. He commends the strength to sit still. He approves that patient quietness which behaves itself "like a child that is weaned of his mother;" and the loftiest saints in the Bible are those who have become the most perfect through suffering.

Quietness under God's discipline is simply the willingness to let God have his own way. It is ready to go where he sends us, to bear what he lays upon us, to sit still just where he places us. Why should we try to get away from his blessed discipline? When you would fill a vessel with water from a hydrant, or a rain-spout, you do not remove the vessel while the stream is pouring in; it is filled by sitting still. And if God's storms are filling your heart with heaven's descending graces, why should you seek to move away from beneath its blessed out-pour? If God is refining your heart, why seek to be taken out of the furnace?

"Pain's furnace-heat within me quivers,
God's breath upon the flames doth blow,
And all my heart in anguish shivers,
And trembles at the fiery glow;
But yet I whisper, As God will!
And in his hottest fire sit still."

BRO. GRANT:—I thought this might encourage some of our dear afflicted ones, and bring to remembrance that afflictions and sorrows are for our good, and so wait in patience and quietness for a glorious morn, when all these things shall be done away. G. A. C.

LETTER FROM SR. F. REYNOLDS.

Why should the daughters of a King go mourning all their days, especially when we hear such good news as—Jesus is coming? O, how my heart throbs as I read the signs of the times, and know that they portray the end of all things is at hand. I can sing with the little hymn—

"If ever I loved thee, my Jesus, 'tis now."

How I love to sit with his sacred word and follow his footsteps upon earth, as he wandered about from place to place. How I love to think of Jesus on the mount, as he preached that sermon when he spake as never man spake, when his words were sharper than any two-edged sword. I love to think of Jesus at that mountain feast, when he had compassion on the hungry multitude, when they all sat down upon the grass in companies, and Jesus entertained them himself by spreading the feast.

I love to think of Jesus on that tempestuous night on the Galilean shore, when the waves covered the ship, and the terrified fishermen awoke their Lord. My Master arose and said, "Peace! be still!" The wind and the waves obeyed him.

I love to think of his tender heart as he wept over Salem's sin, and fancy I hear his heart-rending cry, "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace!"

I love to think of his death for my sins; of his resurrection, that I might have life. I love to dwell upon his dying words—"It is finished!" Yes, bless the Lord, not partly done, not patched up, but finished. O, how delightful to read from the precious word about Jesus, where he went, and what he did. How I wish I could have been with him; and nothing cheers me to-day but the prospect of his speedy return. He said, "If I go away, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." It is enough, dear Lord. Where should the living members dwell but with their living Head?

What solemn words for those professors who are still rejecting the light. There are many in this city who are afraid to preach Christ's speedy return, although they believe it; they are continually saying, "Why don't we get a blessing? why don't the Lord revive his work?" I can tell them why; it is because they do not come out and own the truth as God has revealed it to them. They are not willing to walk in the light and bear reproach for the Master. F. REYNOLDS.

Chicago, Ill.

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE BRN. AND SRS.

DEAR BRN. AND SRS. IN CHRIST:—As many are inquiring after my health, and to know where I am, I would say that I am at home. My health is so poor that I cannot preach, or do any kind of labor for the present. I am receiving the kind attention of one of the best Homeopathic physicians in the State, who says I must stop trying to preach, or work, for several months, or die; and I have concluded I must until I am better. I have done what I could for the last eight years in feeding the flock of God, and warning sinners to flee from the wrath to come, and lay hold on eternal life; but I feel that I have been an unprofitable servant. For the last two years I have traveled and labored in much weakness, in consequence of many and "often infirmities." But I feel that the Lord is mine; blessed be his name forever. I still hope, by the blessing of God, to be able to go out and help proclaim the good news of salvation, and speedy and eternal redemption for the church of Christ, from the effects of sin, by the coming of Jesus to take the throne of David, and reign forever and ever. Blessed be the Lord God for such a blessed hope.

Oh, Brn. and Srs., we are not half awake to this great subject. What! believe the Lord is very soon coming, to destroy this old earth, and the wicked, and still talking about the fashions of this ungodly world, and putting on costly apparel, and gold, which God has strictly forbidden his children to wear! He that doeth the will of God abideth forever. Who among us does not want to abide forever with Christ, and the good of all ages, to reign in that blessed land of promise?

Oh blessed prospect of rest eternal in that sinless, deathless clime, where all will be free from sorrow's rude blast, and death's cold embrace. Where the loved ones of earth will meet, who now sleep in the dust of the groaning earth. God help us to do his will, that we may be there to enjoy that blissful home, where the meek "shall inherit the earth," and dwell therein forever.

Pray for me, dear friends, that I may reach that blissful shore, where the inhabitants will not say they are sick. JER. CARR.

South Albion, Me., Nov. 8th, 1869.

FRANCE.

A great deal is said and written upon the immediate future of the French Empire. Some writers are of the opinion that the Emperor must die within six months. His disease is pronounced to be incurable, and rapidly wasting him away. Others declare that this positive diagnosis is a positive error, and that the Emperor's chances of life are as good as those of any other hard-worked man who has passed his grand climateric. When we consider that there is no life whose "expectation" more sensibly affects the stock exchange than that of the Emperor Napoleon, we may suspect that the "Bulls and Bears" have something to do with these unofficial health bulletins. A number of writers, leaving the question of the time of the Emperor's death to settle itself, are full of political portents. They enumerate the various parties of the opponents of imperialism, and count on the trades strikes and like difficulties, which France shares in common with England and America. They point to what they consider the vacillation of the Emperor, and weakness in his concessions. They read desperation in the project of another coup d' etat, which they suppose that he entertained, though the event has not proved any such imperial intention, or any such popular folly as would have given the intention scope and opportunity.

For ourselves, we have no desire to be counted in on either side, and do not say that "something" is imminent in Paris, or that "something" is not. Nor do we see any strong reason for the belief that the Emperor will die at a given time, based on the revelations of a degraded physician; or for saying that the natural anxiety regarding his health is without cause. But we wish to call attention to one circumstance which seems to be forgotten. For nearly eighteen years Louis Napoleon has governed France as Emperor with an ability which has awed or crushed his enemies, and commanded the respect of the world. Whatever sentiments the ardent and visionary republicans of the old legitimists have entertained towards him, the pride of the nation has been in the main gratified, and the great body of the people, the middle class, have enjoyed a quiet and stability in their pursuits which they are in no haste to imperil or to relinquish. If certain popular indications have latterly shown disquiet, these indications are no more than we see in the chronic condition of the United States and Great Britian. People have come to the understanding that they can agitate, even in France, without the danger of precipitating a bloody revolution.

But whenever such a catastrophe becomes imminent, we suspect that the friends of the present dynasty will be found in the class who are not prominent in politics or active in agitation. All Frenchmen are not torpedoes, waiting only the touching of the fuse to explode in revolution. They have some idea of Sydney Smith's notion of a good government, that it means a good dinner at the proper hour, and comfortable clothing. In a word, they have become accustomed to the Empire. They have realized its advantages; and—inglorious as it may seem—they may possibly prefer order to anarchy, even at the expense of sentiment.—Phila. Ledger.

For the World's Crisis.

A SUBJECT OF IMPORTANCE.

The press has of late begun to approach a subject which doubtless from its delicacy has hitherto received too much immunity from it and the pulpit. It is frequently the case that evils of a confessedly heinous character are winked at, from motives of modesty, until, becoming so glaring, unblushing, and universal, some one is compelled to rise up and protest with vehemence.

The following article, which has lately appeared in several papers, will indicate the subject referred to.

"Mr. Warren Johnson, State Superintendent of common schools in Maine, reports to the Legislature that there is a decrease of 16,683 scholars between the ages of four and twenty-one from the census of 1858. The decrease in the past year has been 3,182; the decrease in 1866 was 4,141.

"Mr. Johnson very naturally considers this decrease alarming, and asks a number of questions, such as, Have we ceased to be a producing people? Are the vital forces expended in brain labor, and lost to physical reproduction? and, Are the modern fashionable criminalities of infanticide and fœticide creeping into our State community? We should think they had crept in considerably when they have reduced the number of children at the pace of four thousand per annum.

"Dr. Storer, and other eminent physicians of Massachusetts, boldly declare that fœticide is the common crime which limits the increase of children in that State almost wholly to the foreign population. It is not 'brain labor' in Maine, or any other State, which prevents the production of families, but a general female repugnance to a labor of another sort."

The above figures and facts are fearfully suggestive in themselves, but we fear that they are only samples. There is no doubt but the third question of Mr. Johnson presents the solution of his figures. And furthermore, that which is indicated in that question is fast becoming a national crime; yet we have too good an opinion of the females of our country to doubt that when this matter is placed before them in its proper light, the evil will be largely corrected.

This evil, no doubt, originated with, and for a while was generally confined to aristocratic and fashionable circles,—votaries of pleasure and fashionable display, not wishing to have their gratifications interfered with. The prevailing vices of every age are known by its caterers; the country has become flooded with advertisements of medicines pandering to this crime, at once presenting the temptation and the means.

As might be expected, that which was so remuneratively successful among a limited class, would be introduced with vigor among all classes, and thus that which in the beginning was merely local, would in the end become in a great measure universal. The introduction of modern spiritism has doubtless been a means of accelerating this crime in some communities, by lowering the standard of morals, and denying individual accountability and a future judgment. Witness the following from their teachings: "Within the bosom of every man and woman there is a judgment-seat, a throne of God; and before that alone should men bow down and worship; . . . he is to come before no other tribunal."

How fully God's predictions are being fulfilled: "Now the Spirit [of God, not of demons] speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils."—1 Tim. 4: 1. These practices would be sufficiently lamentable if confined exclusively to those making no profession of christianity; but when we reflect that many professors are guilty of this enormous crime, it is time for somebody to sound the alarm, and undeceive the thousands who we verily believe are honestly mistaken in their idea of the innocence of the practice. Christian women are not to set up a standard of expediency, convenience, or fashion, but of right. The word of God furnishes the only safe rule to govern christians in all things.

The command given by God in Gen. 1: 28, and 9: 7, has never been abrogated. What God commands is law; the transgression of the law is sin. 1 John 3: 4. Look again in the glass of the Lord. Ps. 127: 3–5. Thus what many regard as a curse, or, at least, a burden, is pronounced by the Lord a great blessing. Hear again the voice of Inspiration. 1 Tim. 5: 14. Unfruitfulness, or barrenness, was announced as a penalty of certain violated laws. Lev. 20: 20, 21.

Women have been ridiculed by female acquaintances for permitting themselves to be annoyed by a large family of children; and thus the matter is introduced which frequently eventuates in making them partners in crime. It is to be feared that this evil is growing to such an extent that the moral susceptibilities are becoming blunted, and some wives have come to regard it as a disaster if they are "caught," as the phrase is. Let all know that the word of God utterly condemns such practices; and when that word assures us that "whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer," we can conceive of practices which must entail that dreadful name on those who engage in them; and that word also declares that "no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him."

O that this evil may be arrested. Let christian wives pause and reflect. Let all do their duty in this matter.

We will conclude this article with the following remarks from Prof. S. Loomis, M. D., in a recent opening lecture before the medical department of the Georgetown College:—

"In the State of New York there are one hundred and ninety-seven thousand families whose silent solitude is never broken by the music of childish prattle; and while one quarter of all the wives are thus absolutely childless, nineteen per cent have only one, and eighteen per cent only two children each." And adds, "In the presence of such facts, no physician can remain longer blamelessly silent." And we add, can Christian teachers remain longer silent? GEO. THOMSON.

WAITING ON THE SICK.

The death of the Emperor Napoleon within the next half year seems to be as nearly certain as the prognostications of his physicians and of all who know anything of his case can make it. The result is evidently looked for with feverish uncertainty throughout France. The growing boldness of the anti-Bonapartists, of all shades, from the politic moderation of Thiers and Olivier, to the outspoken revolutionism of Rollin and Rochefort, indicates that the hand that has held the reins of empire over France for nearly twenty years is relaxing its grasp, with a prospect of leaving no assured successor. The very principle on which Napoleon III. assumes to reign,—that of the will of the people, as expressed in the Plebiscitum,—is inconsistent with the hereditary principle, which is necessary to the easy succession of his infant son to the throne as Napoleon IV. If the present Emperor should, during his life, submit the mode of succession which he proposes, and the intervening regency, to the vote of the French people, the principle on which he assumes to reign might then be invoked in behalf of his son. But as he really reigns by virtue of his personal vigor, pluck, sagacity, and statesmanship—in a word, because he is the first politician in France—the popular verdict for him is one which he cannot transfer or bequeath. His son must develop the Napoleonic genius for statecraft before he can be assured of inheriting the position of the first man in Europe.

Whoever at Napoleon's death has the immediate control of the French army will really be master of the situation, for the time, if he has the boldness to use his power. Napoleonism is virtually the rule of the army, qualified by the influence of the women, the clergy, and the mob. The Empress' Eastern tour is attributed to no deeper motive than a desire to make a display of herself and gratify her womanly vanity. But it is safe to suppose that she knows the mercurial nature of the French; that she remembers the brutal fate of Marie Antoinette; that she is fully aware that, as the daughter of a Spanish gentleman and the granddaughter of a German toy-vender, and withal an ultramontane Catholic of the religious type of Isabella of Spain, she has no stronger hold on the French people than any woman of rare beauty would have in the period of her prosperity. With these facts before her, she might well shrink from bearing the responsibility of action in the crisis which would result from her husband's death. Moreover, being vain rather than ambitious, with a taste for dresses and millinery rather than diplomacy and coup d' etat, she could not bring to the effort to preserve power any portion of the audacity, force, or will by which Napoleon III. acquired it. It seems not improbable, from her present absence, that she would rather be out of France than in it, in the event of her husband's death.

The Prince Napoleon would have to belie his whole record, and play an assumed character, if he should make any energetic attempt to enforce the ascendancy of the Bonapartes family. Every indication seems to show, therefore, that, in the event of Napoleon's death, there would be no vigorous hand to assert the continuance of his dynasty, and, unless a majority of the army, the Corps Legislatif, and the people, should really desire and peacefully accept it on trial, the government would lapse, almost without a struggle, into a republic or into anarchy.

Meanwhile, by a singular combination of accidents, almost every other power of Europe is in circumstances of special danger. Spain still labors in chronic revolution, with no hope of an early selection of a King, and with very little prospect that any selection that could be made would be a peaceful one. Her only vital and active party is the Republican, and the persecutions they are now undergoing do not preclude the hope of their final success.

King Victor Emanuel is sinking under the effects of debauchery, and a fortnight ago had nearly died. His present revival is but temporary. With a mind and body wasted in sensuality, and a character sunk into contempt among the masses of the people, leaving a son and heir conspicuous for the same tendencies, his death will probably be the falling apart of the kingdom, which was built up for him by the zeal of Garibaldi and the statesmanship of Count Cavour.

Bismarck is waning. Drunkenness is sapping the strength of his brilliant mind, and darkening into savage waywardness his once calm and resolute will. Russia is too secure in the homogeneity and firmness of her institutions to be seriously affected by the fact that Alexander I. has acquired special pre-eminence as a drunkard, in a country where a man must drink very hard indeed to exceed the general custom. Turkey was of late the sick man of Europe, but now there is a sick man at the head of most of the European governments, and revolution lurks in the shadows of the palaces, waiting.

For the World's Crisis.

"OH, LET US BE UP AND DOING."

Oh, let us be up and doing,
  The night is coming on,
To-day is the time for labor,
  To-morrow may never come;
The careless are all around us,
  The sinner will dread to die;
Oh, let us be up and doing,
  What if it were you or I?

Let us tell them in tenderest accents
  Of a Savior's dying love,
How he came to suffer and languish,
  From his beautiful home above;
And, "Lo, I am with you always"—
  The promise is sweet and true;
He has died for me, dear sinner,
  Oh, has he not died for you?

Oh, yes, indeed, 'twas the sinner,
  The sinner he came to save,
For you he was dragged to Calvary,
  And slept in the lowly grave;
Oh, do not be thoughtless, careless,
  'Tis real indeed and true;
What can you reply at the judgment,
  When he says, I have died for you?

With shame your face will crimson,
  Your head will be bowed with woe,
"Depart from me, ye cursed"—
  His children will never know.
Oh, try to be one of the number
  To hear the words, "Well done";
Lay aside this world's enjoyment,
  For the new and beautiful one;

Where are lakes of the purest crystal,
  The streets all paved with gold,
Where the flowers will bloom forever,
  And the half has not been told.
Come, christian, be up and doing,
  Take sinners by the hand;
Let our crowns be set with diamonds
  As we enter the goodly land.

Warren, Vt. CARRIE E. GREENSLIT.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR MEETING.

BRO. GRANT:—When parting with some of the dear brethren and sisters at our late campmeeting, they made me promise that I would occasionally write for the Crisis. And now as I attempt to redeem it, perhaps they will be reminded of a like promise made to me. I have been patiently waiting for Brn. Mathewson, Cleaveland, or some other competent person to report the meeting, but as yet have seen nothing.

Well, it was good clear through. What blessed seasons the prayer and conference meetings were. How the prayers, songs, and exhortations, warm from hearts filled with the love of God, raised us above the things of earth. Then the word as it fell from the lips of the faithful watchmen; the hearty response, the tearful eye, told how the hungry children appreciated it. Then our last meeting Sabbath evening; the "exhortation" from Bro. Couch, how timely, how truthful. I wish it might be indelibly stamped upon the mind of every one that heard it. How many of us who attended that campmeeting will receive lasting benefit from it. Bless God, some will praise God to all eternity for it.

One good sister recently in one of our prayer meetings said, "I am so thankful for the campmeeting, it has done me so much good. I have got so much light on God's holy word. I thank God for it, brethren."

Since the meeting, our prayer and conference meetings have been better attended, and more spiritual. Some have recently given their hearts to God. Three have been baptized. God grant that they may be of those that shall inherit eternal life.

Brethren, pray for us, that "when He who is our life shall appear," we "may also appear with him in glory." GEO. U. LEWIS.

Bethel, Vt., Nov. 16th.

For the World's Crisis.

UNIVERSALISM PREFERRED.

It is often said—"Straws show which way the wind blows." We may add—church action shows their theological affinities and sympathies.

During our recent campaign with the "Maine Mission Tent," we were one day visited by a young English minister, who is in this country visiting for a term of time, and has gained some notoriety as an eloquent speaker, and is employed during the present year to preach for the M. E. church in B——. After a pleasant interview, we invited him to come in and preach to us on some evening. He readily consented, and engaged to come and preach the next Saturday evening.

On Friday evening we notified our audience of his engagement. This news at once reached the ears of the officers of the church which employed him, and they took such prompt action in the case as prevented him from preaching the gospel to us.

Such was the authority exerted, that he felt obliged to come to me and withdraw his engagement, with much regret and deep mortification. Knowing what he must suffer if he disobeyed his superiors, I readily excused him, and gave him some theological works to assist him in his studies.

Since then this same church has allowed this minister to exchange pulpits with a Universalist minister, to whom they listened while he ministered at their altar. Thus the professed followers of those who preached, wrote and sung the "blessed hope," refuse to affiliate with those who yet love and teach it, but readily recognize and listen to Universalism.

I. C. WELLCOME.

Gems.

— "He that would rest, must work."

— Promises may get friends, but it is performance that keeps them.

— The soldier wastes his strength, who fights his shadow.

— Politeness is real kindness kindly expressed.

— Religion is the best armor, but the worst cloak.

— God has so ordained that the soul of man should never be at rest out of Christ; he only is our rest and our peace.

— A christian's experience is like a rainbow, made up of drops of the grief of earth, and beams of the bliss of heaven.

— A reckless mind—a seared conscience—a hardened heart—one step more, and—a lost soul!

— Forgetting of accounts payeth not debts; nay, the interest of a forgotten bond rinneth up with God interest upon interest.

— The world is a sea of glass; affliction scatters our path with sand and ashes, in order to keep our feet from slipping.

— There are things which we cannot help knowing, but which we must never acknowledge.

— The christian is the only Bible very frequently the world will read. How sad that the copy should be so defaced!

— One of the most essential preparations for eternity is delight in praising God; a higher acquirement, I think, than even delight and devotedness in prayer.

— The human race is divided into two classes—those who go ahead and do something, and those who sit still and inquire, "Why wasn't it done the other way?"

— Courtesy, in the mistress of a house, consists in feeding conversation,—never in usurping it. She is the guardian of this species of sacred fire, but it must be accessible to all.

— Jesus gives us no grace for next week, nor for anticipated trouble. We must rely on him for strength only for the moment. Trust him now, and so through each passing moment we shall be kept in peace.

— Our duties are like the circles of a whirlpool, and the innermost circle is home. The road to home happiness is over the stepping-stones which lie above the brook of daily discomforts.

— Rest is for heaven, toil is for earth. We often speak of being "settled in life;" we might as well think of casting anchor in the midst of the Atlantic Ocean; or talk of the permanent situation of a stone that is rolling down-hill!

— He that refuses to forgive an injury, breaks the bridge that he will want one day to cross himself. He who has not forgiven an enemy, has never yet tasted one of the most sublime enjoyments of life.

— Our duties are like the circles of a whirlpool, and the innermost circle is home. The road to home happiness is over the stepping-stones which lie above the brook of daily discomforts.

MEN WANTED.

The great want of this age is men. Men who are not for sale. Men who are honest, sound from centre to circumference, true to the heart's core. Men who fear the Lord and covetousness. Men who will condemn wrong in friend or foe, in themselves as well as in others. Men whose consciences are steady as the needle to the pole. Men who will stand for the right if the heavens totter and the earth reels. Men who can tell the truth and look the world and the devil right in the eye. Men who neither brag nor run. Men who neither swagger nor flinch. Men who can have courage without whistling for it. Men in whom the current of everlasting life runs still, and deep, and strong. Men careful of God's honor and careless of men's applause. Men too large for sectarian limits, and too strong for sectarian bands. Men who do not strive, nor cry, nor cause their voices to be heard in the streets, but who will not fail nor be discouraged till judgment be set in the earth. Men who know their message and tell it. Men who know their duty and do it. Men who know their place and fill it. Men who mind their own business. Men who will not lie. Men who are not too lazy to work, nor too proud to be poor. Men who are willing to eat what they have paid for. Men who know in whom they have believed. Men whose feet are on the everlasting rock. Men who are not ashamed of their hope. Men who are strong in divine strength, wise with the wisdom that comes from above, and loving with the love of Christ. Men of God.—H. L. H.

ALEXANDER'S PORTRAIT.

It is a marvelous fact that we Protestants have of finding out each other's faults, and shutting our eyes to each other's excellences. I know no denomination of christians upon earth in which there are not many excellences; and, alas! no denomination in which are not found surpassing defects. There is no perfect union attainable upon earth. But we might look less than we do at each other's faults, and look more than we are prone to look at each other's excellences.

When an eminent painter was requested to paint Alexander the Great, so as to give a perfect likeness of the Macedonian conqueror, he felt a difficulty. Alexander in his wars had been struck by a sword, and across his forehead was an immense scar. The painter said, If I retain the scar, it will be an offence to the admirers of the monarch, and if I omit it, it will fail to be a perfect likeness. What shall I do? He hit upon a happy expedient; he represented the emperor leaning on his elbow, with his forefinger upon his brow, accidentally, as it seemed, covering the scar upon his forehead. Might not we represent each other with the finger of charity upon the scar, instead of representing the scar deeper, darker, and blacker than it actually is? Might not christians learn from heathendom a lesson of charity, of human kindness, and of love?—Dr. Cumming.

WHAT AM I DOING?

Be Faithful. Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

Be Prayerful. Ask, and it shall be given you.

Be Watchful. Watch, therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come.

Be Joyful. For, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.

Be Humble. For by grace are ye saved, through faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God.

Be Earnest. Behold, he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him.

— Every thing that man leans upon but God, will be a dart that will pierce him through and through. He who leans only upon Christ, lives the highest, safest, and sweetest life.

FOUR IMPOSSIBLE THINGS.

1. To escape troubles by running away from them. Jonah once made the experiment, but it did not succeed. Therefore, manfully meet and overcome the difficulties and trials to which the post assigned you by God's providence exposes you.

2. To become a christian of strength and maturity without undergoing severe trials. What fire is to gold, such is affliction to the believer. It burns up the dross, and makes the gold shine forth with unalloyed lustre.

3. To form an independent character except when thrown on one's own resources. The oak in the middle of the forest, if surrounded on every side by trees that shelter and shade, it runs up tall and comparatively feeble; cut away its protectors, and the first blast will overturn it. But the same tree, growing in the open field where it is continually beaten upon by the tempest, becomes its own protector. So the man who is compelled to rely on his own resources forms an independence of character to which he could not otherwise have attained.

4. To be a growing man by looking to your position in society for influence, instead of bringing influence to your position. Therefore prefer rather to climb up the hill with difficulty, than to be steamed up by a power outside yourself.—Church Gazette.

DRINKING UP THE JORDAN.

A Baptist minister was invited by a Methodist minister to preach in his pulpit. He performed the service. As soon as he had closed, the Methodist went down from the pulpit, and stood in front of a table. The Baptist did not know what was to be done, but supposing there was no harm to follow, also descended, and took his seat in a chair behind the table. The Baptist, from his labors in the pulpit, had become very thirsty, and seeing a bowl of water on the table, immediately drank it up.

The Methodist by this time had begun to speak. The Baptist listened, and he found that some persons were soon to be christened, which, of course, came in view with his Baptist views; but what troubled him now the most, was, that although there had been "enough water," he had used it all to quench his thirst.

His feelings, as might be supposed, were indescribably painful; his terror was now at its height, as he saw his Methodist brother about to place his finger in the bowl, but approaching him, he said, with as much composure of countenance as he could command: "My dear brother, I am sorry to inform you, that I have drank up your little 'Jordan' entirely dry."

HYMNS.

"I love to steal a while away."

The circumstances under which this beautiful hymn, justly a general favorite, was written, may not be known to all our readers. Its author, Mrs. Phœbe H. Brown, was an intelligent, pious woman, who labored industriously to support a large family of children. She was wont, after the toils of the day were over, at the quiet twilight hour, to ramble to a neighboring grove, where, alone and unobserved, she might spend an hour in meditation and prayer. A wealthy lady, who lived near Mrs. Brown, seeing her go often to this retreat, without knowing her object, censured her severely, in the presence of other persons, for her "rambles," and told her "she had better be at home with her children." Mortified at being charged with neglecting her family, and deeply wounded that her retirement for communion with God had excited evil surmises, Mrs. Brown remained at home that evening, and with her babe on her knee, wrote her "Apology for my Night Rambles." A friend found this beautiful gem among her manuscripts and sent it to Dr. Nettleton, who inserted it in a collection of hymns he was preparing. Mrs. Brown was doubtless successful in bringing up her children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, as one of them was the first American missionary to Japan.

RELIGIOUS ITEMS.

— The "Syllabus" on which, among other things, the Œcumenical Council is to take action, dates from the Pope's encyclical letter of 1864, and may be defined as a general indictment of the nineteenth century. It declares against the freedom of the press, Bible societies, independence of Church and State, marriage as a civil contract simply, secular education—i. e., beyond the control of the Romish Church, etc., etc. It is reported from Paris that since the withdrawal of Pere Hyacinthe from the order to which he belonged, it is forbidden to the barefooted Carmelites to preach in public.

— The national camp-meeting committee have decided to hold meetings next year in the following places: the first one to be held at Hamilton, Mass., June 21st, another in Oakington, Md., July 12th, and the other in Des Plaines, Illinois, August 9th.

— There is a growing tendency among the churches of all denominations in Boston and vicinity toward free seats. At the Old South church the galleries have recently been made free. Rev. James Ereeman Clarke's new church is free in all parts.

— Many good men are predicting for the West, the coming winter, "man's extremity" in temporal things, and "God's opportunity" in gracious things.

— A baptizing ceremony at Melbourne, Canada, was interrupted lately, by a big brother of the young woman about to be immersed, who thrashed the clergyman.

— The veteran Connecticut Presiding Elder, Heman Bangs, died Nov. 2. He had been a preacher fifty-four years, but disabled from active labor for over a year past.

— No less than seventy-two bishops, including most of those from Portugal, have excused themselves from attending the Ecumenical Council.

— The English Baptists are raising $12,000 for a chapel in Paris, and American Baptists are asked to give an equal amount.

— The East Genesee Methodist Conference lately passed a resolution disapproving Free Masonry in very strong terms.

— Judaism in America is developing very fast into Rationalism.

— A Hebrew synagogue is soon to be erected in Hartford.

— The Times says a Mormon Temple will be erected in New York within a year.

DEFINITION OF BIBLE TERMS.

A day's journey was thirty-three and one fifth miles.

A Sabbath day's journey was about an English mile.

Ezekiel's reed was eleven feet, nearly.

A cubit is twenty-two inches, nearly.

A hand's breadth is equal to three and five-eighths inches.

A finger's breadth is equal to one inch.

A shekel of silver was about fifty cents.

A shekel of gold was $8 09.

A talent of silver was $538 32.

A talent of gold was $13 809.

A piece of silver, or a penny, was thirteen cents.

A farthing was three cents.

A gerah was one cent.

An epha, or bath, contains seven gallons and five pints.

A hin was one gallon and two pints.

A firkin was seven pints.

An omer was six pints.

A cab was three pints.

TOO LONG SERMONS.—It is not a good plan, after you have driven a nail in a sure place, instead of just clinching and leaving it, to keep hammering away till you break the head off or split the board.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

For the "Children's Corner."

TIME.

Dear Children:—Did you ever think of the difference there is between time and eternity? Time is precious only as we improve it to prepare for eternity. If we do not rightly improve it, the blessings of eternal life never will dawn on us.

The present time is all we are certain of. Should we not act promptly—wisely? If on a certain day, and no other, your father would give you a deed of valuable property if you would only ask him, would you not be likely to find him, and remind him of his promise?

Now your heavenly Father has promised to give all, who ask in good faith, a deed to an inheritance, incorruptible and undefiled—eternal life. But he has appointed a day in which you must ask for the deed. The day appointed is the present time; no other time will answer.

It is always now in the Bible. I do not know why you should wish to put it off; the sooner you claim the inheritance the better it will be for you.

Time is so precious God deals it out in moments, never giving us two at once. Time as measured now will not last long at the best; it is subject to decay and death, like all things connected with it. Eternity is without beginning or end. Death is unknown there; all is immortal, beautiful, glorious.

My dear young friends, did you ever think that there will be a last time to you with all earthly things? There will be a last time to repent of sin—a last time to accept Jesus as your Savior. How soon you may hear the last sermon, and see your Sabbath School teacher for the last time, as he pleads with you to become reconciled to God. The last prayer for you may soon be offered up.

If you are a christian, oh, be faithful! The last opportunity you may have of introducing a dear friend to Jesus, and telling him about the inheritance provided for him, if he will only humbly and penitently claim the deed, may be very near.

How soon you will offer the last prayer and sing the last song of praise. These blessings, privileges, and duties, will all say farewell to us sooner or later. Let us see to it that we rightly improve them. May we make such disposition of the time allotted to us that we will not have to take up the sad lamentation,—"The harvest is past, the summer ended, and I am not saved."

If faithful we shall be found among that number of whom the Master says, "Of such is the kingdom of God." "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." Rom. 12: 21. A. L. ADAMS.

Somers, Conn.

TWO LITTLE SISTERS OF CHARITY.

Somewhere above Fitchburg, as we stopped for twenty minutes at a station, I amused myself by looking out of a window at a pretty waterfall which came tumbling over the rocks, and spread into a wide pool that flowed up to the railway. Close by stood a cattle-train, and the mournful sounds that came from it touched my heart. Full in the hot sun stood the cars; and every crevice of room between the bars across the doorways was filled with pathetic noses, sniffing eagerly at the sultry gusts that blew by, with now and then a fresher breath from the pool that lay dimpling before them. How they must have suffered, in sight of water, with the cool dash of the fall tantalizing them, and not a drop to wet their poor parched mouths! The cows lowed dismally: and the sheep tumbled one over the other in their frantic attempts to reach the blessed air; bleating so plaintively the while that I was tempted to get out and see what I could do for them. But the time was nearly up; and, while I hesitated, two little girls appeared, and did the kind deed much better than I could have done it.

I couldn't hear what they said; but their friendly little faces grew quite lovely to me, in spite of the tan, the old hats, the bare feet, and shabby gowns, as they worked away so heartily. One pulled off her apron, spread it on the grass, and, emptying the berries from the pail upon it, ran to the pool, and returned with it, dripping, to hold it up to the suffering sheep, who stretched their hot tongues gratefully to meet it, and lapped the precious water with an eagerness which made little Barefoot's task a hard one. But to and fro she ran, never tired, though the small pail was so soon empty; and her friend meantime pulled great handfuls of clover and grass for the cows, and, having no pail, filled her "picking dish" with water to throw on the poor dusty noses appealing to her through the bars.

I wish I could have told those tender-hearted children how beautiful their compassion made that hot, noisy place, and what a sweet picture I took away with me of those two little Sisters of Charity.—Merry's Museum.

THE LITTLE GIRL'S TESTIMONY.

The most stirring exhortation we recollect hearing in the prayer-room came from the lips of a little girl some ten years of age, who was troubled with a serious imperfection of speech. With considerable difficulty of articulation, she told her hope in the Savior, ending with—"If ever the time comes that I can't talk at all, I shall raise my right hand to show that I love Jesus." Let all silent christians come to a like determination.

A CHILD'S IDEA OF HOME.—A child, when one day speaking of his home to a friend, was asked, "Where is your home?" "Where mother is!" Was ever a question more truthfully, beautifully, or touchingly answered?

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.....................$2.50 a year
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address.......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM,
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.

PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 738. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1869. VOL. XXX.—NO. 12.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL, A. ROSS.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
D. MATHEWSON, H. V. DAVIS,
M. BATCHELOR, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ The CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

"SONG OF THE ADVENTIST."

TUNE.—"Nelly Gray."

Come, all ye weeping pilgrims, who are looking for your Lord,
Your redemption is drawing very near;
Keep your garments unspotted, and obey the faithful word,
Soon will the Savior appear.

CHORUS.
Let us watch, sing and pray, as old Time dies away,
Till the dark night of weeping is no more,
And the saints are translated to the realms of endless day,
There immortal to live forevermore.

The doom of earth is nearing, signs are gleaming in the sky,
There is wrath 'mid the nations all around;
The Roman harlot's wailing, her burning day is nigh,
And soon will the jubal trumpet sound.

On the free soil of Canaan, where the ransomed hosts shall come,
God's glory will evermore there be,
Abathing the bloodwashed in their bright eternal home,
As the water now filleth up the sea.

We have passed the hour of midnight, and the day-star beams on high,
The watchmen are sounding the loud cry,
The Bridegroom is coming through the portals of the sky,
Hosanna, redemption's drawing nigh.

Soon we'll see our King in beauty, on fair Zion's glowing height,
Illustrious in splendor evermore,
And wave our palms of victory with crowns forever bright,
Oh, I sigh for that ever peaceful shore.

CHORUS.
O, my dear brethren, pray, as old Time dies away,
Soon we never will be parted any more;
We are going, going, going,
To the realms of endless day,
Where farewells and partings are no more.

—Selected by I. Lamb.

For the World's Crisis.

RESURRECTION.

"Marvel not at this, for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation."

To me the above declaration seems very positive, and why any one should want to take from or add to it, I cannot understand. Yet there are many doing it at the present time, telling us that the wicked dead never will have a resurrection, because all that are raised will be raised to life, and if so, they can die no more.

If Jesus has power delegated to him by his Father to raise his saints to eternal life, why not the power to raise the wicked dead to damnation? just as he says in the above text. It does not require any stronger faith to believe it just as it reads, than it does to tear it apart and say God cannot or will not raise the wicked. It requires stronger faith than I ever had, to believe a part of a positive declaration of God's word, and disbelieve the other; and I say, and it is also contained in the Scriptures, what God has joined together, let no man put asunder. The one part in the above text is just as positive as the other. One is the resurrection of life, the other the resurrection of damnation. Now if God means what he says in the one case, he must in the other.

And the prophet Daniel, while he was moved by the Holy Ghost, says, in the twelfth chapter and second verse of his prophecy, "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake; some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." It is very clear, from this text, that all will have a resurrection from the dead. Any one must work hard to do it away; yet men will rack their brain to get round the truth.

Death entered in consequence of sin; and as it is said by the great apostle Paul in 1 Cor. 15: 22, "'For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive"; it does appear to me by this text that no one could successfully deny the resurrection of the wicked. Yet some argue that the christian does not die in Adam, but in Christ. But I think, according to the whole tenor of the Scriptures, no one would have died if Adam had not sinned; and if the saints do not die in Adam, all that do will be made alive in Christ, or by the power delegated to him by his Father. If this is not so, I cannot see the force of the language of Jude, in the third verse of his epistle—"Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation." If universal, there will be a resurrection of the just and the unjust. All die in consequence of the sin of Adam; all must have a reprieve from that death, or there is no common, or universal salvation for man; and Christ has become the author of eternal salvation unto all that obey him, as it is written in Paul's letter to the Hebrews (5: 9), "And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him."

These, having been made partakers of the especial salvation by obedience to his heavenly commands, come forth to the resurrection of life; and those that have no part in Christ by obedience to his word, will come forth to a part in the lake of fire, which is the second death. Then they die for their own sins. For one, I have a great desire to escape this terrible death.

J. A. CLEAVELAND.

Warren, Vt.

For the World's Crisis.

THOUGHTS ON A FEW THINGS.

Editor World's Crisis:—

Pressure of duties has imposed on me an almost necessary suspension of labor with the pen, but I seize a leisure hour for arranging and forwarding some extracts which I had laid aside, bearing on various topics of interest to the waiting and watching friends of Christ.

First, I enclose a brief paragraph bearing directly on the question of post mortem consciousness of the dead, and on the question of mental activity in a condition of temporary paralysis, or arrested function of the brain. The example is still further confirmatory of the philosophical and Scripture fact, that without cerebral agency there is no power of thought in man, nor any intellectual process apart from organization, nor any consciousness to the dead until a resurrection.

"We are informed that a young man living in the lower part of this county was taken sick about two years ago, and fell into deep sleep, from which he only woke about two weeks since. The first expression he made use of on coming to was, 'Is breakfast ready?' just as though he had been sleeping but one night. A physician had been attending on him all the time and happened in just after he awoke. On walking up to the bed he called the patient by name, remarking that 'You must feel better, as your cheeks have more color,' to which he replied by asking, 'Who are you?' On being informed that he was a physician who had been attending him constantly for two years, he could hardly believe his senses. During his sleep he has been fed regularly with spoon victuals, as though he was conscious. He is now up, enjoying good health, and busily engaged in trying to get the events of the two past years posted in his mind, that he may unite them with the past and present. He has distinct recollection of everything up to the time of going to sleep. We have heard no explanation of this case of 'Rip Van Winkleism.'"

FINANCIAL PERILS.

I have copious quotations at hand in reference to the present financial stringency, and the apprehended troubles of a still graver character in the near future. I hope you may find room in another column for some of the paragraphs, of which perhaps one or two may suffice in the present connection.

THE WESTERN MONEY STRINGENCY.

"The loan market rules very close and stringent, and it is difficult to obtain loans for any purpose, and extremely limited, and the number and applications of borrowers small.

Think of a farmer raising wheat and wagoning it thirty miles to a railroad station, consuming two days' time for himself and two horses for every thirty bushels, with the expenses by the way, and selling it for twenty-three cents per bushel, and yet that is just what a great many are compelled to do now. A person having wheat given to him thirty miles from the railroad, could scarcely draw it to a railroad station and sell it for twenty-three cents per bushel, in sufficient quantities to live. Fifteen bushels per day, or one load of thirty bushels every two days, would be about all that he could bring to market, which would leave but $3 45 in gold per day for his wages, out of which he would be compelled to deduct the expenses of himself and two horses.

It requires no mathematical operation to demonstrate that no one could make any money in this kind of business, if the wheat were given to them gratis, or could be shoveled up out of the ground ready for use. How much less, then, could money be made at it, when the grain can only be obtained by devoting to its production months of toil and labor. Nothing could have been made at such prices before the war, when prices were low, and taxes so small as to scarcely enter into any one's calculations. How much less can be made at these prices to-day when prices of many commodities rule high and must continue to rule high, and taxes, national, State, county and municipal, are piled on each other mountain high, and every State, county and township deeper in debt than the general government.

There can be no question as to where the country will bring up, if such low prices for produce become permanent. They mean hard times to everybody engaged or interested in any kind of legitimate business or industry—and irretrievable bankruptcy to a great many."—Chicago Journal.

"The commercial and financial outlook is far from encouraging, and there is every prospect that the stagnation and depression which prevail everywhere throughout the west will continue until the opening of next spring, and perhaps for even a longer period. The agricultural classes have been consoled about long enough with the reflection that if prices of produce are low, all other prices will soon come down to the same level, and that even if they do sell a bushel of wheat for half price, they can buy as much as formerly with the proceeds, and are therefore losing nothing. They have been consoled long enough with this reflection, because the prices of other commodities do not fall to the same level. They are selling their grain for half price, and paying full prices for everything they buy. Prices of other commodities are not coming down to the old level, because old prices will not pay the cost of production, and manufacturers are not in such a position as to compel prices, as a general thing, which will pay for the cost of production.

To-day, wheat, after paying from 15 to 20 per cent. freight on it, is being sold at 95c. per bushel in Chicago, leaving the farmers but 70 to 80c., and some people are even sanguine that it will sink here to 80c, per bushel, which would only leave the farmers 55 to 65c. per bushel for it, and other articles in proportion. The condition of affairs is becoming worse, because our vitality and strength is diminishing. The stringency in the fall of 1867 was scarcely noticeable, and no complaint was made in the spring of 1868. The stringency in the fall of 1868, however, was very serious and dangerous, and in the spring of 1869 the financial pressure was very great. The deficiencies of this fall (1869) were as much worse than those of 1868, as the difficulties of 1868 were worse than those of 1867, and next spring we will have more trouble than we had last spring, and next fall a condition of affairs as much worse than the crisis of this fall as any one can imagine. We are going from bad to worse all the time, and unless the volume of the circulation is increased, it will not take us long to reach the extreme end of our rope."—Ibid.

"Financial affairs are drifting into a critical condition, not only in Wall street, but all over the country. Business paper is almost unsaleable even at high rates, and such as no business firm can afford to pay. The quotations for good business notes are 12 per cent, with a very limited market. The depression in business circles is unprecedented since the panic and crisis of 1857. The low prices for grain prevent farmers from paying their debts to the storekeepers, and these again in turn are unable to pay the Eastern merchants. The decline in the price of gold is bringing down "greenback" prices, and the tendency throughout the country is towards a general liquidation, wich may render the resumption of specie payments more speedy by some sudden and sharp commercial convulsion. It is a noticeable feature of the times that the public journals are no longer flooded with communications from eminent individuals containing quack methods for bringing us back to specie payments, but the journals and people are discussing the matter as something in the immediate future, to be attained by some means or other."—World.

THE GREAT COUNCIL.

Following the above may be appended the following reference to the grand convocation of dignitaries in the modern Babylon:—

"Royalties are beginning to pour into Rome. The King and Queen of Naples have arrived from Nice. The King has received a congratulatory address from Sicily on his return, and on the expected birth of an heir, signed by 27,000 of the principal inhabitants.—The Queen of Wurtemberg and the Princess Vera Constantinowna are to arrive in the early part of November. The statistics of the hierarchy of the Catholic Church are published this week, and are as follows: Patriarchs and archbishops and bishops resident, 766; the same in partibus idfidelium, 228, total, 994. Of these 12 are patriarchs, 75 resident archbishops of the Latin Rite, 25 resident archbishops of other Rites, and 35 archbisiops in partibus—135 archbishops. The resident Latin bishops are 609; bishops of other rites, 45; bishops in partibue, 193–904. Of the bishops three are 95 years of age, two are 90, and twenty from 80 to 85. Only twenty are under 38. The Maronite bishops have given notice that they will arrive at the end of the month. A picket of Dragoons has been ordered to be at the station at the arrival of all the trains in November and December, to direct the carriages and prevent accidents, as on the full days of ceremony at St. Peter's."

Next comes a note of the restless zeal and activity of the Spiritualists. The following is from the N. Y. Express:—

"Spiritualism appears to have taken a sudden impetus and once more leaped into unusual notice. Its leading advocates are delivering lectures in all quarters; its disciples are forming societies in every direction, and welding themselves into bands of active and earnest workers. Andrew Jackson Davis is on the move again, and is describing 'The Summer Land' to which we are all to go after death to the dwellers on the borders of the Hudson. Here we are having circles held nightly on the good old Fox plan, and tricks are done which almost compete with those exhibited by Herrman and other nimble fingered gentry. The result of all such nonsense as that which is going on in this city will be domestic infidelities, insanity, and ruin in many a household."

"Very recently the following turns up from the pen of Mr. Henry C. Wright, who writes a letter to the Chicago Universe, dated 'Cape Cod Camp Meeting,' which he describes as 'a great gathering of self-forgetting, progressive men and women, met to find out where they wish to go, and to help one another go there.' These 'self-forgetting, progressive men and women' subscribe to the following:

"Resolved, The religion of Fact, which is to be the religion of the future, recognizes and inculcates the great truth that man is before and above all outside Gods as an object of thought, love and worship, and that human beings, as husbands and wives, parents and children, brothers and sisters, and in all relations, do and ought to bestow their thoughts and affections on one another, rather than on what is recognized and worshiped as God by all the religions of the world."

"The Spiritualists in convention at Buffalo have decided to organize the American Association of Spiritualists, which is to permeate the entire States, and become a grand religious organization, 'free from sect or dogma.' The Hon. J. G. Wait, of Michigan, was elected first President of the organization under the new constitution. It is not difficult to guess correctly at the ultimate result of this combination. Ten years hence there will be millions of people in this country who will profess no religion save that evolved by the doctrines of Spiritualism."

DISORDER OF THE ELEMENTS.

How very remarkable have been the elemental agitations of the current year! If all the floods and winds and storms, the hurricanes and earthquakes, and peculiar appearances and phenomena in the air and sky, the premature advent of winter, and items and features of this extraordinary period in which we live, were summed up in one great aggregate, what a picture would be presented. I merely insert a solitary allusion from the Buffalo Com. Advertiser of late date, enclosing other extracts for your use in another part of the Crisis, if you choose:—

"The telegraph is bringing in tidings of disaster and shipwreck from this last gale, before we have finished chronicling the disasters of the previous one. It is the most remarkable fall ever known on the lakes; gale succeeds gale, bringing continuous loss and disaster to shipping. This has continued about two months."

THE ERA OF CRIME.

The following are illustrations of the alarming deterioration of public morals.

"The "Star" is shocked at the rapid strides of licentiousness among us—as visible especially in the indecent pictures and pictorials that meet the eye in every direction, to say nothing of the nudities of the modern drama. The mere display of the human form in various stages of partial clothing (the editor thinks) is reprehensible or not, according as evil intention in the exhibitor can or cannot be observed. But we have certainly taken a great stride downward when pictorials containing pictures that appeal to the taste of the lowest class of picture-buyers are paraded alongside the unexceptionable periodicals. Thus, step by step, the purest people are driven from their various sources of amusement. They cannot gaze into windows containing these and similar pictures. They cannot attend theatres, because there they see the same displays in the living form. They cannot go to the opera, because the victories of evil are sung by sirens of melodious accent. They cannot go to balls, because they begin at an hour when they should close, and the dancing is imported from places where the better impulses of human nature are generally scoffed at. The day of Puritanism has passed; but in throwing Cromwell over, let us not take up with Charles II. Let us have liberty without licentiousness.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION.

The "Tribune" estimates that there are at least 150,000 children in this city growing up without any sort of education. Their rate of increase was never so large, their degradation never so revolting; their depravity never so inveterate and defiant; the power of their accessories in evil never so formidable; and their resistance to all efforts for their meloration and reformation was never more obstinate. In the face of all that the Church and the State, personal effort and organized benevolence, the highest order of intellect and the most enlightened experience have done for them, they are now more unreclaimed and incorrigible than ever. They have not been either cowed or cajoled into reformation. In their own sphere and range they have the field and the day. It is from this noxious nursery that all the enginery of vice is supplied and every ministry of evil recruits its rapidly exhaustive forces."

The writer rather hints at, than directly urges, compulsory education as the proper, if not the only means for breaking up this "noxious nursery."

"This is an era of crime in all parts of the world. In England and Wales alone there are 24,000 known thieves and depredators, 3,001 receivers of stolen goods, 25,627 prostitutes, 29,574 of that singular class called suspect in France, and 26,179 vagrants and tramps. Of the thieves no less than 2,740 are to be found in London. In England there are 20,080 houses of ill-fame, of which 2,000 are in London. Liverpool is said to be worthy of the name of Sodom."

THE FRENCH EMPEROR.

Perhaps the following references to Napoleon and his recent (alleged) illness may be interesting to our readers. And even the slightly humorous vein of one of the paragraps may be pardoned in view of the element of truth which may be more broadly involved in the representation than some suspect.

"Probably the most important man in the world, at this moment, is the Emperor Napoleon. If he has a rheumatism, the pains are felt not only on the Paris Bourse, but in Lombard street and Wall street. If he has a fit of indigestion, the money kings of Frankfort, Amsterdam, San Francisco and Hong Kong, all look blue; gold goes up, and confidence goes down. Consols advance or decline, according as he has a headache, or a "good night's rest." The 5-20's are "better," or otherwise, in harmony with the imperial symptoms. In fact, it may be said, as Napoleon "feels" so feels all the rest of the world."—Express.

Last of all I enclose the following on

THE FAITH OF THE JEWS.

The Jewish Messenger represents the faith in a Messiah to come, and in the restoration of the kingdom of Israel, as still held by the body of that people. "If every Jew in America resolve not to return to Palestine, there are six or seven millions of our co-religionists left to colonize the Holy Land, and a goodly proportion of these, natives of Poland, Hungary, Russia, the Danubian Principalities, and North Africa, would be willing to emigrate, when Syria shall once more flourish, and the resources of the earth be developed. And it is a firm article of faith with most Israelites, that the Messiah will appear, and the Holy Land be re-established."

CLINTON COLEGROVE.

SPIRITUAL GUIDANCE.

"I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go. I will guide thee with mine eye. Be ye not as the horse or as the mule which have no understanding; whose mouth must be held in with bit and bridle, lest they come near unto thee."—PSALM 32: 8, 9.

Under the blessedness of transgression forgiven, sin covered, and iniquity not imputed, comes in a new order of guidance—the guidance of the eye; even the eye of Him who has justified us freely by his grace, through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus.

When it pleased Jehovah to redeem Israel out of Egypt, he himself became their guide. Israel needed guidance; and Jehovah went before them in a pillar of a cloud by day, and a pillar of fire by night. He thus went before them to search out a resting-place for them in the wilderness. This surely was blessed guidance—in strict keeping with the character of redemption then manifested—a shadow of a far deeper reality—but it was not intelligent guidance. There was no communion of soul with Jehovah needed to apprehend this guidance: "The cloud of the Lord was in the sight of Israel throughout all their journeys."

But now the very end of redemption is to bring us into communion with the thoughts and ways of God, and such a guidance as that of Israel could not be suitable to our standing. "The servant knoweth not what his master doeth." He goes and comes at his bidding, but he knows not the reason of either. Such a character of obedience would not suit those who know the blessedness of transgression forgiven, and are thereby admitted into the very thoughts and counsels of God. "We have the mind of Christ." The obedience now suitable to the saints is intelligent obedience, "understanding what the will of the Lord is"—"proving his good, and perfect, and acceptable will."

How needed is communion with God, to guide the conduct of a saint! And it is for neglect of this communion that we bring much discipline on ourselves. God will have his way with us. But we are as the horse or mule, which have no understanding: we do not understand the will of God because we study not the guidance of his eye; we are led by circumstances, and not by the Spirit.

Wherever the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. We walk in a large place, when we walk before the Lord. But how often do we turn each one his own way, and then God has his bit and bridle for us. This he is wont to use for his enemies: "Because thy rage against me, and thy tumult is come up into my ears, therefore will I put my hook in thy nose, and my bridle in thy lips, and I will turn thee back by the way which thou camest." Alas! how constantly do we as his saints, to our shame be it spoken, need the bit and bridle to turn us back by the way we have come. Who is there that hath not to confess, that the right path, which would have been readily found, had heed been given to the guidance of the eye, has been reached after much painful and humbling discipline? Amidst the manifold proofs of present conscious weakness, this appears very prominent—the little confidence which saints have of spiritual guidance in their several paths. They walk not as those consciously led of the Spirit. Among many, indeed, such guidance is not acknowledged even as a principle; providential guidance (if so it may be called, for providential control over circumstances, or our own waywardness, can hardly be called guidance) is alone regarded.

But even where the principle of intelligent spiritual guidance is maintained as the privilege of the saint, how readily do we take hold of providential ordering as our ground of action! Hence we tread uncertainly, or we follow the steps of others: but this is walking by sight and not by faith, and arises from the habit of using our blessedness only as a shelter, and not as that which introduces us into the presence of God. It is a beautiful description of the Thessalonians, that their "work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ," was "in the sight of God and our Father."—English Tract.

For the World's Crisis.

THE SAFETY VESSEL.

We're on board the safety vessel,
Bound across the wide domain;
Trusting in our great Commander,
Till the distant port we gain.

We have naught to fear from danger,
He commands the mighty deep;
Stills the ruffled waves before us,
Lulls the tempest into sleep.

Onward safely we are sailing,
O'er the bright and silvery tide;
Hope and love each bosom filling,
As far down the stream we glide.

Time's the name of this great river,
Many vessels hath it borne;
See the fragments scattered o'er her,
By the raging tempest torn.

It hath wrecked, oh, many a voyager,
On its waters deep and dark;
Crushed the cherished hopes of millions,
Dimmed the light in many a heart.

O, beware then, helpless voyager,
Trust not every passing sail;
Only one is safe and certain,
Only one that ne'er will fail.

Come on board this safety vessel,
Bound to yonder port of peace;
Hear the voice of our Commander,
How he bids the billows cease.

Soon old Time, the darksome river,
Far behind us we shall see,
While upon the shore celestial,
Millions join the jubilee.

Warwick. MRS. S. L. REED.

For the World's Crisis.

JESUS LOVES ME.

O! that sweet word. It has a thousand charms for the christian's heart. Yes, Jesus is an affectionate being, whose love is of that peculiar type that will be self-sacrificing for enemies, and prompt the tenderest solicitude for friends. Jesus' great heart is softer than a mother's, and its outgushings are so ardent that they are like the ever-abounding fragrance of a garden of roses. Hatred and variance are born of the absence of love, out of barrenness of the heart; but love ever keeps them, like bad weeds, choked in their growth. Christ's full heart knows nothing of such things, and never can; hence his love is specially valuable because it is as reliably constant as it is ardent.

The Son of God by his affection draws purely affectionate hearts to him; and it is the great feature of his redemptive scheme, that stoicism, and cold, icy dignity, have no place in it; and he gets the best idea of it who feels that love crowns the whole, and radiates like perfume from the whole that Jesus has done or purposes yet to do for his people; and hence, better than the thought of simple forgiveness, or acquittal, is the assurance of personal love.

Jesus loves ME! What a story that simple utterance tells; volumes of meaning are crowded into it; and yet, although it is the great, distinguishing characteristic of Jesus' nature and his work, and hence the first point to be recognized and assured of, it seems the hardest to be realized by mortals. They can say, "I love Jesus" much easier; but, "Does he love me? Can I, dare I venture to say he does; that he has taken me, all unworthy, into his great heart, warm with intimate affection?"

The reason of this is obvious. Love is said to grow out of the soil of respect, and respect is appreciation of character. On this principle the affections of humanity are based. Now to understand and feel that Jesus loves me; that he takes me into his heart when I have been such a graceless ingrate of all his love, such a prodigal, is almost too much to believe. I can love him because he is "chief among ten thousand, and the one altogether lovely"; but I am not lovely in Christ's sight, and how can he love me?

Thus the poor soul sighs when it has been made to see its sinful alienation from the loveliness of Christ's nature and character, which it seems must have destroyed his respect for the sinner and eradicated all his attractiveness.

How can Jesus love such an one? Ah! his love is not like the love of mortals. It begins in that love for the wicked which sacrificed his life for them, and prayed for their forgiveness, while they drove the nails of crucifixion; and it melts into tenderness when the tears of repentance flow. Hence, whenever love for Christ springs up in the heart of him who, for the first time, appreciates the blood of Calvary, Jesus looks over all the past unqualifiedness of the sinner, and reciprocates the love of the trembling penitent, who, with his eye fixed streamingly on the cross, is enraptured with an affection his lips cannot utter, and loves Christ, and can say, "Jesus loves me, I know, now; not only because he says so, but because I feel it."

O the blessedness of feeling that we are loved by Jesus; that personally we are thus loved. It gives us confidence, it melts away the restraints of diffidence, and we can act in his presence as in the presence of a friend.

O, thou precious, blessed Jesus! to thee my life, my all, I owe. For thy love for me is so strong and so tender, that I am kept by it from despairing of salvation. All my sinfulness is pardoned by his love, and his never-dying love is my daily solace and joy. I seem to be surrounded by its halo, and rest in its embrace, delighted, soothed, and comforted.

This is the christian's experience. May it be ours. L. C. MCKINSTRY.

PROMISCUOUS PARAGRAPHS.

A lady in England, in an article on the "culpability of indifference to prophecy," truthfully remarks: "St. Peter says, the word of prophecy is as a light shining in a dark place (Eph. 1: 19.) Many avoid it as though it was darkness in a light place."

An exchange gives the following as Henry Ward Beecher's definition of the elect and non-elect. "The elect are whosoever will—and the non-elect are whosoever won't." Compare Rev. 22: 17 with John 5: 40.

Dr. Cumming says, "I believe that one half of the professors of the gospel are nothing better than practical infidels." This may be deemed an uncharitable conclusion, but the great Searcher of hearts (Rev. 2: 18, 23) has said: "Many will say to me in that day [when the kingdom of God shall come,] Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity."—Matt. 7: 21–23. We have therefore the highest authority for believing that "many" professors of religion will be lost. "Lord, is it I?"

A correspondent of the Methodist Protestant thus refers to a delicacy of which we had not before heard:—"What do you think of sponge cake instead of bread with wine at the communion table? I have seen such a thing, yes, and partaken of it, and it struck me as singularly inappropriate, if not altogether wrong." To this the editor replies: "We think that sponge cake, instead of bread, at communion, is a very delicate contrivance for very delicate christians, and should be very delicately administered by a delicate clergyman, having his delicate fingers encased in delicate kid gloves delicately perfumed. The preaching, praying, singing, etc., on such ocasions should be delicately managed, so as not to offend the delicate sensibilities of the most delicate."

What is duty at one time may not be duty at another. Thus the Israelites were at one time to remain in Babylon, and make themselves comfortable, while at another time they were to flee out of it. Jer. 29: 4–7; 51: 6. "Jonah, in disobedience to God," as some one remarks, "took ship," but met with a tempest which caused him to be cast into the sea. The disciples 'took ship' in obedience to Christ, and though a great tempest came upon them, he who bade them go was present to still the tempest and calm the waves." How important it is, therefore, that we "watch the way" God's word and providence indicate we should pursue. Read and practically remember Prov. 3: 5, 6.

We know not the author of the following item, but it suggests a sermon on Heb. 11: 1–7, where the apostle defines faith and proceeds to show what has been accomplished through it: "The believer must first be a worshiper (as Abel;) then a walker with God (as Enoch;) then a witness for God (as Noah."—Ex.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

85. Two angels were seen within the sepulchre.—"And as she wept she stooped down and looked into the sepulchre, and seeth two angels in white."—John 20: 11, 12.

But one angel was seen within the sepulchre.—"And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment."—Mark 16: 5.

There is no difficulty in these texts, when we learn by the connection that the incidents occurred at two different visits to the sepulchre. Mark is speaking of the first, and of what the women saw inside, and in doing so he only mentions the angel who spake, thereby making himself more prominent than his companion.

And John records Mary's second visit, after the other women had gone, and also the disciples; and while she stood there weeping, "she stooped down and looked into the sepulchre, and seeth two angels in white," etc. Hence we see that the entire narration is consistent with itself, although it is given in parts, frequently disconnected, and by four different individuals.

86. Christ was to be three days and three nights in the grave.—"So shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth."—Matt. 12: 40.

Christ was but TWO days and TWO nights in the grave.—"And it was the third hour, and they crucified him. . . . It was the preparation, that is, the day before the Sabbath. . . . And Pilate . . . gave the body to Joseph. And he . . . laid him in a sepulchre, ... Now, when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene."—Mark 15: 25, 42, 44, 45, 46; 16: 9.

The expression used in Matt. 12: 40, is merely a synecdoche, or a phrase wherein a part is spoken of as a whole. "Day and night" was a common term amongst the Jews, applied in the reckoning of time to a day, or to any part of a day. Thus, as Jonah was three days and three nights in the fish, so was the Son of man to be in the earth; that is, simply three days, not seventy-two hours. Thus he was swallowed by the fish on one day (day and night), remained in the fish the second, and was discharged from it the third day. Hence it may be said that he was three days and three nights (a part of three days) in the fish. The same mode of expression is adopted even in our own times on many occasions; for instance, there are three days of grace on bills of exchange, that is, of course, twenty-four hours for each day. The bill becomes due on the fifth of the month, and the three days of grace expire on the seventh, so there is actually but one whole day, and only a part of two days.

In Gen. 1, the evening and the morning (night and day) are no less than six times called simply "day." And again in Gen. 7: 17, the term forty days is used for forty days and forty nights Lastly, the transaction mentioned in Esther 4: 16, and 5: 1, proves beyond all dispute that the expression "day and night" merely meant what we call day. There it is recorded that Esther and the Jews fasted three days and three nights. And this, although the day on which the command was given is included, and the third day, the day of the banquet (v. 4) is also included, so that in fact there was but one whole day, or a part of two days and two nights, and yet that period is called three days and three nights, which simply implies three days or even parts of days. See Dr. Sleigh.

87. The Holy Ghost bestowed at Pentecost. "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you. . . . Ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence."—Acts 1: 8, 5. "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all of one accord in one place. . . . And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost."—Acts 1: 4.

The Holy Ghost bestowed before Pentecost. "And when he had said this he breathed on them, and said unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost."—John 20: 22.

The words, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost," contain a promise that it shall be bestowed, but it does not specify any time when it shall be given. And, although the disciples had the promise of the Holy Ghost, they did not expect it previous to the ascension of the Messiah, for Jesus distinctly tells them that "If I go not away, the Comforter (or Holy Ghost) will not come."

88. The disciples were commanded immediately after the resurrection to go into Galilee. "Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid; go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me."—Matt. 28: 10.

The disciples were commanded immediately after the resurrection to TARRY AT JERUSALEM. "But tarry ye in Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high."—Luke 24: 49.

The command, "Tarry ye in Jurusalem until ye be endued with power from on high," was not given immediately after the resurrection, as the skeptic distinctly states, but after Jesus had tarried with his disciples for forty days; it was the very last charge he gave them before his ascension. Is it ignorance, worse than that which characterized the dark ages, or willful falsehood, which we are thus called upon to expose?

"Bible Triumphant," by Mrs. H. V. Reed.

For the World's Crisis.

OUR TREASURE.

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal."—MATT. 6: 19-20.

It is not a strange thing for the unbeliever to be laying up for himself an earthly treasure. We do not expect anything different. The world at large expects nothing less. But we do expect and look for a different course from those who believe in and profess the religion of Jesus. The world looks for the same.

And yet in these days of speculation we see many professors of religion, many of them who profess to be looking for the speedy return of our Savior, Jesus Christ, to this earth, to reward his saints, and to deal with his enemies according to their works, driving into the world, and heaping together the treasures of earth as fast as possible.

All earthly things are fading and passing away. Flames devour here. Thieves break through and steal here. Moths eat here. Rust corrupts here, and whoever heaps up riches here is liable to have them all swept away in a moment.

The day is coming when the riches of earth will do us no good. There is no danger of loss when we are laying up treasures in heaven. It is drawing better interest than earth can afford, and is continually growing. It will stand the fires of the great day, when all things earthly will melt and pass away. That day is fast approaching; yet how few heed it.

Dear reader, be rich in faith and good works, then when Jesus comes you will have riches that will endure forever.

Gilmanton, N. H. N. B. MCMURPHY.

DEEP PREACHING.—You sometimes find a man who is denominated a "deep preacher." We heard such an one last Sabbath. We confess we did not understand him, and yet it was not because of his great profundity of thought or immense learning, but because he was metaphysical, abstract, and wrapped up his thoughts in abstruse, high sounding jargon. The audience inclined, gaped and stared, and pronounced him "deep," and doubtless wondered "how one small head could carry all he knew;" but he reminded us of the sarcastic words of Swift in reference to such preachers in his day. "They are like dry wells; you think they are wondrous deep because they are wondrous dark; whereas, this darkness is because of their emptiness."—Ex.

— He that speaks, sows; he that hears, reaps; hence we should be guarded as to how we speak, as to what we hear. "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear;" but "take heed how ye hear!"

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Boston, Wednesday, Dec. 8, 1869.

Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

Money Orders.

Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis, we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber has his or her name, with the date of the month and year to which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or on the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

PLEASE REMEMBER

That all letters, telegrams, or notices, ordering books, tracts, or papers, or for insertion in the Crisis, or for any other business connected with this office, should be addressed to the Editor, or to the Business Agent, and not to the clerks; as their letters, being regarded as private and not for the office, are not opened in their absence. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

THANKS for the articles from the Hartford Religious Herald.

H. F. CARPENTER'S P. O. address is now North Springfield, Vt., instead of Danielsonville, Ct.

BRO. O. BENDIXON'S P. O. address is No. 2 Bowling Green, New York.

TRACTS.

We fear our readers are not sufficiently awake to the importance of the tract fund. There is an earnest call for tracts in all directions, but our funds are low. We have given out a multitude of these little preachers, and they are doing a great work, with small means; but it will not do to have the stream freeze up now. The demand increases, and shall not the supply correspond?

This is the time for action. Who will lend the Lord some money to help in this important work? Is there not some one who can appropriate five hundred dollars for this object? and several that can spare one hundred, and smaller sums down to ten cents? Let all help.

Those who wish, can have their money's worth back in tracts to scatter in their own neighborhood, or to send where they please. Those who can not preach themselves can do much in this way with a few dollars.

Every preacher needs a bundle of tracts when he goes out to preach the word; but all are not able to buy them to give away, as many of them do not receive enough to make their families comfortable. It ought not so to be. Let us, as a people, do a liberal thing this winter, and remember "the liberal soul shall be made fat."

NEW YEAR'S GIFTS.

It is about time to think of our new year's gifts for our friends. What shall we give them? Shall it be a useless toy, or a gilded books worthless within? While the world and fashionable professors may do this, let those who are looking for the coming King do things worthy of their high position. As many have been led to see the truth and rejoice with us in the blessed hope, because some friend sent them the "Crisis," will it not be money well spent to send "our paper" to some dear friend whom you are anxious should rejoice with you in the glorious prospect of soon seeing Jesus? One Bro. sent us ten names of his friends, with the money to pay for one year each, hoping to persuade them to love Jesus and his appearing. Who will send the Crisis to a friend?

Again, is there not some poor saint who earnestly desires the paper, but can not take it for want of means? Who will make that heart glad every week during the coming year by sending the Crisis to that humble dwelling? "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will he pay him again."—Prov. 19: 17.

ROCHESTER.

The meetings in Rochester continued to increase in interest up to the 28th Nov., when we were obliged to leave. From ten to twenty requested prayers about every evening; a goodly number were converted and reclaimed, and eight were baptized on the Sabbath, in the Genesee river. Very large audiences attended the meetings, and listened with the best attention. We have never seen a better prospect in Rochester. The truth has taken strong hold in that city. The conference was a blessing to the people. We learn the church must soon give up Armory Hall. This appears to be unfortunate; but all things will work together for good to them that love God. We left our dear Bro. Pratt there to look after the best interests of the flock. May the Lord continue to bless his labor.

A NEW BOOK.

At the National Conference, it was decided that the following brethren should issue a book embodying the reasons of our hope: H. G. McCulloch, J. Couch, S. G. Mathewson, J. V. Himes, W. Sheldon, Miles Grant.

The book is to be prepared especially for those who have not heard any preaching on the subject, who are anxious to know what we believe, and the reason why. It will contain some two or three hundred pages, and will be sold at a low price. Arrangements have been make to have it extensively advertised in secular papers, for the purpose of bringing it into general notice throughout the country. We believe the time has come to make a grand effort to spread the truth in all directions. Some eight hundred dollars were pledged for the work at the conference.

It is proposed that our brethren should pledge what they can, and have the amount of their pledge returned to them in books, to be disposed of as they may think best. One brother subscribed $100, another $200, others $50, and others smaller sums. We wish that those who are willing to assist in this work would send us their pledges at once. Let us make an effort worthy of the cause we love so well. The books will probably cost about one dollar each. Please write at once and let us know how many copies you will take. We hope to get out a book that every body will be pleased to read—a book for the times. It is purposed to have it ready within some two or three months.

Come, brethren, take hold of this matter with a strong arm, and let us arouse to the importance of doing all in our power to persuade the people to get ready for the coming judgment.

DISCUSSION.

We are to begin a discussion Dec. 7th with Mr. J. G. Fish, in Vineland, N. J., to continue four or five evenings.

Subject: Resolved, That the phenomena of Spiritualism proceed from demons, and not from departed human spirits.

THE BEREAN'S CASKET, by Bro. I. C. Wellcome, is a new work, just received, and designed as a help to Bible students who are searching for truth. It is well arranged, and contains 490 pp. Price, $2.50. It contains valuable statistics, besides the large amount of Scripture, which is arranged under separate heads. It should have a place in all libraries.

THE PROPHETIC TIMES for November and December is at hand, filled with interesting matter. "The Prophetic Times" is a monthly serial, ably edited by Dr. J. A. Seiss, of Philadelphia, and earnestly advocates the speedy coming of Christ. It is worthy of patronage by the friends of Jesus. Price $1 a year in advance. Address Post-office box 2245.

THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST is the best farmer's paper with which we are acquainted. It is published monthly by Orange Judd and Co., 245 Broadway, New York, for $1.50 a year. It is largely illustrated. Now is a good time to subscribe for it, as the volume begins with the January number.

LONG SERMONS.

We hope Bro. Munger did not labor in vain when he prepared his article on "Long Sermons," which was published in last week's paper. Pointed remarks are called for on this subject. Many preachers would double the interest and benefit of their meetings if they did not preach more than half as long. But few can listen more than three quarters of an hour, without becoming intellectually weary, if not physically. All that is said after people wish us to stop, only weakens the effect of the sermon. It is true there may be here and there one, who will say at the end of a sermon an hour and a half long, "I wish you had gone on another hour," but such should not be taken as the standard of the general feeling. Always leave the congregation hungry for more. If there is a complaint because the sermon is short, then there is good evidence that the people were pleased, and will be anxious to hear the same speaker again.

Time seems twice as long to a hearer as it does to a speaker; hence, the preacher should have the time at hand, that he may know when he has said enough. His own feelings are not a sufficient guide. As a general rule, one hour is long enough for the whole exercises, including the singing and prayer. As a general rule, three minutes is long enough for public prayer, and five minutes for each hymn, or fifteen minutes for all the preliminaries. We do not like to hear a long hymn read before singing. The singing should be sufficiently distinct so that the words can be understood by the audience. It is well enough to read one stanza, while the singers are finding the hymn, and sometimes the whole hymn, when it contains points for special remarks by the preacher; otherwise, we would not read more than one stanza. We think it often happens too many stanzas are sung. Unless there is something very specially interesting, if more than four are sung, it becomes tedious to the audience and also to the singers. Two or three are better than four. Let the singing be earnest, and all the other exercises, if it is designed to move the people to action.

One reason why many preach long sermons is because they spend too much time in the introduction. They do this through fear that they may not have sufficient to say to occupy their time. On this account, they find half their time gone before they get well into the subject. They are anxious to bring out their principal points, consequently are obliged to be tediously long, and even hurry over some of their main arguments. A better way is to make short introductions, and plunge at once into the heart of the subject; condense your thoughts and use no more words than are absolutely necessary to present the idea in a clear light. All beyond that will weaken the effect. Make bomb shells, thunder bolts, and, aided by the Holy Spirit, hurl them in the name of the Lord into the midst of his enemies. We never raise our audience above our own feelings. If we are dull, prosy, and indifferent, with no heart in the work, we must expect the feelings of our hearers to correspond. The sure remedy against this is closet prayer, holy living, and a calm reliance on the Lord, and being filled with love for the perishing, with no desire to get praise of men, or to build up a sectarian interest. But one motive should rule in the preacher's heart—a firm purpose to do all to the glory of God.

We close by saying with Bro. Munger, we hope some will consent to change from long to short sermons. If they would condense their hour-and-a-half talks into forty-five minutes, they would double their effect, have a delighted audience, and reserved strength themselves to preach more sermons. Whoever can talk long, can talk short; hence, all who choose can reform.

NEW YORK SOCIETY.

It is certain that the morals in the great cities are fast degenerating, and imitating the manners and customs of infidel France, and licentious Paris. The following will give some idea of the habits of the people in New York:—

THE FISHING BANKS.—One of the most popular of the many Sunday resorts which tempt the excursionist is the portion of the bay opposite Long Branch, known as the Fishing Banks. Steamers run daily; but Sunday, the workingman's holiday, is the occasion when the Fishing Banks are most frequented. On that day seven or eight steamers of various sizes may be seen anchored in the bay, from the sides of which fishing lines of every description and size are thrown, and piscatorial enjoyment is the order of the day.

The class of people who frequent the Fishing Banks are somewhat different from the majority of the excursionists who every Sunday leave Gotham for a day's relaxation and pleasure. The deck of a boat bound for the Fishing Banks presents a marked contrast with that of an ordinary excursion boat. On the deck of a boat bound up the Hudson or to Long Branch, a crowd of well dressed persons is always to be seen, and from their manner it is evident that pleasure and relaxation are their only object. The persons who throng the boats bound for the Fishing Banks, present a totally different appearance, and business first and pleasure afterwards seems to be their motto. Almost every person carries a fishing rod and a basket containing his lines, bait, and the necessary articles wharewith to refresh the inner man. Even the ladies who accompany them seem for the time being to interest themselves mainly in the preparations for the sport, and in its success when once commenced, and are great on the mysteries of bait, lines and lead."

THE RAINBOW is an able monthly, edited by Dr. Wm. Leask, 34 Sandringham Road, London, E., Eng. He is standing up nobly in defence of the great truth that sin and misery will come to a perpetual end, by the final destruction of the sinner. Many strong men begin to step up to his side, to assist him in his important work; while many others are making no small effort to crush him, and stop the publication of his valuable periodical. We hope a goodly number of our readers will subscribe for the Rainbow. Price $2.50 in gold. If any wish to subscribe, we will act as agent, and forward their names, and money. The postage and discount will not be far from $3.50 in greenbacks.

In the Nov. No. of the "Rainbow," Wm. Green writes:—

"It is with sincere pleasure I respond to your appeal on behalf of the Rainbow. In doing this I am influenced by a strong conviction, which has been deepening of late, that the plain utterances of Christ have been presented to us in the pulpit, and through the religious press generally, clothed with the traditions of what are called schools of theology; and thereby have lost much of their influence on both mind and heart, and that the Rainbow in a calm, intelligent, and fearless spirit, is helping not only to disrobe but discover truth. And further, I cannot shut my eyes to the fact, that for a man to go against the fashion in religious teaching means, even at the present day, the cold shoulder, contumely, and reproach of the so-called religious world; and therefore he earns the practical sympathy of those who are tired of the bondage of human dogmas and creeds. I thank you for your utterances on the immortality of the soul; and if you have anything more in your heart to say—say on, for there are thousands waiting to take wing. We are living in an age of shams, quite as much in the church as out of it, and we need every sanctified agency to unmask them. 'Be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart.'"

FRENCH POLITICS.

Political matters in France are in a very interesting condition. Napoleon is turning all things to his own account. He seldom makes a failure in his movements. We feel very confident that "Father Hyacinthe" is acting in his interests, and doing what he can to popularize the idea of having one great political head in the world, which shall protect Catholicism, Protestantism, and Judaism; making the immortality of the soul a leading doctrine in the new organization. We shall expect new developments soon. If any doubt that Father Hyacinthe is carrying out Napoleon's policy, they have only to read his discourses just published. They are remarkable productions.

The following is from the New York Herald, Nov. 24th, 1869:—

There are few movements of the day so interesting as that which is now going on in France. It is a crucial movement. It is testing in the last degree. It is the movement which, more than any other, engrosses the attention of the people of Europe. Interesting and engrossing as it is to the people, it is not less so to the politicians. The leading statesmen of great Britain, of Prussia, of Austria, of Italy, of Spain, are watching this movement for no higher or nobler purpose than to catch the popular breath of the hour. The question is whether a centralized or divided and widely-diffused authority is now most in favor. On this question Europe is now divided. Germany particularly. Prussia, under the guidance and control of Bismarck, goes in for centralization; Austria, under the guidance and control of Von Beust, goes in for the opposite—municipal or federal government. Bismarck has won golden honors; Von Beust is now winning them. The question is still open, still unsettled. The final settlement of the question, for at least one decade, is now in the hands of France. The French people have for seventeen, or rather for nineteen, years enjoyed the benefits of Bonapartism, or Cæsarism, or imperialism, or, which covers all, the one man government. France has been asked to say whether it is satisfied. A large section of the French people we know are not satisfied.

But France has yet a sacred regard for the voice of the majority, and it remains to be seen whether the majority is satisfied or whether it demands change."

FRUITS OF THE DOCTRINE.

When we look at the sad fruits arising from a belief in the unscriptural doctrine of the immortality of the soul, we see more and more clearly the importance of standing up boldly in the defense of the truth, that man is wholly mortal in this life, and can secure immortality in the world to come, only through Christ, "by patient continuance in well doing." This important truth is agitating the whole christian world, and the ministers in the various denominations must meet it; and meet it too with something more than ridicule, or the bare cry of "infidelity," if they expect to satisfy the demands of the people. They must meet it with a "thus saith the Lord," or they can give no satisfaction to their hearers. When they will come to this issue, we have no fears of the result. Let error meet truth in fair, open combat, and there is nothing to fear.

But we took up our pen to show some of the fruits of a belief in the immortality of the soul, as may be seen in the following:—

"RUSSIAN FANATICS.—"The wildest among the Russian fanatics are the Morelschiki, or immolators, Their leading idea is to mortify the flesh for the sake of saving the soul, and in order to do this efficiently they have recourse to various means of mutilation and death. Sects inculcating the virtues of suicide and murder, naturally do all they can to keep their existence a secret, but every now and then a horrible story comes from the interior of some gloomy forest or dreary waste, which tells how some of these wretched people have died. Sometimes a deep pit is dug in the earth and half filled with wood and straw. This is set alight, and when the whole mass is in a blaze the miserable creatures leap into the pit and are consumed in the fire, wildly singing hymns as they burn. At other times they meet in a wooden house round which they have piled heaps of straw; and in it they deliberately burn themselves to death, their neighbors looking on quietly the while; for the act is a sacred one; the victims are undergoing 'baptism by fire.' Some years ago, says Haxthausen, a congregation of Immolators assembled at a spot on the left bank of the Volga and agreed to put each other to death. But after six and thirty of them had fallen, 'the desire of life awoke in a young woman and she fled to a neighboring village. The people repaired to the scene of action, and found two of the murderers still alive, and forty-persons dead. The two who were taken were knouted, exulting at every stroke at the martyrdom they were undergoing.'"

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE OF NORTH AMERICA.

Assembled at Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 17th to 22d, 1869, Greeting:

Whereas, the great truths dear to us as a people have not been promulgated as widely as their importance demands; having been disseminated mostly through our own church periodicals, books, tracts, and the self-sacrificing efforts of our preaching brethren; And, whereas, by the powerful aid of advertising, works like "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and others of less merit have become as widely known as the name of George Washington; some of us have contemplated for years the issue of a work embracing only the cardinal doctrines of our faith, upon which we are mainly united and advertising the same extensively through all the land. And having a work, now mostly in manuscript, which we call—"The Second Advent Doctrines," and believing the Lord has opened the way by the organization of this Conference, we make the following

PROPOSITION.

We, the undersigned, authors of said work, will, to the best of our ability, prepare the same for publication, and, through pledges already made to us by responsible parties, will advertise the work through all the leading periodicals, and other advertising mediums outside of our own church publications, to the amount of $1000 to $3000, or more, annually, on condition that this Conference will publish this work, and allow us room in the same for an appeal for donations, and as many pages in the back part as we may wish to advertise our own papers, books, and tracts, and thus increase their circulation; and to use in exchange advertising with other papers as we desire, with continued liberal donations to do more and more advertising from month to month, and, if possible, reach several thousand dollars worth the first year.

All future pledges and donations shall be paid to the Treasurer of this Conference, who shall acknowledge the same in the church papers, and said funds shall be applied to bear the expenses of putting the work in type, furnishing the electrotype plates, and publishing the first and second editions; after which all donations received, and profits derived from the sale of the books, shall be devoted to advertising the work, which, with the pledges already made, we will report to the Conference with the customary bills of advertisers. The Treasurer will thus be enabled to make a report, that all who donate may not only see the results of their offerings by the publicity of the work throughout the land, but see in our church papers that all their money has been expended as directed, and no part paid out in salaries to any one.

The sale of each edition will furnish means to publish the next, and we intend the work shall be furnished to the book trade generally, to be sold at a price within the reach of the poor.

In order to increase the sale and hasten the publication of the work, all interested are invited to make immediate donations, or subscribe and take the same in books, at whole prices, when each subscription exceeds $5.00, and if $10, $20, or $100, all the better.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

MILES GRANT,
JOHN COUCH,
S. G. MATHEWSON,
J. V. HIMES,
WILLIAM SHELDON,
H. G. MCCULLOCH.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, September 2nd, at the National Campmeeting, it was

Resolved, That we raise THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the Tract Fund the ensuing year.

It is proposed to raise this amount during the year for the publication and free distribution of tracts. The value of these little preachers in the work of enlightening and saving men from darkness and death can hardly be overestimated; and the generous and liberal stewards of the Lord's money are earnestly invited to contribute according to their ability in aid of the good work. Send on your dimes and dollars, brethren, with a liberal hand, and receive, by and by, the reward of the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec. Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$124.54
A Friend	5.00
P. P. Libbey	1.00

AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All donations and payments of pledges for this Society, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments		$278.90
J. M. Stetler	Collected by J. V. Himes.	10.00
John Kern		5.00
A Lady		1.00
R. Murry		1.00

For the World's Crisis.

THE DIVINE FAITHFULNESS.

NUMBER TWO.

"Is anything too hard for the Lord"? Lamentable as it is, we must acknowledge that the weak faith of his children sometimes evinces an affirmative answer, notwithstanding a positive negative is found issuing from the same high authority as the question propounded. If circumstances seem to favor, why, then they can pray for the desired object; but when circumstances look dolorous and forbidding, and the waves begin to fill the ship, they need to listen to the language addressed to the frightened mariner, on Lake Genesaret—"Why are ye so fearful?" "How is it that ye have no faith?" Not quite like father Abraham, who could believe when the circumstances of natural laws even were all against him. Mrs. H. A. Rogers relates a circumstance which came under her own observation, illustrating the loving-kindness of our heavenly Father towards those even who are weak in faith.

A lady of genteel appearance came secretly to attend the Methodist meeting. She was evidently seeking to know the mind and will of God concerning her. Her husband was an Atheist of the deepest dye, believing in neither God or devil, equally ridiculing the Scriptures, public worship, etc. He possessed a fortune in this world's treasures, but his health being somewhat precarious, he, by the advice of his physician, decided to go to live in infidel France. At this juncture, she portrayed her heart's sorrows to Mrs. R., sadly inquiring, "What will become of me there? No means of grace; no friend to fly to; in a country of idolaters abroad, and infidels at home; my sinful heart and the temptations of Satan to struggle with; I shall lose all my good desires, and my poor soul will be ruined." "But is there no way to prevent this?" inquired Mrs. Rogers. "No," said the lady, "I fear nothing can prevent it; the carriage is preparing, and the time is fixed." Mrs. R. then gave her instruction, repeating certain scriptures calculated to inspire confidence in the Eternal; assuring her that if she committed it wholly to him, either he would prevent it, or make it a blessing to her.

The lady returned home, and in prayer committed all into the hands of the Lord. Some time after she called on Mrs. R., with faith somewhat strengthened. She informed her that her husband had a remarkable dream a few nights previous, which filled him with astonishment. He dreamed he was giving orders to his coach-maker about his new carriage, and more especially about one of the wheels, when the man turned about, and said in a very solemn manner, "Sir, you need not trouble yourself about the wheel, for the Lord Jesus Christ has the whole management of it." Again Mrs. R. commended her to God in prayer; and a few days afterward a friend called and said to Mrs. R., "Thank God, this journey is prevented at last. Only two days ago all was fixed for the journey, and on this day they were to set off; but the Lord afflicted his physician who had advised them to go, and Mr. ——, finding himself very poorly, called in another doctor, who assured him he could not undergo the journey, and that France is not a proper place for his constitution; and therefore all thoughts of going are at an end."

Blessed be God, great ships are turned about with a very small helm, when it is of God's choosing. When will the saints learn to cast ALL their care on the Lord, who stands with extended arms to take all kinds of burdens, whether spiritual, domestic, or even culinary? Father never repulses, or taunts us with being burdened with trivial things; but says, "Lay it right on me, child; I am interested in all your troubles. Yes, for all your affliction I am afflicted; yes, I care for you."

Castleton, Vt. B. MATHEWSON.

"WHERE'S THAT INSURANCE MAN?"

A few weeks ago, on one of our railroads, the agent of a life insurance company, while passing into a smoking car, desired to sell a policy to a man who was quietly enjoying a cigar. But the man feeling rather comfortable, seeing no danger ahead, and perhaps thinking it would be a useless expense, answered rather gruffly, "Get out with your policy."

Soon after, by a broken rail, a part of the train was let down upon the ties, and as the trucks bounced one against another, creating the utmost consternation among the passengers, the man above referred to sprang to his feet, and seizing upon a hook above his head, shouted, above all the noise and confusion, "Where's that insurance man?"

This scene was thought to be very ludicrous by the other occupants of the car—and so it was—provoking merriment even in the midst of their danger. But it is not more ludicrous than the actions of multitudes who are traveling with more than railroad speed to the bar of God. Enjoying the ease and pleasure of the present hour, and forgetting the possibility of the near future, the policy of life eternal is neglected, and the "man of God" who offers it is sent gruffly away. But when the broken rail is reached—when disease or accident sets them face to face with death, they start up terrified, and amid the dread confusion of such an hour, cry out, "Where is the insurance man?"

It is a solemn thing to see dying souls aroused to a sense of their peril only by the sounds of destruction already begun; but solemn as it is, it fails not to provoke the mirth of derision, even with the Infinite himself, for it is written, "Because I have called, and ye have refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regardeth; but ye have set at naught all my council, and would none of my reproof; I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh."

Reader, would you secure yourself against this laughter? would you not be mocked of God? Waste not these golden moments. Take out the life-assurance that is offered you of Jesus Christ. "He that liveth and believeth in me, shall never die."—Ex.

For the World's Crisis.

MY EXPERIENCE.

BRO. GRANT:—I see almost every week something in the columns of the Crisis, from one brother and another, about their reformation from the use of that most noxious weed—tobacco; and having myself been an inveterate chewer for more than thirty-five years, until the seventh day of last June, I wish to give my testimony to the readers of the Crisis. It seems very strange, after all the testimony that is now being given, that the young will still persist in trying to learn to use the filthy weed, as we see they are doing.

I commenced to use it when young, and followed it up till nearly ruined mentally and physically. I tried two or three times in years past to leave it off, but could not do it; went without a week, and was about sick, and crazy too; could neither eat, sleep, or work, till I commenced again.

But during the last winter the Lord saw fit in his mercy to call my mind to the subject of my soul's salvation, showing me just where I stood, having long been a professor of religion, but without the power. I was led to repent and do my first work; and was stripped of one thing after another, in which I was indulging, contrary to the present truth. My dearest idol, tobacco, was among them; that must be given up. I had thought I could never give that up without becoming crazy, but the Lord showed me I must, and also that his grace was sufficient to keep me. I raised my arm and said, "O Lord, I will never use it again if my arm falls from my body; live or die, I will quit it forever."

I prayed the Lord fervently to take away the hankering for it; and he did. I have been kept till now without one desire for it. Blessed be his holy name.

So. Lancaster. CARTER WILDER.

For the World's Crisis.

HOAG'S VISION.

BRO. GRANT:—I see in the Crisis an inquiry concerning Joseph Hoag's vision, where the original manuscript may be found. It probably can be found with his daughter, Martha Meeder, residing in Amesbury Mills, Mass. She was alive a short time ago, and had the manuscript in her father's own handwriting. Martha Meeder is a powerful preacher of the Society of Friends, using the most sublime language I ever heard. How often have I desired that she might see and preach the whole truth. ABBIE COOK.

Saugus Centre, Mass.

Correspondence.

From Bro. B. P. Manning.

Brethren and Sisters:—Although I am in pain from the crown of the head to the sole of my feet, and never expect to be any better till I see Jesus come, or I go down to the grave, I can say with Paul, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand." I have almost "finished my course"; "henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

I am the Lord's, whether I wake or sleep. How glad I am that Jesus is coming soon. I can work but a little with my hands. I lie on my bed a great part of the time. Remember me in your prayers, that God will give me strength equal to my days.

Goffstown, N. H. B. P. MANNING.

BRO. J. B. WADSWORTH writes:—"I have good reason to say that the tracts you sent me some time ago are awakening many to the investigation of God's word. Bro. Ferrell, a very prominent Adventist here, has formed a Bible class and prayer-meeting, in which there is a deep interest manifested. Many rise up and say they never saw the Bible in such light before. I gave a brother here some tracts entitled 'Our Creed,' by Bro. Manley, and as soon as a friend of his read one of them, he exclaimed, 'This is just my doctrine. I will subscribe for the Crisis;' and as soon as we get up a club it will be forwarded to you. 'Rich man and Lazarus' is a tract highly prized by many. This, and 'Ghostology,' by Bro. Sheldon, are worthy to be read by everybody. But with these we want practical tracts, such as 'Life-Insurance,' by Bro. Hastings, and 'Salvation Neglected,' by Bro. Manley, I find many, who class themselves with the educated, who know as little about God's plan of salvation as the illiterate. They all have a plan of their own, that is, try to get good before they come to Jesus, if at all.

I did intend to have my book published before now, and shall as soon as I can collect means enough. I have received $5.75 in advance for the book. I believe the Bible, that all things will work together for good to them that love the Lord."

SR. P. B. MULLEN, Santa Clara, California, writes:—"We are making a little progress Zionward. I have distributed all those tracts you sent, and would like to have more. Sr. M., who now sends for the Crisis, came over two hundred miles to visit me. She was in great distress of mind, and had been for about a year. She lived where the preaching gave her no comfort. The poor woman had strong convictions of sin. She had not been here long, before I discovered her situation, and read and talked with her till 11 o'clock at night. The next morning, while I was getting breakfast, she was left alone in the sitting-room, and picked up a Crisis with which my table is generally supplied, and when I went in she clapped her hands and said, 'Here it is, now, just what my soul longed for.' She staid a week, got the light, and rejoiced in it, was immersed, and cried out, 'It is done, the great transaction's done; I am the Lord's, and he is mine. No one can take him from me.' That was a true conversion. There is no doubt in my mind but what the good Lord sent her here for light. She went home rejoicing. They are wealthy, and keep a large hotel. She will need all our prayers."

SR. N. J. SMITH, Brighton, writes:—"I am trying to scatter light and truth wherever my lot is cast; and the Lord is blessing me. By his grace, I will strive to do all I can for his cause, for he has done that for me that none other could do. I have been here since the tenth of September, and have been holding meetings in Harmony, Athens, and now am at the place of my childhood. I had the privilege of attending the Pittsfield campmeeting, the first one I ever attended in my life, and I can say I never received such strength before in my life, and such victories over the enemy. He has tried every possible means to overthrow me, and stop me from doing my Master's will; telling me, at times, that I was brought up back there so far in the woods, that I am so little and unknown, a poor female, a widow, that I might just as well settle down in ease, for it will be of no use for me to labor in the vineyard of the Lord: but I praise God for the blessed privilege of going to the Pittsfield campmeeting. It gave me strength, confidence and trust in God's word.

O the sorrow caused by disobedience. Dear brethren and sisters, scattered abroad, be faithful. Ye weak ones, do obey the Lord, and he will bless you. He has saved me, and raised me from the depths of despair. I mean, by his grace assisting me, to stand for the truth."

SR. L. B. WEAVER writes:—"God bless you all. I am glad that the day is nearing when the weary pilgrims will come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads. They will then obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and mourning will have an end. How sweet are these promises of the Lord. What a cheering prospect lies before us. The day of eternal deliverance is soon to dawn, and then the tedious night of sorrow and tears, suffering and disease, death and mourning, will come to an end.

We are living in a solemn time, yet glorious to the dear ones who are ready and waiting. It is solemn to think that so many are rushing on heedlessly to the judgment, not knowing or thinking what their awful fate will be. I pity them, and would point them to Jesus, their only hope and refuge. The day is drawing near. The storm is coming: darkness is hovering over the land, and all hearts are gathering fear.

I am glad that the saints of God know what is coming upon the earth. We are now to look, I think, for the sign of the Son of man to appear; and let us so live that the day of the Lord will not find us unprepared. I am weary, and long for rest."

BRO. J. S. ROBERTS, Lake City, Florida, writes:—"Bro. P. A. Smith has created much interest on the Suwannee river. We have seventy-five members there, so report says. We have one preacher here in my section of country. His name is Tho. J. Green. He is doing a good work. Though poor, he preaches all around as far as he can. May the Lord bless Bro. Smith forever for bringing the truth in this direction. There is a great work to be done here. Everybody wants to hear this message. There is no Spiritualist in this country. We need men who are healthy and strong, to preach the last call of mercy."

BRO. B. F. LESTER, Macon, Ga., Nov. 8th, writes:—"Popular theory is serving to make more infidels than any one thing else. Will not some of the laboring brethren come south and proclaim the truth to despairing millions. Bro. P. A. Smith preached in Homerville last summer, and the truth is rapidly spreading there; and there are several other places where the people are anxious to hear the truth."

CLOSE COMMUNION.

ANECDOTE OF REV. ROWLAND HILL.

When the missionary enterprise first commenced in England among the Baptists, one of the Baptist societies of London invited the Rev. Rowland Hill to preach a missionary sermon in their church. The invitation was accepted, the sermon was a complete success, some over one hundred pounds were collected. and while the congregation lingered, Mr. Hill noticed the deacons were preparing for the Lord's Supper. His heart being warmed up with christian love and benevolence, and not being acquainted with the peculiar restrictions of some Baptist churches, he anticipated a feast of fat things in assisting the pastor in breaking the bread, when, to his surprise and disappointment, the pastor of the church left the pulpit, and Mr. Hill in it, and took his seat by the table. Mr. Hill, in his disappointment, seeing a vacant seat among the communicants, took the seat, to the astonishment of the whole congregation. The pastor sent one of his deacons to tell Mr. Hill that they only invited the members of their own church to commune. The deacon approached Mr. Hill, looking more like a culprit than a servant of God, actually staggering under the cross he had to bear, but, feeling that he must do his duty, in a very low tone of voice said:

"Bro. Hill, we only invite members of our own church to commune."

Mr. Hill, in a voice loud enough to be heard distinctly over the house, asked:

"Did you not invite me to preach in your pulpit to-day?"

"Certainly, and are very grateful for your sermon. It has been a heavenly day to me."

"Don't you think me a christian?" asked Mr. Hill.

"Certainly we do," said the deacon," "but the rules of our church forbid our inviting you, or we would be glad to commune with you."

"'Well," said Mr. Hill, in a tone of voice indicating sorrow, "if you set your own table, you have a right to invite whom you please: but if you set the Lord's table, you have no right to refuse any of the Lord's children."—Morning Star.

THE DANCE AT MOSCOW.

"A time to dance; a time to die."—ECCL. 3: 2, 4.

During the occupancy of the city of Moscow by the French army, a party of officers and soldiers determined to have a military levee, and for this purpose chose the deserted palace of a nobleman, in the vault of which a large quantity of powder had been deposited. That night the city was set on fire. As the sun went down they began to assemble. The females who followed the fortunes of the French forces, were decorated for the occasion. The gayest and noblest of the army were there, and merriment reigned over the crowd. During the dance the fire rapidly approached them; they saw it coming but felt no fear. At length the building next to the one which they occupied was on fire. Coming to the windows, they gazed upon the pillars of fire which swept upon their fortress, and then returned to their amusement. Again and again they left their pleasure to watch the progress of the flames.

At length the dance ceased, and the necessity of leaving the scene of merriment became apparent to all. They are enveloped in a flood of fire, and gazed on with deep and awful sublimity. At length the fire communicating to their own building, caused them to prepare for flight, when a brave young officer named Carnot, waved his jeweled hand above his head, and exclaimed: "One dance more, and defiance to the flame!" All caught the enthusiasm of the moment, and "one dance more, and defiance to the flame" burst from the lips of all. The dance commenced; louder and louder grew the sound of music, and faster and faster fell the pattering footsteps of dancing men and women, when suddenly they heard a cry, "The fire has reached the magazine, fly! fly! for life!" One moment they stood, transfixed with horror; they did not know the magazine was there, and ere they recovered from their stupor, the vault exploded; the building was shattered to pieces, and they were hurled into a fearful eternity.

Thus will it be in the final day. Men will be as careless as were those ill-fated revelers. Methinks the hour has come, and I stand upon an eminence from which I behold the vices and the amusements of the earth. I warn them and tell them that in such an hour as they think not the Son of man cometh. With jeering laugh they ask, "Where is the promise of his coming?" I bid them prepare to meet their God. They reply, "Pleasure is our God." I tell them of the awful judgment; and crying, "priestcraft!" they again engage in the noisy revel. Soon an awful rumbling is heard in the heavens. A thousand voices tell them that the angels are rolling out the judgment throne. They reply, "one dance more, and defiance to that throne." Suddenly the stars go out, the moon turns to blood, all nature is convulsed, and universal panic seizes the hearts of all men, when, horror-struck, I see some Carnot turn his bloodshot eyes upon the burning world, and waving his hand above his head, exclaim, "One dance more, and defiance to the flame!" and ere that dance is done, the bolt is sped, the magazine of the universe explodes, and the time to dance is gone, gone forever.—Ex.

HOW TO BURN COAL.

It is a great thing in these days of high prices of fuel to know how to burn coal economically, to obtain the greatest amount of heat at the least expense. A few simple directions will be acceptable to our readers.

Do not use too coarse wood in kindling the fire, for while it will, of course, ignite the coal, it leaves a bed of ashes that will prevent a good draught. Fine-split kindlings that will burn quickly and blaze well, are the best. The amount of kindling depends upon the size of the coal.

As a general thing, people burn too large sized coal. Small coal gives much more heat than large, as there is more radiating surface. With large coal, there is always a great amount which is of no practical use, as it is hidden in the large lumps, and does not have a fair chance to do its desired work. We find small coal easier to use, more productive of heat, and cheaper.

A stove or furnace should be so constructed that the draught may be under perfect control, for usually a large portion of the heat is allowed to escape by the chimney. The great problem is to utilize all the heat from the burning coal, and allow nothing but smoke, (and only a little of that,) and the noxious gas, to escape.

The putting of ashes upon a coal fire to "keep it," will serve the purpose, but is apt to make "clinkers." Screenings or siftings, or what the "help" calls "old coal," is best for this purpose. If a good fire is well covered with "old coal" at night, and the lower draught closed and the upper one nearly closed, the fire will keep well and be in fine condition in the morning; then it may be allowed to draw a few minutes before "shaking down" and putting on fresh coal.

If the fire gets low, "pet" it by putting on a little fine coal at a time, and when this is ignited, a little more; but do not smother it with a shovelful of cold coal, or rake it. Oftentimes a careful thrusting of the poker through the bars of the grate will let in enough air to secure the necessary draught.

Oyster and clam shells thrown into the fire will loosen clinkers in a few hours so that they will come off easily. Two quarts, or at most half a peck, is sufficient.—Boston Daily News.

Married.

In Sempronius, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Nov. 21st, 1869, by Eld. J. W. Taylor, Mr. Ambrose Scott, of Moravia, and Miss Ella E. Lakey, of Sempronius.

At the residence of the bride's father, in West Woodstock, Ct., Nov. 30th, 1869, by Eld. I. B. Potter, Elder P. S. Butler, of Wilbraham, Mass., and Miss Juliette Perrin, of West Woodstock, Ct.

In Lowell, Nov. 25th, by Eld. J. W. Thomas, Mr. Charles E. Wiggin, of Haverhill, and Miss Sarepta Churchill, of Lowell.

Obituaries.

Welch. Died in Richmond, Me, Nov. 24th, 1869, Mr. William Welch, aged seventy years, four months. H. D. Reed.

Magoon. Died in North Hatley, P. Q., Oct. 7th, 1869, Henry W. Magoon, son of Lewis and Linda Magoon, aged one year and six months.

I endeavored to comfort the mourners from Jer. 31: 17. John Chapman.

Lock. Died in Augusta, Me., Oct. 27th, 1869, Sister Nancy Lock, wife of Bro. James R. Lock, aged seventy-five years and eight months.

Words of comfort were spoken by the writer, from Thess. 4: 14. Thomas Rines.

Berry. Died in Richmond, Me., Nov. 29th, 1869, of cancer, and congestion of the lungs, Sister Betsy Berry, aged seventy-one years and nine months.

After a short illness she fell asleep in Jesus with the hope of soon awaking at the sounding of the clarion trump of God, to live where the inhabitant shall not say I am sick. Sermon by the writer, from Rom. 14: 9. Allen Damon.

Tillinghast. Died, Sept. 29th, of consumption, Melissa, wife of Edwin P. Tillinghast, aged twenty-one years.

Our sister died in the full triumph of faith, trusting that in the morning of the resurrection she would come forth clothed in immortality and eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Funeral sermon by Bro. E. Wood, from James 4: 14 (her selection.)

Pierce. Died in Hydeville, Vt., Aug. 22nd, 1869, Mrs. Sybil Pierce, aged sixty-seven years.

Many and severe have been her trials through life; but a natural sweetness of disposition, united with living faith in her Redeemer, gave her an agreeable cheerfulness through her extreme sufferings, even to the end. Her funeral was attended by Elder S. G. Mathewson, of Castleton, when friends came to pay their last tribute of respect to one whose words and acts ever breathed kindness and good will to all. "The memory of the just is blessed." B. M.

Churchill. Our dear mother, Mrs. Mehitable G. Churchill, wife of John T. Churchill, Brookfield, N. H., fell asleep in Jesus, July 15th, 1869, aged seventy-three years and seven months.

In this bereavement our family sustains the loss of a dutiful wife, and a kind and affectionate mother, whose hand was ever stretched forth with the kindest greetings to the children of God, and who ever manifested the greatest pleasure in ministering to their temporal wants when at her home. Her last words were, "Jesus won't leave me now." And in the full assurance of hope she closed her eyes to mortal scenes, to open them upon the immortal, at the first dawning of the bright resurrection day. Geo. H. Churchill.

Mix. Died, at Yalesville, Oct. 15th, Captain William Mix, aged eighty-one years.

Bro. Mix was one of the 1843 soldiers of the cross of Christ. For many years at Prospect, he kept an open door. Many a weary saint found sweet rest and repose under his roof, and were helped on their way after a godly manner. He died at his post. May the Lord support the afflicted children. S. Woodruff.

Webster. Died, in the blessed hope of immortality, in Torrington, Conn., Nov. 18th, George Webster, aged sixty-one years.

Our brother has been sick about two years, but his trust has been in the Lord. A. D. Flagg.

Martin. Died, in Torrington, Ct., Nov. 28th, 1869, Mrs. Laura Martin, aged thirty-nine years.

She leaves a husband and three children to mourn her loss. A. D. Flagg.

☞ The French government having discontinued levying discriminating duties upon goods introduced into that country in American vessels, President Grant has issued a proclamation abolishing similar restrictions upon French commerce with the United States.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

Rome, Dec. 2. Four hundred Bishops have already arrived in the city to attend the Council.

Paris, Dec. 2. The governments of France and Great Britain are making great efforts to settle the matter at issue between the Sublime Porte and the Viceroy of Egypt.

Dec. 3. The fears of a disturbance to-day on account of the anniversary of the barricades of 1851 and of the death of Baudin have not been realized. The city has been unusually quiet all day, and at this hour there are no symptoms of excitement.

Madrid, Dec. Several of the Republican journals, the publication of which was suspended at the beginning of the recent insurrection, have been permitted to reappear.

London, Dec. 3. The Times of to-day says: "Things at Rome are auguring ill for the Council. Gallicanism is rampant. The Austrian and German Bishops demur at the dogma of infallibility, and discord is apprehended among the Italians. Antonelli shakes his head at a performance in which he never felt sympathy. It will be some time before it can become clear whether the Council will bring the Church peace or the sword."

London, Dec. 3. Dispatches from Rome announce that the pre-Synodal Conference was held yesterday, when the Papal allocution was delivered and the oath administered to the officers of the Ecumenical Council.

Suez, Dec. 5. The barque Noel, bound to Bombay, which was the first mercantile vessel to pass through the Suez canal with a cargo, was wrecked in the Red Sea, eighty-eight miles from this port.

DOMESTIC.

Foreign Postal Rates.—Washington, Dec. 2.—The following notice has been sent to the different Postmasters:

Post Office Department,
Washington, Dec. 2d, 1869.

On and after the first of January, 1870, the single rate of postage, half an ounce or under, for prepaid letters between the United States and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland will be reduced to six cents (three pence;) if not prepaid a fine of six cents (three pence) will be added to the deficient postage and collected on delivery. The rates of postage, conditions of payment on newspapers, book packages and samples of merchants remain unchanged. Postmasters will levy and collect postage accordingly on and after January 1st, 1870.

By order of the Postmaster General.
(Signed) Joseph H. Blackfan,
Superintendent of Foreign Mails.

The Bishop of Orleans on the Ecumenical Council.—Monseigneur Dupanloup, the Bishop of Orleans, in addressing the clergy of his Diocese, as noticed by cable telegrams, said:—

I shall go to the Ecumenical Council at the summons of the supreme head of the Church. I go as a judge and a witness of the faith. When there I shall be, I trust, with the assistance of our Lord, as a judge free, attentive and stern; and as a witness, watchful and faithful. When the Council is ended, whatever may be its decisions, whether they agree or not with my desires or my votes, I shall return, having submitted to all in word, in spirit and in heart, docile as the humblest sheep of the fold. Such is my faith; such is yours. It is by that we live, and by that we shall die.

Monseigneur Dupanloup is, in fact, the bishop to whom, in a greater degree than any other of the French hierarchy, the holding of the Ecumenical Council is attributable.

Napoleon, the Czar, and a New Coalition.—The Moscow Gazette publishes a long article on the reported rapprochement between France and Russia. The appointment of General Fleury to the French embassy at St. Petersburg is, it says, the first step towards detaching Russia from Prussia and bringing about an understanding between the Courts of Paris and St. Petersburg as to the Eastern question. A consequence of this understanding, the Gazette adds, would be to demolish German influence on the Danube, by, which it means, apparently, the overthrow of the dynasty of Prince Hohenzollern in Roumania. Another object of the mission of General Fleury is, according to the Russian paper, to call the attention of the Russian government to "the aggressive designs of Prussia" on Russia's Baltic provinces, the importance of the growing power of the Hohenzollerns on the Danube, and the danger to Russia if an Austro-Prussian alliance come to an understanding with France, Austria and Italy, with the object of compelling Prussia to "moderate her claims," to give up her plan of annexing South Germany, to render the North German States more independent and to enter into a convention for a general disarmament. This new quadruple alliance is to be announced by the Emperor Napoleon at the opening of the Corps Legislatif.

The Cologne Gazette, in commenting on the above article, observes that it is silent on one important point—what England would say to such a combination.

Passing Events.

☞ The great canal continues to work well. It has already had the effect to depress freight rates between Liverpool and East Indian ports. The enormous price now charged for tolls by the canal company and the cost of steam towage up and down the Red Sea, (some $4,500 for the passage of an ordinary ship) will continue to send the bulk of the carrying trade by the old route round the Cape of Good Hope, while passengers and light valuable goods will go via Suez.

☞ Rev. H. M. Parsons of Springfield, in a recent review of a fifteen years' pastorate over the First Church, spoke of the marked success that had followed the introduction of a Bible service which had supplanted the afternoon sermon. He stated that this method of teaching had been a more efficient power for good than his seven hundred sermons and two hundred lectures.

☞ Father Hyacinthe's successor in the pulpit of Notre Dame is the Rev. Father Montsabre, a monk of the Dominican order, who has acquired considerable reputation as an eloquent and powerful orator. Monseigneur Darboy, the Archbishop of Paris, has appointed him to preach the advent sermons in Notre Dame, after having consulted the most influential members of the church.

☞ Union prayer meetings—on the suggestion of Merle D'Aubigne—and in view of the opening of the Ecumenical Council, are to be held in Europe Dec. 6, 8 and 10, for the enlightenment of Roman Catholics.

☞ Several Carlist conspiracies have been discovered in various parts of Spain within the past few days. A number of persons have been arrested, and the authorities are taking every ordinary precaution to guard against any new outbreak.

☞ The Portuguese Government has invited tenders for the manufacture and laying of a submarine telegraph cable from Portugal to some eligible point on the American coast, touching at the Azores.

☞ It is reported that the difficulties at Paris and Washington arising from the landing of the French cable on American shores have been amicably settled.

☞ Edith O'Gorman, an escaped nun, has created considerable excitement in New Jersey by her revelations of convent life, especially in relation to the cruelties and ignorance in convent schools and the liasons of the priests and Sisters. She herself was drugged to unconsciousness by a priest before fleeing the convent.

☞ Dr. Schaff reports that Spurgeon, Pressense, Leon Pilatte, and other distinguished European divines will attend the great meeting of the Evangelical Alliance in New York next Fall.

☞ Rev. Albert Barnes, the well-known Biblical commentator, is to publish "Scenes and Incidents in the Life of St. Paul."

☞ An Italian edition of the Bible has just been published in Florence—the first since the Reformation.

☞ Over sixty persons joined the Methodist Church at Chickopee, Mass., during the two weeks of labor of Mrs. Van Colt, of New York.

☞ The Suez Canal has cost $81,000,000.

☞ A colored theological seminary in Richmond has forty students.

☞ A young woman has been elected Superintendent of Public Schools in Mitchell county, Iowa.

☞ A Chinese school in San Francisco has 120 pupils that learn very rapidly.

☞ Potatoes are rotting badly in Vermont. Whole bins of them are rotting in the cellars.

☞ The Sultan has presented the ground and edifice of the Church of the Knights of St. John, in Jerusalem, to the King of Prussia.

☞ The revival at Oberlin this Fall has reached the students more extensively than any other for several years. The work has been very quiet, with but few extra meetings, but there have been over a hundred conversions.

☞ The Colver Institute, at Richmond, Va., for the training of colored ministers, has over forty students.

☞ A dispatch from Rome says all the Italian Bishops except five have taken the oath of fidelity to the Pope.

☞ The Empress Eugenie has arrived in Paris.

The N. Y. Sun says that the Superior of the Dominican Fathers of New York was formerly a Methodist class-leader.

Notices.

New Hampshire State Conference.

The sixteenth annual session of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire will convene in Concord, commencing Dec. 9th, at ten o'clock, A. M., and continue over the following Sabbath.

Dear brethren and sisters in Christ, make one more effort to attend the annual re-union of the soldiers of Christ in the old Granite State; whose hearts are beating quick with the animating hope of speedy deliverance and eternal redemption in the kingdom of God. We hope that every preacher in the State will attend this Conference, but if any are not able to do so, let them not fail to report themselves by letter. We also most earnestly hope that every church and meeting looking for Christ's speedy coming will be represented by one or more delegates. Let us know your wants, and we will supply them as far as possible. Speak to us words of sympathy and christian friendship, for the hour is dark and perilous.

Ample accomodations by the good people of Concord will be made for all who come. Their hearts and houses will be open to welcome all.

Come to labor for God. Come filled with the Spirit. Come to admonish the backslider, and to warn the sinner of the approaching judgment and his impending doom.

The following arrangements have been made with the railroad companies: Those who come over the Boston, Concord and Montreal R. R. will pay full fare to Concord, and there will receive a return ticket, signed by the Secretary, which will take them to the station from which they started, FREE.

Those who come over the Concord R. R. and its branches, can purchase tickets at Portsmouth, New Market Junction, Lawrence, Nashua, Manchester, Pittsfield and Suncook, which will take them to Concord and return at the rate of two cents per mile. Call for tickets to attend the State Conference in Concord, at the above named stations.

Those who take the cars at stations where no tickets can be purchased to attend the Conference, can pay full fare to where those tickets can be had, and then procure them.

Those coming over the Northern C. and Claremont and Contoocook River Railroads, from White River Junction, Bradford, Hillsborough Bridge, and all intermediate stations, will purchase special tickets for the N. H. Advent Christian Conference, Concord, which will be signed by the Secretary, and return the passenger free.

The meetings will be held in Phœnix Hall, near the depot, on Main Street.

J. Couch, President.
A. W. Sibley, Secretary.

Notice.

A quarterly meeting of the Union Female Missionary Association will be holden at Meredith Village, N. H., commencing Jan. 5th, 1870, at two o'clock P. M., and will hold over the following Sabbath. Arrangements have been made with the Boston, Concord and Montreal Rail Road to give free return passes to all who may choose to attend the Association from any station on the road, and efforts will be made to secure the same favor on the Concord and Portsmouth, Manchester and Lawrence, and Manchester and Nashua R. R. Persons purchasing full fare tickets to the meeting, will receive return passes, signed by the Secretary, good through the meeting.

The hall where the meeting is to be held, is an excellent one, new and commodious. The place is pleasantly situated. But little preaching of the present truth message has been had there, and it is hoped that the sisters of the Association, the members, and all others who can, will attend this meeting. The few brethren and sisters in the place and vicinity will do all they can to entertain those who may come.

The train up arrives at Meredith Village at noon, and the train down at two o'clock P. M. All who attend the meeting, will come at once to Lake Hall, and arrangements will be made for their comfort. Come to work for Jesus, and save the perishing. M. McKinstry.

Notice.

By invitation of the church at New Britain, the next quarterly session of the A. C. Conference will convene at New Britain, Conn. Services to commence Wednesday evening, Jan. 12th, 1870. Business session at ten o'clock A. M., Thursday. Let every church be represented, and all come with a hearty good will to work for the Lord. Letters and communications can be sent to the Secretary previous to the meeting, at 189 Orchard Street, New Haven, Conn.

George L. Teeple, Sec. of Conf.

Notice.

I have removed from Danielsonville, Conn., to North Springfield, Vt., and friends are requested to address me henceforth at this place.

H. F. Carpenter.

Notice.

In view of the lack of deep piety in the church, and a proper interest in the soon coming of Jesus to redeem his people and give them their Eden home, we, the undersigned, call for a general, free, and old-fashioned Conference, to be held in Richmond Village, Me., to commence Dec. 22d, at seven P. M., and continue over Lord's day. This conference is intended to benefit ministers and members; in which ministers will relate their call into the ministry, and members their experience in the proclamation of the Advent near; and to labor for the salvation of sinners and the piety of the church.

Israel Damman.
A. H. Walker.
B. Emery.

Notice.

Where shall the Maine Ministerial Conference be held? Those brethren wishing the conference held with their church, or in their town or city, the second Tuesday in January, 1870, will please notify me at Topsham, or R. K. York, Portland, at once. C. Goud, Pres.

Notice.

The Quarterly Advent Christian Conference of New York State will meet with the church at Knowlesville, Orleans Co., Thursday evening, Dec. 16th. Provision will be made for all. We request a full attendance, that we may devise means for carrying the gospel into new fields.

W. J. Hobbs, Clerk.

Notice.

Brethren and sisters of like precious faith, greeting: As I have been made the custodian of the Philadelphia Tent, which has been dedicated to the service of God, as a house in which to proclaim the truth we so much love; I would say to all who want to do good through this channel, to begin at once to lay plans for a tent-meeting next season, in some central place. Talk this matter over with the friends around you, and pray for direction and the spirit of sacrifice, and write to me at your earliest convenience if you think it best to have a meeting of that kind at your place. Write as early as the 20th of March, so that I can make proper arrangements for equalizing the expenses. If there should be any who may want a meeting at their place, or some village near by, and yet not able to determine what is best under the circumstances, let them give us all the favorable and also all the unfavorable circumstances, and we will decide about the matter ourselves.

P. W. Hough, Clerk.

Statistics Called For.

If any brother in any place within the bounds of the A. C. Conf. of the State of Conn., will furnish information, by letter or otherwise, as to date of commencement of Advent meetings, numbers in fellowship, means, expenditures, places of worship, etc., he will confer a favor. For this purpose, please address Elder A. H. Steele, 20 Franklin Street, New Haven, Ct.; B. Hitchcock, same No.; or, up to Nov. 13th, W. S. Campbell, 354 Pearl Street, New York City.

To the Churches in Connecticut.

Having been elected to the office of President of Conference, I would be happy to learn the wants of churches within this jurisdiction, and to this end would be glad to hear from the brethren and sisters. H. H. Dickinson.

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 1869.

Churches in Mass.

Will some brother in each church, or place where meetings are held, inform me by letter, giving the town, and number of believers in the town, as near as possible? In doing this you will confer a favor, and assist in doing something for the interest of the cause at large.

J. Hemenway, Athol Depot, Mass.

☞ A short poem, "The Blissful Vision," may be had for 30 cents per dozen, of the author, J. Albert Libby, West Poland, Maine.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

S. S. Brewer............Sunday, Dec. 12th
J. Couch............Sunday, Dec. 19th

Boston, South End, (Minot Hall), corner of Washington and Springfield Streets.)
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.

John G. Hook....Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings, Dec. 8th, 9th, and 10th.
Wm. H. Mitchell............Sunday, Dec. 12th
J. G. Smith............Sunday, Dec. 19th
Geo. A. Streeter............Sunday, Dec. 26th

East Boston.

Meetings are held at Chase's Block, up two flights, at 154 Meridian Street, on Sundays, at the usual hours, also Monday and Thursday evenings.

N. M. Davis............Sunday, Dec. 12th
J. W. Britton............Sunday, Jan. 9th

Chelsea, Mass., (Library Hall.)

T. M. Preble............Sabbath, Dec. 12th
M. Batchelor............Sunday, Dec. 19th
J. W. Britton............Sunday, Dec. 26th

Charlestown.

Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.

W. S. Campbell............Sunday, Dec. 12th

Chicopee Falls, Mass.......Saturday evening, Dec. 11th also Sunday, Dec. 12th, and through the week.
John G. Hook.

Stoneham, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 19th
C. Goodrich.

Lynn, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Worcester, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 26th
M. Batchelor.

Holden, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Chicopee Falls, Mass............Dec. 17th
Hartford, Ct............Dec. 19th and 26th
New Britain, Ct............Dec. 22d
Forestville, Ct............Dec. 23d
J. S. White.

Sandy Hill, N. Y............Dec. 12th and 19th
A. A. Phelps.

Savoy............Sunday, Dec. 12th
E. McCulloch.

New Bedford............Tuesday evening, Dec. 7th
Acushnet............Wednesday evening, Dec. 8th
Fairhaven, Mass............Thursday evening, Dec. 9th
W. S. Campbell.

Plymouth, Vt............evenings, Dec. 9th and 10th
Bridgewater, Vt............Sundays, Dec. 12th and 19th
Pomfret, Vt., (as Bro. Harrington may arrange), evenings, Dec. 21st and 22d.
South Vershire, Vt............evening, Dec. 24th
West Fairlee, Vt............evening, Dec. 25th and over the Sabbath, Dec. 26th.
H. F. Carpenter.

Southington, Ct............Sabbath, Jan. 9th
Albion Ross.

South Windsor, Ct............Sunday, Dec. 26th
Wm. A. & M. L. Durand.

Bonny Eagle, Me............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Kennebunk Depot, Me............Sunday, Dec. 19th
Kennebunkport, Me............Sunday, Dec. 26th
T. P. Hampson.

South Ashburnham, Mass., (Union Hall), Sunday, Dec. 12th, all day and evening.
Rufus Wendell.

Sutton, N. H., (where Bro. Andrew may appoint), evenings, Dec. 13th and 14th.
Danbury, N. H., (where Bro. Ransom may appoint), evening, Dec. 16th.
Campton, N. H., (Bump school-house), evening, Dec. 30th, over the Sabbath, and onward as the Lord may direct.
D. Eastman.
J. H. Evans.

Lewiston, Me............Lord's day, Dec. 12th
Mechanic Falls............Lord's day, Dec. 19th
Jared Whitman.

Vernon, Vt............Sunday, Dec. 12th
H. Pratt.

Raccoonborough, N. H............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Alton, (Chesnut Cove)............Sunday, Dec. 19th
John and Jane Davis.

New Bedford, Mass......Sundays, Dec. 19th and 26th
Joseph W. White.

Bloomfield, Ct., (Brick school-house, farm district), Sunday, Dec. 12th. Saml. M. Tatro.

Danbury, N. H............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Newport Centre, Vt............Sunday, Dec. 19th and as much longer as the interest demands.
Z. Ford.

Northville, N. H., (in the town of Newport), Sunday, Dec. 19th.
Hinsdale, N. H., (where Bro. Thomas may appoint), Sunday, Dec. 26th, and stop as long as duty calls.
E. Cotton.

Wheatville............evenings, Dec. 14th and 15th
Eagle Harbor............evening, Dec. 16th
A. C. Newell.

Clinton, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 19th
Square Pond, Ct............Sunday, Dec. 26th
North Somers, Ct............Sunday, Jan. 2nd
A. Simpson.

Cambridgeport, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Lawrence, Mass............Monday eve., Dec. 13th
Haverhill, Mass............Tuesday eve., Dec. 14th
Exeter, N. H............Wednesday eve., Dec. 15th
Portsmouth, N. H............Thursday eve., Dec. 16th
Hampton, N. H............Friday eve., Dec. 17th
Lynn, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 19th
Geo. A. Brown.

If these appointments conflict, please write immediately to Geo. A. Brown, Box 204 Plymouth, Mass.

Stowe, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 19th
J. W. Britton.

New York City, (Cooper Institute), Sunday, Dec. 12th
Hartford, (Talcott & Post's Hall)............Dec. 19th
New Britain, Conn............Dec. 26th
Geo. W. Brown.

East Stoneham............Saturday evening, Dec. 11th and over the following Sabbath.
Elisha Johnson.

Dover, N. H............Sunday, Dec. 12th
B. S. Emery.

West Rumney, N. H............Saturday eve., Dec. 11th and over Sunday, the 12th. John B. Brown.

Concord (Conference)............Dec. 12th
Manchester............Dec. 19th
Melvin Village............Dec. 26th
T. W. Piper.

Webster, N. H., (Old meeting-house), Sab., Dec. 12th
Boscawen, N. H., (Gulf school-house), Sab., Dec. 19th
Simeon Roby.

Holden, (Cluley neighborhood)............Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Bangor............Sunday, Jan. 9th
Israel Dammon.

Bath, Me............Dec. 12th
East Bowdoinham............Dec. 19th
Brunswick............evening, Dec. 25th and over the Sabbath.
H. D. Reed.

Stoneham, Mass............Sabbath, Dec. 12th
B. Finney.

Elliott, Me............Dec. 12th
John Parsons.

Manchester, N. H............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Fairhaven, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 19th
L. Boutell.

Seabrook, N. H............Sundays, Dec. 19th and 26th
E. S. Moulton.

West Waterville, Me., Saturday evening, Dec. 11th, and Sabbath, Dec. 12th, and as much longer as the interest demands. Allen Damon.

Brimfield, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Charlton, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 19th
Three miles north of Warren's Corner, Niagara Co., N. Y., (as Bro. Adriance may arrange), Dec. 1st and 2nd.
Fives mile from Westfield, Mass., (as Bro. Phelps may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
If any of the above appointments conflict, write me at Rapids, Niag. Co., N. Y. Chas. P. Greenman.

Westfield, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 12th
East Haddam, Ct............Sunday, Dec. 19th
Wm. A. & M. L. Durand.

Collinsville, Ct............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Lovely Street, Ct............Tuesday evening, Dec. 14th
Unionville, Ct............Wednesday evening, Dec. 15th
Bakerville, Ct............Thursday evening, Dec. 16th
Pleasant Valley, Ct............Friday evening, Dec. 17th
Hartland Hollow, (Town House)............Sunday, Dec. 19th
North Canton, Ct., (near Bro. and Sr. Williams'), Monday evening, Dec. 20th, and onward three or four evenings.
Philadelphia, Pa., and Camden, N. J., Sunday, Dec. 26th, instead of New York.
New York City, (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sunday, Jan. 9th. H. K. Flagg.

Richmond, (Reed meeting-house), Sabbath, Dec. 12th, 10½ A. M. Levet school-house, two P. M. Reed meeting-house, evening.
Sabbattusville, Me............Sabbath, Dec. 19th
Bowdoin, Me............Sabbath, Dec. 26th
H. S. Mitchell.

Portsmouth, N. H............Sunday, Dec. 12th
East Rochester............Sunday, Dec. 19th
J. Pinkham.

South Sunapee, N. H., (where Bro. Lear may appoint), Friday, Dec. 24th.
Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
Plymouth, Vt., Tuesday, Dec. 7th, 7½ P. M., and continue over Sunday, Dec. 12th.
Brethren in adjoining towns are invited to come and enjoy the meeting with us. There will be ample provision made for all who will come. We expect Bro. W. Dow and H. F. Carpenter will be with us to preach the word. Z. T. Wood.

Bristol, R. I............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Millville, Mass............evening, Dec. 2d
North Dana, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 19th
Holden, Mass............evening, Dec. 22d
If these conflict, please write me at North Dana, Ms.
Geo. A. Streeter.

Warehouse Point, Ct............Sunday, Dec. 19th
Wm. Stuart.

Newfield, Conn............Sabbath, Dec. 12th
Wrightsville in the evening.
Square Pond, Conn............Dec. 19th
West Strafford, Ct............evening, Dec. 21st
North Somers, Ct............evening, Dec. 24th
Scitico, Ct............Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Springfield, Mass............evening, Dec. 28th
Brimfield, Mass............evening, Dec. 29th
Charlton, Mass............evening, Dec. 30th
Webster, Mass............evening, Dec. 31st
Abington, Ct............Sabbath, Jan. 2d
A. D. Flagg.

Morris, Ct., (fourth district), evening, Dec. 10th, and over the Sabbath.
Washington, Ct., (at Bro. French's), eve., Dec. 14th
Wrightville, Ct............evening, Dec. 17th and over the Sabbath.
New Preston, Ct............evening, Dec. 21st
Lanesville, Ct............evening, Dec. 22d
Salem, N. Y., (Pine Tree school-house)............Dec. 24th
New York City (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sabbath, Dec. 26th.
Westerly, R. I............evening, Dec. 28th
Charlestown, R. I., (as Bro. Lewis may arrange), evening, Dec. 29th.
Wyoming, R. I............evenings, Dec. 30th and 31st
Rocky Brook, R. I............Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
Abington, Ct............Sabbath, Jan. 9th
C. H. Sweet.

Morris, Ct............Sabbath, Dec. 12th
G. L. White.

Strafford, N. H., (Roberts' school-house)............Dec. 12th
East Boston, Mass............Sunday, Dec. 19th
☞ NO NAME.

Cold Spring, Ct............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Wm. J. Ripley.

Porter, Me............Sunday, Dec. 12th
West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house), evenings, Dec. 23d and 24th.
Warren Summit, N. H............Sunday, Dec. 26th
Will Bro. Cyrus Nelson go with me to West Rumney? T. Elwin Lang.

Lake Village, N. H............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Others wishing my labor in that vicinity, will please address me at Lake Village, N. H. S. C. Hancock.

Roxbury, Me. (Philbrick school-house), Sunday, Dec. 12th.
Byron, Me. (where Bro. Ireland may appoint), Sunday, Dec. 19th.
Buckfield Hill in the evening. Sam'l Collins.

Bradford, Vt............Sunday, Dec. 19th
North Haverhill............Sunday, Dec. 26th
Wm. H. Shaw.

Milford, (No. 2 Daniel's Block)............evening, Dec. 10th
Nashua............Saturday evening, Dec. 11th and over Sunday. John H. Dadmun.

Dorchester, N. H., (Town House), evening, Dec. 11th and over the Sabbath. (Baptism.)
John H. Evans.

Marshfield, Vt............Dec. 12th
East Roxbury, Vt............evening, Dec. 17th
Bethel, Vt., (Camp Brook)............Dec. 19th
North Hyde Park, Jan. 5th, 1870, and continue over the following Sabbath. J. A. Cleaveland.

Abington, Ct............Sabbath, Dec. 12th
J. W. Bentley.

Warehousepoint, Ct., (Simond's Hall)............Dec. 12th
Lynn, Mass............evenings, Dec. 14th and 15th
Salem, Mass.....Dec. 16th, and over Sunday, the 19th
Springfield, Mass.....Sundays, Dec. 26th and Jan. 2nd
Hartford, (Talcott and Post's Hall), Sunday, Jan. 9th
W. N. Pile.

Cheshire Street............Sunday, Dec. 19th
East Haddam, Ct............Sunday, Jan. 2d
S. Woodruff.

Putnam, Ct............Sunday, Dec. 12th
I. B. Potter.

Westfield, Mass.

A. Simpson............Sundays, Jan. 9th and 16th

Stoneham, Mass.

J. W. Britton............Sunday, Jan. 2nd

Wilbraham, Mass.

P. S. Butler.......Sabbaths, Dec. 12th, 19th and 26th

Portland, Me.

I. C. Wellcome............Sunday, Dec. 12th
J. A. Libby............Sabbath, Dec. 19th
W. H. Mitchell............Sabbath, Dec. 26th

Biddeford, Me.

Edwin Wells............Sabbath, Dec. 12th
Jeremiah Hill............Sabbath, Dec. 19th

Dover, N. H.

W. H. Mitchell............Sunday, Dec. 19th
C. Goodrich............Sunday, Dec. 26th

Hampton, N. H.

T. T. Farrell............Sunday, Dec. 12th

Bristol, Ct.

A. Ellcott............Sunday, Dec. 12th
R. Stark............Sabbath, Dec. 26th

Square Pond, Ct.

A. D. Flagg............Sunday, Dec. 19th

New Britain, Ct.

H. H. Dickinson............Sunday, Dec. 12th
Dr. Luddington............Sunday, Dec. 19th

Windsor, Me. (Preble school-house), every second Sabbath of the month until further notice. Church Hill, Augusta, third Sabbath. Mud Mills, Augusta, fourth Sabbath. Thomas Rines.

Wolcottville, Ct.

G. L. Teeple............Sunday, Dec. 5th
B. Hitchcock............Sunday, Dec. 19th

Portland, Me.

Meetings are held in Advent Hall, Cushman's Block, 353½ Congress Street, three times on the Sabbath, and Tuesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock.

New York City.

The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 405 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Westfield, Mass., will please correspond first with Eld. E. A. Eggleston.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Portsmouth, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. Thomas J. Spinney.

☞ Bro. Joseph A. Philbrook has been chosen Corresponding Secretary for the church in Hampton, N. H. Preaching brethren will please notice.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Manchester, N. H., will please correspond with the following committee:—A. J. Mayhew, S. B. Davidson, O. Proctor.

☞ Brethren sending appointments for London Ridge, N. H., will bear in mind that the fourth Sabbath in each month is engaged.

☞ Any Bro. wishing to come to Seabrook, N. H., to preach, will please address Bro. R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Bro. Charles Barton, of Seabrook.

☞ All preaching brethren who desire to communicate with the church at Rochester, N. Y., are requested to correspond with J. E. Wells, 32 Smith Street.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Portland, Me., will please correspond first with Eld. R. R. York, or with either of the following committee:—H. C. Freeman, James Berry, S. K. Dyer.

☞ Advent preaching brethren who may wish to visit Kennebunk Depot, will please address Edwin B. Wells, Kennebunk Depot, Me.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Lewiston, Me., will please correspond first with Albert Burgess, Cor. Sec.

☞ Augustus E. Snow, 1715 Markham Street, Philadelphia, has been chosen Cor. Secretary of the church worshiping at Ninth and Spring-Garden Streets.

☞ Brethren wishing to visit the church in Bristol, Ct., will please correspond with Elder B. Hitchcock, Forestville, Ct.

☞ Brethren desiring to preach in Hartford, Ct., will please correspond with Bro. L. Tiffany. Preaching the first Sabbath in each month by resident Elder H. H. Dickinson.

☞ Persons wishing to communicate with the church in New Britain, Conn., in regard to preaching, will please correspond with Bro. A. Powell, Cor. Sec.

☞ All preaching brethren desirous of going to New Milford Ct., to preach, will first correspond with Richard Hecock.

NEW MUSIC.

BY GEO. E. LEE.

"The General Roll," and "Jesus Comes Again."
"Resting By-and-by."
"The Lord's Supper" and "The Pilgrim's Hope."
"The Glorious Prospect," and "Shall we be There?"
"The Voice of my Savior," and "The Day of Peace."
"Blessed Tidings."
"The Prospect."
"Calvary."
"Who'll stand up for Jesus?"
"All to Christ I owe."
"My Jesus, I love thee."

SONGS FOR THE CAMP-GROUND.—A sheet containing five pieces of music, and twelve choice hymns, viz: "The Resurrection Hymn," "Over There," "Awake! Awake!" "The Better Day," "Walk through the Valley," "Battling for the Lord!" "I will sing for Jesus," "Your Mission," "The Heavenly Meeting," "Jesus our Salvation," "The Fountain of Mercy," and "Singing for Jesus."

SONG SHEETS, No. 1.—Containing "Sunshine," "The Parting Hand," "The Resurrection Hymn," "Consummation," "We shall walk through the Valley in Peace," "I shall know thee in the Morning," "Saint's Day," "Shall we know each other?" etc.

SONG SHEETS, No. 2.—Containing "Calvary," "'Tis the very same Jesus," "The Shining Land," "Sing to the Lord," "Say, Brother, shall we meet?" "Bright Angels open the Door," "Over There," and "The Little Grave."

Price of the above sheets singly, 15 cts; 10 for $1.00. For sale at the Crisis office. Ass'n.

Business.

Letters Received.

J L Wood, H. Munger, B. Spaulding, J A Cleaveland, B P Manning, A Cook, J L Hersey, O. J., P A Walker, I Lamb, S P Howland, B Mathewson, A. S. B., S T Wheelock, Rebecca, J T—zier, J P Peters, S D Sinclair, A D Flagg, J B Wadsworth, S Woodruff, G H Churchill.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.50 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9½ per dozen; $75 00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 16 cts. additional postage.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $5.00; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $4.00; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2 50; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $2.50; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.50; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

Any of the above will be sent by mail on receipt of the price.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; $3.50 per one hundred copies.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

376 pages. Price by mail, $1.25.

The above works for sale at this office.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.

Price in cloth............75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers............60 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers............50 cts., postage 6 cts.
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.75

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.
WHAT IS MAN?
THE SOUL—WHAT IS IT?
THE SPIRIT—WHAT IS IT?
THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

All the above works in one volume, flexible cloth, in a compact, durable form, for use and preservation, for 35 cents, postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY.

BY S. S. BREWER.

For sale at the Crisis Office, 167 Hanover Street.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Media Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. Facts and testimonies concerning Papal Rome in its present condition, of a very interesting nature. Illustrated with good engravings. Per dozen, by mail, $1.06; single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. Illustrated with engravings, showing the exhausted condition of this chain of symbols, and the proximity of the judgment. Per dozen, by mail, 90 cts.; single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. It was terrific, bloody, and cruel beyond conception, or the power of language to describe. "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, my mail, 10 cts.

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII., in Two Parts. In the first part we have endeavored to show by historical facts the rise, career, and complicity of the Leopard Beast with Papacy during the forty-two prophetic months they were to make war upon the saints. In the second part we have presented our reasons for believing the Popedom to be "The Two-Horned Beast." Per dozen, by mail, $1.80; single, by mail, 20 cts.

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the kingdom of God (Matt. 21: 43); what is to be understood by taking it away, suffering violence, Israel, the new covenant, signs of the times, nearness of the great day of the Lord, etc., etc. Per dozen, by mail, $2.25; single, by mail, 20 cts.

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Showing that God invariably has made known his judgments to his prophets, and by them to the doomed nations. Fifty positive and incidental instances are brought to view in this little work. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single, by mail, 9 cts.

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and the end of the world?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, arranged in chronological order; Abounding of Iniquity, Immorality of the Age, Great Spiritual Dearth, Spiritualism—its immoral and degrading tendencies, A Spiritualist's Invocation to Satan, Progression, The Gospel preached in all the world as a witness, The Harvest Ripe, The end of all things at hand. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars; meteorological wonders, fearful sights and great signs in the heavens—blood, fire, and pillars of smoke, etc., etc. This work contains a number of excellent engravings, illustrative of these last day wonders, that God in his infinite mercy has hung as flaming signals in the heavens, to herald the approach of the great day of his wrath. Per dozen, by mail, $2.30; single, by mail, 23 cts.

9. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. Per dozen, by mail, 87 cts.; single 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.

10. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, with covers, and enlarged. Price 6 cts. By mail, 9 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by ma for $1.25.

An Admonition to Christian Churches on Church Festivals, Fairs, etc.

By L. K. Lombard.

A new edition, with additions and improvements. About twelve thousand of the above sheet have been scattered, and they are doing a practical service against these growing evils in the churches of our land. The picture of their proceedings is so faithfully drawn, that the guilty on reading it have several times furiously protested to those who offered them that it was written on purpose for them, with a full knowledge of the facts in their case. Price, posdpaid, 15 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

For sale at this office, or by L. K. Lombard, South Windham, Maine.

The Berean's Casket and Repository.

This is a work just published, containing 492 pages with the tables of contents, in 358 sections, all in small type, embracing a great amount of matter. It is a Scripture Manual, to which is added much valuable history, showing the fulfillment of prophecy, signs of the times, and other important matter for every Bible reader, statistics, tables, and prophetic figures. Compiled by I. C. Wellcome. Price, cloth, bevel boards, postpaid, $2.00. Leather bound, $2.50.

For sale at this office.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

SENT POSTPAID AS FOLLOWS:

1. I don't believe in Religion............16 pp., 4c.
2. Did the World make Itself?............[illegible]
3. Is God everybody, and everybody God?............[illegible]
4. Have we any need of the Bible?............[illegible]
5. Who wrote the New Testament?............[illegible]
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?............[illegible]
7. Can we believe Christ and his apostles?............[illegible]
8. Prophecy............[illegible]
9. Moses and the Prophets............[illegible]
10. Infidelity among the Stars............[illegible]
11. Daylight before Sunrise............[illegible]
12. Telescope Views of Scripture............[illegible]
13. Science, or Faith?............[illegible]

For the set (making 304 pp.)............50c. postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

Advent Christian Publication Society,

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Works on the Prophecies—The Coming and Kingdom of Christ, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES; or, A Glance at Christendom as it is. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

VOICE OF THE THE CHURCH on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By D. T. Taylor. Cloth, $1.50.

THESSALONICA, the Model Church, and REASONS FOR MY HOPE, by H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM, by Dr. Ramsey. Cloth, $1.00.

THE GREAT CONTROVERSY between God and Man, with various tracts. By H. L. Hastings. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50c.

LOOKING FORWARD; or, Prospects of the Church; By H. L. Hastings. 10c.

MATTHEW XXIV. AND XXV. An Exposition, showing Christ's Predictions fulfilled, and his Kingdom near. By I. C. Wellcome. 25c; by mail, 27c.

THE CELESTIAL RAILROAD; or, Modern Pilgrim's Progress. 8c; by mail, 10c.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the times to Daniel and John. On Cloth, by mail, $4.00.

Works on Future Punishment, etc.

FUTURE PUNISHMENT as taught in the Scriptures. Comprising Pauline Theology, Destiny of the Wicked, Old Paths, Retribution, and Will all Men be Saved? By H. L. Hastings. Cloth $1.00; paper 50c.

STATE OF THE DEAD, and Punishment of the Wicked. A Discussion between Miles Grant and W. W. Clayton. Paper, 20c.; by mail, 22c. Cloth, 40c; by mail, 50c.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, The Destruction of the Wicked established, and Endless Misery disproved. By Jacob Blain. 25c; by mail, 29c.

WHAT IS MAN? A Bible View of his Creation. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SOUL; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

THE SPIRIT; What is it? A Bible View of its meaning. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

RICH MAN AND LAZARUS; Thief on the Cross, etc. By M. Grant. 5c; by mail, 7c.

ENDLESS MISERY not a Bible Doctrine. 4c; by mail, 6c.

THE WICKED NOT IMMORTAL—(with 200 proof texts.) 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING OF THE WORD HELL. 2c; by mail, 4c.

BIBLE MEANING of Forever and Everlasting. 2c; by mail, 4c.

SMOKE OF TORMENT and Unquenchable Fire Explained. 1c; by mail, 3c.

REV. JOHN FOSTER'S LETTER on Future Punishment. 1c; by mail, 3c.

Miscellaneous.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, postpaid—Family and Pulpit Edition (8vo. Pica), Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18mo. Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c; Extra Cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.35; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60. Miniature Edition, for Children and Sunday schools,—cloth, 25c.; roan, 50c.; gilt, 75c.

THE BIBLE TEXT-BOOK; or the Principal Texts relating to the Persons, Places, and Subjects occurring in the Holy Scriptures. Arranged for the use of Ministers, Teachers, and Students of the Bible. With two Maps, and a variety of useful Tables. Price, by mail, 40 cents. Postage 8 cts.

UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED from the Inner Temple, and shown to be, in its results, no better than Infidelity. By John T. Walsh. 5c. single by mail; 50c. per dozen.

"THE NEXT DISPENSATION Viewed in the Light of Revelation." By Wm. Sheldon. By mail, 12c. single copy; $1.00 per dozen.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlineal Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.16. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.66. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.16.

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption, and in the Administration of the Government of God. By Wm. Shepherd. 20c.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. P. Hudson. Paper covers 45c. by mail.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.26; Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

EVERYBODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

STORIES FOR YOUNG PILGRIMS. 16pp. each, in paper covers, with illustrations. 30 cents per dozen; $2.00 per 100; 5c. single, postpaid.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly Contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 3 cts; by mail, 6c.

THE FIRST DAY SABBATH. By T. M. Preble. A new and interesting work. pp. 471. Price $1.50.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5 cts. single; by mail, 7 cts.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c. by mail, 15c.

TWO HUNDRED STORIES FOR CHILDREN. By Elder T. M. Preble. pp. 234. 80c. by mail.

HEALTH REFORMER'S COOK BOOK. Price 30c; by mail, 32c.

THE SEVENTH-DAY SABBATH. Is its observance binding? By G. W. Baily. 23pp. Single 5c. postpaid.

SPIRITUAL EVIL: A Warning for the Unwary. By Thomas Carlyle. 3c. single; 5c. by mail; 20c. per dozen.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR; or, Spiritualism; What it is, and what it is not. Paper covers, $1.00; by mail; cloth, $1.25 by mail.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. 25c. per dozen; $1.50 per hundred. Single 4c., postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 5c; per dozen, 50c.

BETHLEHEM: a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE PLAN OF REDEMPTION. By I. C. Wellcome and C. Goud. On the Old and New Covenants, the Atonement, Redemption, Restitution, Kingdom, Millennium, True Israel, etc. etc. Second Edition. 460 pp. $1.25.

"GOD'S PEOPLE ISRAEL and the Scriptural Millennium," by I. C. Wellcome and Clarkson Goud. Price 25c; postage 2c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM. By I. C. Wellcome. pp. 81. Price by mail, 25c.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War. By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

THE MILLENNIUM. By Mrs. M. D. Wellcome. 60 pp. Single copy 15c.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c., postpaid.

DIPHTHERIA; its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

OUR LOSS IN ADAM OUR GAIN IN CHRIST. A valuable tract on the Atonement. By H. F. Carpenter. 5c. single copy, by mail; 40c. per dozen.

THE BIBLE, OR TRADITION—Which shall I Believe?" An excellent tract. By S. L. Manley. 3c. single copy by mail; 20c. per dozen.

"ONE MORE INVITATION." A tract of four pages. By mail, 25c. per 100 copies.

"GOLDEN MOMENTS." A four-page tract. By mail 35c. per 100 copies.

THAT MAN OF SIN. By Eld. O. R. Fassett. To which is added "The Only Hope." Price, 5c. single, postage 2c. 50c. per dozen; postage 6c.

"THE PENALTY OF SIN." By O. R. Fassett. By mail, single copy, 5c; 40c per dozen.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home............16 pp.
2. Life Insurance............16 pp.
3. Lost! Lost!............8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet?............8 pp.
5. About God (for children)............4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing............4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ............4 pp.
8. Now............4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent, postpaid:

One set (64 pp.)............[illegible]
1200 pp............[illegible]
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid)............[illegible]

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

GATHERED IN THE MORNING.

TUNE.—"Shall we gather at the river?"

Shall we gather in the morning,
Gather at the Savior's feet?
Wear a crown of rich adorning,
When salvation is complete?

CHORUS.
Yes, we'll gather in the morning,
On the resurrection morning we shall go;
Gathered with the saints by the fountain,
From whence all joys do flow.

Shall we press those hands in ours,
Which were nailed to the tree?
Hand in hand walk lovely bowers,
And His beauty ever see?

Shall we see Him on us smiling,
With the gentlest look of love?
Shall we see his glory shining,
And from him no more to rove?

Yes, we'll see Him in the morning,
See the blessed Life-King there,
Peace and joy the earth adorning,
Safe at home, his glory share.

Portland, Me. W. C. CLARK.

"THE DAYS WE LIVE IN."

On all hands it is acknowledged that these are wondrous days. Statesmen, philosophers, poets, divines, and thoughtful men in all ranks of life, admit and confess that this age has characteristics, marked, and almost unprecedented in their character. As "coming events cast their shadows before," so the strangely ominous features of these days would seem to indicate that we are probably on the eve of some vast change

1. "These days" are distinguished pre-eminently for excitement, activity, and genius. The human mind was never so active. The world has never moved with such rapid strides as it is moving now. "Progress" is the universal watchword. Steam and electricity have almost annihilated time and distance. The completion of the Pacific Railroad, and the Suez Canal, with other gigantic undertakings yet to follow, will, ere long, tend to make the world one vast city. The laying of a new cable "from Europe to America," awakens no more interest now, in general, than the latest murder or railroad accident. Already additional "cables" across the Atlantic are talked of. A new railroad, to connect Europe with India, it is said, is seriously contemplated; while California, not to be outdone by the Old World, has established the "Aerial Navigation Company," and expects to render the Pacific Railroad useless.

2. At the present moment, there is a state of unrest and turmoil among the nations, ominous of still greater changes in the future. A prominent French journal recently remarked that Turkey alone was not "the sick man" now, but all Europe. "From the shores of Portugal to the palace of Czars," agitation, unrest, dissatisfaction, and change, universally prevail.

3. It is, moreover, a noted sign of these days, that, notwithstanding great and unprecedented religious activity, formalism, skepticism, false religion, irreligion, and immortality fearfully abound, and are rapidly increasing. It would seem as though both the good and the evil were culminating. Whether the world is growing better or worse, is an open question. Of one thing the writer is fully satisfied, that our public speakers and leading men greatly err when they give us rose-colored pictures of the age, and tell us that time's great conflicts are nearly over. It is a great mistake to confound progress with piety. There is no true religion necessarily in railroads, telegraphs, or the inventions of genius for lightening labor, but rather the contrary, even the worship of mammon. Indeed, there is reason to believe that they only intensify human selfishness. Let any earnest christian ask himself, as he looks over the religious world, "Is there a growing holiness in all our churches? Are christians becoming less and less covetous, selfish, worldly? Is the line of separation between the church and the world becoming more and more marked?" We fear the honest answer will be, "No!" There never was a time when there was so much profession; and, yet, at the same time, when the standard of individual piety was so low.

Is it any wonder that, with pride, caste, fashion, and formalism in our churches, skepticism so widely prevails? Yet the skepticism of these days is quite different from that of the last century. It is not the coarse, vulgar system of Voltaire and Paine. It praises Christianity, and thinks the Savior, in many respects, a model. But it is the same godless system, only under a new name. And yet, it is this eclectic system that has recently received the sanction of some of the best educated minds in Boston, and on which it is proposed to build the church of the future. The three-fourths of the secular literature of the day is tainted with it: Its advocates are legion; from Emerson, who writes stately articles in the Atlantic Monthly, to the miserable penny-a-liner who writes "the last sensation" of love and murder for the benefit of the people.

It is noticeable, also, in this connection, what bold demands infidels, spiritualists, and others, are making, and to what lengths they mean to go. . . . .

As for Spiritualism, whether its boast of increase be true or not, there can be but one opinion respecting its fruits. Bitter and sad these fruits are, and, beyond all estimate, wretched upon the morals of the nation. In the Religio-Philosophical Journal, February 20th, 1869, is this outrageous statement: "In licentiousness we find an outcropping of the God-element in man. It seems somewhat difficult to attain the end desired, and to make plain to all that vice may be virtue, and discord harmony. We do say, however, that virtue is one condition, vice another; both equally commendable in the sight of God." Is it any wonder that, with such teachings as this, the floodgates of immorality are opened, and vice and crime, of the deepest dye, stalk broadcast in open day? Is it any wonder that, under the plea of "reform" and "rights," such insidious teaching obtains, that the laws of marriage are being relaxed, the number of divorces yearly increasing, dishonesty, licentiousness, murder, unheard of atrocities, darken the columns of all our papers, till one trembles over their influence in our families?

To some this may seem a dark picture; but to those who look for light out of the darkness, and life out of the midst of death, and who see no hope for the complete redemption of this fallen world but in the administrations of the returning Redeemer, there is nothing in this picture but what might be expected. Surely it would seem as if the Saturday evening of the world's long, dreary week was upon us, and the dawn of the blessed Sabbath [illegible]. Wherefore, let us gird up [illegible] while we sigh and cry for the abominations that are around us; while we [illegible] as we think of the multitudes [illegible] to a hopeless eternity; while we look with dismay upon the incoming flood of vice and worldliness, let us not neglect present duty. "Occupy till I come," is the Savior's command. Waiting, looking, longing for the heavens to open and reveal to us our Lord, let us nevertheless, as the days darken and the clouds thicken, be more than ever in earnest to hold up Jesus, to disseminate his truth, and, through divine grace, pluck as many souls as possible from the everlasting burnings,—so, working and waiting, shall we be prepared to welcome our King, and to have him place upon our brow not a starless crown, but one sparkling with many jewels—Prophetic Times.

For the World's Crisis.

ECONOMY AND INDUSTRY.

These are the two virtues held in highest esteem (theoretically) by the world, and hardly less esteemed by the church. Evidently the temporal prosperity of the human family depends upon industry and economy, and the practice of these virtues, with the blessing of the Lord, tendeth directly toward competency and wealth.

I have thought that a statement of my experience and practice on these points for some years past would not be out of place in the columns of our paper. I have aimed to keep an accurate account of all receipts and expenditures, so I have something better than treacherous memory upon which to rest my statements.

The average number of my family for ten years has been four persons. For a short period the number was five, and at another time it was only three. During the year ending in October 1859, our whole expense for rent, clothing, traveling expenses, food, and in short everything that can be reckoned among items of expense, was but a trifle more than one hundred dollars. About fifty cents a week for each person. And for three years previous we had been almost as economical, only that we had some extra expenses on setting up housekeeping, and we might at first, from lack of experience, make some purchases at a disadvantage.

The next two years our expenses were increased by a change of residence and occupation, and a double move of some five hundred miles and back. Yet we expended very little for food and raiment, compared with the families of our acquaintance. Since 1861 our expenses have been larger than before, on account of the great increase in the cost of the necessaries of life.

During the year ending in April, 1865, it cost about fifty cents a week for each member of my family. During the spring, summer, and fall of that year, to Nov. 1st, our whole expense amounted to just about three dollars a week. Cold weather added somewhat to our expenses the following winter, and the cost of publishing the "Bruised Reed" was about one hundred dollars, and our income that year was much greater than ever before.

For three years past our expenses, through sickness and health, summer and winter, amount to nearly a dollar a day for our family of four persons. This includes everything—rent, fuel, food, clothing, traveling expenses and all. Postage and stationary have been quite an item for some years past. Sometimes we have been so situated as to have no income at all for weeks, and have been obliged to run in debt for things needful. Many times we have seen no opening, and no prospect of income from any source, and several times in such cases we have mentioned our needs in the Crisis. It is on this account that I have thought proper to make these statements in regard to our habits and expenses.

Of course tobacco and alchoholic drinks never found a place in our family, and I make no use of tea or coffee, and my wife uses very little indeed. All that we have paid out for clothing for fourteen years for the whole family, would not much exceed the ordinary cost of clothing a family for one year. I mean a family in good circumstances, who dress "respectably."

This letter is growing longer than I usually write for publication, yet I must find room to make a statement in regard to labor performed. Myself and wife are the only ones in the family that can be taken into this account. I will begin with her. She has had the work to do for the family when able (and often when not able,) and has worked busily at binding shoes, a large part of the time also. Certainly it must be said of her, "She hath done what she could." Neither of us have ever seen the day when we could do a full day's work for a person of full strength.

In regard to my own work, it will be very difficult to arrive at a definite estimate, on account of the great variety of occupation. The time spent in reading and writing I cannot estimate. Neither can I tell precisely the amount of time employed in garden work, and cutting wood for fuel. I have been employed as clerk and bookkeeper, and also as newspaper agent, collector, etc. I have had the whole care of my family through several cases of severe illness, acting as cook, nurse, and man of all work, in the house and out. Besides all this, and other things not mentioned, I have made about ten thousand pairs of shoes, receiving on an average a trifle over ten cents a pair above the cost of findings and removing stock and shoes.

I submit this statement to the readers of the Crisis, feeling that I have fallen short of doing my whole duty, yet I can show that I have not been wholly unemployed. Taking into consideration my lameness, general debility, and all the disadvantages I have labored under, I feel that I have done nearly as well as most persons would have done with the same degree of skill and vigor, both bodily and mental. As something has been said in the Crisis, and more out of it, on the subject of begging, perhaps I may be allowed to free my mind on that point. I have certainly thought upon that subject, and will give the result of my investigations. I have not found that begging is classed as one of the "deadly sins" in the Bible. Constituted as men usually are, a man must be "broken in spirit," crushed and rendered partially helpless, and have his natural pride pretty much rooted out of him before he can beg, or ask of his fellow men to relieve his wants.

Many will say that they would rather steal than beg, and they act accordingly. But stealing and begging are not [illegible] punished, and the other is never so called in Scripture so far as I have found.

I have not a copy of the Apocrypha at hand; but I think there is a reproof or caution against this practice to be found there. [illegible]

F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Webster, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

PORK UNCLEAN.

In the Crisis of May 12th, I find an article under this head. The writer has referred us to the law of Moses against eating pork. The swine was one of those creatures the Jews were not permitted to eat. The law on what the Jews should and should not eat is in Lev. 11. The writer of this article says, "The Lord commanded him [Moses] to write and tell his people what they must eat and what they must not eat." The emphasis is mine. If, then, he would not eat pork because it was prohibited to the Jews, by his own showing he should eat what was not prohibited. So by the law he is bound to eat the locust, grasshopper, and beetle of every kind. Will those persons who appeal to this law of Moses to show that we are commanded not to eat pork, abide by this law? Let them read that law, and then tell us which part is binding on us, and which is not.

Some do not eat flesh of any kind, who refer to this law against eating pork. If we are bound by this law not to eat what was unclean to the Jews, then we are bound to eat what was not unclean. By this law, if any one touched the carcass of an unclean or clean beast, that died of itself, he was to be unclean till even. They were told to eat whatsoever parted the hoof and chewed the cud. God said of the swine, "Though he divideth the hoof, yet he cheweth not the cud; he is unclean to you." The reason given why he was unclean was not because he was filthy, had the scrofula, and outlets on his fore-legs; but simply, he does not chew the cud.

If an appeal be made to this law as a rule for us, then abide by it, without adding to it, or taking from it. God said the swine was unclean, because it did not chew the cud; and this is all the reason given. What right has the writer of this article to leave out the reason God has given, and give other reasons of his own making up, virtually charging God with making such a filthy creature that it ought not to be on earth? If a person will reject the hog as unclean, let him give the reason God gave to the Jews, namely, it does not chew the cud. Especially is he bound to do this while he appeals to this law for a rule of diet.

This law was given to the Jews, not to the Gentiles. These creatures were not unclean in themselves; but to the Jews, for a time, they were unclean. This law applied exclusively to them. This was a great part of the partition wall between Jew and Greek. Dr. Jahn remarks on this law, in his work on Jewish Antiquities:—

"The object of interdicting so many sorts of food was to prevent the Hebrews from eating with the Gentiles, or frequenting their idolatrous feasts, by means of which they might and probably would have been reduced to idolatry. They were reckoned unclean."

This is evidently the only reason why this law was given to the Jews—to keep them a separate people; and not because the food interdicted was common or unclean of itself. But he argues because things were called unclean to the Jews, therefore they are unclean to all the world in all ages. We will bring this argument to the Bible test.

Peter was a Jew. And while rigidly adhering to Jewish laws, especially in regard to his diet, he fell into a trance, and saw "heaven opened, and a great sheet let down to the earth; wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts, and creeping things." Of course he saw the swine in the sheet. A voice came to him, "Arise, Peter, kill and eat." Peter said, "Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten anything common or unclean." "And the voice spake unto him again, What God hath cleansed that call not thou common." Acts 10:10-16. This was done three times, so that Peter should be convinced that the rule of diet by which the Jews were kept from the Gentiles was taken away. Peter saw that, as that rule was at an end, he could now mingle with other nations. He said, "God hath showed me that I should not call any man common or unclean." Ver. 28. How had God shown this? By telling him three times that he now might eat all manner of four-footed beasts; even those that had been unclean to the Jew.

Paul said, "I know, and am persuaded, that there is nothing unclean of itself."—Rom. 14:14. This he said in regard to eating meat, as the connection shows.

Moses no more required them not to eat the swine, than he did not to eat all other animals which did not both part the hoof and chew the cud. All that were forbidden were equally unclean to them. Why, then, this vengeance on the swine, while the others are spared? O, he is so filthy! "He rubs himself against a post or rail." But he does not do that any more than do the cow and ox. He has sewers in his fore-legs to drain off the scrofula from his vile body, says our writer. And he says, "If these sewers become closed, the hog is sick until they are opened." Thus by his own showing, the sewers are provided for his cleanliness and health. The very means God provides for the health of the animal, our writer takes to show that he is filthy.

All animals have sewers, or passages, to let off the refuse or unhealthy matter from their systems. Is not this true of the cow and ox? Why, then, should we eat them? But he says, "We may eat beef. This comes from a clean creature." Yes, but if the sewers are closed, how long would they be clean? But we are told to look inside the hog for proof that he is full of scrofula and everything bad. The hog shows no more signs of disease internally than do beef cattle. Every butcher I have consulted has told me that he finds two beeves' livers diseased to one of the swine. Where the liver is diseased, the whole system is more or less so.

Give the hog the same chance, and he will show a much greater regard for cleanliness than will the sheep, ox, or cow. Let them run together in the same pasture, and the hog will keep himself much cleaner.

Our author says no domestic animal will eat raw pork. He says "their instinct teaches them that the hog is unclean." In this statement he shows profound ignorance of the habits of domestic animals. The cat, though well fed, will oftimes seem nearly crazy when a piece of fresh pork is brought into the house, till she can get some of it. The dog will readily eat it without being starved to it; and the hen will eat every part of the hog it can swallow. [illegible] The writer takes it that Dr. Johnson says that if a man [illegible] he will think and act like a hog; and then adds, "And if so, then a man who eats hog will feel hoggish, and act like one." This he endorses as true. Now as he recommends eating beef, it follows from his own showing that if a man eats the beef of a cow he will feel cowish and act like one; and so if his beef comes from the ox or stag; whatever he eats, he will feel and act like it. This being our author's logic, we commend him for being careful of what he eats.

He says the race has degenerated from eating this unclean food, and refers us to the Jews, who have strictly adhered to the law of Moses, and tells us how smooth and good they look. Why, then, does not the Jew live as long as they did in Moses' day? They are no longer-lived than those who eat pork; and I have yet to learn that they are any more healthy, or that they look any better.

He says the early belief was, that this disease (scrofula) was peculiar to the swine. So was it the early belief that the earth was flat, and that the sun went around it; and some in our time still believe it. There is as much truth in the one as in the other. Dr. Ira Warren says in his medical work that "this disease [scrofula] was once thought to be peculiar to the swine, and hence derived its name from scrofa, a sow."–Page 419. That is, some one who so thought gave it this name; and so those who want to have it so say that it is so, because it had this name given it. It having this name is no evidence that this disease is peculiar to the swine. The point to be proved is, Is the name rightly applied? Suppose some one once thought that the moon was cheese, and so gave it a name meaning cheese; would that be any evidence that it is so? Some one once called a certain disease scrofula, and scrofula means sow; therefore scrofula is in the swine.

Dr. Warren gives no credence to this whatever. On the other hand, shows that scrofula is a disease confined to the human family. After stating the views of some, that scrofula in all cases is inherited; that it comes from within, and not from without; that filthy habits and other things may aggravate it when developed, but never produce it, he says:—"My own strong suspicions that scrofula arises from the animal poison of syphilis, filtered through the blood of many generations, incline me to the adoption of the above views." Page 420. Syphilis belongs to the human family, and not to the brutes. On page 325 he gives the names of seven authors, who claim that syphilis and scrofula are identical. He then gives the most clear and positive proof that they are the same, or that one proceeds from the other, by showing their identity, and then says, "This could hardly occur were not the diseases identical in their nature." He further says, "He must be a poor observer who cannot discover a probable filial relationship of scrofula to syphilis."

The writer says that things called unclean by the Jews, were unclean of themselves. God told Noah, "Every moving thing that liveth shall be meat for you."—Gen. 9:3. Did God tell Noah to eat things that were unclean in themselves? Paul said, "I am persuaded that there is nothing unclean of itself." This he said in regard to articles of food.

The Jews were not permitted to eat fish which have not scales. These were called unclean, and also three times over called an abomination. Will he claim that these fish are unclean of themselves? They were reckoned unclean to the Jews because they have not scales, and the swine because he does not chew the cud. He has the same right to claim that they are full of scrofula, and every thing bad, as he has to claim this of the swine. All fish that live in the sea or river, that have not both fins and scales, were called an abomination.

He recommends eating beef; but he makes no distinction between fat and lean beef. Perhaps he does not know that the Jews were as strictly forbidden to eat the fat of beef as they were to eat swine. As he goes to the law of Moses for his rule, why does he not include all the other creatures called unclean, and unchristianize every one who dare eat any of them? From this law he claims his right to eat beef, and recommends it to all others. He says that God commanded Moses to tell the people what they should eat. Why, then, does he not eat the sheep, the goat, the locust, the beetle, and the grasshopper, and insist on every one doing the same? Why this affinity for the cow, and rejection of the grasshopper, beetle, and locust?

Our author says he has had great opportunities for the last twenty years to observe the diet of people in different localities, and witness its effects on health and character. I have had this opportunity for twice this number of years. My experience has taught me a very different lesson from his, so far as eating pork is concerned. I think, for health, endurance, and longevity, those who have eaten pork compare far more favorably, than those who have eaten no pork. As imagination often has much to do in the effect of supposed causes, I would advise our author not to eat pork, lest looking at it in the light he does, his belief of the matter should cause him to feel hoggish, and act like one.

Paul in speaking on diet said, "For one believeth that he may eat all things; another, who is weak, eateth herbs." Rom. 14:2. That is, weak minded, or weak in the faith, as the first verse shows: "Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him that eateth not judge him that eateth."—v. 3. Then in verse 14th, "I know, and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus, there is nothing unclean of itself; but to him that esteemeth any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean."

The writer cannot understand how a person can pretend to be a christian, and eat swine. The Bible gives us no such description of the swine as he has. Paul said, "Let no man judge you in meat or drink."—Col. 2:16. When a person has a bad cause to sustain, he makes poor headway by going to the Bible for support. We are told that in the latter times "some would command to abstain from meats, which God hath created to be received with thanksgiving of them which believe and know the truth." "For every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused if it be received with thanksgiving."—1 Tim. 4:3-4.

Rev. Mr. Wilder, who has been a missionary in Burmah for several years past, says that the prevailing disease of the natives is that of worms, and that they generally die with them. He says they call pork an abomination, and will not eat it. But when they become converted, they change their diet and eat pork as a part of their food, and in every case they are improved. This he affirms as [illegible]

The Irish eat a large amount of pork, especially fat part; and they are the most hardy, healthy, and enduring portion of the community we have among us.

Dr. Jackson of Boston told me that in all his practice he had advised his consumptive patients to eat a large amount of salt, fat pork; and that in every case where they had followed his advice, they had been entirely cured, or greatly improved. He said that he never advised cod-liver oil, because he considered pork to be much better.

It may be said that some cannot eat pork without injury from it. This may be true; and it is equally true of nearly every article of food that can be named. I know a lady who has not been able to eat a piece of a raw apple for forty years without being distressed by it; still she has most of the time enjoyed good health, and to the present time does her housework, though she is in her seventy-eighth year, and with her husband of the same age has always eaten pork. I have known some who have persisted in living on wheat-meal bread and pudding, run down in health, and evidently died in consequence. But shall we say that apples and wheat meal are unclean, or unhealthy, in themselves?

The most healthy and longest-lived persons I have known, have from their childhood eaten pork. Besides those I have personally known, who have lived from seventy to ninety-three years, the knowledge of several has come to me within a few days, who have lived to a great age, and during all their life have eaten pork. Among this number, one ninety-eight, one ninety-nine, and another one hundred and three years.

Dr. Hook of Lowell, Mass., a medical lecturer, stated to a class of medical students that they should insist on their consumptive patients eating a large amount of fat pork. He said that he was at one time given up to die of consumption. He commenced eating pork, and soon his health improved, and finally was entirely restored. He is now fleshy, and to all appearance perfectly well; and this he affirms. In his whole course of lectures he keeps before his hearers the value and importance of eating pork.

In the article under review the writer says, "Feed a human being on pork and garbage, and he will be inferior in health, constitution, and endurance." How does he know this? Has he any evidence that any one has been so fed? Webster defines garbage thus: "The bowels of animals; refuse part of flesh; offal." Who eats garbage? He heads his article—"Pork unclean." What has eating garbage to do with eating pork? This slur upon those who eat pork is in keeping with his whole article. If he means that those who eat pork are inferior in health, constitution, and endurance, he means what all facts contradict.

Every point he has raised is equally untrue. If he wishes to live on prescribed kinds of food, rejecting all others as unclean to him, I have no objection. But when persons set up their rule of diet as a rule for others, and unchristianize all who will not endorse it, and will not say that things are unclean of themselves, which the Lord says are not unclean of themselves, they become subjects of censure and sharp rebuke.

I know persons who cannot eat fresh lamb without being sick. This is one of the clean creatures the Jews could eat, and one which the priests were commanded to eat, with salt on it. Fresh meat is harder to digest than salt meat. Salt assists digestion, and is necessary to the preservation of the blood, and is an antidote for worms, especially when mixed with fat pork. Salt pork digests two hours sooner than fresh, and sooner than any kind of bread unsalted.

If we may go to the Jews for a rule of diet, we may go to them for circumcision, and for every thing else which went to make up the particular wall between the Jew and Gentile; which wall the Savior took away, nailing it to the cross. "For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us; having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man, so making peace." Eph. 2:14-15. "Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross; and having spoiled principalities and powers, he made a show of them openly, triumphing over them in it. Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of a holyday, . . or of the sabbath days; which are a shadow of things to come; but the body is of Christ." Col. 2:14-17. See Galatians second chapter, in regard to eating. If our author seeks to be justified by the law, why does he not keep the law? "Christ has become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace." Gal. 4:4.

We hope the writer under review, before he attempts again to prescribe rules of diet for either Jew or Greek, will make himself a little better acquainted with the Bible, common sense, and facts. This continual tirade against eating pork because it was forbidden to the Jews, by those who disregard almost every other item of the law on diet, is making void the law through their traditions. "Thou that makest thy boast of the law, through breaking the law dishonerest thou God?" Rom. 2:23. J. S. WHITE.

Gems.

— Good temper is like a sunny day; it sheds its brightness on every thing."

— "The christian," says Cecil, "will find his parenthesis for prayer even in his busiest hours."

— The only rule of life to the christian, and the only safety to the sinner, is in looking unto Jesus.

— There is no sin we can be tempted to commit, but we shall find a greater satisfaction in resisting than in committing.

— Gratitude is the music of the heart when its chords are swept by the breezes of kindness.

— Aim to do some permanent good, that your existence may be crowned with usefulness.

— The living "righteously, soberly and godly," are the effects of divine and gracious teaching.

— Modesty is to merit, what shades are in a picture; it gives strength and relief.

— We suffer more from anger and grief than from the very things for which we anger and grieve.

— God hath two dwelling places—the highest heavens, and the lowest hearts; that is the habitation of his glory; this, of his grace.

— Every real christian is an aggressive christian. Like Paul he will be able to say, "This one thing I do, I press toward the mark."

— They that will not hear Christ say, "Come to me," in a day of grace, shall hear him say, "Depart from me," in the day of judgment.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

FASHIONABLE SUICIDE.

We would scorn to discuss so puerile and ridiculous a subject as fashion, were it not for the suicide of our daughters in their anxiety to be fashionable.

We allude to-day to the fashionable "lady-like" waist which has again become a leading object with mothers, daughters, mantua-makers and we fear with our teachers, both temporal and spiritual. Corsets are again "all the rage." The decree has gone forth from the center of all fashionable abomination that the cultivation of the waist has been too much neglected, and the wasp form must be restored.

Our attention is called to this subject by a case that has just come to our attention. A girl of sixteen, three years ago, was healthy, rosy and natural. She is now pale, feeble, unable to exercise, "pinched up" with the morning and evening cold, and altogether spiritless and uncomfortable. Three years ago the parents and friends of this girl became alarmed at the healthful completeness which her waist was likely to have—a form considered coarse and vulgar by the genteel, and especially by the mantua-maker. Two years ago she put on corsets of 21 inches.

A year of compression had reduced her to nineteen, and a few months more to eighteen inches—showing the success of that instrument in improving upon God's work and bringing a healthy figure into the genteel form, ruining the health and hastening the victim to a consumptive's grave. The other day this girl was told by her dress-maker that her waist was yet altogether too large, and the work of the corsets must go on.

But a fact which we wish to call attention to concerns our public schools. This girl was attending one of the Intermediates, and was, with the other girls, told by the teacher of gymnastics to loosen her corsets, as breath was needed in his department. The female teacher of the school told her pupils that the gymnastic professor was a vulgar man—and thus she counteracted what little influence he hoped to exert in saving the girls from suicide!

Is this the extent of the practical qualification of our teachers?

Is it not time that our young were taught the most important of sciences—that of health, which is of more value than all else that is, ever was or ever can be taught?

Are we preparing our daughters for sickly, miserable wives, to fill with misery households that should be happy, and to fall under this fatal stroke of fashion before ten years of married life shall have passed? Is not this a sin against both God and humanity? Should not the Church attack it, the schools attack it, and all who have respect to good morals wage war upon it as one of the greatest crimes of the age?

Intemperance is nothing compared to it. Murderers kill a few—corsets kill many, yea, countless numbers. The rebellion killed 400,000 men—corsets are killing thrice that number of women and six times that number of babes.—Cincinnati Times.

OVER-WORKED PEOPLE.

Wherever we go among working people, whether the work be muscular or brain labor, the cry comes up to us, "I am over-worked," "I am worn out," "tired," "strained." The cry comes from all classes, all places, and at all times. Considerable observation has convinced us that there are not so many over-worked people in the world as there seems to be. Nine-tenths of those persons who think they are over-worked, if the facts could be known, would be found to be over-straining one set of organs or faculties and leaving another set idle, and thus producing an unbalanced state of the system which results in great distress. It is not the extreme amount of labor that produces the discomfort, but the unequal distribution of it.

Take the case of a person who does brain labor. No organ of the body is so tough as the brain. If vigorous, it energizes the whole body; if weak, it weakens the body as well. Hard mental labor conduces to health and happiness, to longevity, but if the brain only is used in a longer or shorter period of time, the body suffers for want of strain as much as the brain from over-strain, and in this condition the sufferer complains that he is over-worked. Let such persons keep the balance between their bodies and their brains, and they could do more work than now, without injury, but with positive comfort. Very often the disproportion is on the other side, as is the case with those who use their bodies much and their brains little; in which case the body suffers for want of that energy which can only come from a healthy and vigorous brain.

It is sad to see so many unbalanced people as there are in the world. Like trees, or plants, with their foliage and branches on one side smaller than on the other, they lack symmetry, beauty, strength. They go through the world limping, as a dog with one lame leg, or like a wheel out of round, as it unevenly rolls over the ground, with sometimes the high side up and sometimes the low. The greatest strength comes from perfect harmony of development, and this is what all should seek, but it can only be obtained by the exercise of each organ equally. If this could be effected we should have fewer one-sided people in the world, and a less number to complain of over-work.—Herald of Health.

WALKING ERECTLY.

Walking erectly not only adds to manliness of appearance, but developes the chest, and promotes the general health in a high degree, because the lungs, being relieved of the pressure made by having the head downward and bending the chest in, admit the air freely and fully down to the very bottom of the lungs.

If an effort of the mind is made to throw the shoulders back, a feeling of tiredness and awkwardness is soon experienced, or it is forgotten. The use of braces to hold up the body is necessarily pernicious; for there can be no brace which does not press upon some part of the person more than is natural, hence cannot fail to impede injuriously the circulation of that part. But were there none of these objections, the brace would soon adapt itself to the bodily position, like a hat or shoe or new garment, and would cease to be a brace.

To maintain an erect position, or recover it when lost, in a manner which is at once natural, easy, and efficient, it is only necessary to walk habitually with the eyes fixed on an object ahead, a little higher than your own, the eaves of a house, the top of a man's hat, or simply keep your chin a very little above a horizontal line; or it will answer to walk with your hands behind you. If either of these things is done, the necessary, easy, and legitimate effect is to relieve the chest from pressure, the air gets in more easily, develops it more fully, and permeates the lungs more extensively, causing a more perfect purification of the blood, imparting higher health, more color to the cheek, and compelling a throwing out of the toes. To derive the highest benefit from walking, hold up the head, keep the mouth closed, and move briskly.—Hall's Jour.

CRYING.—A French physician urges that the children be allowed hearty crying spells. He contends that groaning and crying are two grand operations by which nature allays anguish. If the crying of children is systematically repressed, the result may be St. Vitus's dance, epileptic fits, or some other disease of the nervous system. What is natural, is nearly always useful; and nothing can be more natural than the crying of children when any thing occurs to give them either physical or mental pain.

☞ Patent medicines derive their name from Patere—to lie openly.

P. O. Address of Preaching Brethren.

Massachusetts.

C. Goodrich—No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.
Enoch Morrill—Crisis Office, Boston.
J. S. White—98 Decatur Street, East Boston.
L. Boutell—Chelsea.
S. W. Thurber—Chelsea.
T. M. Preble—Lynn.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls.
Geo. A. Brown—Plymouth.
Geo. A. Cole—Plymouth.
D. Churchill—Lowell.
Matthew Batchelor—New Bedford.
S. S. Brewer—Ashburnham Depot.
H. Pratt—Springfield, 57 Cedar Street.
E. Ford—Box 392, Springfield.
W. N. Pile—Springfield.
P. S. Butler—Collins Depot.
Geo. A. Streeter—North Dana.
C. H. Sweet—Millville.
Alvah Bean—Lowell.
J. W. Thomas—Lowell, 49 Worthen Street.
Benj. Finney—Wakefield.
S. S. Branes—Cold Spring.
W. H. Hathaway—North Carver.
Rufus Baker—Warren.
J. W. Brittan—Westboro.
Dr. A. M. Higgins—Palmer.
R. M'Culloch—Savoy.
R. Owen—Westfield, Lock Box 616.

Maine.

S. K. Partridge—North Whitefield.
I. C. Wellcome—Yarmouth.
H. D. Reed—Richmond.
H. S. Mitchell—Richmond.
J. Carr—South Albion.
Allen Damon—Corinna.
N. F. Nason—Weeks Mills.
C. Goud—Topsham.
Jesse Gay—Casco.
Thomas Smith—Bangor.
I. K. Lombard—South Windham.
Thomas Rhynes—Augusta.
R. R. York—Portland.
M. B. Patterson—Richmond.
J. Albert Libby—West Poland.
J. T. Jordan—West Poland.
E. M. Haggett—Livermore.
F. A. Baker—Levant.
Israel Damman—Corinna.
Jared Whitman—Mechanic Falls.
H. B. Sevey—Mt. Vernon.
M. W. Corliss—Milltown.
N. G. Reed—Bath.
Wm. H. Mitchell—Kennebunk.

New Hampshire.

L. C. McKinstry—Tamworth Iron Works.
A. W. Sibley—West Thornton.
J. Couch—Concord.
A. Simpson—Concord.
D. N. Chadsey—Whitefield.
Caleb Richardson—Salem Depot.
N. C. Twombly—Strafford Centre.
Levi Allen—Gilmanton Iron Works.
J. B. Brown—Laconia.
A. A. Hoyt—North Haverhill.
T. B. Lang, Jr.—Meredith Village.
John H. Evans—Holderness.
O. D. Eastman—Landaff.
Joseph Kimball—Unity.
Joseph Pinkham—Dover.
N. B. McMurphy—Gilmanton.
A. Ross—Amherst.
C. H. Fletcher—Newport.
T. L. Hall—Keene.
Wm. W. Sutherland—Newport.
S. S. Mooney—Pittsfield.
N. Wheeler—Whitefield.
C. W. Sargent—Box 426, Concord
Simeon Roby—Warner.
D. F. Leavitt—London Ridge.
I. W. Piper—Melvin Village.
D. M. Leavitt—Holderness.
N. Hartshorn—Laconia.
J. G. Smith—New Durham.
Joseph W. White—Portsmouth.
N. Glidden—Meredith Center.

Vermont.

H. F. Carpenter—North Springfield.
J. A. Cleaveland—Marshfield.
A. Gordon—Canaan.
E. G. Chadsey—Richford.
C. P. Dow—Franklin, Vt., or Stanbridge, C. E.

Rhode Island.

M. R. Phetteplace—West Gloucester.
D. O. Hopkins—North Foster.
B. Roberts—Knightsville.
A. Durfee—Woodville.
J. T. Dixon—Rocky Brook.

Connecticut.

William J. Ripley—Pleasant Valley.
S. M. Tatro—No. 51 Windsor St., Hartford.
W. S. Campbell—New Britain.
H. Rockwell—West Winsted.
Wm. A. Durand—Cheshire.
L. F. Moore—Somersville.
S. Woodruff—Unionville.
B. St. John—Wolcottville.
Dr. Samuel Wellis Treat—Middlebury.
Geo. L. Teeple—Monroe.
S. C. Hancock—Forestville.
A. D. Flagg—Torrington.
I. B. Potter—West Stafford.
E. Bellows—South Killingly.
B. Hitchcock—Forestville

New York.

Anna E. Smith—Star of Hope Mission, New York City, 14 Laurens Street, above Canal.
E. S. Jennings—President of "F. U. M. Association," Honeoye, Ontario Co.
J. K. Bellows—19 Orchard Street, New York City.
J. B. Cook—Brooklyn.
Wm. Ingmire—Lincklaen, Chenango Co.
Jacob Blain—Buffalo.
Chas. P. Greenman—Rapids, Niagara Co.
Arthur King—145 Nassau Street, New York.
Wm. A. Fenn—Rochester.
Phineas A. Smith—Rochester.
Z. Dubois Baird, Centre Falls, Washington Co.
C. Pike—Hebron, Washington Co.
C. H. Leverton—Honeoye, Ontario Co.
C. F. Sweet—Albion, Orleans Co.
Warren J. Hobbs—Honeoye Falls.
O. W. Low—Fredonia.
M. R. Miles—Wolcott, Wayne Co.
A. C. Newell—Darien City.
C. H. Williams—West Martinsburg.
B. P. Stevens—South Butler.
D. Cogswell—Dansville.
Herbert H. Brown—Honeoye, Ontario Co.
Cornelius Pike—Caldwell, Warren Co.

New Jersey.

H. K. Flagg—Camden.
S. P. Babcock—Malaga.

Pennsylvania.

. W. Taylor—Little Marsh, Tioga Co.
John T. Ongley—Lincolnville, Crawford Co.
Jonas Wendell—Edenboro, Erie Co.
E. Cotton—Edenboro, Erie Co.
Wm. Stuart—1814 Vineyard Street, Philadelphia.

Ohio.

H. G. McCulloch—Nevada, Wyandot Co.
G. W. Stetson—Olena.

Tennessee.

Dr. I. I. Leslie—Box 634, Memphis.
L. F. Cole—Memphis, Box 634.

Kentucky.

John B. Wadsworth—166 No. 2nd St., Louisville.

Indiana.

R. H. Scott—Scottsville, Floyd Co.
G. W. Green—Box 15, Memphis, Clark Co.

Illinois.

George W. Foster—Victoria, Knox Co.
O. D. Gibson—Amboy.
J. W. Burroughs—Neponset.
F. Burr—New Rutland.
Wm. McCullock—New Rutland.

Michigan.

J. R. Preston—Wallaceville, Wayne Co.
J. M. Snook—Romeo.
A. N. Seymour—Reading.

Iowa.

Peter S. W. Deyo—Strawberry Point, Clayton Co.
A. F. Dugger—Simpson.
Ambrose H. Eggleston—Parkersburg

Wisconsin.

Wm. Sheldon—Brodhead, Green Co.
J. Wilbur—Henrietta, Wis.
N. A. Hitchcock—Prairie Du Lac.
George Thompson—Attica, Green Co.
P. W. Hough—Mendoro, La Cross Co.

Minnesota.

Edwin T. Himes—St. Paul, Box 258.
Wm. Sweet—Backsville, Brown Co.
Philip Ramer—Winona.
Ruth M. Rowell—Winona, Box 621.
D. D. Reed—Crow Wing.
O. R. Fassett—Minneapolis.

Nova Scotia.

Wm. M. Ingham—Clemensport.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance....................$2.50 a year
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, or so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,
THE YOUNG PILGRIM,
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS.
PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.
Single copy, 30 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 25 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 20 cts. a year for each copy.
[illegible]

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 739. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1869. VOL. XXX.—NO. 13.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL,
A. ROSS.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
D. MATHEWSON, H. V. DAVIS,
M. BATCHELOR, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

THE BRIDEGROOM.

"Behold the Bridegroom cometh!" methought I heard the cry,
It first seemed low and distant, then louder and more nigh;
A still small voice, then many tongues the joyful tones repeat,
Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, go forth his train to meet.

In castle hall, at cottage hearth, is heard the herald sound,
And mountain top, and valley deep, the echoes full rebound:
Behold, the Bridegroom cometh, wake, slumberers, awake,
And in the grand procession your place appointed take.

Behold, the Bridegroom cometh! it is no fancied cry,
Heaven's trumpet sounds, in joyful shouts earth's kingdoms all reply:
Whom Moses dimly shadowed forth, whom holy men of old,
In psalms and solemn prophecies and parables foretold.

He cometh in the clouds of heaven, his waiting Bride to claim,
Wake, sleeping virgins, trim your lamps, and renovate the flame;
Wake, wake, th' angelic hosts again sound forth the joyful strain,
With shining lights, and girded loins, go meet the bridal train. —Rainbow.

For the World's Crisis.

PREACHING IN DESTITUTE PLACES.

Address to the Conferences, and to all our Preaching Brethren and Sisters.

Within the last generation, there has been a special movement with reference to the great events connected with and clustering around the second coming of Jesus Christ to this world. There are evidences in the prophetic word that such a movement would transpire in a time denominated by the prophet Daniel, and in the Revelations of John, as "the time of the end," and "the hour of his judgment." We have it symbolized in Rev. 14: 6, 7, by a mighty angel, flying "in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people"; the burden of whose message is special, not simply this gospel, as it has always been preached since the days of Christ's first advent,—a declaration that men must "fear God and give glory to him, . . . and worship him"; but all that because "the hour of his judgment is come." We find it represented again in Rev. 10, by the angel standing with one foot on the sea, and another on the land, and swearing "by him that liveth for ever and ever," "that there should be time no longer"; a plain declaration that the end is near, for he refers to the great truth, "that in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished"; a point of special interest, and often cited by those who are the antetype of these symbols, when they have proved from history that the seventh trumpet is about to "begin to sound," and "time . . . be no longer."

This movement and its history are significant. It has never been preceded by a like movement in the past; and this fact, as well as striking evidences of the fulfillment of prophecy, makes it evident that this is that represented in those symbols, and that our position is providential; and grave and weighty responsibilities rest upon us, as the people who are doing this work.

We stand where God made us stand, by accepting the position and the work which he has given us to do, and hence it is a matter of the greatest moment that this work be done well. We have not set ourselves above all Christendom as infallible; we are neither popes nor priests of men; we only occupy the position which all the professed christians of the day should and might occupy, if they would. We have no new gospel, but we have been called with all the professed people of God to accept this judgment message, and proclaim it to the world; and if some, because of unbelief or other cause, fail to accept this part of the gospel work, let us who see it, feeling that be no more than other men, "be not high-minded, but fear"; humbly, trustingly, accept the position, the true position of the church in these last days, and do our work faithfully, whatever the majority of the professed servants of God may choose to do about the matter. God will have enough servants, willing ones, to warn the world of the coming judgment; and blessed be they who give the "portion" to each "in due season"; and wo, wo to them who fail to stand in the full liberty of the gospel in these last days.

If we do our work well, there is a question of vital importance, How is it to be done? for if it be not done well, all who fail shall have their names blotted out of the book of life, and others shall take their work, bear their cross, and take their crown. One point to be considered in this work is, that we are to preach the "time-of-the-end," this "hour-of-his judgment-is-come" message in destitute places; places where the "present truth" of Christ's near coming has not been preached; and there are many of them. They may be places where some of the professed churches of Christ may be already established, but where the ministers either have not seen the light, and are only preaching, as Apollos preached, the baptism of John, a part of what is to be preached to-day, and only need to be instructed in the way of God more perfectly, to accept and preach the truth; or they may be those who reject all evidence of "the end at hand," and with pious horror warn their flocks to keep away from "this sect" "every where spoken against"; but these places must be visited; they are destitute places. They may be places where the people have only the fossilized remains of what was once a sectarian church, and where only the minister is an old backslidden, ungodly professed one, who does not have even the semblance of a moral character to exonerate himself from blame; who belongs to a class of "men of corrupt minds," who do not even preach the popular theories of the day, and whose deserted, vacant, unoccupied pulpit is as cold and cheerless as November blasts.

Such places are certainly destitute places, and there are many of them all through the country, where some are really hungry for the word of life, and where often the humble servant of Christ, full of a deep, all-pervading sense of the nearness of the judgment, can proclaim his message, and get hearing ears and hearts willing to accept the truth. There the opposition of these dumb professed watchmen can have no marked influence, and every effort made will "tell on ages" and "tell for God." The whole world must be warned of coming doom, and we must arouse ourselves to the needs and duties of this thrilling "hour of . . . judgment."

When the proclamation first went forth, Joseph Wolfe made his tour in Asia, and soon after Wm. Miller, in America; and besides, in recent times we have had such men as Luther and Wesley, and other reformers, who were fully convinced that the great judgment day is just at hand. Since the days of these just mentioned, others have been raised up who have been constantly calling the attention of the people to the truth so full of interest to the world, and many places have been visited, and much has been done to awaken an interest in the cause, but (alas! that we must put in a "but") all has not been done that could have been done, and it becomes us to-day soberly to consider what has not been done that might have been, and how the time can now be redeemed to do the work of preaching in destitute, or yet unvisited, places. What has been done has not been without effect. Already the work that has been done commands the attention of the professed church and the world. Different states and countries have been visited by the preachers of the word, and many faithful witnesses to the truth have been raised up. We have printed tracts and circulated them, but not enough. Discussions have been held upon questions important to the issues of the truth and the hour, and the pulpits and presses of the land are constrained to notice us, even if for nothing else but to sneer and reproach, and warn the people against these "heretics," "every where spoken against"; and though they do it disparagingly, with often an attempt at wit, when some phenomenon, or striking event occurs, we are glad that thus they keep the fact fresh in the minds of the people, that we still declare the whole counsel of God.

But now that we have come thus far, and some have been often disappointed in calculations on the "time question" (an interesting question, in which we must not lose our interest), and on other points sometimes made mistakes (for we are only men); after all, it becomes us to take a breath, look around us, rid ourselves of all hindering causes, and with a mighty, united effort, ring out the world's last warning, while

"The great bell of time tolls its funeral knell."

We need concert of action, and as since the first movement on this question divisions have crept in, and some have left for some other cause, we need to unite more fully than ever all true hearts and willing hands, to give this work a new, fresh impetus. It will not be done by adopting names, or by calling ourselves by any names of "ists" or "ites," as "Advent Christian," or any other name; for the true position of the church in these last days is no more an "ism" than it was in the apostles' days; and distracting names are a hindrance. The tendency in this direction in past times has been to distraction. It has caused side issues which have hindered that vigorous, gigantic effort, which might have been made beyond what has been; and yet, if all will unite to-day, we have truths which will yet move the world. We have been in the right place providentially; we have made some mistakes; let us avoid them in the future.

We have had too much tendency towards the cities and larger places. Appointments have been in toward these places, rather than out from them. There should be more of the centrifugal tendency about the work. Large places are excellent centres from which to roll out men and supplies for the work; but they should not exhaust the resources, so as to have none left for "the regions beyond." To begin with, a preacher should be as willing to go into the distant regions as anywhere, and toil hard to break up new ground, as to enter into the labors of others; and he should be willing to trust in the Lord and accept whatever he may get, not having any human assurance or knowledge of any source from which he can get a cent. Such a conversation as the following may be imagined sometimes to be held, which will illustrate the fact that there is not always this willingness. Bro. C. we will suppose lives in some back place. He meets Bro. Blank, a preacher, and says: "Bro. Blank, come up and preach to us."

Bro. Blank. "Are there many of you there?"

Bro. C. "Only a few, and we rarely ever have preaching. Wish you would come."

Bro. B. "The trouble is, your back places do not pay enough so we can afford to come. We cannot support our families with what you allow us."

Bro. C. "But we will do the best we can. We are poor, I know, and few in number; but we need preaching as much as anybody. Good might be done in our place, if some one would only come and preach the word; but we can scarcely ever get a preacher. They all talk as you do, or they are full of engagements in large places."

Now this is not an overdrawn picture. It is true to the life; frequently truer than we wish it were. God's ministers have never been burdened with a heavy salary. They have never lived in palaces and lounged in upholstered tete-a-tetes, and walked over Brussels' carpets, to a very great extent; and they never will, as long as they preach unpopular truth, and the world is so selfish and unappreciative. But suppose that is so; the work of preaching the gospel must be done, if clothing is insufficient, and food is deficient, and it is cold weather, and there are hardships in the way, and like Paul the minister goes afoot, whether he like Paul is minded to or not, or whether he is obliged to get along by being carried by some brother, or some other way, and can scarcely see his way clear, or see at all; the devoted, self-sacrificing man is in duty bound to go, even where there is the most devil and the least money, even although he might get more, and find more friends and less persecution elsewhere. His talents and abilities may be of a high order, and if so, all the better; the fact that these make him acceptable in any place, should not make him and the church forget that he will be just as useful, acceptable, and necessary in back places.

John the Baptist preached in the wilderness of Judea, and Jesus preached on the mountains, and their talents were of as high an order as any of the present day. Men may go, and must go, into all sorts of places, and find all sorts of receptions; but they must go and preach, and then work with their hands and toil making shoes, or tents, or hay, or building houses, or cultivating lands, to get means to travel, or to support the family at home; and, in short, he must do everything honestly, if by any means he may preach this last-day message, and deliver his soul from burden, and others from death; for his is a judgment-message.

Poor as the minister is, and as hard as these trials may be; as hard-pressed by want of money to pay debts which daily trouble him; as much as his family may be distressed, he must be thus ready to go over the rough, rugged road of poverty and want, and shut his eyes to liberal offers of stipulated salaries and comfortable livings. If duty calls, he must go cheerfully to the destitute places, and get into school-houses, old, unoccupied meeting-houses, and private houses; or, if it be warm enough, into barns or the open air, and preach to all who will come and hear; and take for his remuneration from men small scrips, or kicks, curses, hard names, and defamations; or find offers of comfortable firesides and pilgrims' nests; a share of what the good brother or sister, though poor, may have; or, perchance, the gift of the more wealthy, having thus the hundred fold, with persecution, and God's promissory note of "everlasting life" in "the world to come."

It is true that all the churches have responsibility about these matters, whether the men may preach there or not, provided they are faithful men, who are able to teach others also. The man must go and preach, whether his wants are supplied or not, for the "wo" is upon him, and he may not feel like dolorously whining about his wants and his distresses, or tell of them, unless asked, or unless his appearance bespeaks want; but it is the duty of christians to look to it, and look to themselves, to see that such men as thus go out to preach in the destitute places, or any place, are not left to suffer want or be reproached by the world or the popular church on account of debts they cannot pay, or wants they cannot for lack of means supply.

If one would know his wants, to aid in supplying them, let him be gently questioned a little about the matter, that an interest and sympathy and friendly aid may be felt and afforded, and the work, not the man, who but for the work could support himself, helped on. Then, there might be aid afforded even to sharing with the angel-messenger of the judgment-hour message, the highway-and-hedge-compelling message. At all events, let not the preacher be discouraged, or disheartened, or cease to work, and also to live in the enjoyment of God's favor; for above all others such as have this message of the near coming of Christ can not live in God's favor, and in the enjoyment of the work, unless they cry aloud and spare not, and lift up their voice like a trumpet. There are openings everywhere; vacant meeting-houses stand ready for the appointment; school houses and private houses are accessible everywhere. In many places people are starving for want of the gospel, even in New England. Everywhere they say, "Come and preach to us"; and those who go will find some fruit of their labors.

Go, then, preaching brother or sister, and find these places. Go back a few miles and find some unoccupied church, or school-house, or other place, and preach the word. Give the people the good, wholesome truth; not the strongest meat first, lest they be choked with the word; neither shunning to declare the whole counsel of God. Preach with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, and good will be done, sinners converted to the truth, and honest, warm, christian hearts will become interested in it, and invitations will come to you to visit other places, so frequently and so urgently, that you will cry out, "Who is sufficient for these things? O that I could multiply myself, and go everywhere I am desired to go." Some are doing this and being blest; but let others take the same course and delay not, "For, behold, the Judge standeth at the door." Do not mind the fact that you are wanted in larger places, and at old appointments, so long as there are enough men for those places without you. Do not let business, or ease, or other considerations, hinder you from taking that course which God providentially marks out for you. Do not think that you are young in the work, and new at the business, and inexperienced; the way to get experience is to acquire it by doing the work.

Go somewhere immediately; do something right away. Do not wait for something to turn up; for some missionary society to pledge you a support, before you can go. Those who have means, and these societies, will help you all they can. If they look to the Lord for direction, and you look to him for aid, you can go and preach all the words of this life.

There is an obstacle we must not forget to mention in this connection, and it is a serious thing in the way of extending our work more generally. It is the tendency among some to split and divide, and so hold two meetings in one place, and yet claim to be in the order of providence,—preachers of the coming of Christ. A man who will do this will do just wrong. If he wants to preach, and ought to, let him go into some new place, and work there. Two or three small swarms of bees are not as good as one large, strong one. We should act on that principle, and then we shall find less cause of complaint, and less reason to get up a separate interest than there is now.

There should be a general understanding among preachers and conferences, to prosecute this work. "All are not Israel that are of Israel"; and while we are anxious to have the work done, more damage and injury can be done by one irresponsible person in any place than ten men can readily repair. A concert of action, and mutual recognition, aid, and sympathy, are necessary among the true laborers and yoke-fellows; but none should be extended to those who divide and distract, who have favorite, pet theories to present which are likely to be as far from the Bible as the poles are separated; they deserve none, there is none for them; but if they go, they should do it unrecognized and unassisted, either by publishing their appointments, or by recognizing them as ministers. Let us use all the means in our power, as conferences, to ascertain what places there are, and what their wants may be, and, as preaching brethren, endeavor even at a sacrifice to go where we are most needed; not always where it would be our individual preference to go, but where we feel "bound in the Spirit" to go, standing where we can say, "Speak, Lord; for thy servant heareth"; and, "Here am I, send me." Then we shall look like men all mustering round; we shall look like men of war; and places will be visited and work done that might have been visited and done long ago, but may now, if we take hold of the work with a true missionary spirit, and stand ready to work. Let all who can aid in the work, who cannot go themselves. Inquire of the Lord what is duty, and do it in his fear. If they do not preach, they can pray for those who do, and assist with substantial "God-bless-yous"; and when Jesus comes, we shall hear the "well done"; we shall have proved that we were really the people who are meant by the flying angel having the everlasting gospel.

It is a golden opportunity. Now to the work. Hundreds are in want of us. Let us seek them out, do all we can to preach to every kindred, and nation, and tongue, and people, and soon we shall finish our work, and Jesus will come.

"Oh, let us be ready to hail the glad day."

L. C. McKinstry.

SCENE IN PALESTINE.

I was traveling over Anti-Lebanon. It was a bright summer day and near noon. Weary and way-worn, I rode down from a bare mountain ridge into the wild and beautiful valley of Hebron, and dismounted beside a little fountain, under the "shadow of a great rock." A group of some fifteen or twenty shepherds were there, too, resting during the heat of the day, and their flocks, amounting to several thousand sheep and goats, filled nearly the whole bottom of the valley. At first I was greatly annoyed at the too near approach of both men and animals; but, when the time came to lead the flocks away to the pastures again, I watched their motions with intense interest.

The shepherds rose, went into the middle of the dense mass of animals, and then separating, walked away slowly in different directions. As they went each kept uttering a peculiar cry or call. The sheep heard, and began to separate one from the other. I observed the whole mass was agitated, as if the sheep and goats had been driven hither and thither by some unseen power. Gradually they form a series of dense, moving columns, following closely in the footsteps of the shepherds, and drawn after them with their voices. I also observed that while each shepherd wound his way through the united flocks, some of the animals fled at his approach, frightened by his voice, others hastened toward him "for they knew his voice." In a short time they were led off, and the fountain was completely deserted, not a sheep or goat ventured to lag behind. Then the calls of the shepherds were heard echoing from rock to cliff, now loud and clear, now dying away in the distance; while the flocks were seen obedient to the calls, following in long, distinct streams the guides whom alone they knew and trusted.

As I sat there gazing with wonder and pleasure on that strange and instructive scene, another beautiful Scripture illustration was realised before my eyes. One shepherd led his flock, by a zig-zag path up the almost perpendicular banks of the glen. Behind it two young lambs trotted along at the feet of their mother. At first they frisked about, and jumped lightly from stone to stone; but soon they began to fall behind. The poor little things cried piteously when the path became steeper, and the rocks higher, and the flocks more and more distant. The mother cried too, running back and forth, now lingering behind, now hastening on before, as if to wile them upwards.

It was in vain. The ascent was too much for their feeble limbs. They stopped, trembling on the shelving cliff, and cried, the mother stopped and cried by their side. I thought they would certainly be lost; and I saw the great eagles that soared in circles round the cliff far overhead, sweeping lower and lower as if about to pounce upon their prey. But no! The plaintive cries of distress had already reached the ears of the good shepherd. Mounting a rock, he looked down and saw the helpless little ones. A minute and he was standing by them, then taking them up in his arms, he put them one on each side in his bosom, in the ample folds of his coat, which was bound round the waist with a girdle. The lambs made no attempt to run away from him. They seemed to know what he was going to do when he lifted them in his arms; and the little creatures lay there with their heads out, as contentedly as an infant in its mother's bosom, while the shepherd scaled the dizzy heights again, and took his place at the head of the flock. It may be easily imagined with what deep interest I have ever since read the beautiful words of Isaiah: "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd, he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom."—Family Treasure.

HE LEADS US ON.

He leads us on,
By paths we did not know;
Upward he leads us though our steps be slow,
Though often we faint and falter by the way,
Though storms and darkness oft obscure the day,
Yet when the clouds are gone,
We know He leads us on.

He leads us on
Through all the unquiet years;
Past all our dreamland hopes and doubts and fears
He guides our steps. Through all the tangled maze
We know his will is done;
And still he leads us on.

And He, at last,
After the weary strife,
After the restless fever we call life—
After the dreariness, the aching pain—
The wayward struggles which have proved in vain—
After our toils are past—
Will give us rest at last.

EVILS ABOUNDING.

One of the most marked and offensive emanations from the "form of godliness," now so prevalent, is the tendency to introduce novelties in religion. Everything is done to entertain, amuse, or create a sensation; all weariness of the flesh and spirit must be carefully guarded against in public worship; the place of prayer and praise must be made as attractive as the place of amusement, or this formidable rival will probably engulf many who have renounced the world and its vanities.

The expedients to secure this end are as diverse as the temperaments of the individuals who originate them. Some ministers, whose political proclivities cannot be restrained even by the sanctity of their office,—which certainly does not authorize an interference with worldly politics, in the exercise of its sacred functions at least,—entertain their deeply interested auditors with eloquent political harangues,—too often mere stump-speeches,—the only effect of which is to make men more strongly partisan in political feeling than before.

Others again, appreciating the sentimental and poetic taste of their hearers, discourse of beautiful brooks, trees, flowers, birds, etc. They appeal to their sympathies, and melt their souls with touching delineations of earthly affection, or harrow their feelings with thrilling pictures of separation from the loved ones of their homes or social circles.

Others aspire to something greater, and instruct their audiences in the different sciences; and a yet larger number deal in vague abstractions, and the whole gospel of Christ is never heard from them. If Christ and him crucified be faithfully preached, there will be no danger from special forms of error; and ministers will not be under the necessity of indulging in bitter denunciations against evils of which the greater portion of their congregation knows nothing. Thus is Christ but little preached, and this may surely be regarded as a novelty characteristic of these days.

This same desire to have things conducted in as entertaining and amusing a manner as possible, also manifests itself in the want of reverence—we had almost said flippancy—in the demeanor of ministers, and laity, too, at meetings convened especially for the transaction of church business. The sober-minded and the devout have been frequently shocked at such indecorous proceedings, but as these persons almost always make more pretensions to piety and spiritual-mindedness than those who venture to disapprove of their manner of conducting public worship and meetings, they have submitted to the imputation of formalism and generally remained silent. The exhibitions of clerical buffoonery, too, with which the country is sometimes entertained, cannot fail to have a most injurious effect, whilst the thoughtful and the reverent cannot but mourn at the desecration of so high an office. Very recently we saw this conduct rebuked, as it deserved to be, in a highly respectable religious journal, and we felt as if we would like to see the article extensively circulated.

Another novelty is the fairs, festivals, concerts, and, in some extreme instances, masquerades, that are held for religious purposes. A close observer cannot fail to see the demoralizing tendency, and yet such is the general approbation, that the few who venture to offer a protest are stigmatized as fanatics and hypocritical pretenders to superfluous degrees of piety. Many of the adjuncts of these so-called religious charities are of so objectionable a nature, and it seems they cannot be conducted without these abuses, that we know not how it is possible for a christian to justify them.

Even the music of the churches excites the sadness, pity, and almost disgust of those who are not carried away by the stream of worldliness and fashion. They feel that such music has "no unison with our Creator's praise;" and often the question arises whether it would not be more profitable to absent themselves entirely from churches where abuses prevail in every department of the service.

In the Sunday-schools the influence of these novelties is still more extensively seen. The hymnology, exhibitions, speeches, prizes, picnics, are all of a piece. The children are certainly amused and entertained; the humorous speeches excite their risibilities, and they enjoy their Sunday-schools. Far be it from us to render religion unattractive or repulsive to young or old. We have heard little ones of three years of age singing "While thee I seek, protecting power," and "Jesus, lover of my soul," and seeming to enjoy it too. We have heard others, a little older, spontaneously break forth in their play with "Glory be to God an high;" and their little hearts seemed full of love to God in their pure happiness and glee. The words were not unintelligible to them, nor sung because they constantly heard them; but they had been taught to understand the object of praise and adoration, and their full hearts gave utterance to what they felt in their joy. We do not suppose all Sunday-schools are mis-conducted, but, such is the general rule, that it has become problematical whether they are not doing more harm than good. We intended speaking of the pernicious character of many of the books in the libraries, and we know whereof we affirm, but we leave that at present.

Such, it seems to us, is the church of the present day. In her own estimation, "rich, increased with goods, and having need of nothing;" and yet so "wretched, miserable, poor, blind, and naked," that we greatly fear God will, ere long, "spue her out of his mouth." She is beautiful to look upon with her gorgeous temples, her stupendous benevolent enterprises, and her many zealous votaries. So it was in the days of Constantine, and we know the ages of deathlike darkness that succeeded this seemingly prosperous era. She is asleep, and the enemy has indeed sown tares. No wonder iniquity and infidelity of every kind stalk abroad in the land. No wonder spiritualism blasphemously announces in one of its papers the anticipated advent of a wonderful woman—"the Deific Mother," as they wickedly style her—who is to rule over the earth, and that at the name of woman "every knee is to bow and every tongue confess;" that God has hitherto only revealed the masculine side of his character, and that now the feminine is to be developed. No wonder, under the circumstances, that such blasphemy should pass unnoticed and unrebuked. It is saddening to dwell upon these things; and much more might be said, but we must forbear. Like Jeremiah, we must sometimes "cry aloud and spare not," although it is an exceedingly painful and ungracious task.

Seeing, then, that these things are so, "what manner of persons ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness." What influence does the "blessed hope" we entertain exert upon our lives and conduct? Are we shining as lights in a dark place? Though the light is here, and "the darkness comprehendeth it not," shall we, who are "the children of the day," from an amiable complaisance towards our brethren, who construe our hopes and professions into a repulsive display of superior knowledge and piety, be drawn into this vortex of worldliness and darkness? Whilst this dispensation lasts, the wheat and tares must grow together; but shall not our conduct say how "holily, and justly, and unblamably" we demean ourselves in these perilous times?

If we really are convinced of the truth of our doctrines, are we not more censurable than our incredulous brethren if we profess to have the light and yet walk not by it? Are we diligently "occupying" at our posts, accomplishing that most difficult injunction, "using the world as not abusing it;" realizing that any moment we may have to give an account of our stewardship, and undismayed by the sneers, obloquy, and persecutions of our adversaries?—Prophetic Times.

For the World's Crisis.

IS IT FOR HIS SAKE?

"Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely for my sake."—Matt. 5: 11.

This passage of Scripture has been running through my mind for a long time, and I have been thinking if all the evil that has been said against me, had been for the sake of Jesus, I should have been better able to have borne it; for Jesus has promised to be a present help in every time of need; and I have ever found him so when I have suffered wrong for his sake. But many wrongs I receive are caused by my own misdoing, and then I feel that I have no one to look to for help and strength, no one to help me bear the burdens of life which so often press me down. It is then my heart grows weary of the roughness of the way, and the road seems dreary as I pass along, and I falter, look to my own unworthiness, listen to the voice of Satan, get out of the way, cause my name to be evil spoken of, and bring death and darkness to my soul. But when I have followed Jesus closely, lived near him, watched and prayed all the time, I have found it a blessed way; and I hear that voice to-day, and it gently says, Follow thou me, close to me, and I will be all that thou needest; yea, more than all the world; and I will never cause thy name to be evil spoken of.

Brethren and sisters, pray for me, that I may be saved in the kingdom when Jesus comes. There will be no evil, no dangers there. Satan cannot watch to destroy there; our foes cannot confound us; but there will be love, joy, and peace. I will try with all my heart to be there. Rebecca.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

87. The Holy Ghost bestowed at Pentecost.—"But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you. . . . Ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence."—Acts 1: 8, 5. "And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all of one accord in one place. . . And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost."—Acts 1: 4.

The Holy Ghost bestowed BEFORE Pentecost.—"And when he had said this he breathed on them, and said unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost.—John 20: 22.

The words, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost," contain a promise that it shall be bestowed, but it does not specify any time when it shall be given. And, although the disciples had the promise of the Holy Ghost, they did not expect it previous to the ascension of the Messiah, for Jesus distinctly tells them that "If I go not away, the Comforter [or Holy Ghost] will not come."

88. The disciples were commanded immediately after the resurrection to go into Galilee.—"Then said Jesus unto them, Be not afraid; go tell my brethren that they go into Galilee, and there shall they see me."—Matt. 18: 10.

The disciples were commanded immediately after the resurrection to tarry at Jerusalem.—"But tarry ye in Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high."—Luke 24: 49.

The command "Tarry ye in Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high," was not given immediately after the resurrection, as the skeptic distinctly states, but after Jesus had tarried with his disciples for forty days; it was the very last charge he gave them before his ascension! Is it ignorance, worse than that which characterized the dark ages, or willful falsehood, which we are thus called upon to expose?

89. Jesus first appeared to the eleven disciples in a room at Jerusalem.—"And they rose up the same hour and returned to Jerusalem, and found the eleven gathered together. . . . And as they spake, Jesus himself stood in the midst of them. . . . But they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit."—Luke 24: 33, 36, 37. "The same day, at evening, being the first day of the week, when the doors were shut, where the disciples were assembled . . . came Jesus and stood in the midst."—John 20: 19.

Jesus first appeared to the eleven on a mountain in Galilee.—Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, unto a mountain where Jesus had appointed. And when they saw him they worshiped him, but some doubted."—Matt. 28: 16, 18.

There is surely no discrepancy here. It is evident from the reading of the word, that the meeting in Jerusalem was previous to the one in Galilee. On the same night after his resurrection, his disciples were voluntarily gathered together in Jerusalem (previous to going into Galilee) and the Lord appeared unto them. Luke 24, is a very comprehensive chapter—it embraces a period of forty days, or the whole time from the resurrection to the ascension of our Lord, and in consequence of its brevity, many things are necessarily omitted, and among them we find the meeting of Jesus with his disciples on the mount in Galilee, according to previous appointment. This elipsis is filled by Matthew, but because one evangelist records what another omits, is certainly no proof that the Bible contradicts itself. And, although it is evident from the connection that the meeting in Jerusalem was the first one, after his resurrection, it is well to observe that neither of them is called the first meeting in the text.

"Bible Triumphant," by Mrs. H. V. Reed.

DON'T LAUGH.

Never laugh at religion. Never make a jest of sacred things. Never mock those who are serious and in earnest about their souls. The time may come when you will count those happy whom you laughed at,—a time when your laughter will be turned into sorrow, and your mockery into heaviness. Whatever you please to laugh at, don't laugh at religion.

Contempt of holy things is the high road to infidelity. Once let a man begin to make a jest and joke of any part of christianity, and I am never surprised to hear that he has turned out a downright unbeliever.

Have you really made up your mind to this? Have you fairly looked into the gulf which is before you, if you persist in despising religion? Call to mind the words of David; "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." Ps. 11: 1. The fool, and none but the fool! He has said it, but he has never proved it! Remember, if ever there was a book which has been proved true from beginning to end, by every kind of evidence, that book is the Bible. It has defied the attacks of all enemies and fault-finders. "The word of the Lord is indeed tried." Ps. 18: 30. It has been tried in every way, and the more evidently has it been shown to be the very handwork of God himself.

Matthew Henry tells a story of a great statesman in Queen Elizabeth's time, who retired from public life in his latter days and gave himself up to serious thoughts. His former gay companions came to visit him, and told him he was becoming melancholy. "No," he replied, "I am serious; for all are serious round about me. God is serious in observing us, Christ is serious in interceding for us, the Spirit is serious in striving with us, the truths of God are serious, our spiritual enemies are serious in their endeavors to ruin us, and why then should not you and I be serious too?" Don't laugh at religion.—Rev. J. C. Ryle.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Boston, Wednesday, Dec. 15, 1869.

Take Notice!

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

Please Remember!

All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

Money Orders.

Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis, we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber has his or her name, with the date of the month and year to which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or on the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

PLEASE REMEMBER

That all letters, telegrams, or notices, ordering books, tracts, or papers, or for insertion in the Crisis, or for any other business connected with this office, should be addressed to the Editor, or to the Business Agent, and not to the clerks; as their letters, being regarded as private and not for the office, are not opened in their absence. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

M. G. S.—They are received. Sent yours Dec. 14th.

H. F. CARPENTER'S P. O. address is now North Springfield, Vt., instead of Danielsonville, Ct.

BRO. O. BENDIXON'S P. O. address is No. 2 Bowling Green, New York.

OUR DAY-BOOK.

Saturday Dec. 4th, at 8.30 we departed from Boston en route for Vineland, N. J., about forty miles from Philadelphta. On our arrival in New York, we found dear Bro. H. A. King waiting at the depot to give his hearty welcome, and to conduct us to the noted Hygienic Institute, at 15 Laight St., under the care of Drs. Wood, Holbrook & Co. This institution was formerly conducted by Dr. Trall; afterwards by Drs. Miller & Wood. During the present year Dr. Miller has been making a tour through Europe, and has just returned, laden with valuable information of a hygienic nature. We had a very pleasant interview with him. He is deeply absorbed in devising means for relieving the ills of human nature. He took us to visit Dr. Geo. H. Taylor's noted Movement Cure, 69 West 38th street, New York. This is considered, without doubt, the best institution of the kind in the world. He was the first who adopted the system in America, and is having remarkable success. He does not advertise, but has all he can do without. He has a variety of machinery, propelled by steam power, admirably adapted to benefit the physical system. We were delighted with what we saw and heard. His patients are mostly those who have tried nearly all other remedies, and been given up as hopeless cases; but with Dr. Taylor's skillful treatment, they receive wonderful benefits. His patients soon become very cheerful and brilliant with hopes of a cure of their chronic maladies. It seemed a pity that every invalid whose condition required it, could not have the benefit of Dr. Taylor's treatment.

We also called on Dr. Fancher, who is said to have excellent success in treating rheumatic complaints with electrical baths. At Dr. Wood, Holbrook and Co., 25 Laight St., we found not only the electrical, but the Turkish and water baths, with a very interesting, intelligent class of patients and boarders, showing the establishment to be in a very prosperous condition, under its skillful managers. If people knew the value of such hygienic institutions they would receive extensive patronage.

We had interesting meetings at 138 West 24th Street, and at 415 Grand Street. The prospect looked very promising at the latter place. Bro. H. A. King has recently moved from Nevada, O., to 37 Park Row, New York, where he is publishing "The Bee-Keeper's Journal and National Agriculturalist," a valuable monthly, tastefully arranged, for $1 a year. His heart is in the work of the Lord, and he is rendering efficient aid to the meetings in Grand St., and is also anxious to have something special accomplished in that great city during the winter. We trust he will not labor in vain. He is a true Bro. in the Lord, and is worthy of the confidence of all the friends of Jesus.

We called on Bro. J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard St., and found him confined to his home, unable to preach. He is rejoicing in hope of eternal life, to be received at the coming of Christ. He is anxious to receive letters from his friends in the Lord. They afford him much comfort, and we hope many will find time to write him, and enclose something to assist him in providing for himself and family. He needs assistance. Do not forget the worthy poor who are friends of Christ.

DISCUSSION IN VINELAND.

We are now (Dec. 8th) engaged in a discussion at Vineland, N. J., with Mr. J. G. Fish, a noted Spiritualist, from Hammonton, N. J. He was formerly a Baptist minister, but is now a radical Spiritualist. Vineland is a new, but thriving place, containing some ten thousand inhabitants. It was first settled eight years since. It is growing rapidly, and is a pleasant place. It is a good fruit country, located on the West Jersey R. R., about forty miles south east of Philadelphia. There are a few here who love the coming of Christ, but Spiritualism has taken a strong hold, and appears to be the leading system of belief.

Mr. Fish claimed that all revelations to man came from departed human spirits; thus denying the divine inspiration of the Bible. He denies the existence of a personal God, and accepts Pantheism as truth. The demons are leading their votaries back to ancient Buddhism, which evidently sprang from the same source as modern Spiritualism. Mr. Fish said, "I am a lost man if my opponent's position is correct." He asserted that the God of Moses was only a human spirit. Some of the talk of Mr. Fish was highly blasphemous. This is the fruit of becoming a Spiritualist. He said he did not deny Jesus, as a Savior, but "believed in lots of Jesuses, and wished there were more." Our discussion is to continue three more evenings. Our audience is very intelligent and attentive. The friends of truth are rejoicing over the present aspect of the discussion.

The Minutes of the National Conference did not reach us in season for this issue, which we much regret. They will be given to our readers next week.

APPROACHING EVENTS.

There is a general impression that great events are at hand. To-day (Dec. 8th) the Ecumenical Council is to open at Rome. We shall watch with special interest its daily progress, and purpose to keep our readers well posted in relation to the doings of the council. We think we have now come to a crisis in the history of the Papal power.

A Paris correspondent of the New York Herald writes:—

"Nothing can be sadder, darker than the prospective. Parisians are weary with this chronic fever of anxiety, this expecting revolution attitude, which has destroyed their trade, undermined confidence, and paralyzed the entire business of the nation. At this season, when Paris ought to be overworked with orders for the new year, there is nothing but stagnation. Opinion throughout the provinces is very dissatisfied with Paris, with everybody. There is nothing settled anywhere—every one seems to feel we are on the eve of some great events. Certainly this existence on a volcano cannot be indefinite."

We can see no room to doubt that the second coming of Christ is near at hand. Is the reader ready for the event? None but the pure in heart have the promise of a seat at the marriage supper of the Lamb. Let us make sure work for the kingdom. What we do must be done quickly. This is the time for special watchfulness.

THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL.

The Ecumenical Council, which commences its session to-day (Dec. 8th), is an event of great interest to the civilized world; one which all nations will watch with close attention. The following statement from the New York Herald of to-day will pay for a careful reading:—

"To-day, the eighth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundren and sixty-nine, will assemble in Rome an Ecumenical Council—or general hierarchical represention—of the Catholic Church. The prelates come together in obedience to the Pontifical summons of his Holiness Pope Pius the Ninth. They will meet in the Church of the Basilica of St. Peter, in the Vatican, after having journeyed from their different sees in Europe and Asia, America and Africa, to the common centre of Catholic Christianity and the presence of the Chief Bishop or visible earthly head of their particular form of worship and communion; the pastor of the many millions of peoples who acknowledge his commission and authority to preach and teach, to confirm in the faith and to discipline in morals and the every day routine duty of man towards his fellow man, and the community at large.

This Council is called the First Council of the Vatican and will pass into history as the twenty-first Ecumenical Council of the church, counting from the first held at Nice in the 325 to the last council of Trent, the twentieth which met in the year 1545, and terminated its sitting in the year 1563, three hundred and six years since. This last named council was convoked by Pope Paul the Third and continued under Julius the Third and Pius the Fourth; the present by John Maria Mastai Ferretti, the two hundred and fifty-eighth pontiff from Saint Peter—accepting the Catholic version of Peter's position after the death of our Lord and Savior—who was vested with the triple tiara, the Keys and the Sword in the year 1846.

The present assemblage will be more largely attended, and consequently more universally Catholic, than any of those which have preceded it. On the latest previous occasion America was not represented in the Council, as the Papal hierarchy had then been scarcely established in the newly discovered soil. To-day America sends a full delegation to Rome—ten archbishops and over seventy bishops, answering from North America alone, exclusive of the Episcopacy of Mexico."

"THE POPE AND EPISCOPATE.

A careful analysis and classification of the ruling anointed executive and ministerial constituent elements of the Catholic Church of the present day sets forth the following results as to its governing body and extent:

It presents as head the Most Holy Father, Pope Pius IX., John Mari Mastai Ferretti, born at Sinigaglia the 13th of May, 1792; reserved in petto the 23d of Dec., 1839; published Cardinal Priest, by the title of SS. Peter and Marcellinus, the 14th of Dec., 1840; elected Pope the 16th of June, 1846; crowned the 21st of same month and year.

CARDINALS.—There were in Nov., 1869, fifty-seven Cardinals, of whom six were cardinal bishops, forty-three cardinal priests, and eight cardinal deacons. Thirty-nine were Italians by birth, seven French, four Spanish, four Germans, one Croatian, one Portuguese, and one Irish.

PATRIARCHS, ARCHBISHOPS, AND BISHOPS.—[illegible] Churches that are in communion with Rome—namely, those of the Armenian Catholics, the Maronites, the Greek Catholics, the Syrians, the Bulgarian Greeks and the Chaldeans."

"WORK OF THE FORMER COUNCILS.

The twenty Ecumenical Councils which have preceded this, the first Council of the Vatican, may be recapitulated in the following order of enumeration as to the period of their assemblage and results:—

The Council of Nice (325) against the Arians; 2, of Constantinople (381) against the Macedonians; 3, Ephesus (431) against Nestorius and the Pelagians; 4, Chalcedon (451) against Eutychus; 5, second Constantinople (553) against the three chapters; 6, third of the same city (680) against the Monothelists; 7, second of Nice (687) against the Iconoclasts; 8, fourth of Constantinople (869) against Photius; 9, first Council of the Lateran (1123) to regulate various matters of discipline; 10, second of the same (1139) against Arnaud de Brescia; 11, third of same (1179) on discipline; 12, fourth of same (1215) against the Albigenses; 13, Lyons (1245) against the Emperor Frederick II., the author of the famous work 'De Tribus Impostoribus' (Moses, Jesus, Mahomet); 14, second of the same city (1274) for union with the Greeks; 15, of Vienna, in Dauphine (1311) against the Templars; 16, of Pisa (1409) against the great schism of the west; 17, of Constance (1414) against the Hussites and against three antipopes; 18, of Florence (1429) for a second union with the Greeks; 19, of Bale (1431) which, after twelve years of dissension, terminated in a schism; 20, of Trent (1545, 1563) which had to undergo still more vicissitudes than its predecessor."

WHY THEY MEET.

In the Pope's summons of this great council, he gives the following as the reasons why he deems it necessary to have this gathering at the Vatican:—

"Now, it is well known and manifest to all by how fearful a tempest the Church is at this time shaken, and what and how great are the evils with which civil society itself is afflicted. By the bitter enemies of God and men, the Catholic Church, and her saving doctrine and venerable power, and the supreme authority of this Holy See, have been assailed and trodden under foot; all sacred things have been despised; ecclesiastical possessions have been plundered; bishops and most excellent men devoted to the divine ministry, and men remarkable for their Catholic spirit, have been in every way harassed; religious communities have been destroyed; impious books of every kind, pestilential journals, and most pernicious sects of many forms have been on every side spread abroad; and the education of unhappy youth has been almost everywhere taken away from the clergy, and, what is worse, in no few places committed to the teachers of iniquity and error. Hence, to our own extreme grief, and that of all good men, and with a loss of souls which can never be enough deplored, impiety has been so propagated, together with corruption of morals, unbridled license and the contagion of all kinds of depraved opinions, of all vices, and crimes, and violation of divine and human laws, that not only our most holy religion, but human society itself, is miserably disturbed and afflicted.

Amid so great a mass, therefore, of calamities wherewith our heart is overwhelmed, the supreme pastoral ministry divinely entrusted to us requires that we more and more put forth our strength to repair the ruins of the Church, to procure the salvation of the whole flock of our Lord, to repress the deadly attacks and endeavors of those who labor to overthrow from the foundation both civil society and, if it were ever possible, the Church herself. . . .

But treading in the footsteps of our illustrious predecessors, we have therefore thought it opportune to collect into a General Council (as we have long wished) all our venerable brethren, the bishops of the whole Catholic world, who have been called to a share of our solicitude. These venerable brethren, indeed inflamed as they are with singular love towards the Catholic Church, distinguished for eminent piety and observance towards us and this Apostolic See, anxious for the salvation of souls, excelling in wisdom, knowledge and learning, and, together with ourselves, grievously afflicted at the most sad condition both of sacred and civil affairs, have nothing nearer at heart than to communicate to us and to combine their counsels, and apply salutary remedies to so many calamities. For in this Ecumenical Council all those things are to be most accurately weighed and determined which, particularly in these painful times, especially regard the greater glory of God, the integrity of the faith, beauty of divine worship, the eternal salvation of men, the discipline as well as the salutary and solid instruction of the clergy, secular and regular, the observance of ecclesiastical laws, the reformation of morals, the christian education of youth and the common peace and concord of all. Every effort also must be made that, by God's help, all evils may be removed from the church and from civil society; that unhappy wanderers may be brought back into the straight path of truth, justice and salvation; that vices and errors being taken away, our august religion and its salutary doctrine may receive fresh life over all the earth and increase daily in extent and power; and that this piety, honor, probity, justice, charity and all christian virtues may abound and flourish to the great benefit of human society."

After reading the foregoing it will be apparent that the Pope is aware that his kingdom is in a critical condition. He says, "The church is at this time shaken" by a "fearful tempest;" "and her saving doctrine and venerable power, and the supreme authority of this Holy See, have been assailed and trodden under foot; all sacred things have been despised; ecclesiastical possessions have been plundered, bishops . . . have been in every way harassed; religious communities have been destroyed, . . . to our own extreme grief." Is not this just what Daniel and John have said should happen to this power a short time before the second coming of Christ? The Pope says: "Amid so great a mass . . . of calamities wherewith our heart is overwhlemed," he is required to put forth his "strength to repair the ruins of the church." He says: "Every effort also must be made" to give "fresh life over all the earth" to the "august religion" of the Roman church. He says he is "grievously afflicted at the most sad condition both of sacred and civil affairs."

We can truly say all these things are bright omens to the humble disciples of Jesus, who are longing for his return. The Catholic power must be near its final death struggle.

We would say to our readers, that "THE BEREAN'S CASKET" may be had in cloth for $2.00. In leather, $2.50.

CONSECRATION.—God has a great work for the christian. It cannot be done in a moment, nor by proxy, nor by worldly wisdom. God will have good men consecrated. He does not lavish his grace upon men to suit their tastes and speculative notions. He bestows his gifts "for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ, till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

$3000 TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, September 2nd, at the National Campmeeting, it was

Resolved, That we raise THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the Tract Fund the ensuing year.

It is proposed to raise this amount during the year for the publication and free distribution of tracts. The value of these little preachers in the work of enlightening and saving men from darkness and death can hardly be overestimated; and the generous and liberal stewards of the Lord's money are earnestly invited to contribute according to their ability in aid of the good work. Send on your dimes and dollars, brethren, with a liberal hand, and receive, by and by, the reward of the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec. Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$120.54
From "A Friend"	5.00
Maria T. Jones	1.00

AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All donations and payments of pledges for this Society, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$295.90
Loring Morse	5.00
Geo. W. Place	25.00

ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
AMERICAN ADVENT MISSIONARY SOCIETY,
For the Year ending Sept. 2, 1869.

The fourth Annual Meeting of the American Advent Mission Society was held at Springfield, Mass. (Chapin's Grove), Sept. 2nd, 1869, the President, Joshua V. Himes, in the chair.

Meeting opened with prayer by Elder John Couch.

This meeting had the following membership, though not all present:—

Ministers—S. M. Tatro, John Couch, G. A. Streeter, E. McCullock, L. C. McKinstry, O. D. Woodruff, H. H. Dickenson, F. Burr, W. L. Himes, H. F. Carpenter, Geo. L. Teeple, C. Goodrich, I. B. Potter, Jas. Hemenway, J. H. Hall, J. S. White, E. Cotton, C. H. Williams, Henry Pratt, J. R. Boynton, J. L. Bassett, S. G. Mathewson, Miles Grant, G. L. White, E. S. Moulton, C. H. Sweet, Wm. J. Ripley, W. A. Durand, L. S. Luddington, J. D. Merriam, A. W. Sibley, D. Mathewson, H. Munger, J. V. Himes, W. E. Hathaway, Jacob Blain, H. K. Flagg, J. H. Whitmore, C. Pike, A. A. Phelps, Enoch Morrill, A. M. Higgins, P. S. Butler, B. Hitchcock, A. P. Moore, A. D. Flagg, Lewis Andrews, L. F. Moore, J. L. Wood, Samuel Chapman, J. W. Thomas, J. G. Hook, W. Sutherland, L. Boutell, W. S. Campbell, R. Baker, L. T. Cunningham, E. M. Haggett.

Delegates—L. L. Tuttle, S. S. Barrows, I. Barnes, W. Sherman, C. L. Tower, O. Chickering, C. M. Burt, J. B. Trefethen, M. L. Curtis, L. H. Benson, I. K. Lombard, C. S. Hall, W. M. Hall, E. S. Gage, Sidney Hall, W. J. Pierce, L. Tiffany, T. A. Cheney, J. F. Wilfong, D. W. Perry, N. Hamblin, O. D. Newell, G. W. Denney, E. Phelps, R. Allen, H. Castle, H. S. Woods, Z. Foster, H. W. Hamblin, A. Powell, J. Wiswell, G. L. Rice, J. Towle, T. R. Weaver, J. Bunn, Jas. Merrill, R. W. Holman, D. W. Lincoln, L. B. Williams, D. T. Cooper, R. Bloss, A. W. Ward, E. G. Kingsbury, S. Bailey, G. B. Keach, T. Pease, and J. H. Dennis.

Members of the Board of the A. C. Association—J. G. Hamblin, and G. T. Adams.

On motion of Eld. J. Couch, the Chair appointed S. G. Mathewson, H. K. Flagg, and G. L. Harwood, a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year.

The Secretary's minutes were called for, read, and adopted.

Adjourned till 4 P. M.

Met according to adjournment. Prayer by Eld. A. A. Phelps. After the singing of a very appropriate hymn by the members, the President read the Annual Report of the Board of Managers, which was adopted.

The President, at the conclusion of the Annual Report, read the following resolutions, passed by the Executive Board. [These resolutions have not yet been received from the Secretary.—ED.]

The Treasurer's Report was called for, read and adopted:

Treasurer's Report.

GEO. T. ADAMS, Treasurer A. A. M. Society, in account with the same.

DR.

1869. Sept. 2.	To cash received from Aug. 25, 1868, to Sept. 1, 1869, inclusive	$3,084 21
	Cr. by cash received, and bills paid at Memphis, Tenn., from cash received from School Board of Memphis, and rents	1,169 01
	Total receipts	$4,253 22

CR.

By cash paid out as follows:— Balance due the Treasurer, being the excess of expenditures over receipts as per last year's report	$ 190 78
Paid Mission Teachers, and Agent connected with the Memphis Mission, including repairs upon, and additions in, the school department	2,944 41
St. Louis Mission, and matters connected with the same	671 00
Florida Mission	205 88
Publishing report, and tracts and papers, etc	117 37
Cash sent Leroy Jackson toward educating him	40 50
Paid O. Bendixon, Norway Mission	31 15
Paid expenses of attending Board Meetings, postal orders, printing, stationery, postage, telegrams, etc	52 13
Total expenditures	$4,253 22

GEO. T. ADAMS, TREASURER.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., SEPT. 2ND, 1869.

I have examined the report of the Treasurer, with the vouchers, and find the same correct. D. MATHEWSON, Auditor.

The committee on nominations now made their report, which was approved.

Brn. H. K. Flagg, W. L. Himes, and J. R. Boynton were appointed by the Chair a committee to receive, assort, and count ballots. While the committee were attending to the duties assigned them, the President read some letters from our missionaries, which contained words of cheer and consolation, confirming the fact that the labors of the divinely commissioned ambassador are "not in vain in the Lord." The committee on ballots made their report, and declared the nominated list elected, as follows:—

OFFICERS FOR 1869–70.

President.—Elder Joshua V. Himes, Buchanan, Mich.

Vice Presidents.—Sidney Hall, Connecticut; C. S. Sherman, Vermont; and Samuel Ayres, Massachusetts.

Secretary.—Eld. A. W. Sibley, W. Thornton, N. H.

Treasurer.—G. T. Adams, Boston, Mass.

Auditor.—D. Mathewson, Sandy Hill, N. Y.

EXECUTIVE BOARD.

J. V. Himes, A. W. Sibley, G. T. Adams, D. Mathewson, L. T. Cunningham, L. Boutell, and S. W. Thurber.

COMMITTEES.

On Schools and Missions.—J. V. Himes, A. W. Sibley, and L. T. Cunningham.

On Finance.—Geo. T. Adams, D. Mathewson, and A. W. Sibley.

On Clothing and Supplies.—A. W. Sibley, Geo. T. Adams, and L. T. Cunningham.

On Publication.—S. W. Thurber, J. V. Himes, and L. T. Cunningham.

On Tent and Tent-meetings.—S. W. Thurber, Geo. T. Adams, and L. T. Cunningham.

At the conclusion of said report, the meeting adjourned. A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

Report of the Executive Board.

Brethren and Sisters of the American Advent Mission Society:—Another year of labor has closed, and we are again called to give an account of our stewardship. The last year has been a trying one for religious and missionary societies of all denominations. The complaint of the want of support is general, and about all the treasuries of these associations are empty, and some of them are in debt. There has been no special enlargement of mission stations, while some have been given up, and others curtailed.

Our own Society has maintained the Missions under their care, and none have suffered for special support. The voluntary contributions of the brethren and sisters have been sufficient to meet nearly all the current expenses; so that we have reason to "thank God, and take courage" in the prosecution of our good work.

In reporting the condition and prospects of our Missions, we begin with the

ST. LOUIS MISSION.

During the last year five day-schools have been kept in operation. Regular preaching by the superintendent, and preaching by freedmen, has been kept up. Some three hundred children have been reached, who have received more or less instruction in the secular and Sabbath schools. Our places of worship have been well attended on the Sabbath, as well as the prayer-meetings through the week. They have had no special revival the last year. The camp and tent-meeting held in North St. Louis, by Elders Flagg and Clark, was productive of good fruit, and some were gathered to Christ.

CHANGES IN THE MISSION.

Some changes have taken place in the latter part of this year, which should be noticed. First, our superintendent resigned on account of failing health; second, we were called upon to vacate our Mission-house and hall, on Fifth and Biddle streets; and, thirdly, the Bureau being about to close its work, and the free city schools for the freedmen going into operation, it became necessary to give up our day schools. These changes made quite a revolution in the Mission. The resignation of Eld. Flagg, who had had the charge of the Mission from the first, was received with deep regret, and discouraged many of the freedmen, who were much attached to him for his love and fatihful labor among them. It also weakened the hands of the teachers and helpers in the good work.

The Board appointed Eld. Sibley as the successor of Eld. Flagg, which cheered the hearts of all, only to be disappointed and again depressed by his inability to accept the trust. Then the loss of our Mission house and hall, so central and every way convenient, added discouragement, especially as we failed to obtain another place as central and suitable for our use. Add to this the fact that up to this date the Bureau, which had paid all the rents, on account of our schools, was now to close up, and it will be seen by the friends of the Mission that these unavoidable changes tended to discouragement. But still the work goes on, though somewhat circumscribed. The central society and school, that left Biddle and Fifth streets, removed to a small hall on Monroe street, where Arthur A. Waite, temporary superintendent, keeps up the meeting and Sabbath school. Most of this church are now white. They pay their own expenses, and are no charge to the Society. This church, with suitable help, will grow and prosper. The church at Compton Hill have a good brick chapel, built by Eld. C. Decatur, a freedman, who is also the pastor of the church. They have a good congregation and Sabbath school. This place is designed to become the headquarters of the Mission among the freedmen. Eld. Decatur owes some two hundred dollars on the chapel. If this is paid by us, he will give a clear deed of the property to the Society, for the use of the freedmen for ever.

We have a chapel at East St. Louis, Ill., also, with a small but prosperous meeting of freedmen, which is under the care of Eld. N. Macon, an able colored pastor. There are several other places where freedmen preachers hold forth among their brethren, which on the whole give the Board encouragement to hope for the spread of the truth on the Lord's speedy coming among this class.

Besides these agencies, a conference of ministers and churches has been organized, consisting of five or more congregations and six preachers, with a fair prospect of additions from year to year.

Some parties in St. Louis, opposed to the Mission, who failed in attempts to get the control of it, have circulated unfavorable reports respecting its condition. The Board, on hearing of these reports, sent Dr. Leslie to examine into the matter and report to them. He found that the Superintendent had conducted his business uprightly, and the Mission was all right; and that the parties who circulated the reports were not friendly to the Mission, or the policy of the Board.

The Board have now transferred Dr. I. I. Leslie from Memphis to St. Louis, with the hope that he may accept the position and be able to sustain the enterprise so well begun.

Next we call attention to the

MEMPHIS MISSION.

This Mission has had a mingled cup the last year. In the first part of the year they enjoyed one of the most interesting revivals that had ever been witnessed among the Freedmen. The Lord poured out his spirit, and multitudes of both old and young were convicted of their sinful ways. One feature of the revival specially encouraging was the work among the scholars and young people, many of whom were awakened, convicted, and baptized; and also united with the church. The chapel was crowded nightly for many weeks. Our teachers and missionaries were greatly cheered to see the reward of their faithful toil among this people.

Since the revival they have had trials with troublesome spirits who desired to get control of the Mission, and turn out the family of white teachers and missionaries, and conduct it themselves. The Superintendent and teachers saw the violent and depraved character of the parties, treated them kindly, and concluded the best policy would be to let them go on for a time, as they did not seriously interfere with the mission family or schools. But these opposers soon felt that they must have the full possession of the chapel, in order to which the white mission family must be ejected. They then consulted a lawyer as to their rights in the chapel, who told them they had no right there; and if the Superintendent should order them to leave, if they did not obey, the police would put them out. This wholesome piece of advice, which cost them five or ten dollars, had the effect to eject them without one word from the Superintendent, when the meetings were resumed, and the church re-organized, since which the Church and Mission has been more prosperous in many respects than before. The little rebellion has worked for good. We shall not be likely to have another.

The church has numbered over one hundred. Some have moved away, whose places however have been filled by others who have moved into the city. The Sabbath-school consists of from one to two hundred pupils, and is one of the best schools among the Freedmen. It is conducted by Dr. Leslie, who takes great interest in it.

We have had two schools in Memphis for the Freedmen, with three teachers, with between one and two hundred scholars. These schools stand high, and are among the best for this class of persons. We also have a school at Osceola, Ark., of sixty pupils, and one in Mississippi, which is conducted by Bro. Simmonds. It is a destitute region, some ten miles from Memphis. Meetings are held in connection with the school. Regular meetings are also held at Morgan's Point, Ark., where they have arranged to build a chapel. Regular meetings are held also at Osceola, Ark., conducted by Eld. Leroy Jackson. The church numbers sixty or more members, and is growing.

The churches and preachers in Tennessee and Arkansas have organized an Advent-Christian Conference, now consisting of six preachers and four churches, with a number of preaching places, where churches are being raised up.

Eld. L. F. Cole and wife have been appointed to take charge of this Mission. Bro. Cole has proved himself a competent teacher and missionary, and he, with his faithful wife, will sustain the Mission and Schools which Dr. Leslie has built up with so much labor and sacrifice.

THE FLORIDA MISSION.

was established by Elds. P. A. Smith and R. W. Wilson. Bro. Wilson was obliged to return North on account of his health, while Bro. Smith still remains South. He supplies the church in Jacksonville half the time. It has twenty-seven members. In Lake City there is a small church, to whom he occasionally preaches. At Suwannee Shoals they have a church of sixty-four members, and a new Advent chapel, paid for. Eld. Smith is pastor, and supplies them half the time. At Oak Grove they have a chapel, and occasional preaching. There is an opening also at Blunt's Ferry, and Homersville, in Georgia, where a new Advent church has been organized of twelve members. Br. Mottux administers the ordinances.

THE FREEDMEN IN FLORIDA.

Bro. Smith has confined his labors to the white people; but some of the Freedmen have heard him and got the truth. Among these is Bro. Robinson Monroe, formerly of the Baptists. He has embraced the truth, and is boldly proclaiming it to the colored people. He has several preaching places, and by some help it is thought may raise up quite an interest among the Freedmen. Bro. Smith has the oversight of the matter, and will see that all is right.

Eld. Smith has just returned to the mission field in Florida, from a visit home, and is determined to carry forward the work. At present he receives no compensation from the Board.

NORWAY.

Last year Bro. Bendixon, a Norwegian, was converted to the faith in New York, and desired to visit his countrymen and proclaim to them the good news of the kingdom. He was very ardent, and believed they would receive the truth if one of their own countrymen should proclaim it to them. He was ordained and sent to Norway. We have received letters from him, but as yet he has not been able to report the success that he hoped for in his work. He met with violent opposition from some, and indifference from others, and his last letter was not hopeful.

The Board would congratulate the Society on the general success of our Missions. Under all the circumstances we could not look for any greater success. God has been with us in deed and in truth. Our missionaries have been true and faithful.

We are under the painful necessity of recording the death of two of the faithful laborers. Eld. Benjamin W. Wilkins, who was located at La Grange, Tenn. Soon after his return to his field of labor last year, he was taken sick and died. He was taken to the Mission House in Memphis by Dr. Leslie, who as nurse and physician did all that could be done to save him from death. But there was no help. And so he laid off his armor, and died at his post. His memory is embalmed in the minds of many Freedmen in the South, and by his numerous friends in the North.

Sr. Fanny C. Northrup, the matron of the Mission House, was also taken sick, and after a short illness, and great suffering, died in the harness, from overwork for the Freedmen. She was most faithful from a true love to the cause of Christ, and was greatly beloved by the Freedmen and their children, and, we may say in truth, by all who knew her worth.

A reward awaits these faithful laborers when the Master comes. It will then be said to them, "Come, ye blessed of my Father; inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. For I was hungry and ye fed me, naked and ye clothed me—and inasmuch as ye did it unto these my brethren, ye did it unto me."

A MISSIONARY PEOPLE.

We are a missionary people. Our ministers and members alike are all missionaries. We go with an open Bible in all the walks of life, and are ready to proclaim the truth, and give the reason of the hope that is within us. We are Advent missionaries, and proclaim with distinctness and emphasis the personal coming of Jesus, and his reign with the saints. And we press all to prepare for the judgment.

But while we possess the general missionary spirit, and are doing much for the salvation of souls, there is yet another agency connected with the labors of special missionaries. This led to the organization of the American Advent Mission Society, to establish missions in destitute places, thereby raising up churches to become permanent lights in the midst of darkness. By common consent, and happy unity of feeling and purpose, the Adventists, east and west, have united in the support of the American Advent Mission Society. To it they make their donations, with the assurance that their munificence will not be wasted or misplaced.

Brethren and sisters are to be commended for their liberality; yet it falls below what we are able and ought to do. With our material resources we ought to treble our contributions. We are sleeping over a great enterprise, not half awake to the great work of missions.

The great Head of the church is calling loudly for us to awake from our slumbers, and do something worthy of a people who believe they stand on the threshold of eternity. We seem to hear his voice saying, "Why stand ye here all the day idle?" "Behold, I come quickly! Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his garments." "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!" What we do must be done quickly. The fields are white and ready to harvest. The Lord of the harvest bids us enter and reap.

"The field is the world." The gospel of the kingdom is to be proclaimed to every kindred, tongue, and people, before the end comes. It must be proclaimed as a witness to all nations, to prepare a people for the kingdom before the end comes.

We have duties to our own countrymen, both white and black. The popular churches are generally in darkness on the speedy personal coming of the Lord in his kingdom. Great darkness also prevails on the nature of man, and the hope of the gospel. We are under the strongest obligations to proclaim the truth to those blinded by a false theology.

The freedmen are the heathen of our land, and call for help which we cannot refuse to impart, and be innocent. As a missionary people we must blow the trumpet in Zion, and sound the alarm in God's holy mountain. We must wake up the people to prepare for the judgment, and, if possible, break the spell resting upon a slumbering church, who dream of the world's conversion, and a temporal millennium.

Our work is before us, and though most of our ministers are evangelists and missionaries, and are doing much in the great field for the spread of truth, there remain other and important fields for us to occupy, to which our Society can send laborers to spread light and truth to those beyond the reach of ordinary means.

The Society claims the support of our churches and people at large in their work. They think the claim a just one. Every penny received is accounted for, as well as all expenditures. They appeal to the record for their faithfulness in all these matters, as also for the prudent and judicious expenditure of the means committed to their trust.

Brethren and sisters of the American Advent Mission Society, let us arise, and resolve to give fresh and more liberal support to our Society. Let us place in the hands of the Board the means to extend the glorious work of preparing a people for the coming kingdom—the kingdom that is to fill the whole earth, and to stand for ever, eternal and immortal.

For the World's Crisis.

N. H. ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

BRO. GRANT:—It was my privilege to attend the New Hampshire Annual Conference just closed. It was a good meeting. There was a large gathering of believers from all parts of the State, with some out of the State. Good will, love and zeal, with glory, hallelujah, was the order. The social meetings were lively and spiritual, the time well improved, and the blessing of the Lord fully manifest among his people.

There seemed to be a prevailing desire to be more faithful in the future, and to do more for Christ and the spread of his truth. The State Conference in New Hampshire is well attended, and is exerting a great and salutary influence for truth and righteousness in the State.

I spent Sunday with the church in Manchester, and there seemed to be a good state of things among them; at any rate there was an ear to hear. The people crowd their hall to its utmost capacity, and the feeling is good. I wish them prosperity in Christ.

L. BOUTELL.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

"Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God."

I am glad to say of a truth that the Lord is good. It is now four weeks since I left my home in Marshfield, Vt., for Rochester, N. Y. On my way to this place I stopped at Bro. S. G. Mathewson's and stayed over night. Had a good time with him and his companion. I enjoyed my visit very much. Also with the brethren at Sandy Hill, and Fort Edward. I never shall forget the visits, and our good time at Rochester.

On my return I came to this place, to commence a series of meetings according to appointment, the 24th of Nov., intending to stay over the following Sabbath; but the interest was such we thought it best to stay longer; and, thank God, several have been reclaimed from a backslidden state, a goodly number converted to God, the saints greatly comforted, and we trust the good work of the Lord will go on, although there is much opposition to the truth we preach. But God is blessing the people, for which we give him all the glory.

This is the place where Bro. Frank Varney preached last summer. The truth is destined to triumph here. I have preached nine evenings and one Sabbath. Shall stay over the next, if the Lord will. The brethren here are well engaged in the good cause. I know of no State in the Union that needs help more than Vermont. I think if some of the preaching brethren in New Hampshire and Massachusetts would come up to the old Green Mountain State, they would do much good and get a great blessing to themselves.

I am almost alone in the State. The calls are so numerous for help I get almost discouraged sometimes; but I will do what I can, and leave the event with God.

I would not forget Bro. John Bussell, who has helped much in our meetings in this place. He belongs with the Free-will Baptists. He is a free man in Christ, and begins to see the truth as we understand it. God is wonderfully blessing him. He is a worthy brother, and his own brethren are persecuting him much because he is so liberal in his faith; but the Lord will take care of him. Let the devil howl; we expect he will as long as he lives; but, thank God, he will soon be destroyed, with all his followers. I shall be glad when [illegible]

J. A. CLEAVELAND.

Warren, Vt.

Correspondence.

From Bro. J. L. Wood.

Bro. Grant:—I was very much pleased to see that article on "Long Sermons." I frequently hear complaint made about such long sermons. A sister told me the other day, speaking of a brother who preaches in the place where she lives sometimes: "I like him, but then, he preaches so long that I get all tired out." We hear the same complaint in almost every place where we go. I remember some six or eight months since, there was a good feeling in the meeting where I was; the Spirit of the Lord was present. The next morning the same; but in the afternoon came the trial. The brother preached well for three-fourths of an hour, then he seemed to lose the Spirit, but kept on as much longer, until nearly one-third of the congregation had left, and all the good feeling had died.

We in Collinsville think that from half to three-fourths of an hour is long enough for a good sermon, and certainly it is for a poor one. I hardly ever knew sinners converted under a long sermon. If we preach short, the brethren will have a chance to say something, and that cheers us, and strengthens them.

May the Lord help every one that preaches, and may read what Bro. Munger says, to begin to practice upon it. J. L. Wood.

Extracts from Letters.

Bro. C. Mendenhall writes from Wilmington, Del.:—"Bro. Grant,—In this city of about twenty-five thousand inhabitants, there are perhaps eight or ten Adventists, all of whom, except two of us, are not believers in the resurrection of the wicked dead; so we are comparatively alone; but we have the 'Crisis,' which is truly a welcome visitor; may it ever prosper, and its circulation increase, that the truths, as taught by our Savior, may take the place of the many errors of these perilous times. May we all have grace from God to keep our lamps trimmed and burning, that we may be prepared to welcome the Bridegroom when he shall come to make up his jewels. What a blessed hope! that after all the troubles and turmoils of these last days, if we are but faithful to the end, we shall dwell with him on the new earth, world without end. May God help us all to live consistent christian lives."

Bro. I. K. Lombard writes:—"I am now at South Windham, Me., teaching a short school, and expecting to go to Iowa by the middle or latter part of January. I was expecting to go two or three weeks ago, but could not sell my team, and so concluded to remain and teach a school which I had previously engaged. I preach only on Sundays while teaching, but hope to do better the latter part of the winter. I hope that those who desire any of my hymn books will send soon for them, and that any who may be owing me for books sold will remember that I shall need all I can get to pay my debts and take me West. My address will be South Windham, Me., till Jan. 15th."

Bro. O. Pier writes from Jamaica:—"Allow me to say to the friends of Zion, through the columns of the Crisis, that Bro. Zenas T. Wood, of Springfield, Vt., for the last ten days has been laboring with us for the promotion of the work of God; and although we have not seen all that we desired, in the awakening and conversion of sinners, yet much good has been done in the quickening of believers and reclaiming of backsliders. He leaves an influence behind him that I trust will be like bread cast upon the waters."

For the World's Crisis.

THE DORCAS MISSION.

The following are my receipts from all sources from Oct. 10th to Dec. 1st:—

By mail, through Bro. H. L. H., $1.25. E. A. M., $5. Anna B. P. and sister, $2. Jas. R., $1. Geo. Knell, $2. Personal donations: Bro. R., $3.30. Bro. Wilfong, $2. Bro. Stetler, $3. Bro. Baker, $1. Sr. Manson, $1. Dr. Cook, $20. And where I have preached, $13.50. Total receipts from Oct. 10th to Dec. 1st, $55.05.

It is still my pleasure to visit the poor and the needy, and the Lord gives me great peace and joy in so doing. Uninviting as my field of labor is, yet Jesus is there, and he has many REAL jewels amongst the degradation of that locality. I thank all who help me by donations and prayers. May peace abide with them. Pray for your affec. brother in Christ, F. H. Burbank.

S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring Garden streets, Phila., Pa.

Peace of Conscience and Peace of Heart.—Peace of conscience and peace of heart are two distinct things. A person may have peace of conscience, knowing that he is a forgiven sinner, and yet not have peace of heart. He may say to himself, I know that my sins are forgiven, but I am not happy. And why? Because in heart he has been wandering from Christ,—one thing or another occupying his heart rather than Christ. And whenever a person goes vagabonding from Christ, he is sure to lose peace of heart; and the secret way to know this is that his thoughts are all turning round himself and not Christ.

Obituaries.

Ingalls. Died, in Abington, Conn., Nov. 17th, 1869, Lemmie, youngest son of Bro. Deacon Lewis and Sr. Elizabeth Ingalls, aged twelve years, six months, and twenty days.

Words can convey no idea of the severity of this affliction upon this beloved family. Those who have ever enjoyed their pilgrim home will know what I mean. But, blessed be God, they mourn not without hope. Lemmie, during his "pining sickness," gave the best evidences of real conversion to God. Fear and dread of death and the judgment gave place to perfect peace through Jesus Christ.

"Lemmie," said I once, as I bowed over him, "have you asked Jesus to forgive your sins?" "Yes," replied he, "and he has." Oh, with what assurance that response came. You might talk to him of farm, cattle, horses, and his pet sheep; yet he would not care to hear you; but if you spoke of Jesus, how happy he would be. Joy in Jesus was his to the last. Over such a bier Bro. A. Morse found many words of comfort for the stricken ones. Yes, beloved family, dry up your tears. Lemmie's laughing face will soon glow with life eternal in the morning. H. F. Carpenter.

Gleason. Died, in New Durham, N. H., Oct. 31st, 1869, of typhoid fever, Laura L., daughter of John O. and Almira Gleason, aged twenty-four years and eleven months.

About two years ago she became a follower of the meek and lowly Jesus, and lived an exemplary life. She leaves one sister and four brothers, who deeply mourn. May God sustain the bereaved ones. Z. Boodey.

Owens. Died, in Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 15th, 1869, Andrew B. Owen, aged twenty-five years.

My brother (by adoption) was converted in New Britain in the winter of 1867. May God abundantly sustain his wife in her severe affliction. E. O.

Hyde. Died, in Batavia, Kane Co., Ills., Sept. 24th, 1869, of typhoid fever, Sister Julia A., wife of Bro. Adin R. Hyde, aged forty-eight years and twenty-four days.

Sister Hyde was a firm believer in the soon coming of Christ to reign on the throne of David forever. She was a consistent, intelligent, faithful christian, a kind, benevolent neighbor, an affectionate wife and mother, and a living example of the power of godliness in every day life. Chester Murphy.

Fuller. Died, in Hebronville, Dec. 2d, 1869, Mr. Lewis C. Fuller, in the twenty-eighth year of his age.

"Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep;
A calm and undisturbed repose,
Unbroken by the last of foes."
L. Fuller.

Married.

In Manchester, N. H., Nov. 27th, by Elder C. Richardson, Samuel S. Hatch, and Miss Maria Sargent, all of M.

At the residence of the bride's father, in Concord, N. H., Dec. 9th, 1869, by Elder J. G. Smith, Mr. William H. Little, and Miss Ida M. Vincent.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

Paris, Dec. 7. In the corps Legislatif, to-day, there was an animated debate. A member of the majority in the course of his speech, took occasion to defend the coup d' etat of 1851. The opposition Deputies replied, expressing their disapproval. M. Rochefort was particularly severe in his denunciations.

The Moniteur announces that an extraordinary meeting of the Council of State was held yesterday, at the close of which all the Ministers tendered their resignation to the Emperor.

Egypt, Dec. 7. A delegation of merchants from Manchester recently had an interview with the Viceroy of Egypt, who assured them that he was making extensive preparations to increase the cotton crop in Egypt.

London, Dec. 7. An English Company is being formed to complete telegraphic communication between England and China by way of India, and extend to Australia by means of a submarine cable.

Paris, Dec. 7. It is again reported to-day that the Austrian Government has clear and overwhelming proof of the participation of Prussia in the recent Dalmatian insurrection.

Vienna, Dec. 7. Austria demands the consent of the European powers to cross the Turkish territory, that she may reach Dalmatia by land and extinguish the rebellion in that province.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 7. The Czar has granted a concession for the formation of a company with the right to lay a telegraph cable or cables from some point on the coast of Asiatic Russia to establish telegraphic communication with China and Japan, the consent of the authorities having first been obtained.

Opening of the Ecumenical Council.—Rome, Dec. 8th. The Ecumenical Council was opened to-day by the Pope Pius IX. The weather was unfavorable, rain falling at intervals throughout the day, but enormous crowds filled the Vatican and lined the streets through which the members of the Council passed. The Pope, followed by seven hundred Bishops, proceeded to the hall of the Council amid ringing of bells and the thundering of cannon from the forts St. Angelo and Mont Aventine. The holy father was in fine health.

The galleries of the hall of the Council are occupied by the sovereigns and princes now in Rome and by members of the Corps Diplomatique and other notables. The ceremonies excelled in grandeur and magnificence any that have taken place in Rome within the present century.

London, Dec. 9. Letters from Rome assert that the majority of the Archbishops, including Monseigneur Dupanloup and many of the German Bishops, will oppose the declarations of the dogma of Papal infallibility.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 9. The Emperor Alexander has conferred the grand cross of the order of St. George upon King William of Prussia, as a proof of the candid relations between Russia and Prussia.

Paris, Dec 10. The corps Legislatif had another stormy session to-day. An opposition deputy demanded the impeachment of M. Forcade, Minister of the Interior. A scene of violence followed such as has never been witnessed in the Chamber. The session was adjourned amid great excitement.

Rome, Dec, 10. The Pope delivered an allocution before the assembled Bishops to-day. He expressed his satisfaction in being able to open the Council on a day which had been fixed, and at finding that the Bishops came in such numbers to aid the Holy See, helped by the Spirit. False human science and impiety were never before so strong as at the present day, for they were well organized and hide themselves behind pretended aspirations for liberty. But that was nothing, because the church was stronger even than heaven, but time would remedy the present evils. The holy father concluded with an invocation to the Holy Ghost, the Blessed Virgin and Saints Peter and Paul.

Paris, Dec. 11. The French Government has made known to the Ecumenical Council that infallibility is an inopportune question from a religious view and politically places France otherwise than according to the concordat, and releases her from the obligations then accepted.

Dec. 12. A telegram from Rome reports that the Pope has issued a decree providing that in case of his death the Ecumenical Council shall be dissolved and none but Cardinals take part in the election of his successor.

DOMESTIC.

Chicago, Dec. 8th. A letter from Laramie, Dec. 4th, says that the Indian troubles in Wyoming are quite alarming.

Bands of Sioux are roving through the territory, robbing and murdering. A mail party that left Laramie was driven in by the Indians. Another that left several days previous has not been heard from, and it is feared that they have been captured.

A special from Central City, Colorado, reports a terrible accident in a mine by the falling of timber. Three men were instantly killed, and several others wounded.

Columbus, O., Dec. 8. The Municipal Convention to-day adopted a resolution asking the General Assembly to amend the municipal code so as to authorize the Board of Health to license and regulate houses of ill-fame, and prescribe the limits within which such houses shall exist. The vote stood 27½ to 15½.

New York, Dec. 9. One of the largest and most brilliant audiences ever assembled in the Academy of Music was drawn this evening to hear the lecture of Pere Hyacinthe. Every seat in the building was occupied and hundreds were compelled to content themselves with standing room. The audience comprised the intelligence and wealth of the city.

Pere Hyacinthe commenced his address by saying that he came to this country for a few weeks' rest between the struggles of yester eve and those of the morrow. He came to behold that grand nature, bearing an impress of Deity more profound as the hand of man is less apparent upon it. "I came to look upon that young and vigorous nation which, if it weakens not, will realize in the future the greatest and best intentions of God toward our race. I came here, he said, to listen, and not to speak. It happened, however, that in this great cosmopolitan city I found France, and was appealed to by the charitable in behalf of suffering France. The members of the French Benevolent Society asked me to come to the aid, now that a severe winter is about to set in, of my suffering compatriots in New York. The French population in this great city is not numerous, but its memories are many and glorious.

Since the time of Washington and Lafayette no cloud has darkened the friendship of the two countries they respectively represented. I should have but a slender sympathy for France had I not responded to the appeal made to me on behalf of its suffering children. This will account for my presence before you this evening."

Pere Hyacinthe spoke at length on the government of life with charity, as a subsidiary element. In the course of his remarks he said:

"Let us then be more of heart. Let us bear our hearts into civil life, into social life, into domestic life. Let us be men of heart in city and in State. Let us love country, family, loyalty, probity. Let us love the Church of Christ, but not as the church of any particular sect. Let us respect the letter, but not as an extinguished letter. The letter kills—the spirit gives life." (Loud applause.)

The lecturer continued at length in the elucidation of his text. While he did not speak directly of his relations toward the Church of Rome, he favored the idea of an unsectarian church and the reconciling of religion with liberal ideas.

Another Tunnel.—The people of Chicago are partial to tunnels. Having been successful in their first tunnel, whereby pure water from the lake is introduced to their dwellings, they propose to build another, connecting the north and south divisions of the city. It is to cost $500,000, and be ready for use by the first day of July, 1871. By the terms of the contract the bottom of the tunnel is to be thirty-five feet below low water mark, and it is to consist of three passage ways, one for foot passengers and two for horses and vehicles.

Religious Items.

☞ Henry Ward Beecher's income has been so greatly exaggerated that one of his congregation publishes a statement that, "as a matter of fact, although it is nobody's business, Plymouth church paid its pastor before the war $12,000 per annum. During the war he voluntarily gave up $5,000 per annum. After the war the salary was restored to the old status."

☞ At a meeting of the Peace Society of France, held at Paris on the 14th of last June, Father Hyacinthe and J. Martin Paschoud, the eloquent apostle of Liberal Christianity, were both present and made speeches. The latter, in alluding to a sermon which he had heard the former preach, expressed himself as follows: "I know not whether I am a Catholic, I know not whether you are a Protestant. But that which I do know is, that we are both of the same religion."

☞ Garibaldi has become a fierce and furious religious iconoclast. In his zeal, he would set very summarily with Popery. In a recent letter or manifesto of his, he protests against the forthcoming council. He denounces the Pope, also, and entreats the people to "smash to pieces the confessionals, and use them to boil maccaroni for the poor."

☞ One of the largest Sunday Schools in California is composed of Chinese children.

☞ Five Baptist churches in Philadelphia are without pastors. There are forty churches of that denomination in the city.

☞ The Presbyterians are moving for a large national church in Washington. They propose to build at the general expense of the denomination such an edifice, "near to the presidential mansion," as will attract strangers, "and impress them with our denominational zeal and devotion to the cause of our common Lord." They want $150,000.

☞ A Mormon Temple, to cost half a million of dollars, is soon to be erected in the city of New York.

☞ The sister of Father Hyacinthe has left the Convent of the Carmelites and abandoned the veil. The following are the circumstances: "About a month previous to the famous manifesto, when everybody was commenting on the scandalous fact of a Carmelite nun being found driven to insanity in a prison cell of the convent, Father Hyacinthe hastened to the convent where his sister was immured, and demanded her dismissal in the name of the law, not wishing her to be a member of an order in the bosom of which such outrages were being perpetrated."

Passing Events.

☞ The world is all astir. Commotion and enthusiasm are everywhere. We are on the eve of startling events. We expect some of them will transpire this winter. None are safe now but those who are hid away in the cleft of the Rock.—Free Methodist.

☞ Excavations on Mount Palatine, the private property of the Emperor Napoleon, have brought to light nearly the whole palace of the Cæsars, the walls of which are covered with fresco-paintings of genii, birds, flowers, etc.

☞ One hundred and ten Mormon missionaries have just been sent forth by Brigham Young. Their destinations are Chicago, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, and other cities.

☞ The new street in London leading to the new Blackfriars Bridge is to be named after Mr. Peabody.

☞ A cloud of locusts, seven miles by five, and four hundred feet deep, passed over the western presidency of India lately, and ate up the crops.

☞ The Imperialist, a paper published in behalf of a secret order whose aim it is to establish an empire in this country, has been suspended.

☞ The Bible has been voted out of the schools in the city of Cincinnati.

☞ A division in the Protestant Episcopal Church at no distant day seems probable; one party becoming more and more Romanized, and the other more and more Protestantised. How can two walk together unless they be agreed?

☞ A New Orleans paper says that whatever could be done in the way of racing, raquette, dancing, and amateur theatricals, at the fair grounds in that city, was accomplished on Sunday last, for the benefit of a church.

☞ A six months revival at Richmond, Ind., is said to have resulted in nearly one thousand conversions.

☞ Serious fears are entertained that the "Horse Shoe" Fall in Niagara River is about to give way. It is believed that a subterranean passage for the water is undermining the great natural dam, and that the fall will soon be only a wild rapid.

☞ More persons are out of employment in St. Louis than was ever before known.

☞ It takes two men one hour to wind up Trinity Church clock.

☞ Tilton's salary, as editor of the Independent, is $7,000 a year.

☞ The passengers in the New Haven cars a few days since were vastly entertained, if not edified, by an animated and earnest conversation between Father Hyacinthe and the Rev. Dr. Coxe of New York. Happening to be seated near one another, and the friar speaking no English and the doctor no French, they adopted the Latin, which both speak with fluency, and the conference took a wide theological and ecclesiastical range.

☞ A stage robber, recently arrested in California, has made a confession revealing the fact that there is an organized band, with code of laws, grips, signs and passwords, operating from Oregon to Arizona and into Nevada. The band was originally organized at Portland, Oregon, and has for months pursued a career of robbery and murder.

☞ The Pope's police lately made a search for exiled Romans who had returned. About five hundred were discovered and sent back across the frontier.

☞ One of the most efficient operators on a sewing machine connected with a large manufacturing firm in New York is a girl totally blind from birth.

☞ The ex-King of Naples, who has just returned from a visit to Germany, says: "I have brought back one conviction, and that is—there are no more kings."

☞ A trade in young girls has lately been discovered in Galicia similar to that existing in Hungary. Organized bands of men have been engaged in wandering around the country and marrying all the young girls they can, and then sending them off to Turkey or Egypt.

☞ Queen Victoria has announced an intention of sitting for a replica of the enamel portrait presented to the late Mr. George Peabody; and Her Majesty has signified her pleasure that, when completed, it should be made public in the form of an engraving.

☞ The slave trade is still carried on upon the east coast of Africa, in spite of the active efforts made to suppress it by British and American cruisers.

☞ There are thirty-eight hundred pianoforte teachers in St. Petersburg.

☞ The Catholic priests of Sandusky, Ohio, have given notice from the pulpit that those Catholic parents who are sending their children to the public schools must send them to the Catholic schools, or they would not be allowed to partake of the Holy Sacrament.

☞ The English Ministry has refused to accept the modifications of the treaty of commerce between England and France, proposed by the latter.

☞ The Rev. C. H. Spurgeon is rapidly recovering from small pox. It is expected that he will shortly be able to attend to his religious duties.

☞ It has been suggested that the handful of rebels in Dalmatia, who, in spite of Austrian reports, have not been subdued, may yet prove the spark to light Europe in a blaze.

☞ The Chicago Tribune says there are at the present time at least twenty thousand men in that city who are out of employment, and that the streets are filled with vagrants and idlers.

☞ A former resident of Eden, Vermont, now residing in Olmstead Co., Minn., writes to a friend: I have raised this year 9000 bushels of wheat and 2000 bushels of oats, and have had to go back on my stock to pay expenses and taxes. While we are in prosperity and abundance of grain, we are in the midst of poverty, as wheat has but little more than paid for the harvesting. No. 1 wheat is only 55 cents per bushel, and during the fall the average price has only been 65 cents."

☞ The ultimatum of the Sultan to the Viceroy of Egypt is awaited with profound impatience. It is expected that a state of hostilities will ensue, and England and France are sure to be embroiled.

☞ In the excellent sermon on the Education of the Laboring Classes, printed in this week's Watchman, Father Hyacinthe mentions as a fact that a laboring man in Paris, in order to rest for the night, was obliged to open the window and place his feet on the roof.

☞ The Emperor is said to have uttered only these three words on the situation, "Wait and see." Meantime he parades cavalry in some of the streets every day.

☞ Many cities in France were illuminated Dec. 10th in honor of the inauguration of the Council at Rome. At Marseilles a crowd of 1500 men made violent demonstrations against the illuminations. They marched through the streets singing the Marseillaise, and destroyed decorations and transparencies and committed other excesses. The police dispersed the mob after making 60 arrests.

☞ The fire in the Dismal Swamp yet burns.

☞ The Blackfeet Indians have, as a tribe, been friendly toward the whites for the past five years. It is now reported that they have taken to the "war path" in Montana. They number 7000 souls, and are able to give great trouble to the people of that Territory.

☞ Earthquakes are increasing in frequency and intensity at Gross Geran in Germany. The inhabitants are suffering from various forms of nervous disease, and even insanity is said to have been produced by the alarm the phenomena have given rise to.

☞ On the 26th of November the Princess of Wales gave birth to a daughter.

☞ The Viceroy of Egypt has yielded to the ultimatum of the Sultan and accepted all the conditions it imposes.

☞ A correspondent of the London Times has been prohibited from entering the Papal States.

☞ The session of the Ecumenical Council has been adjourned until after Epiphany. Much opposition is expected on re-assembling, but His Holiness is said to be sure of the co-operation of American Bishops.

Notices.

Notice.

The Advent Church in Chelsea, by a vote, have given the State Conference a cordial invitation to hold their quarterly session with them, to commence the 6th of Jan., 1870, to continue over the following Sunday. Notice hereafter.
L. Boutell, for the Church.

Notice.

A quarterly meeting of the Union Female Missionary Association will be holden at Meredith Village, N. H., commencing Jan. 5th, 1870, at two o'clock P. M., and will hold over the following Sabbath. Arrangements have been made with the Boston, Concord and Montreal Rail Road to give free return passes to all who may choose to attend the Association from any station on the road, and efforts will be made to secure the same favor on the Concord and Portsmouth, Manchester and Lawrence, and Manchester and Nashua R. R. Persons purchasing full fare tickets to the meeting, will receive return passes, signed by the Secretary, good through the meeting.

The hall where the meeting is to be held, is an excellent one, new and commodious. The place is pleasantly situated. But little preaching of the present truth message has been had there, and it is hoped that the sisters of the Association, the members, and all others who can, will attend this meeting. The few brethren and sisters in the place and vicinity will do all they can to entertain those who may come.

The train up arrives at Meredith Village at noon, and the train down at two o'clock P. M. All who attend the meeting, will come at once to Lake Hall, and arrangements will be made for their comfort. Come to work for Jesus, and save the perishing.
M. McKinstry.

Notice.

In view of the lack of deep piety in the church, and a proper interest in the soon coming of Jesus to redeem his people and give them their Eden home, we, the undersigned, call for a general, free, and old-fashioned Conference, to be held in Richmond Village, Me., to commence Dec. 22d, at seven P. M., and continue over Lord's day. This conference is intended to benefit ministers and members; in which ministers will relate their call into the ministry, and members their experience in the proclamation of the Advent near; and to labor for the salvation of sinners and the piety of the church.
Israel Damman.
A. H. Walker.
B. Emery.

Ministerial Conference.

By invitation of the church in Bangor, the Maine Ministerial Conference will be held in Bangor, commencing Tuesday, January 11th, 1870, and continue as long as thought proper. We hope to see a full attendance of the ministering brethren from all parts of the State to labor in the name of the Lord for the advancement of the great truth of our day, the coming and kingdom of Christ and of God.
C. Goud, President.
R. R. York, Vice President.

Notice.

By invitation of the church at New Britain, the next quarterly session of the A. C. Conference will convene at New Britain, Conn. Services to commence Wednesday evening, Jan. 12th, 1870. Business session at ten o'clock A. M., Thursday. Let every church be represented, and all come with a hearty good will to work for the Lord. Letters and communications can be sent to the Secretary previous to the meeting, at 189 Orchard Street, New Haven, Conn.
George L. Teeple, Sec. of Conf.

Protracted Meeting.

There will be a protracted meeting at East Rochester, N. H., commencing Thursday, Dec. 23d, 1869, at half past seven P. M., and hold over the following Sunday. Preaching by Brn. J. Couch, W. W. Sutherland, and others.
Elders J. Quimby, J. C. Shorey.

Notice.

The Quarterly Advent Christian Conference of New York State will meet with the church at Knowlesville, Orleans Co., Thursday evening, Dec. 16th. Provision will be made for all. We request a full attendance, that we may devise means for carrying the gospel into new fields.
W. J. Hobbs, Clerk.

Notice.

The next session of the R. I. and E. Conn. Conference will be held with the Advent church in Bristol, R. I., on the 5th, 6th, and 7th of January, 1870. Come, preachers and delegates, make one more rally for the conference. Let us begin the work of the incoming year in earnest.
A. Durfee, President of Conf.

Notice.

The Lord willing, we will commence a series of meetings in East Otis, Mass., Jan. 5th, and hold them over the following Sabbath. Brethren and sisters, we desire your attendance. Come one, come all.
W. J. Ripley.
E. Phelps.

Notice.

Brethren and sisters of like precious faith, greeting: As I have been made the custodian of the Philadelphia Tent, which has been dedicated to the service of God, as a house in which to proclaim the truth we so much love; I would say to all who want to do good through this channel, to begin at once to lay plans for a tent-meeting next season, in some central place. Talk this matter over with the friends around you, and pray for direction and the spirit of sacrifice, and write to me at your earliest convenience if you think it best to have a meeting of that kind at your place. Write as early as the 20th of March, so that I can make proper arrangements for equalizing the expenses. If there should be any who may want a meeting at their place, or some village near by, and yet not able to determine what is best under the circumstances, let them give us all the favorable and also all the unfavorable circumstances, and we will decide about the matter ourselves.
P. W. Hough, Clerk.

Notice.

I have removed from Danielsonville, Conn., to North Springfield, Vt., and friends are requested to address me henceforth at this place.
H. F. Carpenter.

☞ A short poem, "The Blissful Vision," may be had for 30 cents per dozen, of the author, J. Albert Libby, West Poland, Maine.

Notice.

The Second Advent Christian Church of Rochester, N. Y., will hold meetings in their new hall, New York State Arsenal, corner of Monroe and Jackson streets, as follows: Sundays, prayer and conference meeting at 10 A. M. Sunday school at 12½ P. M. Preaching at 2 and 7½ P. M. The weekly prayer meetings: Tuesday and Friday evenings, of each week. The regular monthly church and covenant meeting will be held the Friday evening (7½ o'clock) before the first Sunday in each month.
Jas. B. Wells, Cor. and Rec. Sec.

Notice.

I now have a supply of the sheet music entitled "Beautiful Vale," and all who could not obtain it, at the campmeetings, can do so by addressing me at Brimfield, Mass. Single copy, by mail, 10 cts. Six copies, 25 cts.
Geo. E. Lee.

Notice.

Pictures of Chloe Lankton and her residence in New Hartford, Ct., can be had of J. C. Garrigues, 608 Arch Street, Philadelphia, by enclosing $1.00. The proceeds, above cost, to go to the benefit of Chloe.

German Tracts.

Bro. Reimer has a good supply. Send your orders to L. Reimer, 106 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.
J. Couch .... Sunday, Dec. 19th

Boston, South End, (Minot Hall), corner of Washington and Springfield Streets.)
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.
J. G. Smith .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Geo. A. Streeter .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
J. S. White .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd

East Boston.
Meetings are held at Chase's Block, up two flights, at 154 Meridian Street, on Sundays, at the usual hours, also Monday and Thursday evenings.
J. W. Britton .... Sunday, Jan. 9th

Chelsea, Mass., (Library Hall.)
M. Batchelor .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
J. W. Britton .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
T. M. Preble .... Sabbath, Jan. 9th

Charlestown.
Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 33 Main Street), every Lord's day.
John T. Dixon .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
T. M. Preble .... Sabbath, Jan. 2nd

Chicopee Falls, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
C. Goodrich.

Worcester, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
M. Batchelor.

Chicopee Falls, Mass .... Dec. 17th
Hartford, Ct .... Dec. 19th and 26th
New Britain, Ct .... Dec. 22d
Forestville, Ct .... Dec. 23d
Holden, Mass .... January 9th
J. S. White.

Bridgewater, Vt .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Pomfret, Vt., (as Bro. Harrington may arrange), evenings, Dec. 21st and 22d.
South Vershire, Vt .... evening, Dec. 24th
West Fairlee, Vt .... evening, Dec. 25th and over the Sabbath, Dec. 26th.
H. F. Carpenter.

Southington, Ct .... Sabbath, Jan. 9th
Albion Ross.

Pownal Centre .... Thursday evening, Dec. 16th and over the following Sabbath.
Hoosac, N. Y .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Scitico, Ct .... Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
The rest of Jan. not engaged. H. Munger.

Waterbury, Ct .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Newfield .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
Hartland, (Town Hall) .... Sunday, Jan. 16th
Wm. J. Ripley.

Salterville, N. J .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Hartford, Conn., (Talcott & Post's Hall), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
New Britain, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd
W. S. Campbell.

Sandy Hill, N. Y .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Lansingburgh, N. Y .... Sunday morning, Dec. 26th
Troy, N. Y .... Sunday afternoon
Albany, N. Y .... Sunday evening
A. A. Phelps.

Lake Village, N. H., (North Church) Sunday, Dec. 19th
S. C. Hancock.

Holden, Mass .... Sabbath, Dec. 25th
T. M. Preble.

Portsmouth, N. H .... Sunday, Jan. 9th
Salisbury, N. H., (Mills) .... evening, Dec. 31st
West meeting-house, evening, Jan. 1st, and over the Sabbath.
J. G. Smith.

Milford, N. H., (No. 2 Daniel's Block), Friday evening, Dec. 17th.
Nashua .... Saturday evening, Dec. 18th and over Sunday.
John H. Dadmun.

Epsom, N. H., Marden's Corner, (as Bro. Bennet may arrange), Saturday evening, Dec. 25th.
Chichester, N. H., (Pine Ground), Sunday, Dec. 26th
N. B. McMurphy.

Canton Mills, Me .... Saturday evening, Dec. 18th and over the Sabbath.
J. T. Jordan.

Hampton, N. H .... Sabbath, Dec. 19th
Bro. Philbrick may meet me at Exeter Saturday.
South Berwick, Great Works .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th
New Durham Ridge .... Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
A. Mussey Tripp.

West Ossipee, N. H .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Elisha Johnson.

Putnam, Ct .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Woodstock Valley, Ct .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
I. B. Potter.

Northwood Narrows, N. H., Sunday, Jan. 2nd, and through the week as the brethren may arrange, and over the following Sunday.
It is expected Bro. T. W. Piper will be with me part of the time at this meeting.
George W. Brown, of So. Elliot, Me.

East Rochester .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Barnstead, (White Oak Ground, Tuttle school-house), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
Rochester Village .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd
J. Pinkham.

Salisbury, (South Road), N. H., (where Bro. Foote may arrange), Dec. 26th.
J. G. Smith.
S. S. Mooney.

East Haddam, Ct .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
South Windsor, Ct .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
Wm. A. & M. L. Durand.

Kennebunk Depot, Me .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Kennebunkport, Me .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
T. P. Hammon.

Danbury, N. H., (where Bro. Ransom may appoint), evening, Dec. 16th.
Campton, N. H., (Bump school-house), evening, Dec. 30th, over the Sabbath, and onward as the Lord may direct.
D. Eastman.
J. H. Evans.

Mechanic Falls .... Lord's day, Dec. 19th
Jared Whitman.

Alton, (Chesnut Cove) .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
John and Jane Davis.

New Bedford, Mass .... Sundays, Dec. 19th and 26th
Manchester, N. H .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Joseph W. White.

Newport Centre, Vt .... Sunday, Dec. 19th and as much longer as the interest demands.
Z. Ford.

Hinsdale, N. H., (where Bro. Thomas may appoint), Sunday, Dec. 26th, and stop as long as duty calls.
E. Cotton.

Clinton, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Square Pond, Ct .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
North Somers, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd
A. Simpson.

Exeter, N. H .... Wednesday eve., Dec. 15th
Portsmouth, N. H .... Thursday eve., Dec. 16th
Hampton, N. H .... Friday eve., Dec. 17th
Lynn, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Geo. A. Brown.

East Roxbury, Vt .... evening, Dec. 17th
Bethel, Vt., (Camp Brook) .... Dec. 19th
North Hyde Park, Jan. 5th, 1870, and continue over the following Sabbath.
J. A. Cleaveland.

Warehouse Point, Ct .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Wm. Stuart.

Unionville, Ct .... Wednesday evening, Dec. 15th
Bakerville, Ct .... Thursday evening, Dec. 16th
Pleasant Valley, Ct .... Friday evening, Dec. 17th
Hartland Hollow, (Town House) ... Sunday, Dec. 19th
North Canton, Ct., (near Bro. and Sr. Williams'), Monday evening, Dec. 20th, and onward three or four evenings.
Philadelphia, Pa., and Camden, N. J., Sunday, Dec. 26th, instead of New York.
New York City, (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sunday, Jan. 9th.
H. K. Flagg.

Stowe, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
J. W. Britton.

Hartford, (Talcott & Post's Hall) .... Dec. 19th
New Britain, Conn .... Dec. 26th
Geo. W. Brown.

Manchester .... Dec. 19th
Melvin Village .... Dec. 26th
T. W. Piper.

Boscawen, N. H., (Gulf school-house), Sab., Dec. 19th
Simeon Roby.

Holden, (Cluley neighborhood) .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Bangor .... Sunday, Jan. 9th
Israel Dammon.

East Bowdoinham .... Dec. 19th
Brunswick .... evening, Dec. 25th and over the Sabbath.
H. D. Reed.

Fairhaven, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
L. Boutell.

Seabrook, N. H .... Sundays, Dec. 19th and 26th
E. S. Moulton.

Charlton, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Three miles north of Warren's Corner, Niagara Co., N. Y., (as Bro. Adriance may arrange), Dec. 1st and 2nd.
Five miles from Westfield, Mass., (as Bro. Phelps may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
If any of the above appointments conflict, write me at Randolph(?), Niag. Co., N. Y. Chas. E. Greenman.

Sabbattusville, Me .... Sabbath, Dec. 19th
Bowdoin, Me .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th
H. S. Mitchell.

South Sunapee, N. H., (where Bro. Lear may appoint), Friday, Dec. 24th.
Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
Plymouth, Vt., Tuesday, Dec. 7th, 7½ P. M., and continue over Sunday, Dec. 12th.
Brethren in adjoining towns are invited to come and enjoy the meeting with us. There will be ample provision made for all who will come. We expect Bro. W. Dow and H. F. Carpenter will be with us to preach the word.
Z. T. Wood.

North Dana, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Holden, Mass .... evening, Dec. 22d
If these conflict, please write me at North Dana, Ma.
Geo. A. Streeter.

Square Pond, Conn .... Dec. 19th
West Stafford, Ct .... evening, Dec. 21st
North Somers, Ct .... evening, Dec. 24th
North Somers, Ct .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Springfield, Mass .... evening, Dec. 28th
Brimfield, Mass .... evening, Dec. 29th
Charlton, Mass .... evening, Dec. 30th
Webster, Mass .... evening, Dec. 31st
Abington, Ct .... Sabbath, Jan. 2d
A. D. Flagg.

Wrightville, Ct .... evening, Dec. 17th and over the Sabbath.
New Preston, Ct .... evening, Dec. 21st
Lanesville, Ct .... evening, Dec. 22d
Salem, N. Y., (Pine Tree school-house) .... Dec. 24th
New York City (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sabbath, Dec. 26th.
Westerly, R. I .... evening, Dec. 28th
Charlestown, R. I., (as Bro. Lewis may arrange), evening, Dec. 29th.
Wyoming, R. I .... evenings, Dec. 30th and 31st
Rocky Brook, R. I .... Sabbath, Jan. 2d
Abington, Ct .... Sabbath, Jan. 9th
C. H. Sweet.

East Boston, Mass .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
☞ NO NAME.

West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house), evenings, Dec. 23d and 24th.
Warren Summit, N. H .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
Will Bro. Cyrus Nelson go with me to West Rumney?
T. Elwin Lang.

Byron, Me. (where Bro. Ireland may appoint), Sunday, Dec. 19th.
Buckfield Hill in the evening. Sam'l Collins.

Bradford, Vt .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
North Haverhill .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
Wm. H. Shaw.

Salem, Mass ..... Dec. 16th, and over Sunday, the 19th
Springfield, Mass ..... Sundays, Dec. 26th and Jan. 2nd
Hartford, (Talcott and Post's Hall), Sunday, Jan. 9th
W. N. Pile.

Cheshire Street .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
East Haddam, Ct .... Sunday, Jan. 2d
S. Woodruff.

Springfield, Mass., (Bethel Church.)
James Hemenway .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
Wm. N. Pile .... Sundays, Dec. 26th and Jan. 2nd
Rufus Wendell .... Sunday, Jan. 9th
James Hemenway .... Sunday, Jan. 16th
H. K. Flagg .... Sunday, Jan. 23d
Wm. N. Pile .... Sunday, Jan. 30th

Westfield, Mass.
A. Simpson .... Sundays, Jan. 9th and 16th

Stoneham, Mass.
C. E. Barnes .... Sunday, Dec. 26th
J. W. Britton .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd
J. S. White .... Sunday, Jan. 16th
C. Goodrich .... Sunday, Jan. 23d

Wilbraham, Mass.
P. S. Butler .... Sabbaths, Dec. 19th and 26th

Concord, N. H., (at the Bethel.)
D. M. Leavitt .... Sunday, Dec. 19th

Dover, N. H.
W. H. Mitchell .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
C. Goodrich .... Sunday, Dec. 26th

Portland, Me.
J. A. Libby .... Sabbath, Dec. 19th
W. H. Mitchell .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th

South Elliott, Me.
C. S. Emerson Dec. 26th, through the week as may seem duty, and Sunday, Jan. 2nd.
Wm. Stuart .... Sunday, Jan. 9th

Biddeford, Me.
Jeremiah Hill .... Sabbath, Dec. 19th

Bristol, Ct.
R. Stark .... Sabbath, Dec. 26th

Square Pond, Ct.
A. D. Flagg .... Sunday, Dec. 19th

Pleasant Valley, Ct.
H. H. Dickenson .... Sunday, Dec. 26th

New Britain, Ct.
Dr. Laddington .... Sunday, Dec. 19th

Windsor, Me. (Preble school-house), every second Sabbath of the month until further notice. Church Hill, Augusta, third Sabbath. Mud Mills, Augusta, fourth Sabbath. Thomas Rines.

Wolcottville, Ct.
B. Hitchcock .... Sunday, Dec. 19th
G. L. Teeple .... Sunday, Jan. 2nd

Portland, Me.
Meetings are held in Advent Hall, Cushman's Block, 353½ Congress Street, three times on the Sabbath, and Tuesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock.

New York City.
The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 405 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

Star of Hope Mission, 14 Laurens Street, New York City.
Sunday morning, prayer and conference, six o'clock. Sunday School, two o'clock P. M. Love feast, four o'clock P. M. Preaching, seven o'clock P. M.
Monday, (class meeting), seven o'clock P. M.
Wednesday, (preaching), seven o'clock P. M.
Friday, (prayer and conference), seven o'clock P. M.
Come one, come all. A. E. Smith, Principal.

Wyoming, R. I .... 1st Sabbath in each month
Westerly, R. I .... 2d Sabbath in each month
Riverpoint, R. I .... 3d Sabbath in each month
Bristol, R. I .... 4th Sabbath in each month
A. Durfee.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Westfield, Mass., will please correspond first with Eld. E. A. Eggleston.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Portsmouth, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. Thomas J. Spinney.

☞ Bro. Joseph A. Philbrook has been chosen Corresponding Secretary for the church in Hampton, N. H. Preaching brethren will please notice.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Manchester, N. H., will please correspond with the following committee:—A. J. Mayhew, S. R. Davidson, O. Proctor.

☞ Brethren sending appointments for London Ridge, N. H., will bear in mind that the fourth Sabbath in each month is engaged.

☞ Any Bro. wishing to come to Seabrook, N. H., to preach, will please address Bro. R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Bro. Charles Barton, of Seabrook.

☞ All preaching brethren who desire to communicate with the church at Rochester, N. Y., are requested to correspond with J. E. Wells, 32 Smith Street.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Portland, Me., will please correspond first with Eld. R. R. York, or with either of the following committee:—H. C. Freeman, James Berry, S. K. Dyer.

☞ Advent preaching brethren who may wish to visit Kennebunk Depot, will please address Edwin B. Wells, Kennebunk Depot, Me.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Lewiston, Me., will please correspond first with Albert Burgess, Cor. Sec.

☞ Augustus E. Snow, 1715 Markham Street, Philadelphia, has been chosen Cor. Secretary of the church worshiping at Ninth and Spring-Garden Streets.

☞ Brethren wishing to visit the church in Bristol, Ct., will please correspond with Elder B. Hitchcock, Forestville, Ct.

☞ Brethren desiring to preach in Hartford, Ct., will please correspond with Bro. L. Tiffany. Preaching the first Sabbath in each month by resident Elder H. H. Dickinson.

☞ Persons wishing to communicate with the church in New Britain, Conn., in regard to preaching, will please correspond with Bro. A. Powell, Cor. Sec.

☞ All preaching brethren desirous of going to New Milford Ct., to preach, will first correspond with Richard Hecock.

An Admonition to Christian Churches on Church Festivals, Fairs, etc.

By L. K. Lombard.

A new edition, with additions and improvements. About twelve thousand of the above sheet have been scattered, and they are doing a practical service against these growing evils in the churches of our land. The picture of their proceedings is so faithfully drawn, that the guilty on reading it have several times furiously protested to those who offered them that it was written on purpose for them, with a full knowledge of the facts in their case. Price, postpaid, 15 cts. per dozen; 75 cts. per hundred.

For sale at this office, or by L. K. Lombard, South Windham, Maine.

The Berean's Casket and Repository.

This is a work just published, containing 492 pages with the tables of contents, in 358 sections, all in small type, embracing a great amount of matter. It is a Scripture Manual, to which is added much valuable history, showing the fulfillment of prophecy, signs of the times, and other important matter for every Bible reader, statistics, tables, and prophetic figures. Compiled by I. C. Wellcome. Price, cloth, bevel boar is, postpaid, $2.00. Leather bound, $2.50.

For sale at this office.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

SENT POSTPAID AS FOLLOWS:

1. I don't believe in Religion .... 16 pp. 4c.
2. Did the World make Itself? .... 16 pp. 4c.
3. Is God everybody and everybody God? 16 pp. 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible? .... 16 pp. 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament? .... 16 pp. 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable? .... 16 pp. 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his apostles? .... 16 pp. 4c.
8. Prophecy .... [illegible]
9. Moses and the Prophets .... [illegible]
10. Infidelity among the Stars .... [illegible]
11. Daylight before Sunrise .... [illegible]
12. Telescope Views of Scripture .... [illegible]
13. [illegible] on Faith .... [illegible]

For the set (making 204 pp.) .... 40c. postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

Business.

Letters Received.

L Boutell, C. W., W Davis, O Good, I K Lombard, I Damman, N F Nason, E Owens, Geo. Streeter, [illegible] Sheffield, J Wood, Z Boodey, B Mathewson, C [illegible] phy, H Tucker, H Pratt, I I Leslie, O Colegrove, [illegible] Mendenhall, O Pier, A A Phelps, C H Dwinell, C [illegible] F H Chamberlain, F Foster, J C Clark, E Johns[illegible] B Perham, J E Clark.

Books and Tracts Sent.

By Mail—D B Roberts, A Grovesward, B Fr[illegible] J L Chute, Mrs. E B Dean, Eld. Geo. Wright, [illegible] Stone, A H Smith, G P Hayes, J T Levi, Miss L [illegible] strong, J Dick, J Buzzell, Geo. W. Smith, N A[illegible] E A Phelps, E Hopkins, Mrs. A Bedell, S M[illegible] Lucy L Taylor, J L Taber, T C Armstrong, J N S[illegible] cer, C C Johnson, G P Hayes, O L B[illegible] Wells, Mrs. L D Mileson, W Brown & Son, J H [illegible] tee, H Pratt, J M Setley, Knowlton Bros., A H [illegible] bins, J H Stannard, A T Leach, H N Bryant, C E [illegible] ber, J S Simonds, M M Hoag, S D Colton, J B W[illegible] H T Taylor, B B Hill, Mrs. M Waters, S Robi[illegible] E V B Edgerly, P S Hanagh, A S Webster, [illegible] Vickery, J F Russell, P A Greene, L E Weaver, [illegible] Wm. S Wright, J Florey, J Reynolds, C C Barke[illegible] Tuttle, W S Sterns, M W Owen.

By Express—J Ristley, Eld. N Glidden, Eld. E [illegible] lows, S L Manley.

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

Advent Christian Publication Society,

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Miscellaneous.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, postpaid—Family and Pulpit Edition (Svo. Pica), Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c; Extra Cloth, $1.25; Sheep, $1.25; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60. Miniature Edition, for Children and Sunday schools, cloth, 25c.; roan, 50c.; gilt, 75c.

THE BIBLE TEXT-BOOK; or the Principal Texts relating to the Persons, Places, and Subjects occurring in the Holy Scriptures. Arranged for the use of Ministers, Teachers, and Students of the Bible. With two Maps, and a variety of useful Tables. Price, by mail, 40 cents. Postage 8 cts.

UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED from the Inner Temple, and shown to be, in its results, no better than Infidelity. By John T. Walsh. 5c. single by mail; 50c. per dozen.

"THE NEXT DISPENSATION Viewed in the Light of Revelation." By Wm. Sheldon. By mail, 15c. single copy; $1.00 per dozen.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an interlineary Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.16. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.66. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.16.

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption, and in the Administration of the Government of God By Wm. Shepherd. 20c.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Paper covers 45c. by mail.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.26. Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

EVERYBODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; the Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

STORIES FOR YOUNG PILGRIMS. 16pp. each, in paper covers, with illustrations. 30 cents per dozen; $2.00 per 100; 5c. single, postpaid.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly Contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 3 cts; by mail, 6c.

THE FIRST DAY SABBATH. By T. M. Preble. A new and interesting work. pp. 471. Price $1.50.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5 cts. single; by mail, 7 cts.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c. by mail, 15c.

TWO HUNDRED STORIES FOR CHILDREN. By Elder T. M. Preble. pp. 234. 80c. by mail.

HEALTH REFORMER'S COOK BOOK. Price 30c; by mail, 32c.

THE SEVENTH-DAY SABBATH. Is its observance binding? By G. W. Baily. 23pp. Single 5c. postpaid.

SPIRITUAL EVIL: A Warning for the Unwary. By Thomas Carlyle. 3c. single; 5c. by mail; 20c. per dozen.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR; or, Spiritualism; What it is, and what it is not. Paper covers, $1.00; by mail; cloth, $1.25 by mail.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. 25c. per dozen; $1.50 per hundred. Single 4c., postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 5c; per dozen, 50c.

BETHLEHEM: a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.26. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.76.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England: $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9[illegible] per dozen; $75 00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 15 cts. additional postage

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new, Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

376 pages. Price by mail, $1.25.

The above works for sale at this office.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

—AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $5.00; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $4.00; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.50; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $2.50; postage 20 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.50; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

Any of the above will be sent by mail on receipt of the price.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.
WHAT IS MAN?
THE SOUL—WHAT IS IT?
THE SPIRIT—WHAT IS IT?
THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

All the above works in one volume, flexible cloth, in a compact, durable form, for use and preservation, for 35 cents, postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $[illegible] $3.50 per one hundred.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.
Price in cloth .... 75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers .... 60 cts., postage 12 cts.
Paper covers .... [illegible]
In paper covers by the dozen, by express, $4.7[illegible]

TRUSTING IN JESUS.

I know, O Lord, though all around is dark,
I need not fear;
Rough are the waves that toss my little bark,
But thou art near.
The stormy winds thy word alone fulfill,
Their rage shall cease,
And when thy voice shall give the charge "Be still";
All will be peace.

Yes, I shall see (soon as this storm has passed Across the soul)
That He, who slumbers not, held every blast
In his control;
And though, o'ershadowed by the present woe,
The heart may quail,
Strong in the grace, the strength thou dost bestow,
I shall prevail.

What tho' long cherished hopes, like autumn leaves,
All scattered lie,
Knowing thy love divine, this scarcely grieves,
For spring is nigh;
New hopes, God-given, shall then arise and bloom,
In beauty bright,
Therefore, in hope rejoicing, 'mid the gloom
I wait for light.

Thou precious Savior, by whose life I live,
Lighten my eyes!
Let me not miss the lessons thou dost give,
O make me wise!
Keep me, whilst tempest-driven on life's dark sea,
Close to thy side,
There, anchored safely by sure hope in thee,
Let me abide.

Jesus, thou art my all. What can I lose,
Since thou art mine?
Guide me, O best beloved, my portion choose,
For I am thine.
To the desired haven let me come
In thine own way:
There will be no more night in that fair home,
But endless day!

For the World's Crisis.

THOUGHTS ON A FEW THINGS.

THE RESURRECTION.

Editor World's Crisis:—

Allow me to cite your attention to one or two extracts from the November number of "The Last Vials," from the able pen of the veteran editor, R. A. Purdon. The first pertains to the resurrection of the dead, as follows: "'It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body'; that is to say, it is raised a body made of spiritual substance, as it is now a body made of material substance. This is the first change in the bodies of the saints. They are raised in bodies made of some indescribable substance which the apostle calls spiritual. For a spirit is just as real and as substantial as a piece of timber; but it is not material, nor is it affected like matter by the force of gravitation. This new spiritual body is the first external gift conferred upon the saints."

We are inclined to think, if we may be allowed to comment briefly on the above quotation, that it is an error to conceive in the contrast of material with spiritual things an absolute or complete opposition. That which is spiritual (pneumatikon) is very strongly opposed to that which is natural (ponchikon). But why is not that which is spiritual, material also? This is the question, and we think a rational question, not exceedingly difficult of answer.

The bodies of saints will be spiritual and material; for the body of Christ is the model and pattern for all. Jesus had the same body certainly after his resurrection that he had before, except that his blood had been shed for sin. Was it not the same body? Was it not material? Did not this same Jesus ascend into the highest heavens? As in the case of this great High Priest, so will it be in that of the immortal host of saints. Materiality is not then eliminated from the condition and immortal life of the saved. And we conceive the spirituality to be materiality refined, wonderfully modified in some properties, and possessing elasticity in a very peculiar manner.

It is perfectly certain that this organism of the saints is wholly unaffected by gravitation. We do know that it is indeed independent at pleasure of gravitation; easily superior to it. It does seem an irrational conception, that what is spiritual is essentially immaterial. Our esteemed brother does indeed aver that "a spirit is just as real and substantial as a piece of timber." True; but the distinction between matter and substance is rather refined and possibly hypothetical in fact. The simple fact is, that matter is capable of amazing variations in combination and manifestation. Analyzed, decomposed, and re-composed, it is susceptible of qualities which God alone can develope. God is able. His chemistries are infinite. We dare not say that oxygen, a component equally or at least manifestly in air and water, is an immaterial substance. The subtle and energetic gases are not immaterial, we apprehend. It is remarkable that the hardest and heaviest substances may by exceedingly intense heat be not only liquified, or melted, but even vaporized.

However, we need not pursue the subject. Christ's body is the pattern of all the bodies of the immortalized and redeemed children of Adam. We can not reasonably doubt that our venerable and esteemed brother of Torquay will heartily acquiesce in the comments we have ventured to subscribe to his few lines above quoted.

ADAM'S ORIGINAL NATURE.

The second paragraph we quote is this, relative to the original nature and condition of Adam in Eden:—

"Adam was created a mortal being, and as liable to death as we ourselves are now. Death was in the world ages before man was formed, as geology has proved beyond dispute; but Adam was preserved from the possibility of death by the simple privilege of the 'tree of life.' The tree of life was placed conspicuously in the centre of Eden, and Adam was permitted without restraint to eat of its life-giving fruit. As long as he had the tree of life he could not die, though in his own nature liable to death. The tree was his life. When he sinned, the tree of life was shut out from him, and he from it. He could eat of its fruit no more, and therefore he wasted away by slow degrees and died at last. His life was prolonged to nine hundred and thirty years by the virtues of the tree of whose fruit he had eaten before he was expelled from Paradise. The efficacy of the tree of life pervaded his whole frame, and invigorated his blood. The same efficacy descended with his blood to all his immediate race, and from them to others, till at last it became worn out. From generation to generation the efficacy of the tree of life grew weaker and weaker in the blood, because it could never be renewed after the tree had been once removed; at last all the virtues of the tree totally disappeared, and human life shrank down to its present limits, to its natural date—to threescore years and ten. The supplemental life of the life-giving tree was gone, and the natural life only was left behind. The great day will come when that wondrous tree shall be given back to man, that he may eat once more and live for ever."

We forbear comments at present, but we feel sure that brethren will be interested in observing the view of our brother across the water, in this great subject of man's true nature and state both antecedent and subsequent to the fall.

C. Colegrove.

For the World's Crisis.

ARE THESE THINGS SO?

Are we right in our faith? Have we the truth? Is it true that we are the chosen messengers of God, and have his last message to bear to this soon perishing world? Are we giving the great truths of God's revelation to man their final utterance?

Is there no mistake in this matter? If there is not, then do we occupy the grandest and most exalted position of any people that ever lived. If there is a mistake, and these things are not so, then are we the most mistaken and deceived people that any generation ever witnessed.

But while we have overwhelming evidence that we are right in our faith, and that we do occupy the position above mentioned, do we not act as if we thought we might be mistaken in all these things, and that there is after all no certainty that we are living in the last days of this world's history?

Who among us feels that he is occupying precisely the position that Noah did before the flood? And are we not? If the last judgment, the judgment of fire, is just before us, and coming in this generation, do we not hold the same relation to God and the world that the "preacher of rigeteousness" did to him and the antediluvians? Must not the world be warned of the last judgment as fully as it was of the first?

God had it warned in the first instance that he might be justified and the world condemned; and he will have it so done in the last, that he may stand approved and the world be without excuse. But by what means did God justify himself, and the world then become condemned? By the faith and preaching of Noah. God spoke to the people only through that chosen man, and in rejecting the message which he received from God, the people perished, and by their own act of unbelief. So must it be at the second and last judgment of the world.

God has called out a people and delivered to them a message of warning, and they like Noah must give it to the world, that the elect may be saved, the wicked condemned without excuse, and God justified before all.

Yes, beyond all reason for doubt, the last and greater judgment is at hand, and we are the messengers of God called and sent by him to proclaim it to all the world. How high the calling! how great the commission! Shall we fulfill them? Will God have to raise up others to do our work? My heart says,

Let me do my work, my Father;
Give it not to other hands;
I am willing here to labor,
Or to go to other lands.
Willing to go forth, and crying
Everywhere—the day is near!
Suffer want and persecution,
Till the final hour appear.

St. Louis, Dec. 3d, 1869. I. I. Leslie.

For the World's Crisis.

HOOSIC TUNNEL.

Many of our brethren know but little about the magnitude of these last wonders, and one is the tunneling of the Green Mountain, or the boring of a hole through it twenty feet in diameter, five miles long.

Having had an appointment to preach at North Adams, Mass., Nov. 25th, I took a ride of four miles to see the greatest work of the nation and world. We visited the west end, which is arched under ground about one and a half miles, seventy-five to one hundred and fifty feet deep, before getting to the solid rock, where the blasting began. Then comes a sudden rise of some two hundred feet higher.

After leaving the brick arch we enter the rock and go on one fourth of a mile to the east heading of the west end, some forty rods further east of what is called the west shaft; or you will better understand it by calling it a great well fifteen feet in diameter and three hundred and eighteen feet deep, just before another steep rise of about nine hundred feet. This shaft or well is for two purposes; first, at the bottom of this shaft two sets of hands begin digging west to meet those coming east, and the other set of hands dig east to meet those that began some six years ago at the east, and digging west, who have dug about one mile.

The work at the west shaft is wonderful. There is a large building fifty by sixty feet, with five steam engines, four to pump down air for the workmen; but before they breathe it, it is compressed hard enough to produce a power sufficient to churn their horizontal drill against the rock, when a valve opens and lets the air out for the workmen. So you see it answers two purposes. The rocks blasted out from both ways are loaded on to a little car that runs on a track from each way to the shaft; and an engine of forty horse power draws up the car load of stone three hundred and eighteen feet, when it is run off on another track and dumped down the mountain. There are two cars; one goes down empty, while the other comes up loaded with about a ton's weight; and about a load a minute is drawn up night and day.

There are about three hundred hands at work at a time in this shaft. There are three sets of hands working eight hours a day by candle light, three hundred and eighteen feet under ground. They eat their meals by candle light. Some of the hands have worked under ground twenty years in different parts of the world.

The temperature in this shaft at the bottom is about sixty degrees, plenty warm to work when I was there, Nov. 25th. It was so cold going the icicles froze on the horse's nose, and the anchor ice all over the bottom of the brakes when we arrived in the building over the shaft. It was plenty warm by the air that came out of the well. The car load of stone began to smoke as soon as they reached the top; they were run and dumped down the mountain into the valley.

They blast about three times a day. When the blast goes off the hands are in little cavities, or cupboards, cut in the sides of the tunnel, and the rocks pass by them. On hearing the report below, the air pumps are started to give a current strong enough to draw the powder smoke up out of the shaft, which will go up from one hundred to two hundred feet, when there is no wind.

The people at the bottom often lose the day of the week. On coming to the surface, a dispute arose with two of the hands whether it was Thursday or Friday, and it was submitted to me, my being a stranger and an above-ground man, as they called us.

Sundays are employed mostly in extending the track, and other repairs that can not be done while the work is in progress. Most of the help are foreigners, and live near the ground, in cheap houses. There is another shaft, about mid-way of the mountain, commenced in order to put two more sets of hands digging east and west to meet others coming towards them, making six sets of hands to work on the tunnel.

The middle shaft, or well, is to be about twelve hundred feet deep when done, and it is now down about nine hundred feet. This is the place where fifteen men were buried alive a few months ago by the building overhead taking fire, and the burned timbers falling down upon them. The water pumps being burned allowed the water to accumulate to the depth of from three to four hundred feet, which prevented the recovery of the bodies for months.

The east end is in about one and a half miles, and a track laid, and the stones drawn out with teams. The track and road rise as it works toward the centre. This gives the water a chance to run off each way, which is accumulating as the work progresses on the west end. The brook running out of the tunnel is sufficient to drive twenty horse power on a twenty-foot overshot wheel, and probably will be as large again when finished.

This road, if it is ever finished, will be a dark, damp, smoky hole to ride through half an hour in hot weather, and few could get through without taking cold. But the pride of people in this age will push on any worldly enterprise, cost what it will, health, or life. And as this is the greatest enterprise of this age, the great Pacific Railroad and Suez Canal notwithstanding, it will be pushed through, if time continues three years longer.

Much more might be said about this vast enterprise, but these few simple statements of facts may be of interest to the readers of this paper.

The little church at North Adams is reviving. The work has just started again, and they want brethren to call on them, visit the Tunnel, and preach to them, if they can preach a sermon in fifty or sixty minutes, and are of good report among our tried preachers. For the services of such, they will pay what they are able. Scatterers and hobbyists need not call. Address Isaac Blanchard, Jr., North Adams, Mass.

Hiram Munger, for the brethren.

For the World's Crisis.

"PIVOT WORDS OF SCRIPTURE."

BY THE REV. PHILIP BENNETT POWER, M. A.*

A quotation from the preface will afford a good insight respecting the method of arrangement adopted by the author of this volume.

"It is not easy to find, for a work of this character, a title which will not interfere with some one already in use, and which will at once avoid what is commonplace, and give a fair index to the character of the book. The title 'Pivot Words of Scripture,' seems to answer these requirements. A pivot being a small point on which something else turns, it seemed to be very descriptive of those little words of Holy Scripture upon which actually turns the interpretation of a passage, as in the case of 'For' in Mark 6: 52, or by which other teachings of importance are brought to our notice. Especial reference may be made to teachings by contrast, of which Holy Scripture is so full; these revolve for the most part on the little words 'Though' and 'Yet'; and to those small words we are indebted for some of the most powerful teachings of God's word, whether they relate to his mercy or his wrath."

The opening chapter treats of the "pivot" word "Then," and the passage of Scripture discoursed of is this—"Then the devil leaveth him; and, behold, angels came and ministered unto him." Matt. 15: 11. The subject, of course, is "the temptation of Christ." The author treats quite fully on this point:—

"Protracted temptation is not, of necessity, any sign of short-coming in sanctification. Temptation is no sign of actual evil. The words are scarcely uttered, 'This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased,' when the temptation of this beloved one begins."

Another point brought out is this:—

"Satan did not leave our Lord until he had ended all the temptation; then he departed for a season. The temptation was not only protracted, but it was uninterrupted. Wave followed wave in quick and steady succession. The Father all the time is watching with loving interest the sore trial; the angels were waiting, it may be, with holy impatience to succor him, but it may not be; alone, in solitude, must this hand-to-hand conflict, this great duel between the two mighty chiefs—the Prince of light and the prince of darkness, the Prince of life and the prince of death—be fought.

We who are soldiers of Christ, and engaged in the same warfare, and with the same enemy as his, are called to undergo what we may designate as a season of uninterrupted temptation. It may be that we think it hard that we should not have breakings in of light, and heavenly messengers of strength and peace; as though we were the best judges of our own endurance we think, 'If I be not succored I shall fall'; but on such occasion we must fall back upon this scene, and, in heart, stand with Jesus; and we shall certainly be carried through.

The angels did not come to Christ until Satan was gone. There was divine provision for exhaustion. When Hagar in her extremity cast her child under a shrub, and sat down in exhaustion and despair, her eyes were opened to see a well of water, from whence she replenished the empty bottle, and saved her life and that of Ishmael. When Daniel sank in exhaustion on the ground, there came an angel from God to strengthen him. So with Christ in the wilderness; when the devil had ended all of his temptation, and been worsted in the fight, then the angels came to strengthen and minister to the exhausted conqueror.

Dear reader, do you not find thine own experience touched in all this? Hast thou not known what weeks of protracted, uninterrupted temptation are, unvisited by one perceptible ray of light, one conscious feeling of strength from on high, but alone in thy weakness seemingly, was left to contend with Satan? Again and again would the suggestion flash through the mind—'I must have sinned, or I would not be thus forsaken. I must have yielded, though I know not how, else I would not be so long left desolate, with these fiery darts piercing me through and through.' Yet all the while holding with a trembling hand the shield of faith; not casting quite away thy confidence, though it seemed presumption to believe thyself still the 'beloved' of the Father, when so utterly forsaken, so utterly devoid of comfort.

But when sinking exhausted, almost ready to yield the all-conquering shield, scarcely able to grasp it with weakening fingers, lo! behold the light is breaking through the rifted cloud of blackness, the angels of consolation are on the wing; they lift thee up and strengthen thee; the bread of heaven and the living water are given to refresh thy soul; the Comforter assures thy heart of victory, and with exultant voice thy songs of praise break forth to thy Savior and Redeemer."

We intended to merely glance at the subject of the initial chapter, but as we touched on its points here and there, we realized so fully their truthfulness by the remembrance of our own protracted conflicts, inward desolation, and the sweet ministrations which succeeded, that we have lingered here, and we trust not altogether in vain; that other hearts also who have suffered, will thereby be comforted.

M. D. W.

* Author of "I Wills" of the Psalms, "I Wills of Christ," etc. New York: Robert Carter & Brothers.

1 COR. 1: 30.

Sickness is a hallowed season,
If in God the soul confide;
Refuges of human reason
Failing then, are cast aside.
Man his utter ignorance learns,
And to Christ for wisdom turns.

Lord, my every hope reposes,
Solely, thankfully, on thee;
But as yet thy light discloses
Guilt and only guilt in me;
Take off my pollutedness,
Robe me in thy righteousness.

Though I feel my sufferings painful,
Worn in body, faint in mind,
Welcome they will prove and grateful,
If they work the end designed;
Make it, Lord, my hourly prayer,
In thy holiness to share.

Soon thy glorious work completed,
Sufferings I shall need no more,
Pure in heart and new created,
Thou thine image wilt restore;
Then from every bond set free,
Lord, thy glory I shall see.

—Selected by Fannie H. Bolles.

THE PRIDE OF FASHION.

Follow the fashion? Why not? No matter how expensive, foolish, absurd, despotic, ridiculous, ruinous to body, mind or soul, take the popular course—in the church and out of it.

No matter whether the dress be long or short, hooped or not hooped, bloomer or not bloomer, up to the knees or trailing in the mud and dirt, so be it is in the fashion. Is it fashionable to wear tight shoes, pinching the feet and toes? wear them—corns or no corns, all the same. Is it fashionable to wear jewelry? wear it—on the breast, the arms, the fingers, in the ears, rings from one to four on each finger—ear-rings, large and showy—necklaces, two or three in number, with hearts and crosses dependent from the same—bracelets, casing the arms half way to the elbow—a minute watch affixed to the waist, and moored to the neck with a golden cable—a world of little knick-knacks called "charms."

All right, on with them, cost or no cost, Bible or no Bible—it's the fashion. If a dress or shawl cost fifty, a hundred, or two hundred dollars, instead of five or ten, on with it, bankruptcy or no bankruptcy—it's the fashion—we'll go it, sink or swim. Is it fashionable to write, puff, and read novels, go to the theatre, the dance, play the fiddle? "On with the dance, let joy be unconfined." It is the fashion.

It is fashionable to make holiday feasts, New Year's calls, load the tables and side boards with wines, cordials, rich dainties, poisonous confectioneries, eat, drink, gormandize, play the glutton, the drunkard, and starve the poor? Go ahead, it's the fashion—no matter, all right! "Like priest, like people." Is it fashionable to hold fancy fairs, tea-parties, soirees, oyster suppers, pic-nics, etc., to raise money to sustain the pastor, pay off church debts, cushion the pulpit, etc., have a jolly time of it, eat and drink to the full, return home before the morning dawns?—no matter, let us do evil that good may come. Sometimes, also, sinners, men of the world, have balls, dancing parties, etc., for the benefit of the poor, the widows, and the orphans, on the same principle—it's the fashion. Money we want—money we will have.

"Fashion rules the world, and a most tyrranical mistress she is, compelling people to submit to the most inconvenient thing imaginable, for fashion's sake. She pinches our feet with tight shoes, or chokes us with a tight handkerchief, or squeezes the breath out of our body by tight lacing.

She makes people sit up at nights when they ought to be in bed, and keeps them in bed in the morning when they ought to be up and doing.

She makes it vulgar to wait on ourselves, and genteel to live idle and useless.

She makes people visit when they would rather stay at home, eat when they are not hungry, and drink when they are not thirsty.

She invades our pleasures, and interrupts our business.

She compels people to dress gaily, whether upon their property or that of others; whether agreeable to the word of God or the dictates of pride.

She ruins the health and produces sickness, destroys life and occasions death.

She makes foolish parents, invalids of children, and servants of all.

She is a tormentor of conscience, despoiler of morality, an enemy of religion, and no one can be her companion and enjoy either.

She is a despot of the highest grade, full of intrigue and cunning; and yet husbands, wives, fathers, mothers, sons, daughters, and servants, black and white, voluntarily have become her obedient servants and slaves, and vie with one another to see who shall be most obsequious."

Dr. Edward Dixon, in "Natural History of Crime," asks, "Is it saying more than can be substantiated, that our national taste for low and unintellectual adornment is the cause of half the dishonest failures, half the divorces, elopements, and crimes of a more secret and revolting character, that occur in our cities?"

There is no truth more firmly established among medical men than that disease follows fashion as much as bonnets do. When thin slippers prevail, consumption is the prevailing epidemic with females in every fashionable community in the country. When the low neck-dresses are in the ascendant, sore throat and quinsy are the raging maladies. When "bustles" and "bishops" made their appearance, spinal affections became "the ton." The reign of corsets is denoted by collapsed lungs, dyspepsia, and a general derangement of the digestive organs. Indeed so intimately are dress and disease connected, that an eminent and skillful doctor says, that all he needs to determine of what a majority of the fashionable women are dying, is to have an inventory of their wardrobe handed to him.

If there is any one fashion more cruel and absurd than another, it is that of making little girls' dresses and skirts to be worn entirely off from the shoulder. One cannot meet a child whose mother is more fashionable than wise, without feeling distressed for the efforts of the little one to use its arms, and constant shrugging of the shoulders, to give one or the other a little liberty.

And is there no other evil attendant on this loose mode of dressing, save ill-health and personal deformity? Take from a lovely girl modesty, virtuous purity, a sense of female delicacy, and what remains?—Religious Her.

Gems.

— It is God's goodness to men to blast all things in the world to them, and to break their fairest hopes, that they may be constrained to look above to himself: he beats them from all shores that he may bring them to the rock that is higher than they.

— How can a discreet, and humane man allow himself to be led into harsh and rash judgment of wise and good men? What are wisdom and goodness worth, were they not employed to defend wisdom and goodness, when such defence becomes necessary?

— A pious cottager residing in the midst of a long and dreary heath, being asked by a visitor, "Are you not sometimes afraid in your lonely situation, especially in the winter?" he replied: "Oh! no, for Faith shuts the door at night, and Mercy opens it in the morning."

— The affected gaiety of a wicked man is like the flowery surface of Mount Etna, beneath which, materials are gathering for an eruption that will one day reduce all its beauties to ruin and desolation.

— Then does the good man lay himself down to sleep with sweet composure in the midst of waves and storms; when he has lulled all the cares and sorrows of his heart to sleep, by pouring out his prayer to God.

— That is the sweetest life in the world, for the soul to be dressing itself for the espousals of the great King, putting on more of the ornaments and beauties of holiness.

— Such as have learned this way of laying their pained head and heart in his bosom, they are truly happy, though in the world's language they be never so miserable.

— If you hate your enemies, you will contract such a vicious habit of mind, as by degrees will break out upon those who are your friends, or those who are indifferent to you.

— By doing good with his money, a man as it were stamps the image of God upon it, and makes it pass current for the merchandise of heaven.

— We deceive ourselves when we fancy that only weakness needs support. Strength needs it far more. A straw or a feather sustains itself long in the air.

— If thou wouldst find much peace and favor with God and man, be very low in thine own eyes. Forgive thyself little and others much.

— Study pure and holy walking if you would have your confidence firm, and have boldness and joy in God.

— The man who, when he is alone and without witnesses, is the same as when he is in public, is nearly always an honest man.

They are brave who dare to speak
For the fallen and the weak;
They are brave who calmly choose
Hatred, scoffing and abuse,
Rather than in silence shrink
From the truth they needs must think;
They are brave who dare to be
In the right with two or three.

— When Providence has good will toward a man, it appears to him in the likeness of a faithful friend.

— Do not take away from any one opinions that render him happy, if thou canst not give him better ones.

— We cannot believe in the experiences and projects of great souls until we have had such ourselves.

— Always manage so as to have some path open to return to kindly sentiment.

— Grace keeps the precious germ alive, when and wherever sown.

— He who never changes any of his opinions, never corrects any of his mistakes.

RELIGION IN PARIS.

When a stranger first visits Paris, and sees the magnificent churches which it contains, he can readily believe that he is in a christian land; but Sunday dispels greatly this impression. There are men engaged in building a house; here is one hauling, yonder is a man with a hand-cart, while another is lugging a large quantity of clothes for sale on the street, or to deliver to a customer.

Indifference to religion seems to characterize the mass of Frenchmen in Paris. There is, of course, a considerable number of downright infidels in the city, but apathy seems to be the prevailing fact among the men. The men do not generally go to church, but leave that to the women, and regard it as a female accomplishment, while work is their own office.

It is evident that the French mind has not recovered from the effects of the revolution of 1789. The corruptions of the Roman Catholic Church, and the tyranny and oppression exercised over the French people by their rulers, and the writings of Rousseau and Voltaire, prepared the way for the terrible revolution. The mass of the French people are unwilling to embrace Protestantism. It is Catholicism or infidelity; they leap from superstition into infidelity; but not being able to stay there—for the moral nature of man abhors unbelief—they take another leap into spiritualism; for I learn that there are many of that creed in Paris.—Foreign Cor. in Free Methodist.

MERCY AND PARDON.

In the reign of the first Napoleon there was an insurrection in Paris. One of the ringleaders was brought before the emperor; and as this was his second offence against the government, he was sentenced to be transported.

The day after the trial, it was told Napoleon that the child of the convicted man was waiting to see him. "Bring her in," said Napoleon; and a tearful, trembling little girl, on being led in, cast herself at his feet and implored him to have mercy on her father.

"My child," said the emperor, touched by her distress, "this is the second time your father has been guilty of treason; I cannot save him."

"Oh, sir," said the kneeling child, "it is not justice we want, but mercy and pardon."

Napoleon, much moved, raised the girl to her feet, and said, "For your sake I will release your father."

Does not this story apply to us? Are not our wants the same as that little child's? "It is not justice" we want from the great King, even the Lord our God, but mercy and pardon for Christ's sake.

"Can't You trust the Hand that was nailed to the Cross?"

I heard an aged servant of God once say the sentence which I have written at the head of this article, during an address before a meeting of Synod. The times were troublous. Difficulties hedged the path. The churches were poor, and their responsibilities were great. As the pastors and elders had met together, questions of great importance pressed upon them. Some were discouraged.

"Can't you trust the hand that was nailed to the cross?" A feeling of awe, of rest, of casting care upon God, came over every one at the thought. If not that hand, whose shall lead us? If not that, how shall we ever find our way home, to the Father's house?

Dear christian friend, discouraged perhaps, saddened, seeing no light, trust Him who hung on the cross for you; sing with a sweet poet, who has had her days of darkness,—

"I have a heritage above,
Which yet I cannot see,
But the hand that bled to make it mine,
Is keeping it for me."

☞ "A prudent man," says a witty Frenchman, "is like a pin. His head prevents him from going too far."

BEAUTIFUL DEATH SCENE.

When one of Martin Luther's children lay on her death-bed, the great man approached her and said, "My dear little daughter, my beloved Margaret, you would willingly remain with your earthly parents; but if God calls you, you will go with your heavenly Father."

"Yes, dear father, it is as God pleases."

"Dear little girl," he exclaimed, "Oh, how I love you! The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak." He then took the Bible and read to her the passage, "Thy dead men shall live; together with my dead body shall they arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in dust; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead." He then said, "My daughter, enter thou into thy resting place in peace."

She turned her eyes toward him, and said with touching simplicity, "Yes, father."

Never give Men up.—I sometimes give men up for a little while, and say, "Well, his hour is not yet come; something will happen; I will keep a general look after him, and by and by try him again." It is not worth while to give anybody up as long as you can keep the sexton's hands off from him. If you are a relative of a person, as a mother to a son, or constantly near a person, as going from the same house or shop, you can never give him up. If you ever feel discouraged or impatient and ugly—as I suppose you sometimes do, Brother——, say to yourself what I say to myself every day in the year—"Well, if God should treat me as I feel just now I treated that man, what would become of me?" When I think of the generosity with which God has treated me, and there come those seasons of nature when I know the graciousness, the purity, the sweetness, the ineffableness of God, I feel as though I had been like the swine trampling through such a nature, and I say to myself: "Well, if God can bear me, cannot I bear men?" Every day that comes and goes, we go to God to unburden our consciences of sin, and yet we look upon men and say: "Shall I give them up!" So long as they have life, and so long as you have life, don't give up anybody.—Henry Ward Beecher.

An Illustration.—In a recent lecture-room talk on God's ways of answering our prayers and dealing with us, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher said:

"Once a cat of mine had her kittens. We went and looked at them, and she was disturbed to think we knew where they were. Determined to convey them to a safe place she came back, took a little kitten in her mouth, and after seven or eight mouthings got the right hold, and away she went. If that kitten thought anything, it thought to be grabbed that way was hard. When God's providence takes us in the teeth, we think it is a dragon; but he is taking us into safe places; and when we are laid down carefully, who says that the teeth met or that the skin was broken?"

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

A LITTLE SERMON.

"Come," said Allan, "I will preach you a little sermon."

"Well," said Johnny, "I will listen."

So Allan took the great Bible, and found this text, which was so easy that Johnny could read it himself: "I am the door."

"Here is a little text for a little boy who is four years old," said Allan, for it has just four words in it, one for every year.

"The first word is 'I'. That has only one letter in it. This means the Lord Jesus, the good Savior who loves little children.

"The second word is 'am.' That has two letters in it. When Jesus says 'I am the door,' of course he doesn't mean that he is a door like that you shut just now; but this little sermon is to show you how he is like a door.

"The third word is 'the,' which has three letters. Jesus says the door, because there is only one door into the kingdom of heaven.

"The fourth word is 'door,' which has four letters in it. A door lets people into the house; and if there was no door, they could not get in. So the Lord Jesus lets his people into the kingdom of heaven; and if it was not for him, they could not get in at all. A door keeps out the rain, and the dogs and thieves, and so Jesus keeps away all evil and hurtful things out of his beautiful kingdom.

"Now, when you want to go into a house, you go straight to the door; and so, if we want to go into the kingdom of heaven, we must go to Jesus, and ask him to let us in."

So Allan knelt down, and little Johnny by him, and they prayed to the dear Lord to make them his own good children, so that they might go into his beautiful city when he comes.—Child's Delight.

A HYMN FOR CHILDREN.

The morning bright,
With rosy light,
Has waked me from my sleep:
Father, I own,
Thy love alone
Thy little one doth keep.

All through the day,
I humbly pray,
Be Thou my guard and guide;
My sins forgive,
And let me live,
Blest Jesus, near thy side.

O, make thy rest
Within my breast,
Great Spirit of all grace!
Make me like thee,
Then shall I be
Preserved to see thy face.

EDDIE'S SERMON.

Eddie Jones (a little colored boy) knocked timidly at Mrs. Ray's door, and begged for a piece of bread for his sick mother. Mrs. Ray knew, that when Eddie's mother was well, she was very industrious, and made her family comfortable; and she was quite ready to comply with the little boy's request, and give her a helping hand, now that she was unable to work. Accordingly, she took a loaf of bread, wrapped it in a paper, and gave it to Eddie; but, just as he was taking his leave, she remembered that he was probably hungry. She called him back, seated him at the table, and gave him a plate of cold griddle-cakes, with syrup poured over them. Eddie ate them with infinite relish: and, when he had finished the last mouthful, he said, "These cakes are so good, it 'peared like as if the Lord had given 'em to me; and I thank Mrs. Ray too."

Eddie didn't think of preaching a sermon when he said these words; but they answered the purpose of one to little Sarah Ray, who was standing by the table where he was eating; for they made her think how many more blessings she enjoyed than Eddie did, and, alas! how much less grateful she had been to God. So far from thanking him for her food, she remembered that the very day before, at dinner, she had pushed away from her, in displeasure, a plate of pudding, because there were no raisins in it. It was a small action; and perhaps, although she knew it grieved her kind mother, she never would have thought of it again if Eddie's words had not roused her conscience. If he was so grateful, she thought, for the crumbs which fell from her father's luxurious table, how sinful it was for her ever to complain!

She felt very much ashamed and reproved; and from that time, by God's assistance, her conduct in this particular was much improved; and as reformation in one respect often leads to the correction of numerous faults, so it happened, in this case, that Sarah not only felt more thankful for her own comforts, but she was more compassionate, and thoughtful of those who were in want and distress, and willing sometimes to deny herself that she might relieve them.

"I have written this true story from the suspicion that some of our readers may need just such a sermon as Eddie's, and with the hope that they will profit by it as much as did Sarah Ray.—Child at Home.

LETTER WRITING.

Young readers, begin early to correspond with your friends at a distance. Communicate good things—heavenly. Begin just as soon as you can hold a pen. Write as you talk—plain, simple, intelligent gospel language, God fearingly. Tell your little friends and great friends abroad, far and near, about the blessed Jesus—how he died to save sinners, and how blessed it is to serve him with a perfect heart, to do good and communicate. Tell them the only sure way to be happy is to make happy—that it is "more blessed to give than to receive."

In all your correspondings and communicatings, by pen and by word of mouth, be sure to keep wisdom which is from above vividly before you; let no corrupt communication proceed from your pen or out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace to the hearers and the readers. "Let your speech be alway with grace, seasoned with salt; that ye may know how to answer every man." Col. iv. 6.

Write to your friends just as you would speak to them if present; condense your thoughts; compress your ideas: say what you say in as few words as possible; use correct language, pure, idiomatic; mind your pauses—interrogation points. Aim at everything graceful, lovely, and of good report.

Parents beloved, will you see to this? Encourage your little sons and daughters in this excellent method of improvement—a special means of grace.

In this epistolary exercise the blessed truths of the Bible may be developed, early impressed, indelibly fixed—grace on grace—things heavenly and divine.—"Apples of Gold," etc.

JESUS WHISPERING.

"What is conscience?" said a Sunday school teacher one day, to the little flock that gathered around to learn the words of life.

Several of the children answered, one saying one thing, and another another, until a little timid child spoke out:—

"It is Jesus whispering in our hearts."

Does Jesus whisper in your heart? When you do right, does he approve? When you do wrong, does he rebuke? Does he make your heart sad when you have sinned, and happy when you have done rightly? Be thankful, then, for this, and remember always to heed the Savior's whisper, and study his word, and pray to know his will, and then you will be safely guided to his heavenly home at last.—Little Christian.

THE PERSEVERING BOY.

"Sir," said a boy, addressing a man, "do you want a boy to work for you?"

"No, answered the man: "I have no such want."

The boy looked disappointed; at least, the man thought so; and he asked, "Have you been long seeking a place?"

"I have asked at a good many places," said the boy. "A woman told me you had been after a boy; but it is not so, I find."

"Don't be discouraged," said the man in a friendly tone.

"Oh, no, sir!" said the boy cheerfully: "because this is a very big world, and I feel certain God has something for me to do in it. I am only trying to find it."

"Just so, just so," said a gentleman who overheard the talk. "Come with me, my boy: I am in want of somebody like you." He was a doctor; and the doctor thought any boy so anxious to find his work would be likely to do it faithfully when he found it: so he took the boy into his employ, and found him all that he desired.

Yes, God has something for everybody to do in this world. It's "a very big world," and there's room enough for all.—S. S. Advocate.

NO USE FOR IT.

At school, little boys and girls learn lessons about how many inches make a foot; how many ounces make a pound, and how many farthings make a penny. One day when the lesson was the table called "Ale and Beer measure," a little boy, remarkable for the correct manner in which he usually said all his lessons, was quite unprepared.

"How is this, John?" said his teacher.

"I thought it was of no use," said John.

"No use!" interrupted the teacher.

"No, sir; it's ale and beer measure," said John.

"I know it is," said the teacher.

"Well, sir," said the little boy, "father and I both think it is of no use to learn about ale and beer, as we mean never to buy, sell, or drink it.

HOW TO MAKE MOTHER HAPPY.

"Why, mother, how bright and cheerful you look to-night! what has happened?"

"I feel very happy, my dear, because my little boy has really tried to be good all day. Once when his sister Katie teased him, and he spoke quick and cross to her, he immediately turned round of his own accord, and told her he was wrong, and asked her to forgive him. I believe I should grow young, and never look tired or unhappy any more, if every day my little boy and girl were as thoughtful and unselfish, and loving as they have been to-day."

☞ Who is wise? He that is teachable. Who is mighty? He that conquers himself. Who is rich? He that is contented. Who is honored? He that honoreth others.

☞ Be careful of your good name, for "it is better than precious ointment," "rather to be chosen than great riches."

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.........$2.50 a year.
Five copies six months to one address.........$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address.........$10.00.
Same rate for any larger number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Postage.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

Rules for Correspondents.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—Private.
Over all business matters, write—Business.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's Name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
Private Letters.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write Private on the outside of the envelope.
☞ Put business matters and appointments on separate pieces of paper, so that they can be detached without interfering with any other communication.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,
THE YOUNG PILGRIM.
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.
TERMS.
Payable always in advance.

Single copy, 30 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 25 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 20 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for postage.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 740. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1869. VOL. XXX.—NO. 14.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, Editor.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL, A. ROSS.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
D. MATHEWSON, H. V. DAVIS,
M. BATCHELOR, J. G. HAMBLIN,
H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
Treasurer and Business Agent.

☞ The Crisis is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

IN THE DARK VALLEY.

"He hath set darkness in my paths."—Job 19: 8.

The way is dark, my Father;
A night is o'er me spread;
No light is now before me,
I know not where to tread.
I'm standing still and waiting
For thee to come to me;
Reach out thy hand and lead me,
Or give me light to see.

I have not wandered, Father;
Here, in the narrow way,
My feet are still abiding,
They have not gone astray;
But clouds have gathered o'er me,
The path I cannot see;
All now is dark before me—
Reach out thy hand to me.

Why doth this darkness gather
Around my pathway so?
Why doth this night, my Father,
Fall on the way I go?
Say, is it not the narrow
And straight way unto thee?
Why then doth darkness shroud me,
So that I cannot see?

For thy sweet voice I listen;
I reach to feel thee near;
I look into the darkness,
To see the light appear.
I'm standing still, my Father;
I'm waiting here for thee;
O, come and lead me onward;
The way, O let me see.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 1st, 1869. I. I. L.

REPORT
OF THE
FIRST ADVENT CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE OF NO. AMERICA.

This conference convened at Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 17th, 1869, according to the proposition issued by the Advent Christian Convention held at Buchanan, Mich., in Nov., 1868, as follows:—

A PROPOSITION TO THE ADVENT CHRISTIANS OF NORTH AMERICA.

Whereas, The Advent Christian body of this Continent, which has been called out of the world and the various sects, should be one in faith, hope, and work; and

Whereas, Unity of action is essential to the proper accomplishment of their great work for the present generation; therefore

Resolved, That a General Conference of Advent Christians be called, to be composed of representatives from all the States and Territories of the United States, and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Resolved, That this Conference shall consist of delegates from the several Advent Christian Conferences of the United States and Canada, each Conference being entitled to three delegates. Provided, that in States, Territories, or Provinces, where there are no Conferences, and isolated Advent Christian Churches exist, such Churches may unite and send one delegate.

Resolved, That a committee of seven be appointed; three from the East, three from the West, and one from the dominion of Canada, who shall make arrangements for the time and place of meeting of said General Conference. Provided, that the place of meeting be as central as possible. We suggest Rochester, N. Y., or Buchanan, Mich.

The above action in reference to this proposed General Conference is subject to the approval of the several Advent Christian Conferences.

John Couch, New Hampshire; Miles Grant, Massachusetts; S. G. Mathewson, Vermont; Joshua V. Himes, Michigan; Wm. Sheldon, Wisconsin; O. R. Fassett, Minnesota; and John Porter, Canada, were appointed a Committee to arrange for this Conference.

The meeting was called to order by Eld. John Couch, of New Hampshire. After some brief and appropriate remarks by Bro. Couch, the familiar hymn, commencing,

"God moves in a mysterious way,"

was sung, and prayer was offered by Eld. W. Sheldon, of Wisconsin. By vote, Eld. John Couch was called to the chair, and Elds. A. W. Sibley and O. R. Fassett called to act as Secretaries.

It was voted that the Chair appoint a committee on credentials. The Chair appointed James Hemenway, D. R. Mansfield, and D. Mathewson.

Voted, That the Chair appoint a committee to draft a constitution for the Conference, said committee to be composed of one of the delegates from each State.

Voted, That the records of this Conference be preserved and placed on file.

While the committee on credentials were preparing to report, the delegates expressed their feelings in reference to the Conference and its objects.

The committee on credentials reported the following members (those marked with an asterisk were absent):—

Maine.—I. C. Wellcome,* W. H. Mitchell,* and F. A. Baker.*

New Hampshire.—A. Ross,* A. W. Sibley, and J. G. Smith.*

Vermont.—D. Mathewson, J. A. Cleaveland, and J. Wiswell.

Massachusetts.—S. W. Thurber, E. McCullock, and J. Hemenway.

Connecticut.—W. S. Campbell, Sidney Hall, and A. H. Steele.

New York.—B. P. Stevens, W. A. Fenn, and W. J. Hobbs.

New York City, and its vicinity.—H. A. King.

Philadelphia, and vicinity.—J. M. Stetler.

Ohio.—H. G. McCullock.

Michigan.—D. R. Mansfield, J. H. Whitmore, and W. L. Himes.

Wisconsin.—W. Sheldon, G. G. Godfrey, and J. Wilbur.

Iowa.—Moses Chandler, and P. S. W. Deyo.

Minnesota.—O. R. Fassett.

Illinois.—C. C. Ramsay.

New Jersey.—A. H. Brown.

Canada (Quebec).—John Porter, D. Lawson, and J. D. Daniels.

Canada (Ontario).—John McClellan.

Members of the Committee.—John Couch, S. G. Mathewson, J. V. Himes, and Miles Grant.

The report of the committee on credentials was accepted and approved.

Voted, To proceed to the permanent organization of the Conference.

Voted, That the Chair appoint a committee of five to nominate officers for the Conference.

The Chair appointed as committee on nominations, J. Hemenway, D. R. Mansfield, D. Mathewson, H. G. McCullock, and A. W. Sibley.

The Chair appointed as committee to draft a constitution the following: D. Mathewson, J. Hemenway, A. H. Steele, W. J. Hobbs, H. G. McCullock, J. V. Himes, W. Sheldon, P. S. W. Deyo, O. R. Fassett, A. H. Brown, D. Lawson, C. C. Ramsay, and A. W. Sibley.

Adjourned till 1.30 o'clock P. M.

Met as adjourned. After singing, Bro. S. G. Mathewson offered prayer.

Voted, That the Chair appoint a committee of three to prepare rules for the guidance of this Conference in its deliberations.

The Chair appointed as that committee, J. H. Whitmore, W. Sheldon, and O. R. Fassett.

Voted, That each delegation from the different States report the state of the cause there, when no other business is pending.

Voted, That the Chair appoint a business committee of five to prepare business to come before the Conference, after the adoption of the constitution.

Voted, That ten delegates constitute a quorum to transact business during the absence of the committee to draft a constitution.

Voted, That each delegation from the different States hand a briefly written statement of the condition of the cause in their section to the Secretary. Various reports both verbal and written were made, in accordance with this resolution.

The committee appointed for that purpose reported the following constitution:—

CONSTITUTION OF THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE OF NORTH AMERICA.

Art. I. This Conference shall be known as the Advent Christian Conference of North America.

Art. II. Sec. 1. This Conference shall be composed of delegates—either ministerial or lay—appointed by the various local Advent Christian conferences, and Christian conferences co-operating with this body.

Sec. 2. Each local conference shall be entitled to send three delegates.

Art. III. Sec. 1. The officers of this Conference shall consist of a President, Vice-President, a Corresponding and a Recording Secretary, Treasurer, and Auditor. These officers, together with a standing committee of five, shall be elected by ballot at the regular meetings of the Conference.

Sec. 2. The Board of Directors, as an Executive Committee, shall have power to transact unfinished and such new business as may arise between the regular sessions, subject to the approval of this Conference when regularly convened.

Rec. 3. The Board of Directors shall appoint the time and place of the regular meetings of the Conference, and shall call extra sessions at the request of three local conferences.

Art. IV. The objects of this Conference shall be to take charge of all the interests of the cause, not now provided for by the local conferences, and the Publishing Associations.

Art. V. This Conference shall exercise no legislative control over the local conferences.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Art. VI. 1. All meetings of the Conference shall be opened by devotional exercises.
2. Appointment of committee on credentials.
3. Report of the Board.
4. Election of officers.
5. Appointment of committees.
6. Reports of committees.
7. Unfinished and miscellaneous business.

Art. VII. The regular sessions of this Conference shall be held once in two years; provided, that extra sessions may be called by the Board in accordance with Art. III. Sec. 3; or by a vote of a majority of the Board.

Art. VIII. This Constitution may be amended by a vote of two-thirds of all the members present at a regular meeting.

Adjourned till Thursday at 9 A. M.

Met on Thursday according to adjournment, Bro. Couch in the chair. Prayer by Bro. J. M. Snook. The Chair reported the following as committee on business: O. R. Fassett, S. G. Mathewson, W. L. Himes, Miles Grant, and D. R. Mansfield.

The constitution, having been read and discussed, was adopted by a unanimous vote.

The committee on nominations of permanent officers reported the following: President, John Couch, New Hampshire; Vice President, Wm. Sheldon, Wisconsin; Corresponding Secretary, W. L. Himes, Michigan; Recording Secretary, A. W. Sibley, New Hampshire; Treasurer, D. Mathewson, New York; Auditor, H. G. McCullock, Ohio; Committee, S. G. Mathewson, D. Mansfield, J. Hemenway, F. Burr, and J. M. Stetler.

Adjourned till 1 30 P. M. to give way for religious services appointed for Thanksgiving. A sermon was delivered by Bro. H. G. McCullock.

Met as adjourned. Prayer by Bro. M. Grant.

Voted, That Bro. S. W. Thurber be instructed to deposit a ballot for the Conference officers nominated. He having done so, the officers nominated were declared elected.

Eld. Couch, on taking the chair of the permanent organization, made some very feeling remarks on the importance of united action in the good cause here represented, and of our having divine aid from God in these days of peril.

Voted, That the Chairman furnish the Conference with a report of his address for publication.

The committee on rules reported, and their report was adopted, and the committee discharged.

The following are the

RULES OF ORDER.

1. Any member desiring to address the Conference, shall first rise, and upon being recognized by the Chair, may proceed in order.

2. No member without unanimous consent shall speak more than once to the same question until all who wish to speak shall have spoken.

3. Members shall be limited to speeches of five minutes each.

4. Privileged Questions.—Motions to adjourn, the previous question, to lay on the table, to postpone indefinitely, shall take precedence in the order named, and shall be decided without debate.

5. Amendments.—Any question may be amended; but no amendment can be amended the second time. In voting, the amendment or amendments shall first be decided, and then the question shall recur on the original motion.

6. The presiding officer shall decide all questions of order not provided for in the above rules, subject to the usual right of appeal.

Voted, To invite all the brethren and sisters present to participate in the deliberations of this Conference.

The committee on business reported the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, God in his providence has called us to preach the everlasting gospel of his Son and to awaken the church at large to the important subject of the coming of the Redeemer; therefore

Resolved, That we pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into his harvest, and that we do all in our power to push the truth in all parts of our own beloved land by sending the living preacher into remote and destitute regions, especially through the southern part of the United States, and by distributing tracts and publications universally as the leaves of the autumn, and so awaken an interest North, South, East and West, as has not been heretofore accomplished.

The above preamble and resolution, after some discussion, were adopted.

Resolved, That union and co-operation in publishing the gospel of the kingdom is the first duty of Advent-Christians.

The following question was reported by the business committee for consideration:

What is the best way to bring the important truths entrusted to us as a people before the Christian churches of our generation?

The following brethren discussed this question till a motion to adjourn prevailed: Whitmore, Ingmire, Grant, S. G. Mathewson, J. V. Himes, Fassett, Hemenway, Cleveland, Stetler, Ramsay, Blain, Sheldon, and Snook.

Adjourned till 9 A. M.

Friday, 9 A. M. Prayer was offered by the President.

By vote the Chair appointed a committee of three to arrange for preaching during the Conference, viz: H. Pratt, Miles Grant, and W. Sheldon.

Voted. That the Chair appoint a committee of five to confer with the Executive Board of the American Advent Mission Society on the subject of our mssions.

The Chair appointed the following as that Committee: S. G. Mathewson, Miles Grant, W. Sheldon, D. R. Mansfield, and J. Hemenway.

The consideration of the question pending the adjournment, viz.: How can we best bring the truth entrusted to us as a people before the Christian churches of our generation? was resumed. After a continued discussion of the matter by Brn. Phelps, Couch, Fassett, King, Sibley, and Blain, it was voted to lay the question on the table. The next question taken up in the order of business was the following:

How can our own ministry be made to be more effective in the prosecution of our work?

This question was discussed by Brn. D. Mathewson, L. T. Cunningham, and Grant, and laid on the table.

On motion, five delegates were appointed by the Chair, the President of this Conference constituting the fifth, to represent this Conference at the World's Christian Convention, to be held in 1870, in the city of New York. The following are the delegates appointed to attend said Convention: Miles Grant, W. Sheldon, J. Hemenway, Wm. L. Himes, and J. Couch.

The following question was introduced by the business committee:

What is the best method of conducting revivals?

After discussion it was laid on the table.

The Chairman of the business committee read the other items of business prepared for the Conference. After reading, it was voted that they be received, and be taken up in their order. The following was the first in order.

Whom shall we invite to the communion table?

This question was one of deep interest to the Conference, and after its discussion it was unanimously voted, that we invite all the lovers of Jesus to the Lord's table.

The next question in order, "How to conduct missionary work," was taken up, and after some discussion it was laid on the table.

The next item was, How to conduct a prayer-meeting.

It was agreed that long prayers, long exhortations, and long singing are destructive to a good prayer-meeting. The question was then laid on the table.

The following resolution was offered:

Resolved, That this Conference recommend to our bethren in the ministry to invite all the members of the churches where they may be called to labor, to kneel during prayer. Carried.

The following question was taken up and discussed:

How shall we increase the religious power of our lay members?

After a quite lengthy discussion, the following resolution was offered:

Resolved, That in order to have a living church there must be a living membership; and in order to be living members they must be active in all the practical duties of christianity; and that in order to accomplish this result there must be a holy ministry, who should be examples to the flock in all things. Carried.

Voted, That the delegates be requested to remain until the business is finished, if it takes till next week.

Adjourned till 1.30 P. M.

Met agreeably to adjournment, Bro. Couch in the chair. Prayer by Bro. Lawson, of Canada.

The following question came up for discussion:

What shall be done in the circulation and distribution of books and tracts suitable to the furtherance of the Advent truths? And our papers East and West: what can we do to give them a better support and a wider range of power?

After some discussion, in which Brn. Jas. Hemenway, W. L. Himes, and J. M. Snook participated, the question was laid on the table.

The following resolutions were offered and passed:—

Resolved, That this body will recognize as Advent ministers only those preachers who bear letters of commendation from Conferences co-operating with it; or from localities where no conference yet exists from churches rendering similar co-operation.

Resolved, That we will not recognize ordinations that shall be made by irresponsible persons without the supervision or consent of either conferences or churches. Carried.

After the adoption of the above resolutions, the following question was presented: Shall this Conference take any action with reference to a declaration of principles?

This question was tabled, and the following resolution was presented and passed by a unanimous vote:—

Resolved, That this Conference accept the Bible as their only rule of faith and practice, church order and discipline.

Adjourned till Saturday, at 9 A. M.

Saturday, 9 A. M. Pursuant to notice, Conference convened at the hour appointed, the President in the Chair. Prayer by Bro. P. S. W. Deyo, of Iowa.

A letter addressed to the Conference by Bro. Austin W. Taylor, of Byron, Me., was read by the Secretary, and referred to the Business committee. The following question was introduced by the Business committee: How shall we treat those who separate themselves from us?

Brn. Grant, Sheldon, Snook, Sibley, and others spoke on the question, and the conclusion arrived at was—treat them kindly.

The question was then tabled, and the following introduced: What officers are necessary for the organization of churches, their duties, discipline, etc.?

Brn. Brown, Phelps, Leverton, Stevens, S. G. Mathewson, Sibley, D. Mathewson, Lawson, and Fenn, debated the question, after which it was voted that the Chair appoint a committee of five, to whom the question should be referred, and said committee report the result of their deliberations at the earliest possible moment. The Chair appointed as committee, S. G. Mathewson, Miles Grant, W. Sheldon, S. W. Thurber, and H. A. King.

The following resolutions were offered and passed:—

Resolved, That this Conference recommend the disuse of all honorary and unscriptural titles, such as Rev. and D. D., as not proper to be applied to preachers of the gospel.

Resolved, That this Convention disapprove the use of tobacco by its ministry and laity.

The Business committee reported the following question, which was tabled: What relation do christians sustain to politics?

On motion, the Chair appointed a committee of three to draft and report a resolution on the subject of war, consisting of O. R. Fassett, W. L. Himes, and D. Lawson.

The following letter, by unanimous vote, was given Eld. A. A. Phelps:

To whom it may concern: The Advent Christian Conference of North America hereby recognize the ordination of A. A. Phelps as an elder in the church of God, and commend him to the confidence of our people with whom he stands connected in hearty and acceptable co-operation.

(Signed) John Couch, President.
A. W. Sibley, Rec. Sec.

Adjourned till 1.30 P. M.

The hour having arrived to which the Conference was adjourned, it convened again, the President in the chair. Bro. A. A. Phelps invoked the divine blessing.

The following resolutions were offered and passed by a unanimous vote:

Resolved, That we repudiate the idea of constructing any creed, declaration of faith, treatise, or other expression of uninspired men, to be used as a standard of faith or doctrine, to bind the consciences of men, or test their christian character.

Resolved, That we make prominent in our preaching and publications the following themes, which, according to our understanding of the Scriptures, are highly important truths, and due this generation, viz: That there is one God, and one Mediator between God and man, the Lord Jesus Christ, and one Holy Spirit; that faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, accompanied by a confession, and a godly life, are conditions of salvation; that the same Jesus who was taken up from the apostles into heaven, shall so come to earth again in "like manner as he went into heaven;" that there will be a literal resurrection of the dead, and that without such resurrection there will be no future life for any of the human family, and "they also who have fallen asleep in Christ are perished;" that "everlasting destruction" is to be the doom of the finally impenitent; the renovation of this earth as the future eternal abode of the people of God; that the signs of the times and prophetic periods indicate the speedy second advent of our Lord.

The preamble and resolutions which follow were adopted with a full and hearty vote:

Whereas, The impression has strangely obtained that we as a people ignore a change of heart and a vital christianity; therefore

Resolved, By the Advent Christian Conference of North America, in conference assembled, that we affirm our hearty and unqualified belief in such a type of Scriptural conversion as radically revolutionizes man's moral nature, and enlists his entire affections and energies for God.

Resolved, That this Conference recognise Christian character as the only test of fellowship and communion.

The committee appointed to confer with the Executive Board of the American Advent Mission Society, made the following report which was adopted:

Brethren of the Conference: We have had a conference with the Mission Board on the present state of the Mission cause, and what course we shall pursue in the future. The Board reported to us their present condition and future policy. On the subject of funds they stated, We find that the present stringency in money matters has much affected their finances. In regard to the officers of the Board, we believe they are worthy of the fullest confidence in relation to their integrity of purpose.

In regard to the future policy of the Board, they stated to us that they had decided not to enlarge their missions among the Freedmen, and only to continue those that were already established as it may be best; but they propose to devote the means put into their hands to establish missions among the white people in the South as we have done in the North and elsewhere.

They also said to us, that as the Advent Christian Conference now organized was the most proper organization to carry forward our missions hereafter, that they desired that some means should be taken to merge the present Mission Society with the General Conference, and that they would carry on the missions for the body under the counsels of the General Conference until they can be legitimately merged at the next Annual Meeting of the A. A. M. Society at Springfield next August. The committee would therefore report: First, That it is the duty of Adventists as a body to give their undivided support to the Board of the A. A. M. Society. Second, As the members of the Board have paid out some three hundred dollars more than they have received, and will soon have to recall some of their missionaries unless they have help, we recommend that an urgent call to all the friends of missions be made to replenish the missionary treasury.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The following was presented and carried:

Resolved, That the Board of Directors be empowered to receive proposals from the A. A. M. Society, and take such action as they may deem best in the premises for a transfer of all the interests of that Society to the charge of the General Conference.

A proposal, as contained in the following report, to publish a book embodying the principles of the Advent faith, was received and adopted.

[As the "Proposal" was published in our issue of Dec. 8th, we refer our readers to that paper.—Ed. Crisis.]

The following sums were pledged for the publication of the above mentioned book:

J V Himes, Buchanan, Mich.	$20.00
Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.	50.00
John Couch, Concord, N. H.	50.00
S G Mathewson, Castleton, Vt.	20.00
W L Himes, Buchanan, Mich.	20.00
D Mathewson, Sandy Hill, N. Y.	10.00
J M Stetler, Philad., Pa., 519 Franklin St.	20.00
H G. McCullock, Nevada, O.	30.00
J M Snook, Romeo, Mich.	50.00
O R Fassett, Minneapolis, Minn.	10.00
E McCullock, Savoy, Mass.	10.00
A H Brown, Rahway, N J.	10.00
A H Steele, New Haven, Ct.	10.00
M Chandler, Cascade, Iowa.	10.00
W Ingmire, Lincklaen, N. Y.	10.00
J Blain, Buffalo, N Y.	5.00
A A Phelps, Rochester, N Y.	5.00
J McClellan, Fonthill, Ont. Co.	5.00
C C Ramsay, Chicago, Ill.	10.00
W A Fenn, Rochester, N. Y.	5.00
C P Greenman, Lockport, N Y.	5.00
B P Brownell, Brockport, N Y.	10.00
I Ranney, Rochester, N Y.	20.00
B P Stevens, So. Butler, N Y.	5.00
J Wilbur, Henrietta, Wis.	10.00
H A King, 37 Park Row, N Y.	10.00
N T Withington, Springwater, N Y.	20.00
W J Hobbs, Honeoye Falls, N Y.	5.00
R Murray, Rochester, N Y.	1.00
R Bloss, Rochester, N Y.	2.00
N McCullock, Rochester, N Y., 4 Eagle St.	2.00
D Otis.	2 cop.
Mrs. L N Steele, New Haven, Ct.	5.00
B A Bennett	5.00
N Tibbals.	10.00
J H Whitmore, East Shelby, N Y.	5.00
C M Parks, Le Roy, N Y.	5.00
Sidney Hall, Hartford, Ct.	200.00
W J Lord, Pittsford, N Y.	100.00
N C Newell, Rochester, N Y.	5.00
A Riggs, Lockport, N Y.	5.00
O Bendixon.	5.00
S H Kinsey, East Rush, N Y.	1.00
W E Brown, So. Butler, N Y.	100.00
John Kern.	2 00
J Phelan	2.00
John S Beman	5.00
Anne E Darragh	2.00
A A Gould.	1.00
Mrs. Daniel Clark.	1.00
E A Narramore, Rochester, N Y.	5.00
J E Wells, Rochester, N Y.	1.00
J A Brownell, Brockport, N Y.	5.00
J H Wescott, So. Butler, N Y.	5.00
Edwin Vanvarst, Rochester, N Y.	5.00

Conference convened again according to adjournment. Prayer by Bro. S. W. Thurber. There was no business done at this session; a motion prevailing to adjourn till 9 A. M., Monday, Nov. 22.

Monday, Nov. 22. Conference met at 9 A. M., the President in the chair. Prayer by Bro. B. P. Stephens. The committee appointed to draw up a resolution on the subject of war for Conference reported the following:

Whereas, Doubt has been expressed as to the status of the Advent Christians on the question of war, therefore,

Resolved, That the weapons of our warfare are not carnal; but spiritual, and that while we freely render respect, tribute, and custom to the government which renders us such efficient protection, we cannot take arms against our fellow-men to destroy their lives in carnal warfare. Adopted.

The following resolution was reported by the business committee:

Whereas, We as a body do recognize women co-laborers in the gospel; therefore,

Resolved, That we recommend to the various Conferences acting in harmony with this body, the propriety of admitting to membership worthy women laborers, who may act in harmony with this Conference.

Several spoke on the above resolution, and among others L. F. Moore, ex-president of Harvoford College, Pa. The resolution was adopted.

The following is the report of the committee on church organization, which was carried:

We recommend that in the organization of churches that its officers consist of the following: First, That if an ordained minister compose one of its members, that he be recognized as its elder; also, that there be two deacons appointed; also that if the church see fit that they appoint a clerk and treasurer.

The following resolution touching the subject of missions was presented and passed by a full vote:

Resolved, That this Conference recommend to the A. A. M. Society the importance of immediately sending two able missionaries through the South to preach the gospel of the kingdom to all classes, pledging ourselves to aid the enterprise by our means and influence.

Whereas, The profits of the proposed book taken up at wholesale on subscription will furnish but little means for advertising,

Resolved, That the Secretary furnish the editor of the Crisis and the Times a copy of the Preamble and Proposition of the book enterprise, and that the editors be requested to make an appeal, not only for subscription, but also for donations. Carried.

Resolved, That this Conference disapprove the use of fermented wines in the communion sevrice. Carried.

Whereas, Leaven is used as a representative of sin and false doctrine; and,

Whereas, Christ was without sin; and

Whereas, In the communion bread is used as a representative of the body of Christ: therefore,

Resolved, That in the communion we recommend the use of unleavened bread. Carried.

Resolved, That this Conference disapprove the use and sale of spirituous liquors as a beverage.. Carried.

The following letter was read and ordered to be placed in the minutes of this Conference:

Clayton, Ill., Nov, 17, 1869.

To the brethren assembled in Conference at Rochester, N. Y.—Greeting:

The Illinois Central Conference not having a meeting of its members since the subject of a National Conference was broached, the Board have consulted on the subject, and desire us to say to you, that we fully acquiesce in and approve of the object of your coming together, and we trust the meeting may prove a success, and fully meet the expectations of all. We shall doubtless approve your doings, as we have confidence in our brethren generally, east and west. We should have sent one or more delegates to confer with you, but for lack of means.

And may the God of all wisdom give you wisdom by which to arrange for the prosperity of the cause we so much love, that a people may be ready for our coming King. May the God of grace be with you all.

Yours in hope of a speedy redemption.
For the Board, L. Scott, President,
O. D. Gibson, Vice President.

The following resolution was presented, and after a somewhat spirited debate was laid on the table:

Resolved, That we regard a suitable education of those who enter the ministry as an important means of rendering the ministry more effective.

Adjourned till 1.30 P. M.

Met as adjourned. Prayer by Bro. Ingmire.

Voted, That the Chair appoint a committee of three to recommend to the Executive Board of the A. A. M. Society suitable men to go into all the world and preach the gospel of the kingdom. The Chair appointed as that committee, S. G. Mathewson, H. G. McCullock, and J. H. Whitmore.

Resolved, That this Conference, recognizing the importance of Biblical instruction among the children and youth in our Societies, recommends the organization and maintenance of Sunday schools as a means to that end. Carried.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Conference be rendered to the President, Vice President, and Secretaries, for the able and impartial manner in which they have discharged their several duties. Carried.

Voted, To publish these minutes in the Times and Crisis.

Resolved, That we endorse our periodicals, the World's Crisis, Advent Christian Times, Advent Christian Quarterly, and the Young Pilgrim; and heartily commend them to the patronage and support of our people.

Resolved, That we recommend to our ministers to present the claims of these publications to their congregations.

Resolved, That our ministers should present the subject of tract distribution to their congregations, and take collections at proper intervals to aid the tract funds of our publishing societies.

The above resolutions were carried.

Whereas, The members of this Conference have been most kindly and cordially entertained by the church in Rochester; therefore,

Resolved, That we as a Conference return to them our most heartfelt thanks for their loving kindness, and humbly ask that the richest of heaven's blessings may rest upon them now and forever. Carried.

After singing the doxology,

"Praise God, from whom all blessings flow,"

the conference adjourned sine die.

A. W. Sibley, Recording Secretary.

THE MARTYR SPIRIT.

We are thrilled with accounts of the noble heroism of the martyrs. Their meek endurance of shame and reproach,—their joyful triumph amidst the greatest bodily suffering, fill us with admiration. We reverence their names. We treasure up their sayings in our memories. But will we walk in their footsteps? Will we imitate their examples? Admiration is cheap. It does not cost much. But our admiration of the good qualities of others, does not compensate, in any degree, for the lack of these qualities in ourselves.

It is true that the times have changed. The rack and the stake have gone out of fashion. But what of it? The world is no better. It is possible, even in this age of religious toleration, to have the martyr spirit, and to win a martyr's crown. God looks at the heart—not at circumstances.

The martyr's were self-denying. They freely gave up their property, their ease, their lives, for Jesus sake. The same spirit is still called for. The Gospel still makes demands upon our property. If we have the martyr spirit, we shall cheerfully meet these demands. If we cannot give up a part, how can we deceive ourselves into thinking that we could the whole? If we hold on to more than we need, when the cause of God calls for it, how can we be so blind as to suppose that we would cheerfully surrender the very necessities of life if occasion demanded?

There is a constant tendency to settle down and take our rest. This is especially the case with those who are easy in their circumstances. They are very liable to be at ease in Zion. They seek to avoid trouble and responsibility, especially in the cause of the Lord. If we have the spirit of the martyrs, we shall be ready to make real sacrifices of our comfort for the welfare of others.

We shall not deny ourselves by proxy, only, and be content with contributing something, for those who really toil in the Master's vineyard. We shall be ready to share their labors. In our zeal for the cause of God we shall, in a good measure, forget ourselves. Prudent professors will call us fools. For we shall hazard all for God. Fools we shall be, if there is no God—no heaven, no hell. But with the tremendous realities of eternity before us, he who sacrifices all—property, friends, yea, life itself, is the truly wise. He is rich toward God. He lays up treasure in heaven. He has nothing, and yet possesses all things. He is intimidated by no danger, he shrinks from no suffering for the Master's sake. With this spirit, persecutions, in their worst forms, for Jesus' sake, will lose their terror's. We shall have the endurance that animated the Hebrew Christians to whom Paul wrote. "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." "But call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of afflictions, partly while ye were made a gazing-stock both by reproaches and afflictions; and partly, whilst ye became companions of them that were so used."—Earnest Christian.

For the World's Crisis.

GOD'S LAW OF LIFE.

Dear Editor:—I lately preached upon "God's law of judgments"; and resulting therefrom was a conversation during the week with one of our leading business men, who in religious matters is inclined to skepticism. As I think the principle of immortal life to man was very well brought out in it, I shall endeavor to reproduce the conversation for the benefit of your readers.

S. Well, Eld., I heard your argument upon God's law of judgment with pleasure. I believe that if man violates law he will be punished for it; but how are you going to hitch on the law of grace to that law of righteousness? God is perfection of law, and does not make breaks. And then, again, I as a moral intelligence am under no moral obligation to God for his law. I admit that my greatest happiness of life is secured when I keep the law; but if I do not keep it God has no right to morally condemn me for its violation, for I was not a consenting party to the contract. I adore him for the wisdom of his law of man life, but am under no obligation to obey.

Eld. Wait, S., let us examine this matter a little. God is the perfection of law, and hath immortality. In his creation of man he gave him a law of life that would lead to immortality, but at creation he is simply mortal; but instead of keeping on that level even, much less walking in the law that leads to immortality, he walked by the law of sin, and you can see the end of sin.

S. But, stop, I am not the natural man of God; my parents have sinned, and as a fruit, without my consent, I am below the level of the natural man; and God has no right to judge me by the first law.

Eld. But still., S., you are in creation above the brute.

S. Yes, and I adore my Creator's wisdom, nothing more.

Eld. Well, let this be so; still, if you keep the level law of your creation, you are only mortal, or dust-ending. But you have not kept the level law; you have broken that, and are walking in the down-grade law; and you have only to walk long enough to get below the brute, below the reptile, below the vegetable, below life.

S. Yes, yes, but how can I help it? I have broken the law already. How can God set aside law?

Eld. Well, this is simply the old question, "What shall I do to be saved?" in a new form. And it is here that the gospel, or "good news of God," comes to the sinning man. In the gospel of Christ we are told of the "Cross-law," that reaches down to every point in the mortal man life, and says that if we will repent of the sin-law, reform our life by the cross-law, for Christ's sake the sin-law will be deprived of its power, and we may obtain by this cross-law to immortality. You must believe in the Christ that God has sent, and walk in the cross-law road if you would, secure immortality. If you walk in the sin-law road, you lose completely—life; but in the gospel of Christ you have got something to love God for, as well as adore him.

S. Well, well, but what is this "cross-law"?

Eld. It is a law that God has always used; it is an embodiment of the God-life, self-denial, or self stooping for the good of others needing help; and this is the principle of the Christ-life, and is in complete harmony with God's perfection of law. So "I set before thee this day, life and death"; and you, an intelligent, moral being, must exercise your freedom of choice; but God does not will "that any should perish, but rather that they should turn and live."

Reader, what will you do? J. O. M. H.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, Dec. 22, 1869.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Money Orders.

☞ Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ L. P. TOWLES—Your paper goes regularly to Brewer. Have sent missing papers.

☞ L. C. COLLINS—Your money was credited to L. M. Collins. Have corrected.

☞ NELSON H. REED—The letter was received. We knew your writing, if you did not sign your name.

☞ J. H. DENNIS—Please give us your P. O. address.

☞ E. FLANDERS—You paid $2.00 in June, '67, which paid from No. 561 to 603, or the date on your paper.

☞ BRO. STARR—We have no such work.

☞ We would say to all interested that the proposed ballot was unanimously elected.

☞ H. F. CARPENTER'S P. O. address is now North Springfield, Vt., instead of Danielsonville, Ct.

☞ TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis, we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber has his or her name, with the date of the month and year to which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or ou the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

☞ PLEASE REMEMBER

That all letters, telegrams, or notices, ordering books, tracts, or papers, or for insertion in the Crisis, or for any other business connected with this office, should be addressed to the Editor, or to the Business Agent, and not to the clerks; as their letters, being regarded as private and not for the office, are not opened in their absence. AG'T.

PHILADELPHIA.

From Vineland we went to Philadelphia, Saturday, Dec. 11th, and received a hearty welcome at Bro. I. N. Wilfong's, 2115 Callowhill St. We had a good meeting, where we met Bro. and Sr. Willard, from Haddonfield. Bro. F. H. Burbank was also with us, whose labors are much esteemed by the church worshiping at the corner of 9th and Spring Garden streets. We had pleasant visits with him, and found him possessed of an excellent spirit, and ready to labor wherever he could do any good. He is doing what he can for the poor and degraded in the destitute parts of the city, and preaching a part of the time for the church at the corner of 9th and Spring Garden streets. The church is in a very healthy condition, the best we have ever seen it. Peace and harmony prevail. We had a blessed day with them Sabbath, Dec. 12th. We have rarely been in better meetings. Their hall was very much crowded, and some six or seven rose for prayers in the evening. The prospect is very encouraging. There is real life and love in the church, which give it power to reach the unconverted. We noticed many with tears in their eyes. It was truly good to be there.

At 3 P. M. we had an interesting meeting in Camden, across the Delaware river in N. J. The tent meetings held there last year did much good. The people are anxious to see Bro. Hook back there again. We learned that Bro. Wilfong is making an effort to get a tent for Bro. Hook, and some $200 have been pledged. He needs about as much more. Those willing to assist, are invited to send their donations to Bro. Wilfong, who will see that the money is properly applied. Let Bro. Hook have a pilgrim tent for a summer residence.

At 12 o'clock (midnight) Sabbath evening, Dec. 12th, we left Philadelphia for New York and Boston, and arrived home Monday evening, all fresh to start for our discussion in Maine the next morning. Praise the Lord.

BONNY EAGLE DISCUSSION.

Bonny Eagle is about sixteen miles from Biddeford, and eighteen from Portland. Tuesday morning, Dec. 14th, at early morn, we left home for the purpose of discussing with Eld. E. B. Fletcher (Methodist), at the place above named. Some time since, when at Bonny Eagle, Mr. Fletcher took occasion to challenge every "Advent Annihilationist" to discuss the following proposition:—"All men are immortal." Some eight weeks ago, our friends accepted in our behalf, and informed us of the fact. But when we arrived at Bonny Eagle, at the time appointed, we learned that Mr. Fletcher would not be present. The reason was best known to himself and his friends. The people came to hear the discussion, and we improved the opportunity in speaking on the nature of man, and enjoyed the occasion. The best of attention was given, and we think the truth found a cheerful welcome in many honest hearts. Mr. Fletcher had boasted much as to his ability to put to silence every "Advent Annihilationist," as he is pleased to call those who believe in the sleep of the dead and the destruction of the wicked. Had he been present and successfully executed the work, his boasting would have come with better grace. We have seen dogs run and bark at the engine on the express train, when running between thirty and forty miles an hour, but we never knew them to succeed in stopping the train. Perhaps they thought they could when they began their barking race.

While at Bonny Eagle we had a very pleasant visit with Elder Peter Libbey, of Buxton, Me. He is now over seventy-three years of age, enjoying very fine health, having used no intoxicating drinks, tobacco, tea, nor coffee for forty years. He bids fair to live twenty or thirty years more, if Jesus should not come. He was formerly a F. W. Baptist preacher. He loves the "blessed hope," and delights in proclaiming the glad tidings of the coming kingdom.

VINELAND DISCUSSION.

Our discussion in Vineland with Mr. Fish continued to its close with unabated interest. The largest hall in the place was crowded every evening. The chief effort of Mr. Fish consisted in impeaching the Bible and the God of the Bible. Some of his talk was horrible and blasphemous—too bad to be tolerated in civil society. But such is the fruit of a belief in Spiritualism. The spirits are anxious to lead us all to renounce the Bible, the plan and Author of salvation. Mr. Fish spent much time in telling us what the Zend Avesta, the Shaster, etc., taught, and then said he did not believe a word of them; but he believed them as much as he did the Bible, and the record of the birth of Christ.

He admitted that our view of Spiritualism looked plausible, and is the only system that will account for the phenomena, except his own. He admitted that the spirits and mesmerizers operate in a similar manner.

The Bible account of the creation of man and woman, he called "nonsense;" and yet could believe that human spirits could make up bodies themselves at pleasure, out of floating particles of matter. Whatever he could seize that he thought would strike a blow at the Bible seemed to afford him delight. We thought no further proof was needed to prove the affirmative of our proposition, than his own talk, as a representative of the fruits of Spiritualism. Once he was an able Baptist minister, but the spirits of demons have seduced him far as possible from the "faith once delivered to the saints." It was most apparent that he had no sympathy with any thing that exalted God and his word. He praised such men as Thomas Paine and Hume, but had not a word to say in favor of any Bible writer or believer. The entire spirit and tendency of Spiritualism is antichristian, and should be shunned by all good men and women as they would avoid the bite of the poisonous adder, or a residence in a den of rattlesnakes.

We are most fully satisfied that but few are aware of the terrible influence that Spiritualism is exerting in the world at the present time. To many it still seems but a harmless affair. It may look "like a lamb," but it talks "as a dragon." We apprehend the worst features of the system are yet to be developed. Thus far it has been preparing for a grand movement in political matters. It aims first to get the sympathy and support of the great men of earth, in order to gain popularity. It has made great progress in this direction, and is rapidly advancing. Christianity is so low, it offers but little opposition to its deadly march. Thousands have departed "from the faith," and are giving heed to these "seducing spirits," and their demoniacal doctrines.

We left some warm friends at Vineland, who love the word of life, whom we expect to meet soon in the everlasting kingdom. Members of other churches became very much interested, and urged us to remain and preach the word to them. They saw men as trees walking, and felt anxious to hear more concerning the plan of salvation.

"THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS."

A Bro. inquires, Who are the daughters of "the mother of harlots," mentioned in Rev. 17: 5? It is very plain that the "mother," or the woman riding upon the scarlet-colored beast, represents the church at Rome. As she is "the mother," it follows that all other churches that have sprung from that, acknowledging her as their "mother," are the daughters. Therefore her daughters are the Catholic churches in the world. The Protestant churches no longer accept her as their "holy mother." They will not submit to her government, or obey her orders. Should she sink to rise no more, the Protestants would not weep and mourn over her fall. They would be strange daughters that would not mourn at the death of their mother. Inasmuch as the "mother of harlots" is positively located on "the seven mountains," or hills; it follows that she is not located all over the earth; but her children, or daughters, are in all countries. All the Catholic churches look to the church at Rome, as their mother. She governs them as a mother does her children.

One name of this mother of harlots" is "Babylon the great." Her days are numbered, and we may soon expect to hear the wailing cry, "Babylon the great is fallen." Then will come the mourning of her daughters, "Saying, Alas! alas! . . . for in one hour so great riches is come to nought."—Rev. 18: 16, 17. Startling events are at hand. Let us all be upon our watch-towers, with burning lights, watching for the Coming One.

CORRECTIONS.—In "Our Day Book," in the Crisis last week, instead of "Dr. Wood, Holbrook & Co., 25 Laight Street," read 15 Laight Street. Instead of "415 Grand Street," where our meetings were held, read 405 Grand Street.

THE FRENCH CHAMBERS.

The late opening of the French Chambers was a scene of great splendor. It appears that Napoleon is "in excellent health, . . . walks firmly, and with an elastic step." The following is from the Boston Post, Dec. 14th.

"The scene at the opening of the French Chambers is described as dazzling in the extreme. A gilt arm-chair served as the throne, on the right of which was the Empress' stand. In front of the throne were cardinals, ministers, members of the Privy Council, marshals, admirals, grand crosses of the Legion of Honor, presidents and members of the Council of State. This was a very brilliant sight, from the various costumes worn by these functionaries, and adorned with ribbons and crosses, some of them mounted with diamonds. (M. Rouher's grand cross of the Legion of Honor, given him by the Emperor, cost $12,000, gold.) As soon as the Emperor's arrival at the Louvre's portal was announced Princess Cotilde, Princess Mathilde, and the Princesses Murat, followed by the ladies of their household, came out of the drawing-room, where they had been waiting, and, preceded by a master of ceremonies, took their seats on the Empress' stand. Her Majesty's arm-chair was untenanted. Prince Napoleon headed the procession, followed by the Imperial Prince and the Emperor. It was observed that his Majesty appeared to be in excellent health; he is regaining flesh, walks firmly, and with an elastic step. The Imperial Prince still looks very delicate, and with a strong tendency to consumption. After the delivery of the speech, which was printed, the newly elected deputies were called to take the oath of allegiance. Rochefort's name was greeted with peals of ironical laughter. He is being severly let alone by his associates."

PERSONAL.—We learn that Bro. Jonas Wendell has just closed a most successful debate at Antwerp, with a Methodist minister; and is to have another one at Nevada, Ohio. He is an able advocate of the doctrine of the Bible.

A WATCHMAN GONE.—We have just received the sad intelligence that Bro. J. K. Bellows is no more. He died Wednesday, Dec. 15th. A good man has fallen and sleeps in Jesus.

A LIVE PAPER.

It is a sad fact that the daily papers in our large cities have set their moral standards so low, that they have become powerful instruments for neutralizing the influence of a pure christianity; and are doing much to introduce what is now known by the name of "Liberal christianity," which is nothing more than a union of Belial and Christ, or a substitution of Vanity-fair for the prayer-meeting, darkness for light, humanitarianism for christianity, and the broad road instead of the narrow one. In opposition to all this, some few months since, Dr. E. P. Marvin started "The Daily News and Tribune," at No. 11 Cornhill, Boston. With the exception of the Montreal Witness, Montreal, P. Q., we do not know of another daily paper on the continent that has so high a moral tone as the "Boston Daily News and Tribune." It strikes with a bold hand at the sins of the age, and the corruptions in church and state. It deserves the patronage of good men. It is issued every forenoon and afternoon. Price one cent, sent by mail at $3 a year.

Says the Malden Messenger:—"Long may Boston enjoy in this what Montreal alone has had for ten or twenty years; a cheap, reliable paper; which the christian can bring into his family with entire satisfaction."

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.—This splendidly illustrated weekly journal of popular science, mechanics, invention, engineering, chemistry, architecture, agriculture, and the kindred arts, enters its twenty-fifth year on the first of January next, having a circulation far exceeding that of any similar journal now published. The editorial department is very ably conducted, and some of the most popular writers in this country and Europe are contributors. Every number has sixteen imperial pages, embellished with fine engravings of machinery, new inventions, tools for the workshop, farm and household, engineering works, dwelling houses, public buildings.

To inventors and mechanics this journal is of special value, as it contains a weekly report of all patents issued at Washington, with copious notices of the leading American and European inventions. The publishers are the most extensive patent solicitors in the world, and have unequalled facilities for gathering a complete knowledge of the progress of invention and discovery throughout the world.

Terms of Scientific American, one year, $3.00; six months, $1.50; four months, $1.00. To clubs of ten and upwards, terms $2.50 per annum. Specimen copies sent free. Address the publishers, MUNN & Co., 37 Park Row, New York.

THE POPE'S COUNCIL.

The Ecumenical Council is adjourned till Jan. 5th. It is thought that there will be much opposition when the Council again assembles. It is said Napoleon has blocked the Papal wheels, by informing the Pope that it will not be best to declare his "infallibility" at this late day. It is said the Pope "is somewhat alarmed" at the turn things are taking in relation to the Council. The French bishops are opposed to the infallibility dogma. It is said: "France has taken decided ground; and the example of France is approved and adopted by all the Catholic goverments."

BRO. S. W. THURBER.

Bro. Thurber desires me to say to Bro. Stetler, and others that have written to him to visit them, that he is now confined to his house with congestion of the lungs and putrid sore throat, and cannot attend to any calls at present. He desires the prayers of God's children that he may soon be raised up again to labor for the salvation of the perishing. Remember him in your prayers. There is no time for any of the faithful laborers to be laid by in sickness. A. T. MOORE.

ANDREW FULLER, when he had selected a text, was accustomed to ask "What? Why? What then?" His first inquiry was, What is the doctrine of the text, or what does it teach? Secondly, what considerations show this to be its import? Thirdly, what follows, or what concern has my hearer in these things?

$3000 TRACT FUND.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, September 2nd, at the National Campmeeting, it was

Resolved, That we raise THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the Tract Fund the ensuing year.

It is proposed to raise this amount during the year for the publication and free distribution of tracts. The value of these little preachers in the work of enlightening and saving men from darkness and death can hardly be overestimated; and the generous and liberal stewards of the Lord's money are earnestly invited to contribute according to their ability in aid of the good work. Send on your dimes and dollars, brethren, with a liberal hand, and receive, by and by, the reward of the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec. Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$126.54
B. Perham	.25
A. M. Locke	1.00
E. C. Deming	.50
Nathan Collins	2.50

POOR FUND.

(To send the Crisis to the Poor.)

Previous acknowledgments	$29.31
J. B. Cook	2.00
Mrs. S. E. Miner	1.25

AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All donations and payments of pledges for this Society, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$325.90
Mrs. S. E. Miner	1.25

For the World's Crisis.

MISSIONS.

AN EARNEST APPEAL.

BELOVED BRETHREN:—It is with heartfelt gratitude and joy, that at the National Conference, held at Rochester, the subject of Missions was not forgotten, but discussed, and that an enlarged view was taken of the cause. That instead of looking directly at the South, and spending all our efforts and means in this direction, we should look North, East, and West, and wherever the door is, or can be opened, there the living preacher should be sent with a message adapted to the times, and the gospel of good news should forthwith be sent them. In this we heartily concur. And we are also exceedingly thankful that now we can have the ready co-operation of all our brethren, East, West, North, and South, to push forward by faith this great and god-like work. But, beloved, we are ardent workers, believing in the soon coming of our Lord and Master, and that what we do must soon be done, and done so, if possible, to see immediate results; and that this message is of the first importance, that the alarm must be given, and that all else done should be secondary to it. The call of God is upon us. Our hearts, our hands must be open and extended in every direction, to help the poor and needy. Shall we hear the cry, and be ready to respond to it? The suggestion at the conference, to send out two or more competent missionaries, with love for the work, is timely, and I hope it will inaugurate a new era in our Missionary work.

We were sorry to be obliged to discontinue our Mission at St. Louis, Mo., from the first of Dec., for the want of funds. Our established Mission at Memphis, Tenn., which is under the care of Eld. Cole and wife, and Sr. Valle, their helper and teacher, seems to be undergoing a change. In the past, we have had the influence and help of the Bureau. The government has so far changed that the State looks after the schools, and the probabilities are that our teachers will not be recognized, consequently will receive nothing for their labor from that source; and that our Mission and school in the future will, under God, have to be looked after by ourselves. This is more than intimated in the extract of a letter from Sr. Valle, dated Dec. 2d, in which she says:—

"I went with Sr. Cole to the Supt's office to get my salary for the first time. Col. Leach and Mr. Gains questioned me. First, they wanted to know concerning my Advent views and faith. And then if I preached. I told them I did not. I stated how we believed Jesus would come, and why we believe he is coming soon. He spoke of the Millennium, when all would be christians, and how he heard, when he was young, some speak as though it would come in 1866, or some time before 1870. I answered his questions as I could under the circumstances. I spoke of David Whitby as being the author of the spiritual reign of Christ during the thousand years; but that it was contrary to the teachings of God's word. I referred him to Acts, first chapter, where Jesus ascended to the Father, and to what the angel said about his coming, as he went. I then referred him to the parable of the wheat and tares, to show him that there would be wicked people living when Jesus comes, or at the end of the world. I told him I believed Jesus would soon come, because nearly all the signs he had given to show it were fulfilled. I spoke of the darkening of the sun in 1780, of the falling of the stars in 1833, the sea and waves roaring, etc., etc. He said he thought we must be a happy people believing as we do. He inquired if our sect were numerous at the North. They then gave me an order for my salary for Sept., and I left for home."

This extract shows first, that Sr. V. is loyal to Jesus Christ, and the word of life, and is also in love with his soon coming, and is also faithful to her convictions, standing in defense of this gospel, as well as the duties of teacher. Bro. Cole and wife, with Sr. Valle, under many discouragements are doing a good work, and that Mission must be sustained. They are not salaried, neither do they desire it, but they love the work, and are ready to deny themselves, and die for Christ's sake and the gospel's. But they feel that necessity is laid upon them. And they are worthy of fellowship and support. There are also other openings where, if we had the means, great good could be done in saving men.

Now, dearly beloved brethren, look over the field. It is truly white, and ready for the harvest. The cry comes from every quarter, Come over and help us. What shall be done? Say, brethren, what shall be done? Shall we, in the name of Israel's God, arise, and with all prayer and effort put our hand into our pockets to supply the demand, and pray the Lord of the harvest to send more laborers into his vineyard? Wherever help is needed, there let assistance be granted. Do not let our charities be stinted or exclusive. The Lord is soon coming. Heaven bless and help us to be ready for every good work.

Now, brethren, we call upon you to speedily supply the treasury of the American Advent Mission Society with the means, so that they may, with the wisdom that is profitable to direct, be able to clothe, feed, and teach the people, and send the good news of salvation to the perishing, East, West, North, and South.

Let the call be heard, and all individually respond to it with a cheerful heart. Yea, let the coming year be ushered in with a determination on our part to do more than we have ever done before for the poor and perishing; that when Jesus comes we may hear it said, "Well done, good and faithful servant; . . . enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

L. BOUTELL, for the Board.

Chelsea, Dec. 18th, 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

ELD. M. B. CZECHOWSKI.

At a meeting of the A. A. Mission Board, Dec. 15th, it was voted that the following be published in the "World's Crisis:"

It is well known to our brethren that Bro. C. has received the voluntary contributions of the friends of Missions for some years past, through Bro. Geo. T. Adams, at the Crisis office. Our Missionary Board have never recognized him as one of its missionaries, or pledged him any support, although we have sent him aid. They have spoken of him in their reports as a fellow-laborer in the field of missions, supposing he was in sympathy with us. His call for large sums to carry on the work in Switzerland were not heeded, because we had no confidence in his financial or business abilities, to carry on an enterprise of any magnitude. It has just leaked out that he has been receiving our contributions to raise up a company of Jewish Sabbath-keepers. It is deemed proper that we make this statement of facts, and let all parties act as they deem best in future.

L. T. CUNNINGHAM, Secretary of the A. A. Mission Board.

For the World's Crisis.

WHY PUBLISH BOOKS?

Because books talk, and talk when and where other talkers cannot go to talk, and where they would not be received if they did go. Books talk to many who will not or can not go to hear men talk. They talk to some while others sleep; they talk the same words and ideas every time, and if not understood at first, they talk it all over again until understood. Books abide with the family, reason with them, teach, admonish and exhort them, if good books; therefore, it is important to publish good books for all classes and ages. Books become household companions; are looked at, referred to, re-read, consulted, used as teachers, witnesses and helps. They are always ready to talk to our visitors; they are loaned out to talk all around the town. The Bible was published because it would talk for the Lord. It talks better than all others; yet it is well to have other good books.

Who does not recall the title of some book which has been of great service to him or her in enlightening, explaining, instructing, admonishing, exhorting, or comforting them? In modern times, such works as the memoirs and writings of Carvosso, Bramwell, Rogers, Palmer, and others, on christian experience, have proved invaluable to thousands. Those of Harlem Page, Doddridge, Watts, Romaine, Wesley, Whitefield, and others, have stimulated many to rise above all opposing elements, and work untiringly for the salvation of men. The names of men and books on other topics of equal importance, and of equal or superior influence, are too numerous to record if known. Our brethren, who are working and waiting for the Lord, can appreciate the importance of books on prophecy, history, chronology, expositions of Scripture, etc., etc. "The Prophetic Telescope," by H. D. Ward, was worth a great amount of money to me. The "Nineteen Lectures," by Wm. Miller, have been of more value to many than all earthly fortunes. The "Prophetic Expositions," by J. Litch," were of great value to thousands. "Future Punishment" by Dobney, "Future State" by Whately, and "Future Life" by Hudson, have been worth more than many thousands of dollars to many readers. I have heard it so expressed by some who have received the benefits.

Several have said, "'The Saints' Inheritance' was worth a great price to me"; others, "The 'Great Controversy' opened my eyes to see the truths of the Bible as I never saw them before." Others, "The 'Signs of the Times' showed me that the world is not to be converted, and that the judgment is about to take place; that Jesus is soon coming." "The 'Reasons of my Hope' gave me such reasons, and Bible reasons too, as I never saw before; and I would not part with them for the whole world," said one. Others have said, "'Spiritualism Unveiled' has led me to see the works of the devil, the nature of these times, and the gospel hope, as I never saw before." One has said, "'The Plan of Redemption' is worth more than fifty dollars to me." Another, "I would not sell it for a hundred dollars; no, not for a thousand, if I could not get another."

These are but specimens. Let us publish and also circulate good books until Jesus comes; books that talk the truth and benefit the people. I. C. WELLCOME.

For the World's Crisis.

THE DEPARTING YEAR.

Swiftly on his round of time the good old year is slowly dying and fading from our view. In its lingering presence this question arises in my mind: How many of the readers of this paper are so prepared that it will be a sense of pleasure to them to witness its speedy departure, conscious that the precious time lent them has been improved in a manner highly commendable to the honor and glory of both God and man? While, alas! to many it will be with deep regret, that as time glides on it has never been a part of their experience to realise the rich blessings that attend true, godly lives. For such are my warmest sympathies aroused; I, who have just awakened to the knowledge of this divine truth; who had so long trod the paths of an alluring world, which promises pleasure, but whose end is inevitable destruction;—when, as if directed from above, came a voice like unto the one "crying in the wilderness," a solemn warning to awake to righteousness; the kingdom of God is at hand. And as I have listened to the teachings of those few faithful ministers, who have consecrated their whole lives to a saving interest in the love of Christ; have broken the fetters and overstepped the bounds that to-day hold in their willing chains slaves to the popular traditions that wickedly blind the eyes of the world; I thank God the faith I enjoy is truth, established by investigation. Its stronghold is based upon the assured hope of a promised inheritance, and a glorious life of immortality, sought for "by patient continuance in well doing."

Now from the depths of a sincere heart can I say to you, my friends, Forsake the path of the unbelieving—that fearful and abominable way that has corrupted the morals of the whole world, and transformed Satan into "an angel of light," and fly humble before your God for pardon, who looks with a pitying eye upon you; who can not shield you from the evil effects of your sin, but who in great compassion will give you all needed strength to stand upright and walk in his own righteous way; who will freely forgive, and remember your iniquities no more. Vainly do I wish that I had the pen of an angel, that I might touch some weak and tempted heart; to draw near them as temptation thickens around, and whisper, Beware! never listen to the voice of the tempter, but "resist evil"; "gird on the whole armor of God," and "be not conformed to this world." Earnestly do I hope that this conviction will deepen upon you; that you may realise with joy unspeakable the divine recognition of God as your object of worship, love, and obedience; whose guiding hand behind the darkness scatters blessings when we patiently wait his time.

Are you young and inexperienced? Come to Jesus. The religion of Christ is always lovely, but in youth particularly so. It will guard the unsuspecting heart with a charm the holiest and most attractive of all that can be thrown over it. Are you in the meridian of life, and care sits heavily upon your brow? Here is the consolation you need; here bind up the broken heart, and heal the wounded spirit. Are you old and dying, or clad in the insignia of mourning? To you how beautiful will be this faith; to know that Jesus Christ, its author and finisher, has with bold hand drawn aside the dark curtain that hid the impenetrable gloom of the tomb, and pointed to that sweet repose that all who love him may soon enjoy.

In consideration of the christian's life, it is readily granted the righteous may suffer. But how plain the distinction between afflictions and punishment; for in the nature of things, usually, punishment cannot exist without guilt. Paul and Silas were cast into prison, and bound in stocks, on account of their religion. But they were not disturbed; nothing could mar their heaven-born peace. They sung psalms, and lifted up their voices to God in prayer. They suffered affliction, but it was to end in their own good. Probably there were others in that prison for crime. To them it was punishment. Hence the distinction. The Scriptures say, "Great peace have they that love thy law, and nothing shall offend them"; and again, "There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked."

Friends, the year is closing upon us. I thank God it has brought me "the pearl of great price." You have listened to my pleading words. Do not let them pass unheeded by, but make the dying year an emblem of the uncertainty of your life. We cannot span the future; but let us carefully review the record of the past, and truthfully weigh the clear and unsullied from the dark and blotted page; that ere the New Year dawns in triumph, we may unselfishly dedicate our whole life and interest to the power and praise of the only true and living God, the King eternal, immortal, and invisible; to the Mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus; who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time; "who is gone into heaven itself, and is now on the right hand of God." "And unto them that look for him, shall he appear the second time, without sin, unto salvation."

Soon shall fade this day of sadness,
Shadows tell the dawn is near;
Then will sorrow turn to gladness,
When our Savior will appear.

Brookfield. S. T. WHEELOCK.

For the World's Crisis.

A REJECTED ARTICLE.

BRO. GRANT:—The following article was written several months ago for the "Free Methodist," to which the writer formerly held an official relation. It was rejected. Can you see anything in the matter or spirit of the article that should secure for it such a destiny? I now place it at your disposal. A. A. PHELPS.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 9th, 1869.

AN OLD FRIEND'S REPORT.

Bro. Wood:—Perhaps a few words from an old friend and fellow-laborer may not be unacceptable to your scattered readers. Your kindly invitation for me to write for your columns removes the last objection I could possibly have, and induces me to give you a brief report of myself. Weeks and months have hurried on, since the important step was taken which formally severed my connection with the Free Methodist Church. Concerning the propriety of that step, many serious doubts have been entertained on the part of my friends. They may be anxious to know my thoughts and feelings and purposes, after the lapse of nine months, during which, if ever, a "sober second thought" would be likely to be cherished.

My honest answer to all such inquiries is, that I have never, for one moment, regretted the decision which I made at the last Annual Conference. I saw no other way then; and I have not since been even tempted to think that I made a mistake. Never was I more fully and permanently satisfied with any act of life. I do not say this exultingly, but with the utmost humility and candor, as a simple expression of my settled convictions.

As to my religious enjoyment, it has never been more deep and steady for so long a time together! My peace with God has been almost uninterrupted, and my poor heart has often swelled with holy joy. I have truly felt that God's dear hand was leading me into "green pastures, and beside still waters." The path of duty is a path of delight. My highest ambition is to glorify God in all things. I know I love Jesus, and Jesus loves me. I am fully committed to do his will, everywhere and every time. I am "not my own." I belong to Christ. He blesses me, keeps me, saves me. All glory to his matchless name.

Some are anxious to know if I have joined any other church. I have not. I am not prepared to commit myself on this subject for all time to come, but it is exceedingly doubtful whether my name is ever again enrolled on any ecclesiastical record. I belong to the Church of God—a church boundary whose lines no mortal eye can determine, but whose members are engraved upon the palms of a loving Father's hands. I am a companion of all the saints; a soldier in the living, marching, conquering army of Jesus.

As an independent evangelist, I am free to go "everywhere preaching the gospel" of salvation. Unfettered by human creeds, it is my purpose to stand squarely upon the platform of God's eternal truth, and preach the gospel, the whole gospel, and nothing but the gospel. By the grace of God I am building upon the "foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone." Much of the reverence which I formerly had for human traditions, I have now transferred to the word of God. I humbly and gratefully acknowledge that some of the views which I once entertained have been greatly and gloriously modified. The Bible, in some respects, is a new book. I have found a key that unlocks many of its long-standing mysteries. The character of God stands out all-glorious as the noon-day sun, and his administration is freed from every imputation of cruelty or injustice. I mean to believe and teach only what bears the broad seal of divine approval.

Since I joined the flying itinerancy, I have preached more or less in the the following places on my large circuit: Parma Center, North Parma, Rochester, Brockport, Knowlesville, South Butler, Dansville, Wayland, and Lockport, in the state of New York; Keene, Portsmouth, Farmington, Northwood, and Concord, in the State of New Hampshire; and Springfield, Worcester, Boston, Chelsea, Cambridge, Warren, Chicopee Falls, South Hadley, East Weymouth, Fair Haven, and New Bedford, in the State of Massachusetts. Taking this time together, I never enjoyed so great a degree of liberty in preaching C[illegible] race. I trust my labors hav[illegible] wholly in vain. I have held myself [illegible] and labor wherever the doors [illegible] and the calls were made. This is still my platform and purpose. "The world is my parish," and all true Christians are my brethren. Sectarian bigotry has given place in my heart to something better. My great aim is to publish a pure gospel, which effects a radical change in heart and life, and fits men for usefulness and immortality. Those who impugn my motives, shut me out of their pulpits, and refuse to decide the whole case on scriptural principles, must meet their responsibility at the bar of God. Meanwhile, my gracious Master will open before me all the doors which I can possibly enter. My cordial and christian greeting is hereby extended to all the lovers of Jesus. Rochester, N. Y. will continue to be my address. A. A. PHELPS.

New Bedford, Mass., July 9, 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

HOAG'S VISION.

It has been stated in the Crisis that Mr. Hoag, in his vision, saw or spoke of the Lord's coming; but as he was a Quaker, and as the Friends do not believe in the coming of Christ, they left out that part of the vision in their report of it. Some one has asked, through the Crisis, the evidence of the truth of this statement.

After this vision was published in the Crisis, Bro. Jesse Miller, of Sheldonville, Mass., saw a Mr. Sherman, of Foxboro, who belongs to the Society of Friends, and obtained from him the following:

Mr. Sherman said that he was well acquainted with Mr. Hoag, and considered him a very devoted and pious man. He said that Mr. Hoag related his vision to him in 1803, and that he was the first to whom he told it, and he wrote it down at that time as he related it to him.

Bro. Miller then took a copy from Mr. Sherman's record. This copy I have seen. There is nothing in it about Christ's coming. After speaking of the monarchical, persecuting government, he said: "Following that will come a government of righteousness and peace, that will pervade the whole earth." I quote from memory.

It is to me very clear that Mr. Hoag did have this vision, and at the time named. It is remarkable that every particular named in his vision has been strictly and literally fulfilled up to the present time. My fears are that the persecuting government will come before the Savior comes, or before the government of peace, of which Mr. Hoag speaks.

J. S. WHITE.

For the World's Crisis.

THE TRUE LIGHT.

All the light which is worthy of the name, comes to us through the anointed Son of God, even Jesus Christ. Without him we are in darkness. "In him was life, and the life was the light of men," John 1:4.

If we are in darkness, it must be because we love darkness rather than light; or if it is not so, we need not long remain in darkness. "The true light now shineth," and no dark clouds can obscure that light, unless they rise from hatred in the heart.

Love and light go together. "He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is no occasion of stumbling in him." The false light of science is like the light from the glow-worm and decaying wood, seen only in the darkness, and even then utterly useless so far as guiding or showing the way in which we should walk.

Lord, help us to be perfect in love, that we may be filled with the light that leads to life eternal. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Webster, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

HOW TO HELP THE CHILDREN AND THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

"UNCLE JOHN'S" PLAN.

"Uncle John" is a very poor man; but, next to God, he loves the children, and delights to do them good and make them happy. Besides three religious papers which (paid for in advance) he reads and then gives away to others who do not have them, he takes also ten copies of the Young Pilgrim, and distributes them freely among children who do not go to any Sabbath School.

Uncle John says "it pays to help the children," for the good which he does them "comes back to him when he meets them and sees their grateful looks and sweet smiling faces; and, besides, he looks forward to the recompense the Lord will give him by and by, which he thinks will be reward enough."

And now "Uncle John" proposes to do still more for the children this year, and for the little pilgrims' paper at the same time. He says he "will pay for thirty copies of the Young Pilgrim for free circulation, if a hundred others will do the same, and respond through The Young Pilgrim." He thinks there ought to be a hundred in Massachusetts alone who will do this, and as many in every other State; and then what a vast number of children would be benefitted by it.

What do you think, brethren, of Uncle John's proposition? You have a little of the Lord's money, and you love his appearing, and you are to help "feed his lambs,"—how much will you do, for these? Shall we not have a prompt and hearty response from hundreds at once, all over the land?

If you cannot distribute them yourself in your own place, we will see that they are distributed in other places where there are needy Sunday Schools and neglected children, who will be thankful for any help you may give them; and we will let you know where your donation goes.

Who, with "Uncle John," will give thirty copies?
Who will give twenty copies?
Who, ten copies?
Who, five, or three, or one?
Who will do it now?

Editor "Young Pilgrim."

☞ A word of kindness is seldom spoken in vain.

Correspondence.

From Sr. M. A. Miller.

BRO. GRANT:—Thank God, there is a class of christians that believe and preach Jesus is soon coming. No matter who call us fools and crazy, we do believe that he is soon coming back to this earth, to redeem the saints of God. We believe the same Jesus who hung on the cross, died, and rose again, will come again in like manner as he went away.

Every day we see or hear of signs which indicate the day of judgment is at hand. We read, "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils." How true it is. We see it every day. Some that have known the way, have gone deeper into the world and its vanities than ever before. The world grows worse and worse, while some cry "peace and safety." We really believe it will continue to grow worse until Jesus comes. O what an awful time it will be to sinners when Jesus comes; they will call for the rocks and mountains to hide them from the wrath of God. But what a glorious day to those dear ones who are ready, looking for him; those who have their lamps trimmed and burning.

When we think of God's goodness to his children, we can but exclaim, Who would not serve this Jesus? By faith we can see his smiling face. It will be glorious to see him face to face. What a blessed thought, that if we are only faithful we are to be redeemed, that we shall leave this world of sorrow, pain and death behind; there will be none of these monsters in the kingdom of God; it will be all peace, joy, gladness. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." Let us remember that the prize is at the end of the race. So let us run the race with patience, and not faint or fall out by the way. What a dreadful thing it would be for us to lose the prize just ahead. We read there will be some to whom it will be said, "Depart from me, . . I never knew you."

My prayer is, that we may all double our diligence, and make our calling and election sure; for we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every one may receive a just reward for all things done here in the body, whether it be good or evil. Let us so live every day and hour, that when Jesus comes we may hear him say, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." The world calls us crazy. Would to God there were more crazy ones. We count it an honor to be called fools for Christ's sake. Let us be faithful. The faithful alone will be saved when Jesus comes.

M. A. MILLER.

BRO. J. D. SHERIDAN, Three Rivers, Mich., Dec. 13th, writes:—"It is less than a year since I left the ranks of Satan, and commenced to try to be a soldier of the cross. When I first started, I made up my mind that I would have something to do, if I engaged in his service. He says to his servants, "Go work in my vineyard." I commenced by trying to weed my own garden first, and have found plenty to do every day, and feel many times as though I had made very slow progress, although I have had many seasons of refreshing, and have felt blest every day. I have not had the opportunity of meeting with those of like precious faith since I attended the meeting in Iowa last June, where you were present; but I have not failed to express my views on every opportunity that offered, wherever my lot has been cast; and have scattered tracts, as far as my ability would permit. I have sent some to Wis., to the friends that I visited on my way home from Iowa.

I am still a member of the Protestant Episcopal church, but I fail to meet with any sympathy there with my views. I am ridiculed as a poor, foolish fanatic, and as a setter forth of a strange doctrine, and a very dangerous one; but bless the Lord, I have some splendid meetings all alone by myself; yet I am not alone,—Jesus sent me the Comforter. I have much joy when the Crisis comes round once a week. When I read the letters from the dear brethren and sisters, it seems when I look through the crystal drops, that sometimes dim the columns before me, as though I was very near to them and was quite well acquainted with them all. Although I have never seen any of your faces, yet I have faith, and my desire grows stronger every day that the Lord would hasten his return. I did not feel as though I could receive all this enjoyment, without responding in my feeble way."

BRO. H. MUNGER, Pownal, Vt., Dec. 2nd, writes:—"We are having very interesting times in Pownal. The whole place is stirred. We got the ground before the devil got his flint picked, and the outsiders are determined to hear more on this subject. God is shaking popular theology to the very centre. The tavern keeper's wife has got interested, and that opens a good warm private room for me within a few rods from the meeting-house. Thank God. The whole town is stirred, and we are rejoicing in God. The work is starting up in North Adams."

LITTLE SINS.

There are many defects of character so open in their nature and so obviously injurious in their results that they obtain no permanent foothold in a civilized and moral community, and are, by common consent, given over to those who are so far debased as to have lost the desire for respectability. Yet these sins are but very few in number, compared with those commonly considered petty and venial, which are tolerated and cherished among us, and which all are ready to palliate and excuse, if not to defend, in themselves or in others. While great vices and open crimes may be compared to the ravages of wild beasts, or the fury of the elements, these little faults are like the subtle poison that gradually undermines the whole physical nature. They have well been compared to the small, soft and noiseless moths, harmless in appearance, but silently and surely eating into the thickest fabrics, and, if unchecked, destroying them.

The merely negative fault of indolence, the habit of over-eating, or of using unnecessary stimulants or narcotics, the common practice of spending a little too freely, or the opposite extreme of closing the hand that should bestow benefactions, the fretful temper, the morose visage, the haughty carriage, the harsh rebuke, small envyings and jealousies, exaggerations and deceits which are the seeds of untruthfulness, unfair advantages taken privately; all these, and many other faults that seem small and unimportant, are in reality the causes of more destruction of character in a community than all the crimes of which the law takes cognizance. The injuries they inflict upon others, being more remote from actual view, fail to excite the indignation that is itself the best corrective of the grosser forms of wickedness. But as man progresses in mental power, his increasing insight enables him to see the more distant as well as the immediate consequences of actions, and gradually they take a truer rank in public estimation. Conscience, however, if not hardened by neglect, will always set up a higher standard than public approval, and every thoughtful person will recognize the importance of guarding against the secret and insidious attacks of these so-called little faults.

Indeed, all vices and crimes owe their origin to the unchecked indulgence of little faults. But while the former are frightful from their magnitude, the latter are more really dangerous from the silent and insidious character of their workings. It is not sufficient that we bear a fair exterior, and are applauded by those who cannot see beneath the surface; if in our secret hearts and hidden lives, we cherish these germs of evil, if we indulge in small violations of duty, the whole fabric of our character will soon become pierced and eaten away like a garment that, for want of active usefulness, air and sunlight, is cut and destroyed, and rendered unfit for the purpose for which it was designed. Nothing is too small to be developed. If it takes vigilance and unceasing effort to cherish every germ of goodness in the human breast, no less strenuous exertion is needed to crush every weed in its earliest growth, and to prevent the blossoming of what would, if left to itself, choke and poison the whole character of man.—Philad. Public Ledger.

For the World's Crisis.

ADD NOT TO, AND TAKE NOT FROM.

"Take not from the words of this book."

We have no right to add to, or take from, the book of Revelation; and he who dares to do it does it at his peril. A recent writer, in trying to overthrow "the thousand year reign of Christ," audaciously took the position that the first ten verses of Rev. 20 were "interpolated," and his argument in favor of it was "that it was not in harmony with other portions of Inspiration, the plain teachings of Christ," etc., etc.

Hence another may find other portions of Revelation which do not harmonize with some of his theories; and he, from the same parity of reasoning, assumes the prerogative of clipping them off. Of course all such characters are understood as being willing to have their names blotted out of the "book of life," as a just recompense for such transgressions. They care more for sustaining their theory, than they do for sustaining the authenticity of the Holy Oracles, and give skeptics the long end of the lever, and the smooth handle.

It seems to me the better way is to let the sacred text stand as it is; and if God has suffered spurious sentiments to be interpolated, as long as we have no further evidence than our own opinion that they are such, he will not condemn us for receiving them as truth. And should they prove true at last, we should not like to be found fighting against them.

J. W. TAYLOR.

Obituaries.

POST. Died in Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 8th, 1869, of consumption, Mrs. Sarah Post, aged seventy-eight years, six months, and twenty-four days.

The above person has been a member of the Christian Church many years, and in former days enjoyed the advantages of a place among the highest circles of wealth and affluence. She now sleeps as low in the dust as the humblest of the daughters of Adam. In her last days she came under the influence of the Advent faith, to which she responded sufficiently to request her funeral to be conducted by an Advent preacher.

Funeral services were attended at the house of Bro. James Wells, by the writer.

WM. A. FENN.

ABBOTT. Died, in Concord, N. H., Oct. 11th, 1869, Sister Lavina P., wife of Bro. H. S. Abbott, aged fifty-nine years.

Sister A. suffered extremely with disease fifteen months, which terminated in dropsy of the heart, and carried her down to the land of darkness, to await the trump of God, which shall break the silence of the sleeping saints, with shouts of eternal triumph. Sister A. died with the glorious assurance of hope that Jesus will soon appear and give to his faithful people eternal life in his glorious kingdom.

J. COUCH.

GARDNER. Died in Leicester, Mass., Dec. 10th, 1869, of consumption, Ellen Gardner, wife of Wm. H. H. Gardner, aged thirty-two years and eight months.

Sister Gardner was a great sufferer the three last months of her life, but her trust was in God. She sweetly fell asleep in Christ. She leaves a dear husband and child to mourn her loss. Words of comfort were spoken by the writer.

E. COTTON.

FERREN. Died in Coldwater Township, Iowa, Oct. 17th, 1869, Lysander Ferren, son of Shepard and Sylvia Ferren, formerly of West Levant, Me., in the 23d year of his age.

We believe he died a christian. Words of comfort were spoken by R. H. Johnson, from Job 14: 14,—"If a man die, shall he live again?"

T. FERREN.

HOPKINS. Died in South Atkinson, Me., Sept. 27th, 1868, Mr. Richard Hopkins, formerly of Camden.

He fell asleep in hope. Sister H. and several children hope to meet him in the kingdom.

N. F. NASON.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

LONDON, Dec. 15. News has been received from St. Petersburg that secret political societies have been discovered at Moscow and in the interior provinces of European Russia, and that they were plotting an insurrection, to take place on the 17th of February, the anniversary of the emancipation of serfs.

PARIS, Dec. 16. Letters from Rome report that the Pope urges the appointment of the Gallican Bishops on the leading committees. It is generally understood that the object of the recent decree of the Pope, in dissolving the Council in case of his death, is to prevent the election to the Papacy of any but an Italian.

It is reported that the Empress has instructed her Chamberlain to meet Pere Hyacinthe on his arrival at Havre and dissuade him from attempting to preach in Paris.

Advices from Rome state that the Council has not yet been able to frame a commission to regulate the relations between the Church and State and define the rights of each. Several votes had been taken, but they were indecisive.

THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL.—ROME, Dec. 18. The sessions of the Ecumenical Council will be resumed on Wednesday, the 6th of January. Another reason is given to-day for the adjournment. The Bishops are under the necessity of abandoning the Cathedral of St. Peter on account of the acoustic imperfections of the hall, and have therefore resolved to hold their sessions hereafter at another place, but which cannot be put in order for several days. The Council has not yet named the seventy-two members of the three commissions provided for, namely, Discipline, Religious Orders, and Eastern Affairs. The members of the commission on the Faith have been designated, but their names have not yet been made public. The French Bishops have protested against the Pope's interference in the deliberations of the Council. The Spanish bishops, both home and colonial, sustain the Pope.

☞ The Pope receives, on an average, $2,000,000 per annum from Peter's pence, which ought to cover his little outside expenses.

DOMESTIC.

PAPAL BULL.—An important Papal bull has been issued, under the seal of strict secrecy, establishing regulations for the Ecumenical Council. In the exordium his Holiness exhorts the bishops to live in the practice of charity, humanity, sobriety and pious contemplation during the session of the council. He declares that although the right of making propositions for the council belongs only to himself and the See of Rome "ad nos et ad sanctam sedem," he desires and exhorts every father to think it is his duty to make propositions, but upon these conditions; that the proposition be made in writing and submitted privately to a council of bishops named by the Pope; that the proposition have for its object the general interests of the church, not of a particular diocese; that it be accompanied by a statement of the motives which have led to its presentation, and that it be conformable to the spirit and traditions of the Catholic church. His Holiness imposes secrecy on every person concerned in the labors of the council. The fathers are authorized to designate ten of their number to be charged with the judicial settlement of questions arising among the fathers themselves.

The Bull appoints the officers of the council, naming as the Legates of Presidents over the general congregations, Cardinals de Reisach de Lucia, Bizzarre, Billo and Capatti. Fathers who desire to address the assembly must obtain an authorization from the legati the evening preceding the day on which they intend to speak. Those who intend to propose canons must first submit them to one of the four commissions on Faith, Discipline, Religious Orders, and Oriental Affairs. The commissions will be chosen by the fathers, but each will be presided over by a cardinal named by the Pope. The Bull prohibits the fathers from absenting themselves before the end of the council and authorizes them to reside outside their dioceses during the council.

A majority of the Bishops are dissatisfied with many of the provisions of the Papal Bull.

A STRANGE STORY.—On Friday morning last, at about four o'clock, a lady resident of the West End of the city, having occasion to ascend the roof of her dwelling, beheld a brilliant reflection of a light of many colors, like the rainbow, on the white linen hanging on her lines, and raising her darkened eyes in bewilderment to the sky, was obliged to cover them with her hands on account of the dazzling effulgence and splendor which met her view, and transfixed, as with a dart, her very soul.

Quivering with astonishment and fear, she hastened down stairs and alarmed the inmates of the house, who, eager to behold what she had failed to portray in words, were astounded at seeing in the firmament the blazing form of a man as resplendent as the sun in its meridian glory. Round about him the forms of gorgeously attired infants of angelic beauty hovered, and beneath them were seen the profiles of two women in a kneeling posture.

One man, a Mr. Wiggin, also a resident of the West End, and a very trustworthy gentleman, possessing more esprit present than the others, burnt a piece of glass through which were perceivable these words:—"Come, now is the accepted time; come now!" These were in very large, green letters, which he says he plainly saw. There were other words, but our informant could not decipher them.

"In the last days there shall be signs in the heavens." Surely, the end must be approaching when justice shall no longer be tempered with mercy, but with the wrath of the Great Judge of all judges, "who shall not fail nor be discouraged till he hath set judgment in the earth."

We have made inquiries concerning the parties alluded to above, and find they are not Spiritualists or Second Adventists, and are not given to nightmare. They are worthy Methodist people. Had one person seen the sight it might not be considered remarkable; but several saw the forms distinctly, and the sight made an impression on their minds. We leave it for the meteorologists to determine what the phenomenon was.—Boston Times.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE BEGUN.—The long night of woman's total obscuration as a political member of society begins to wear away. Indeed the dawn of her enfranchisement has actually begun—only reversing the order of the natural world, this new light breaks in the west. It comes to us over the tops of the Wind River Mountains and Fremont's Peak, which are said to be the distinguishing landmarks of Wyoming Territory. As no live newspaper should fail to present the germs of all great movements transpiring in its time, we here put on record the first woman's suffrage law—for the telegraph assures us that the bill has become a law through the signature of Gov. Campbell—in the United States, or, for all that we know, in the world:

"Be it enacted by the Council and House of Representatives of Wyoming Territory, That every woman of the age of twenty-one years, residing in this Territory, may, at every election to be holden under the laws thereof, cast her vote. And her rights to the elective franchise and to hold office shall be the same under the election laws of the Territory as those of electors.

Sec. 2. This act shalll take effect and be in force from and after its passage."—Boston Journal.

MINING UNDER THE SEA.—There is a vast copper mine in England, where shafts extend many hundred yards under the sea. The moaning of the waves as they dash against the rock is for ever sounding in those gloomy aisles. When the storms come, the sound of the waters become so terrific, that even the boldest miners cannot stay below, but leave their work and come out upon the earth. Overhead are masses of bright copper streaming through the gallery in all directions, traversed by a network of thin red veins of iron, and over all the salt water drips down from tiny crevices in the rock. Immense wealth of metal is contained in these roofs, but no miner dares give it another stroke with his pickaxe. Already there has been one day's work too much upon it, as a huge wedge of wood driven into the rock bears witness. The wedge is all that keeps back the sea from bursting in upon them. Yet there are three tiers of galleries where men work day by day, not knowing but at some fatal hour the flood may be upon them, rendering all escape as hopeless as it was in the days of Noah. The awe stricken visitor hurries away from the scene, with a heart appalled in view of the hourly dangers.

Passing Events.

☞ Mr. Spurgeon asserts that in England, open communion churches prosper greatly. This seems to be true to some extent in our own country. Some of the Baptist churches in North Carolina, which act upon this principle, are enjoying revivals and increasing in numbers. A new Baptist church has been organized at Fort Smith, Ark. The exclusion of a member of the old church, because he communed with his wife at a Methodist church, set this enterprise in motion.

☞ The mineral stone known as Sillimanite, found in considerable quantities near the falls, Norwich, Conn., is valuable from the fact that it is obtainable nowhere else on the globe save in the Ural Mountains. Mineralogists give it a prominent place in their cabinets, and frequently exchange rare specimens of other minerals for it. Its name and location are well known to geologists all over the world.

☞ The Roman Catholics are erecting a large cathedral in the city of Pekin, China, two hundred and fifty feet long, built of granite, in highly ornamented gothic style. It will take several years to complete it, and will cost, probably, three or four millions of dollars. The funds are provided in Europe and America.

☞ The hereditary priesthood recently abolished in Russia, embraces 750,000 families, to which the right of officiating as priests was restricted, and the male children of which could not engage in secular pursuits. The abolition of this odious caste must prove a great blessing to thousands, and the effect must be considerable on the empire.

☞ Advices from Mexico state that a mob had attacked a Protestant congregation at Puebla during the service. The mob was led by an Imperialist officer and urged on by the priests. Many of the congregation were severely injured, and some will die. The mob tried to burn the Protestants alive, using Bibles for a funeral pile. The police arrested several. The rioters afterwards went to several Protestant houses, insulting and threatening the inmates.

☞ Some weeks ago, the Emperor of Russia, in a fit of hypochondriasis, refused food for three days, and serious apprehensions were felt that his disease would pass into insanity. Similar attacks are said to have occurred at various times during the last two years. Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown and drinks brandy straight.

Agricultural Items.

☞ A Massachusetts farmer says that he can winter his cows on steamed feed for one-third less expense than on dry feed, and get one-fourth more milk. This is the result of five years' experience.

☞ The total crop of the country is estimated at some 1,400,000,000 bushels of grain, of which wheat is 350,000,000 and corn 800,000,000.

☞ We have kept winter squashes by packing them in barrels and placing them in a cool place, where they would not freeze, until late in winter. If care is taken not to bruise them, the Boston Marrow may thus be kept until April.

— The cane crop of the West Indies promises an abundant yield.

— Many apple trees near New Albany, Ind., have reblossomed.

Notices.

Mass. State Conference.

The next Quarterly Conference of Mass. will be holden at Chelsea, Library Hall, to commence January 6th, at half past ten, and to be continued over the Sabbath, and longer if thought best. Let there be a grand rally from all parts of the State, and a full representation from every church. Let there be much prayer for this meeting, and let us come together filled with the spirit of the Lord, expecting a mighty work will be done for the salvation of sinners, and quickening of the dear saints.

S. W. THURBER, President.
P. S. BUTLER, Secretary.

Read This!

To those who intend to build wood tents at Alton Bay, N. H., next season (of which there are some fifty or more who have spoken for lots), I would say that now is the time to send their schedule of the lumber they will want, to Bro. Jeremiah Woodman, Alton, N. H. Be particular to give the size of the tent and kind of lumber. And those who have not arranged for building their tents, and those who do not intend to build their tents themselves, should write to Bro. Joseph Langley, Pittsfield, N. H., or to me at New Durham, N. H., so that arrangements can be made in season.

J. G. SMITH.

Watch Meeting.

There will be a watch meeting at Plainville, Ct., in Good Templar's Hall, (formerly Methodist Chapel), Friday evening, Dec. 31st. Meeting will commence at eight o'clock P. M. Preaching at half past eight, by Eld. B. Hitchcock. Intermission of twenty minutes at half past nine. Love feast and social meeting from ten until eleven. Preaching at eleven by Mrs. M. L. Durand. Meeting will close immediately after commencement of the new year. Brethren are invited to come and meet with us. Good sheds for horses are engaged near the Congregational Church.

For the Brethren, WM. BUNCE.
GEO. MORGAN.

Minnesota Conference.

The eighth annual conference of the Advent Christian Church of Minnesota will be held (D.V.) in Monticello, commencing Thursday evening, at seven o'clock, Jan. 13th, and will continue over the following Sunday. All the members are particularly invited to be present, or report by letter. Churches are also requested to send delegates, or report by letter.

THOS. K. ALLEN, Sec.

Protracted Meeting.

The Lord willing, we shall commence a protracted meeting in North Benton, N. H., evening, Dec. 28th, to continue through the week and over the Lord's day. All are invited to attend.

A. A. HOYT.
T. E. LANG, JR.

Notice.

There will be preaching in Roxbury, Ct., Sunday, Jan. 2d, 1870, at the house of Levi R. Teeple, by Bro. Chas. C. Barker. Will the brethren and sisters from abroad come to this house and worship with us, that we may have a feast? All are invited. In behalf of the cause of God, and the love of the truth,

SUSAN E. TEEPLE.

Notice.

A quarterly meeting of the Union Female Missionary Association will be holden at Meredith Village, N. H., commencing Jan. 5th, 1870, at two o'clock P. M., and will hold over the following Sabbath. Arrangements have been made with the Boston, Concord and Montreal Rail Road to give free return passes to all who may choose to attend the Association from any station on the road, and efforts will be made to secure the same favor on the Concord and Portsmouth, Manchester and Lawrence, and Manchester and Nashua R. R. Persons purchasing full fare tickets to the meeting, will receive return passes, signed by the Secretary, good through the meeting.

The hall where the meeting is to be held, is an excellent one, new and commodious. The place is pleasantly situated. But little preaching of the present truth message has been had there, and it is hoped that the sisters of the Association, the members, and all others who can, will attend this meeting. The few brethren and sisters in the place and vicinity will do all they can to entertain those who may come.

The train up arrives at Meredith Village at noon, and the train down at two o'clock P. M. All who attend the meeting, will come at once to Lake Hall, and arrangements will be made for their comfort. Come to work for Jesus, and save the perishing.

M. MCKINSTRY.

Notice.

In view of the lack of deep piety in the church, and a proper interest in the soon coming of Jesus to redeem his people and give them their Eden home, we, the undersigned, call for a general, free, and old-fashioned Conference, to be held in Richmond Village, Me., to commence Dec. 22d, at seven P. M., and continue over Lord's day. This conference is intended to benefit ministers and members; in which ministers will relate their call into the ministry, and members their experience in the proclamation of the Advent near; and to labor for the salvation of sinners and the piety of the church.

ISRAEL DAMMAN.
A. H. WALKER.
B. EMERY.

Ministerial Conference.

By invitation of the church in Bangor, the Maine Ministerial Conference will be held in Bangor, commencing Tuesday, January 11th, 1870, and continue as long as thought proper. We hope to see a full attendance of the ministering brethren from all parts of the State to labor in the name of the Lord for the advancement of the great truth of our day, the coming and kingdom of Christ and of God.

C. GOUD, President.
R. R. YORK, Vice President.

Notice.

By invitation of the church at New Britain, the next quarterly session of the A. C. Conference will convene at New Britain, Conn. Services to commence Wednesday evening, Jan. 12th, 1870. Business session at ten o'clock A. M., Thursday. Let every church be represented, and all come with a hearty good will to work for the Lord. Letters and communications can be sent to the Secretary previous to the meeting, at 189 Orchard Street, New Haven, Conn.

GEORGE L. TEEPLE, Sec. of Conf.

Protracted Meeting.

There will be a protracted meeting at East Rochester, N. H., commencing Thursday, Dec. 23d, 1869, at half past seven P. M., and hold over the following Sunday. Preaching by Brn. J. Couch, W. W. Sutherland, and others.

ELDERS J. QUIMBY, J. C. SHOREY.

Notice.

The next session of the R. I. and E. Conn. Conference will be held with the Advent church in Bristol, R. I., on the 5th, 6th, and 7th of January, 1870. Come, preachers and delegates, make one more rally for the conference. Let us begin the work of the incoming year in earnest.

A. DURFEE, President of Conf.

Notice.

The Lord willing, we will commence a series of meetings in East Otis, Mass., Jan. 5th, and hold them over the following Sabbath. Brethren and sisters, we desire your attendance. Come one, come all.

W. J. RIPLEY.
E. PHELPS.

Notice.

LOST, at the Windham Campmeeting, Ct., Aug. 21st, 1869, a medium sized trunk, black leather, iron-bound, rather rough looking, leather flap and key hole, two leather straps fastened to the back and buckled in front, and two leather handles at each end, same color of the trunk, containing campmeeting clothing, bed quilt, etc. Said trunk was sent down to the cars with other baggage, and was probably sent east, and put off with other baggage at some station on the H. P. and F. R. R., when it should have gone west. If any one knows any thing about the above described trunk, they will please inform the owner by addressing her at Fair Haven, Ct., Box 185, and oblige,

HARRIET C. CLARK.

THE MONITOR. On account of sickness in the family of Bro. Angell, and various unforeseen hindrances, the work of publishing the Monitor has been greatly delayed. All who are interested may expect a full report soon.

F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Notice.

I have removed from Danielsonville, Conn., to North Springfield, Vt., and friends are requested to address me henceforth at this place.

H. P. CARPENTER.

☞ A short poem, "The Blissful Vision," may be had for 30 cents per dozen, of the author, J. ALBERT LIBBY, West Poland, Maine.

German Tracts.

Bro. Reimer has a good supply. Send your orders to L. REIMER, 106 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

H. Pratt.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
M. Batchelor.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
John G. Hook.......Friday evening, Jan. 7th and Sundays, Jan. 9th and 16th.

BOSTON, SOUTH END, (Minot Hall), corner of Washington and Springfield Streets.)
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.

Geo. A. Streeter.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
J. S. White.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd

EAST BOSTON.

Meetings are held at Chase's Block, up two flights, at 154 Meridian Street, on Sundays, at the usual hours, also Monday and Thursday evenings.

William C. Thurman.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
A. P. Moore.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
J. W. Brittan.......Sunday, Jan. 9th
Geo. A. Streeter.......Sunday, Jan. 16th

CHELSEA, MASS., (LIBRARY HALL.)

J. W. Britton.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
L. Boutell.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
T. M. Preble.......Sabbath, Jan. 9th

CHARLESTOWN.
Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.

J. T. Dixon.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
T. M. Preble.......Sabbath, Jan. 2nd

Windsor Station, P. Q., Friday and Saturday evenings, and over the Sabbath, Dec. 31st, Jan. 1st and 2nd.
Melbourne Ridge.......evenings, Jan. 3d, 4th and 5th
Melbourne Village.......Thursday evening, Jan. 6th and onward. MILES GRANT.

Montgomery, Mass.......Dec. 23d, 24th, 25th and over Sunday, the 26th. JOHN G. HOOK.

Manchester, N. H.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
A. P. MOORE.

Worcester, Mass.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
Lynn, Mass.......Sunday, Jan. 30th
M. BATCHELOR.

Hartford, Ct.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
New Britain, Ct.......Dec. 22d
Forestville, Ct.......Dec. 23d
Holden, Mass.......January 9th
J. S. WHITE.

Pomfret, Vt., (as Bro. Harrington may arrange), evenings, Dec. 21st and 22d.
South Vershire, Vt.......evening, Dec. 24th
West Fairlee, Vt.......evening, Dec. 25th and over the Sabbath, Dec. 26th.
H. F. CARPENTER.

Vernon, Vt.......Thursday evening, Dec. 23d and over Sunday, the 26th.
Vernon, Vt.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Southington, Ct.......Sabbath, Jan. 9th
ALBION ROSS.

Hoosac, N. Y.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Scitico, Ct.......Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
The rest of Jan. not engaged. H. MUNGER.

Stowe, Mass.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
JAMES A. YOUNG.

Salem, Mass.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
Providence, R. I.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Springfield, Mass.......Sunday, Jan. 9th
RUFUS WENDELL.

Savoy, Mass.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Chicopee Falls, Mass.......Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
Hartford, Conn.......Sabbaths, Jan. 23d and 30th
E. MCCULLOCK.

Webster, N. H., (old meeting-house), Sab., Dec. 26th
Boscawen, N. H., (Gulf school-house), Sab., Jan. 2nd
Lake Village, N. H.......Sabbath, Jan. 30th
SIMEON ROBY.

Meredith, N. H., (Dolloff Hall).......Sunday, Jan. 9th
D. W. DAVIS.

North Sutton, N. H., (at Bro. I. Andrews), Sabbath, Dec. 26th. JULIA BUSWELL.

Manchester, N. H.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Hampton, N. H.......Jan. 6th, and over the Sabbath
D. F. LEAVITT.

Barnstead, N. H., (White Oak school-house), Sunday, Dec. 26th, JOHN PARSONS.

Meredith, N. H., (Dolloff Hall).......Sunday, Dec. 26th
S. C. HANCOCK.

Meredith, N. H., (Dolloff Hall).......Sunday, Dec. 26th
D. M. LEAVITT.

Kingston, N. H.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
Seabrook, N. H.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Great Falls, N. H.......Sunday, Jan. 16th
East Rochester, N. H.......Sunday, Jan. 23d
WM. C. STEWART.

Freedom, N. H.......Wednesday evening, Dec. 29th
Porter, Me.......Thursday evening, Dec. 30th
Ossipee, N. H., (school-house, Dist. No. 4), Sunday, A. M., Jan. 2nd.
Melvin Village, N. H.......evening, Jan. 2nd
Lake Village, N. H.......evening, Jan. 3d
Meredith, (Dolloff Hall).......evening, Jan. 4th
Meredith Village.......evening, Jan. 5th and over the following Sabbath at W. F. M. Association. L. C. & M. MCKINSTRY.

Lake Village, N. H.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Haverhill Center, N. H., (Union House), Sabbath, Jan. 2nd. A. A. HOYT.

Dorchester, N. H., (Town House).......Sabbath, Dec. 26th (Baptism.) JOHN M. EVANS.

Holden, Mass.......evening, Dec. 23d
Fayville, Mass.......evening, Dec. 27th
Clinton, Mass.......evening, Dec. 28th
Chelsea Conference.......Jan. 6th
Milville, Mass.......Sunday, Jan. 9th and through the week. GEO. A. STREETER.

Shelburne Falls, Mass.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
Savoy, Mass.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd and in that vicinity as the Lord may direct.
J. L. WOOD.

New Hampton, N. H., (Bro. Pike's).......eve., Dec. 25th
Meredith Center, (at the Hall).......Sabbath, Dec. 26th
F. S. RANSOM.

Farmington, N. H.......Saturday evening, Jan. 1st and Sunday, the 2nd. H. M. BRYANT.

Meredith Neck, N. H.......evenings, Dec. 23d, 24th, 25th and over the following Sabbath.
Meredith Centre, N. H.......Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
N. GLIDDEN.

South Sutton, N. H.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
C. H. FLETCHER.

Lake Village, N. H.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
South Sutton, N. H.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Hopkinton, (Town Hall building).......Sunday, Jan. 9th
C. W. SARGENT.

Vernon, Vt.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
Wilbraham, Mass.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Exeter, N. H.......Sunday, Jan. 9th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Lansingburgh, N. Y.......Sunday morning, Dec. 26th
Troy, N. Y.......Sunday afternoon
Albany, N. Y.......Sunday evening
A. A. PHELPS.

Holden, Mass.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th
T. M. PREBLE.

Portsmouth, N. H.......Sunday, Jan. 9th
Salisbury, N. H., (Mills).......evening, Dec. 31st
West meeting-house, evening, Jan. 1st, and over the Sabbath. J. G. SMITH.

Nashua.......Saturday evening, Dec. 18th and over Sunday. JOHN H. DADMUN.

Epsom, N. H., Marden's Corner, (as Bro. Bennet may arrange), Saturday evening, Dec. 25th.
Chichester, N. H., (Pine Ground), Sunday, Dec. 26th
N. B. MCMURPHY.

South Berwick, Great Works.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th
New Durham Ridge.......Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
A. MUSSEY TRIPP.

West Ossipee, N. H.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th
ELISHA JOHNSON.

South Sunapee, N. H., (where Bro. Lear may appoint), Friday, Dec. 24th.
Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sunday, Dec. 26th. Z. T. WOOD.

Northwood Narrows, N. H., Sunday, Jan. 2nd, and through the week as the brethren may arrange, and over the following Sunday.
It is expected Bro. T. W. Piper will be with me part of the time at this meeting.
GEORGE W. BROWN, of So. Elliot, Me.

Barnstead, (White Oak Ground, Tuttle school-house), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
Rochester Village.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
J. PINKHAM.

Salisbury, (South Road), N. H., (where Bro. Foote may arrange), Dec. 26th. J. G. SMITH.
S. S. MOONEY.

Campton, N. H., (Bump school-house), evening, Dec. 30th, over the Sabbath, and onward as the Lord may direct. D. EASTMAN.
J. H. EVANS.

New Bedford, Mass.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
Manchester, N. H.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Hinsdale, N. H., (where Bro. Thomas may appoint), Sunday, Dec. 26th, and stop as long as duty calls.
E. COTTON.

Melvin Village.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
T. W. PIPER.

Holden, (Cluley neighborhood).......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Bangor.......Sunday, Jan. 9th
ISRAEL DAMMON.

Brunswick.......evening, Dec. 25th and over the Sabbath. H. D. REED.

Sabbath, N. H.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
E. S. MOULTON.

North Somers, Ct.......evening, Dec. 24th
North Somers, Ct.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th
Springfield, Mass.......evening, Dec. 28th
Brimfield, Mass.......evening, Dec. 29th
Charlton, Mass.......evening, Dec. 30th
Webster, Mass.......evening, Dec. 31st
Abington, Ct.......Sabbath, Jan. 2d
Millville, Mass.......evenings, Jan. 4th and 5th
Charlton, Mass.......evening, Jan. 7th and over the Sabbath. A. D. FLAGG.

Lanesville, Ct.......evening, Dec. 22d
Salem, N. Y., (Pine Tree school-house).......Dec. 24th
New York City (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sabbath, Dec. 26th.
Westerly, R. I.......evening, Dec. 28th
Charlestown, R. I., (as Bro. Lewis may arrange), evening, Dec. 29th.
Wyoming, R. I.......evenings, Dec. 30th and 31st
Rocky Brook, R. I.......Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
Natick, R. I.......evening, Jan. 4th
Bristol, R. I., (Conference).......Jan. 5th, 6th, and 7th
Abington, Ct.......Sabbath, Jan. 9th
Millville, Mass.......Sunday, Jan. 12th
Charlton, Mass.......Sabbath, Jan. 16th
C. H. SWEET.

Fives mile from Westfield, Mass., (as Bro. Phelps may arrange), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
CHAS. P. GREENMAN.

West Rumney, N. H. (Plain school-house), evenings, Dec. 23d and 24th.
Warren Summit, N. H.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
Will Bro. Cyrus Nelson go with me to West Rumney? T. ELWIN LANG.

North Haverhill.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
WM. H. SHAW.

Springfield, Mass.......Sundays, Dec. 26th and Jan. 2nd
Hartford, (Talcott and Post's Hall), Sunday, Jan. 9th
W. N. PILE.

Collinsville, Ct.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
East Haddam, Ct.......Sunday, Jan. 2d
S. WOODRUFF.

Newfield.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
Hartland, (Town Hall).......Sunday, Jan. 16th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

Hartford, Conn., (Talcott & Post's Hall), Sunday, Dec. 26th.
New Britain, Ct.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
W. S. CAMPBELL.

Woodstock Valley, Ct.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
I. B. POTTER.

South Windsor, Ct.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
WM. A. & M. L. DURAND.

Square Pond, Ct.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
North Somers, Ct.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
A. SIMPSON.

North Canton, Ct., (near Bro. and Sr. Williams'), Monday evening, Dec. 20th, and onward three or four evenings.
Philadelphia, Pa., and Camden, N. J., Sunday, Dec. 26th, instead of New York.
New York City, (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sunday, Jan. 9th. H. K. FLAGG.

New Britain, Conn.......Dec. 26th
Providence, R. I.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Rocky Brook, R. I.......Sunday, Jan. 9th
GEO. W. BROWN.

Bowdoin, Me.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th
H. S. MITCHELL.

Kennebunkport, Me.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
T. P. HAMPSON.

Penobscot, (West Bay Shore).......Sunday, Dec. 26th
Penobscot, (Perkin's school-house), Sunday, Jan. 2nd
JOHN RIDLEY.

West Poland, Me., (Free Chapel).......Sunday, Dec. 26th
J. ALBERT LIBBY.

Hartford, Me., (Methodist meeting-house), Saturday, Jan. 1st, and through the following week.
J. T. JORDAN.

Mexico, Me., (as Bro. Collins may appoint), Friday evening, Dec. 24th.
Byron, Me.......Saturday evening, Dec. 25th and over the Sabbath.
Weld, Me., (Town House), Wed. and Thurs. evenings, Dec. 29th and 30th.
Carthage, Me.......Saturday evening, Jan. 1st and over the Sabbath.
Dixfield Centre, Monday and Tuesday evenings, Jan. 3d and 4th. JARED WHITMAN.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., (Bethel Church.)

Wm. N. Pile.......Sundays, Dec. 26th and Jan. 2nd
Rufus Wendell.......Sunday, Jan. 9th
James Hemenway.......Sunday, Jan. 16th
H. K. Flagg.......Sunday, Jan. 23d
Wm. N. Pile.......Sunday, Jan. 30th

WESTFIELD, MASS.

A. Simpson.......Sundays, Jan. 9th and 16th

STONEHAM, MASS.

C. E. Barnes.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
J. W. Britton.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
J. S. White.......Sunday, Jan. 16th
C. Goodrich.......Sunday, Jan. 23d

WILBRAHAM, MASS.

P. S. Butler.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th

CONCORD, N. H., (CENTRE STREET.)

C. H. Fletcher.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th

CONCORD, N. H., (AT THE BETHEL.)

N. Whiting.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
J. G. Hook (watch meeting).......evening, Dec. 31st and Sunday, Jan. 2nd.

DOVER, N. H.

C. Goodrich.......Sunday, Dec. 26th

PORTLAND, ME.

W. H. Mitchell.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th

SOUTH ELLIOTT, ME.

C. S. Emerson Dec. 26th, through the week as may seem duty, and Sunday, Jan. 2nd.
Wm. Stuart.......Sunday, Jan. 9th

NEW BRITAIN, CT.

J. S. White.......evening, Dec. 22d
Geo. W. Brown.......Sunday, Dec. 26th
H. H. Dickenson.......Sunday, Jan. 9th
Wm. N. Pile.......Sunday, Jan. 23d
Wm. Stuart.......Sunday, Jan. 30th

BRISTOL, CT.

R. Stark.......Sabbath, Dec. 26th

PLEASANT VALLEY, CT.

H. H. Dickenson.......Sunday, Dec. 26th

Windsor, Me., (Preble school-house), every second Sabbath of the month until further notice. Church Hill, Augusta, third Sabbath. Mud Mills, Augusta, fourth Sabbath. THOMAS RINES.

WOLCOTTVILLE, CT.

G. L. Teeple.......Sunday, Jan. 2nd

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Westfield, Mass., will please correspond first with Eld. E. A. EGGLESTON.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Portsmouth, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. THOMAS J. SPINNEY.

☞ BRO. JOSEPH A. PHILBROOK has been chosen Corresponding Secretary for the church in Hampton, N. H. Preaching brethren will please notice.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Manchester, N. H., will please correspond with the following committee:—A. J. Mayhew, S. R. Davidson, O. Proctor.

☞ Brethren sending appointments for Loudon Ridge, N. H., will bear in mind that the fourth Sabbath in each month is engaged.

☞ Any Bro. wishing to come to Seabrook, N. H., to preach, will please address Bro. R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Bro. Charles Barton, of Seabrook.

☞ All preaching brethren who desire to communicate with the church at Rochester, N. Y., are requested to correspond with J. E. WELLS, 32 Smith Street.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Portland, Me., will please correspond first with Eld. R. R. YORK, or with either of the following committee:—H. C. Freeman, James Berry, S. K. Dyer.

☞ Advent preaching brethren who may wish to visit Kennebunk Depot, will please address Edwin B. Wells, Kennebunk Depot, Me.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Lewiston, Me., will please correspond first with ALBERT BURGESS, Cor. Sec.

☞ AUGUSTUS E. SNOW, 1715 Markham Street, Philadelphia, has been chosen Cor. Secretary of the church worshiping at Ninth and Spring-Garden Streets.

☞ Brethren wishing to visit the church in Bristol, Ct., will please correspond with Elder B. HITCHCOCK, Forestville, Ct.

☞ Brethren desiring to preach in Hartford, Ct., will please correspond with Bro. L. Tiffany. Preaching the first Sabbath in each month by resident Elder H. H. Dickinson.

☞ Persons wishing to communicate with the church in New Britain, Conn., in regard to preaching, will please correspond with Bro. A. POWELL, Cor. Sec.

WORKS BY I. C. WELLCOME.

A Treatise on Matt. xxiv. and xxv.

Expository and Historical, showing the accurate fulfilment of Christ's predictions to the present time, and what we should expect next. Fifth edition. 150 pages. 25 cts. by mail.

Christian Baptism--its Object and Duty.

Thoroughly examined, Scripturally and Historically. A valuable work. Fourth edition. 81 pp. 25 cts. by mail.

The Berean's Casket.

A Collection of Scriptures, in various versions, on the most important subjects in the Bible, in sections; to which is added much important History, Statistics, and Tables, making a book of great value to all Bible students and teachers. Cloth, $1.00; leather, $2.50 by mail.

The Plan of Redemption.

BY WELLCOME AND GOUD.

A valuable work on the Creation and Fall of Man, the Covenants, Atonement, Redemption, Regeneration, Faith and Hope, Restitution, Reign of Christ, Millennium, True Israel, &c. &c. This work receives great commendation. Third edition. 460 pages. $1.25 by mail.

Israel and the Millennium.

A thorough refutation of Judaism; a valuable exposition of the Scriptures, and clear statement of the Bible doctrine of the Millennium. 144 pages. 25 cts. by mail.

I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Business.

Letters Received.

C Colegrove, A L Adams, L C McKinstry, M E Chute, C E Trunalit, I C Wellcome, E S Willard, H S St. Claire, J S White, W C Land, L T Cunningham, J L Knapp, R Lanning, F H Chamberlain, P Foster, M A Miller, D D Chaffee, W O Higley, C E Greenslit, M E Chute, A A Carl, J Wendell, W A Fenn, M M Pitkin, R Smith, M D Avery, M M Pitkin.

Cash received for Books and Tracts.

E J Hale & Son 72c, D B Roberts $10.00, I Buzzell 50c, A Grovenwood 6.00, M E Stone 3.25, Mrs E B Dean 1.15, G Wright 50c, A H Smith 1.00, A J Mayhew 4.50, S L Manley (by A P M) 10.00, L Armstrong 7.75, G P Hays 50c, J Ridley 4.50, J T Levi 50c, A E Phelps 1.00, E Bellows 7.75, N Glidden 9.00, J C Parish 35c, G A Brenner 3.00, Mrs A Bedell 35c, S Marrett 35c, L L Taylor 1.00, T C Armstrong 1.10, J N Spencer 1.00, G P Hayes 2.50, W Brown & Son 1.15, J M Stetler 1.00, P S Hartough 50c, Mrs M Watson 87c, B B Hill 1.00, H T Taylor 1.00, J B Welch 60c, S B Colton 75c, A T Leach 50c, C E Gilbert 2.00, Knowlton Bros. 2.50, A H Walker 5.00, S B Cole 50c, F A Greene 35c, M F Vickery 75c, J F Buzzell 50c, J Flory 60c, L Tuttle 1.50, C C Barker 2.50, W S Stone 1.25, M W Owens 4.16, S L Manley (by M. G.) 5.25, A S Webster 1.75, A J Mayhew 7.50, W S Knight 45c, J M Lydston 35c, J Lenfest 3.75, M C Kershaw 35c, J Daley 50c, G F A Speller 50c, J J Lambert 50c, J V Himes 5.00, J Lenfest 75c, H Pratt 62c, J V Himes 9 00, J H Evans 50c, C E Darrow 2.25, B Thompson 6.00, S Williams 1.25, E M Davis 1.00, O Place 1.25, G T Collins 35c, C Wilder 50c, D Hatch 35c, J Thomas 1.00, J W Thomas 2.50, G P Wright 54c, W C Terry 1.00, V M Abbott 60c, W H Wild 1.00, D C Bancroft 60c, S Robinson 35c.

Books and Tracts Sent.

BY MAIL.—D S Clark, A M Locke, M C Kershaw, J Dailey, G F A Spiller, J J Lambert, B Thompson, J C Edwards, C E Darrow, S Williams, G W Woodruff, J Ruddell, G T Collins, E Urch, Geo F McAllister, Ira Pinckney, W H Rogers, S Roby, J W Morrow, Jane Thomas, J S Hinds, F Reynolds, D D Reed, J W Thomas, H H Weld, Geo P Wright, R Holder, R Martin, P A Walker, W H Wild, V M Abbot, D L Allyn, W S Ferry, B C Bancroft, S Robertson, J Lenfest, J Cook, J V Himes, S Crouse, J C Stoddard, H B Shigal, M Holman.

BY EXPRESS.—J V Himes.

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

Advent Christian Publication Society,

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Miscellaneous.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, postpaid—Family and Pulpit Edition (8vo. Pica), Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18mo. Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c; Extra Cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.25; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60. Miniature Edition, for Children and Sunday schools,—cloth, 25c.; roan, 50c.; gilt, 75c.

THE BIBLE TEXT-BOOK; or the Principal Texts relating to the Persons, Places, and Subjects occurring in the Holy Scriptures. Arranged for the use of Ministers, Teachers, and Students of the Bible With two Maps, and a variety of useful Tables. Price, by mail, 40 cents. Postage 8 cts.

UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED from the Inner Temple, and shown to be, in its results, no better than Infidelity. By John T. Walsh. 5c. single by mail; 50c. per dozen.

"THE NEXT DISPENSATION Viewed in the Light of Revelation." By Wm. Sheldon. By mail, 12c. single copy; $1.00 per dozen.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.16. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.66. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.16.

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption, and in the Administration of the Government of God By Wm. Shepherd. 20c.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Paper covers 45c. by mail.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.26c; Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

STORIES FOR YOUNG PILGRIMS. 16pp. each, in paper covers, with illustrations. 30 cents per dozen; $2.00 per 100; 5c. single, postpaid.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly Contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 3 cts; by mail, 6c.

THE FIRST DAY SABBATH. By T. M. Preble. A new and interesting work. pp. 471. Price $1.50.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5 cts. single; by mail, 7 cts.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c. by mail, 15c.

TWO HUNDRED STORIES FOR CHILDREN. By Elder T. M. Preble. pp. 224. 80c. by mail.

HEALTH REFORMER'S COOK BOOK. Price 30c; by mail, 32c.

THE SEVENTH-DAY SABBATH. Is its observance binding? By G. W. Baily. 23pp. Single 5c. postpaid.

SPIRITUAL EVIL: A Warning for the Unwary. By Thomas Carlyle. 3c. single; 5c. by mail; 20c. per dozen.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR; or, Spiritualism; What it is, and what it is not. Paper covers, $1.00; by mail; cloth, $1.25 by mail.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. 25c. per dozen; $1.50 per hundred. Single 4c., postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 5c; per dozen, 50c.

BETHLEHEM: a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9½ per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 18 cts. additional postage.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

376 pages. Price by mail, $1.35.

The above works for sale at this office.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $6.00; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $4.60; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.50; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $2.50; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.00; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

Any of the above will be sent by mail on receipt of the price.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; $3.50 per one hundred copies

For the World's Crisis.

THE LORD'S SERVANT.

AIR.—"Cross of the Lord."

Behold the servant of the Lord,
He stands a spectacle to men;
He holds in hand the sacred word,
And tells that Jesus comes again.

He points to sun, and moon, and stars,
Distress of nations, waves that roar,
Men's failing hearts, "the sons of Mars,"
The "signs" that Christ is at the door.

Prophetic symbols have their place;
He hangs his chart where all may see,
And points with easy christian grace
To "Babylon," the "Mystery."

He tells of scoffers in their lusts,
Who, mocking, ask for promise sure;
Of evil servants' smiting thrusts;
Meanwhile he scoffs and smites endures.

Oft poor and sore distrest is he,
Saddened, and sick of earth and sin;
But he can coming judgment see,
And strives a bride for Christ to win.

There's meat for all the household band;
There's comfort for the waiting bride;
And he must give with willing hand,
No time has he for work beside.

Oh! what a man on earth is he,
Enduring all for Jesus' sake,
The world's disdain; at last to be
Immortal when the dead awake.

Lo! just before him is the land
Where welcome waits him, and a crown,
And he shall join the blood-washed band,
And 'mong the saints have great renown.

L. C. McKINSTRY.

For the World's Crisis.

THINGS SPECIALLY TO BE REMEMBERED.—2 Tim. 2: 8.

"Remember, that Jesus Christ of the seed of David was raised from the dead according to my gospel." The apostle Paul for his strict adherence to this special truth says, "Wherein I suffer trouble, as an evil doer, even unto bonds." The announcement of this fact, this great fundamental feature of the gospel, brought down upon Paul the keenest enmity of the Jews, as also the mockery of the Gentiles.

For the apostle to announce, and prove as he did, that Jesus Christ was the true Messiah, that he came through the lineage of Abraham and David, whom the Jews had crucified, and that God had raised him from the dead, after being buried three days, "and that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve; after that he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once. . . And last of all he was seen of me," says Paul. After bringing such an array of evidence and facts to bear upon the Jewish nation, which they could not successfully controvert; such stupendous truths as these, set forth in the masterly manner that the apostle was capable of doing, stirred up the devil in those "stiff-necked" Jews, as also the Gentiles, to oppose, to persecute, to pervert; to do every thing in their power to destroy the effect of such preaching, because it contained the very germ of the gospel. This kind of preaching by the apostle Peter, at the day of Pentecost, was signally owned of God, and blessed by the Spirit by the conversion of three thousand to Christ in one day.

Hear him (Acts 2: 29–36), "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne: he seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell [or hades], neither his flesh did see corruption. This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we are all witnesses. Therefore being at the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he has shed forth this which ye now see and hear. For David is not ascended into the heavens; but he saith himself, The Lord said unto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand, until I make thy foes thy footstool. Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ."

The above Scripture testimony is the groundwork, or basis, upon which the apostles, especially Paul, in 1 Cor. 15, proves the physical immortality of the whole church of God. There is now the same strange opposition to these blessed truths that there was in the days of Paul. I heard a Baptist minister, in preaching the funeral sermon of a young man in this place, say there would have been death in the world if man had not sinned; thus denying this Scripture (Rom. 5: 12), "Wherefore as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin." Also he said on the same occasion, that he had yet to learn that there could be any such thing as physical immortality. This sentiment denies the bodily resurrection of Christ from the tomb, as also the resurrection of all the dead in Christ. This was said before a large audience.

Such sentiments as these grow out of the doctrine of the inherent immortality of the soul in man, and are the direct or indirect cause of all the error in theology. It is a practical denial, not only of the personal coming of Christ and the literal resurrection of the dead, but reaches further back, and denies that Christ ever existed as a personal being; in fact, it is downright infidelity.

Why was the Evangelist Luke so particular in tracing the genealogy of Christ back from Heli to Nathan and David, to Jacob and Abraham, Methusaleh, Enoch, to Adam, "which was the son of God," but to prove his personal identity, and the legal right of Christ to the throne of David? as God had sworn to David with an oath, "that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne"; as also the fact that the sovereignty, or dominion of this world, given to Adam but lost by disobedience, has been regained by the second Adam, the Lord from heaven; only awaiting the time appointed by the Father, when he will return in the clouds of heaven, clothed in regal power, personally to take the dominion of the earth, dispose of the present occupants, renew it, and reign in person "from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth."

The strange assumption by the large part of the Christian church of the natural immortality of the soul, stands directly in the way of the personal coming of Christ, the literal resurrection of the dead, the restitution of the earth to its Eden state, as the eternal inheritance of the saints; in a word, it stands directly in the way of the literal fulfillment of the word of God, sapping the faith of the nominal church in the Scriptures, and substituting the inventions and fables of men in their place.

The fruit of this deadly upas tree is seen every where, in all directions, wherever we turn our eyes; so that it is high time to sound the alarm, that as many as possible may be rescued from the fatal results of this strong delusion, this lie of the devil, taught by him back in Eden to our first parents: "Ye shall not surely die." Let immaterialists deny the necessity of the resurrection of the dead, in order to future life, if they will; we prefer to stand on the testimony of the sacred writers—that there can be no future life for the dead, only by a resurrection.

Why was the great apostle Paul so very strenuous and earnest for the church to keep in memory the great fact (by which they are saved) of the literal death, burial, and resurrection of Christ from the dead, as the only ground and pledge of the resurrection and salvation of believers? Because the path of life is manifested to believers by Christ's resurrection from the dead. See Ps. 16: 10, 11. Now if life is to be obtained only in this direction, it is idle and vain to talk of receiving it before the resurrection. Christ teaches that entering into life and entering into the kingdom of God are synonymous. Compare Mark 9: 43, 45, with v. 46.

The idea of putting souls in Paradise or hell at death is unnatural, and is without order or consistency. And more than this, it runs directly against an overwhelming amount of Scripture testimony to the contrary. Paul makes the "judgment seat of Christ" the epoch of every man's retribution. 2 Cor. 5: 10. This he learned from his Master. See Matt. 10: 27;—"For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works."

Can a man in his senses believe for a moment that the Lord will torment a part of man between death and the resurrection, and the other part after that epoch; or bestow happiness on a part of man in this interval, and on the other part afterward? If, as Paul declares (Acts 17: 31), "God has appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness," is it consistent with the wisdom of God to suppose he will punish or reward any before the judgment? The beautiful order and consistency, that make the coming of Christ and the resurrection of the dead the epoch of the execution of the judgment of God, let not man impeach. Amen.

L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

Newton Upper Falls, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

WORDS AND ACTIONS.

These should agree; if we say we love Jesus, our actions should agree thereunto. If acts are not right, all is wrong. I know that out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. But sometimes it speaketh out of the abundance of the heart's hypocrisy. Sometimes individuals will speak in our social meetings; their words sound fair and good, but their dress perhaps does not correspond with the unassuming character of a true christian; and we are sometimes in doubt what their motive can be, to assume christianity while their very appearance gives it the lie. Men in broadcloth and satin, with rings on their fingers, in short, dressed with costly array; women with every imaginary foolery of fashion, even to the putting on of a second head; two or three story dresses; with embroidered hair, and wearing of gold, so strictly forbidden in the Scriptures. Hear the apostle Paul (1 Tim. 2: 9), "In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array."

But the worst of all is, to hear preachers preaching against these things, while they are as deep in the mud as others are in the mire. One would think by their dress they were stage actors, rather than preachers of the blessed gospel of Him who was a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief.

Such things put me in mind of the words of our blessed Savior to his disciples and the multitude: "All, therefore, whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do: but do not ye after their works; for they say and do not." Matt. 23: 3.

Again, some not only conform to the world in dress, but the love of the world creeps in, and the desire to heap up treasures here. Even many of those who profess to believe our Lord is soon coming, fall into this very snare. Now the Scriptures inform us that if we "love the world, the love of the father is not in us."

All false pretensions will fail us in the day of trial. Let us see to it that our words and actions agree; and let all we do be done to divine approval.

ELISHA JOHNSON.

No. Fryburg, Me.

For the World's Crisis.

THE DIVINE FAITHFULNESS.

NUMBER THREE.

In the western part of New England, a little more than a quarter of a century ago, the attention of a man of business and high worldly schemes was arrested by the Spirit of God; causing him to give up all for Christ, and enter into his vineyard with a hearty good will to do what he could for his cause.

A minister of his acquaintance invited him to labor in a protracted effort with him some twenty miles distant, in one of those towns where the soil was hard enough, but the people's hearts seemed harder still. But God, who is full of mercy, convicted them of a judgment to come, and many were converted to God, who would boldly testify of the Spirit's power to cleanse from all sin.

But the direst opposition soon appeared from ministers and church members, which awakened a demoniacal spirit in those hardy, rough sons of Belial, who seemed determined to do what they could to annoy and perplex this ardent laborer, who had learned to trust in God.

Thus, at a time when he was there with his own team, expecting to depart on the morrow with a minister, to fill an appointment some ten miles distant, these ungodly outlaws took two of the wheels from his carriage, evidently calculating to place them far from the ken of their owner.

This laborer, who had learned to "carry every thing to God in prayer," discovered his loss early in the morning, but soon felt comforted with the impression, or promise, that he should have them in time to get to the appointment. Feeling it duty to put forth all efforts within his own power to find his wheels, he soon sallied forth in quest of their whereabouts, and soon found one near a pond of water. Friends dragged the pond, thinking to find the other, but no trace of it could be discovered, though diligent search was made.

As the time was nearing when they must start for the appointment, the minister and other friends wore a sombre expression, scarcely suppressing the deep drawn sigh, lest the faith of this laborer should be shaken by disappointment. But he held on to God, believing he should have the wheel in time.

Once more he fell on his knees, imploring God to lead him to the wheel. Then arose, and went a short space, hesitated, knelt down and prayed again, arose, and walked a few paces further, and a cloud shot across his mind. Again he had recourse to prayer, and arose, walking like old father Abraham, as he said, "not knowing whither he went"; but as soon as he felt hesitancy, would kneel and pray, and thus kept going on, on, up a rugged mountain, nearly a mile (it might have been more), when, passing a little over the top on the opposite decline, his eye met the desired wheel.

With joy and gratitude it was brought and adjusted, affording no spare time, it is true, but the old grey steed, as if he partook of his master's joyful emotions, skimmed over the ground most fleetly, arriving with him and the minister just in time, with faith strengthened and hope brightened.

Had some professors seen this laborer on this last search, they no doubt would have shaken their heads discouragingly, if they had not breathed forth "fanaticism"! in terms the most emphatic. Now God is the same that he was twenty-six or eighteen hundred years ago: "A REWARDER of those that diligently seek him."

B. MATHEWSON.

Castleton, Vt.

For the World's Crisis.

WHO WILL HELP IN THE WORK?

Brethren and sisters:—All who have had the love of God shed abroad in the heart, and are partakers of his grace, having experienced the sweetness and joy that come from pardoning grace and forgiveness of all our sins, through the precious blood of Christ; being made at one with God, receiving the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father! even the Spirit of truth; all such, we say, have an earnest desire for the welfare of their fellow beings, that they may receive the same love, partake of the same grace, experience the same pardon, and accept of the at-one-ment with God, which our blessed Savior offers freely to make by his precious blood, for all such as will believe on him. And every earnest lover of Jesus, in whose breast the spirit of Christ dwells, desires to have all his friends and every body else love Jesus too.

And how can I do anything? what can I do towards bringing others to a knowledge of God as it is in Christ Jesus? are questions often asked by the devoted lovers of Jesus. There are many things that we all can do, from which we cannot excuse ourselves. In the first place, we can by a holy, devoted life, and christian example, tell to our friends and neighbors, and all with whom we mingle, that there is a reality in the religion of Christ which we profess to have.

Let this be the first sermon for us all to preach; and this is what we must all do, in order to have an entrance into Christ's kingdom; and when we are doing this daily, then we are ready to speak a word for Jesus at all times, and our words will tell; for Jesus will be in them, and his Spirit will carry them to the hearts of those who hear.

Then there are new fields of labor, where the gospel of the kingdom has never been preached in its purity. We all can do something for Jesus and our fellow beings in this way; by aiding in carrying it there. Some of us excuse ourselves, by saying we have no talent, and cannot preach; when if we would go forth, trusting in God, and let him use us, he would find in many of us just talent enough, rightly improved, to make us successful laborers in the vineyard of the Lord.

In regard to new fields of labor, where the gospel truths which we so much love have not been preached, we can all do something to help carry it there. There are many places where halls and houses can be had, and thus the truth be preached and tracts distributed; and in that way the people be reached. Those who feel excused from going to carry the message, by their not having a call to preach, cannot find an excuse for not helping the servants of God, who do go with the message; that while they are thus laboring in these new fields, their families may not be suffering for the means that many professed christians lavishly squander upon vain and foolish things to eat, drink, and wear.

Tracts, also, are very much needed in new fields. Money is needed for this, and we can all do something in this direction. But there are many places where no halls or houses can be procured, and where there is a certain class that would control things their own way, accounting themselves the aristocracy, who are greatly prejudiced against the gospel of the kingdom, and do not want to hear anything about the King's coming back to reign. They will control halls and meeting-houses, shutting the door against these truths, which the common people and the poor of the same place would receive gladly. Such places can best be reached by tent-meetings, which, by proper, judicious management, produce glorious results.

There is money enough in Mass. to purchase and support a dozen tents, well furnished with preachers and tracts, which might be given for that purpose by those who profess to be looking for the Lord soon to come, and still they not feel it. And, remember, it is when we give enough to the cause to feel it that we get the greatest blessing.

And now comes the question, Who will help in the work? All can do something. Who will do all they can? May the Spirit of the Lord show unto each of us what our duty is in this respect; and may the Lord give us grace to enable us to do all that he requires of us; that when he comes we may hear it said, "Well done."

We are fast hastening to the judgment. The Lord is soon coming. There are thousands within a circle of thirty miles from Boston, even here in Mass., where we think so much has been done to publish the gospel, who never heard a sermon of the Lord and the "blessed hope," as taught in the word of God, many of whom by the foolishness of fables have been driven into infidelity, to whom the gospel of the kingdom, if rightly presented, would commend itself. And what is true of this section, will be found true all over the country. How important we do all we can to save those who are so soon to stand with us at the judgment.

One word about the expense of tent-meetings in new fields. Many times the class that have means at their command have also a strong prejudice, which it takes a long time to break down. Thus you do not receive any help from them; and the common class, and the poor, who receive the word gladly, have a disposition, and would do, but have not the means; so you see it is often hard to meet expenses. In Maine, New Hampshire, and Connecticut, the tents for their mission work are sent out by their State Conference, and a committee from each conference is chosen to look after the wants of those who go into new fields to labor with the tent; and if contributions are not sufficient to meet the necessary demands of the cause, the committee make up the arrears from the Conference. In Mass. there is no such arrangement; but we hope that the Mass. Conference will soon be led to see the importance of doing something in this direction.

We are glad and thankful for what they have done for us in furnishing tracts to distribute, which have done a great deal of good. But thus far, where we have been with the tent holding meetings, we have felt it duty to give all the contribution money, and some besides, to those we had invited to labor with us (and then felt ashamed to send them away with so little), and paid the expense of the meeting with the product of manual labor. One year ago we found ourselves considerably in debt in consequence of going with the tent, but the Lord blessed us with health and a place to work in the winter, so that we came out even again in the spring. The past season we have had reason to thank the Lord for his goodness in providing for us at Zion's Hill, East Weymouth. We found the friends with willing hearts, but their means limited, in consequence of the fire throwing them out of employment, so that they could not help us as they desired towards the expense of the meeting. They did well, however, and the Lord opened the way for us to ride into Boston mornings and perform manual labor during the day, and back in the evening at the tent, for the last two weeks of the meeting, and thus keep the meeting going on and provide for the wants of my family. Praise the Lord; and we are bound, by the grace of God assisting, to do all we can to spread the glorious truths of the gospel of the kingdom wherever we find a field of labor, trusting in the Lord; and if we have to stop by the way to perform manual labor, to provide for the wants of our family, we do it cheerfully, still preaching the word, and trying to honor God in all that we do.

Brethren and sisters, if you who have the means refuse to aid in this work of sending the gospel message into new fields and destitute places, how can you meet at the judgment the lost souls that might have been saved by your sending them the gospel by the means with which God has blessed you? May the Lord help us to do our whole duty now, and save us at last in his kingdom. Yours waiting for redemption,

ENOCH MORRILL.

Holliston, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

WHOLLY THE LORD'S.

To be, to do, to suffer,
Whate'er His will may be,
Prone in my heavenly Father's hand,
I lay me still.

All holy, pure, and free
From every inbred sin,
Complete in "Christ my righteousness,"
Father, receive.

Perhaps he may require
That I should tread alone
The path that leads to mansions fair,
His own abode.

The way can not be long,
And if with clouds o'ercast,
Through darksome "paths I have not known,"
He will direct.

Perhaps in keenest pain,
Of body and of soul,
To "stand and wait" may be my lot,
Or yet, to "sleep."

If suffering be his will,
His grace sufficient is;
I hold me calm; 'mid fiercest pangs
He can sustain.

Whate'er my Master's will,
To suffer, or to do,
To be is still my highest aim,
To be like Him.

C. W. B.

Gems.

— In the development of every moral principle, there is, sooner or later, a crisis reached, which, if safely passed, ensures the greatest possible amount of good of which the case admits; otherwise, the greatest possible amount of evil. The weight of a feather may turn the scale.

— Men often boast of progress when they are only moving in a circle; and are sure they are in the right path, because with every circuit the footprints multiply, when they are only following their own tracks.

— Do you think that you have been born again? I think I have. Well, whose work is that? Oh, God did a part and I did a part. Ah, what part did you do? Why, I opposed God all I could, and he did the rest.

— Nothing that does not make thy mind and thy heart stronger and more active, and more ardent for the good, is worth the trouble of being desired with ardor by either heart or mind.

— That man is incapable of an act vividly good, who does not feel keen delight in contemplating the good deeds of others.

— Forgetting of accounts payeth not debts; nay, the interest of a forgotten bond runneth up with God interest upon interest.

— A man truly good is inexhaustible in good will and in happy thoughts to yield pleasure to others.

— Handle rough-sided men carefully. It pays to take a little time when you are opening chestnut-burs.

— Some one said to a Reformer, "The whole world is against you." He calmly replied, "Then I am against the whole world!"

Let us gather up the sunbeams
Lying all along our path;
Let us keep the wheat and roses,
Casting out the thorns and chaff.

Let us find the sweetest comfort
In the blessings of to-day,
With the patient hand removing
All the briers from our way.

— The man who loves truth with all his heart, likewise loves those who suffer for the sake of truth.

— It is doubtful if any man could by possibility do his noblest, or think his deepest, without a preparation of suffering.

— Keep a list of your friends; and let God be the first in your list, however long it may be.

— There is no salvation of the soul, no hope of everlasting life but in the Cross.

— The soldier wastes his strength who fights his shadow.

— The man who cannot perceive good in others, is not perfectly good himself.

— Better be upright with poverty, than unprincipled with plenty.

— The Scriptures will never deceive us if we do not deceive ourselves.

— A ship should not be made to depend on one anchor, or life on one hope.

— Noble souls love the future friend in the present enemy.

— God warms the earth with snow; can he not also warm the soul with grief?

— A scar nobly got is a good livery of honor.

— Carry your cross—don't drag it.

— Holy fear is the door-keeper of the soul.

A TRACT FOR THE TIMES.

BY PROF. THOMAS NEW LIGHT.

A discovery. Two, perhaps. One in practical religion; the other in the interpretation of Scripture. John Robinson, you know, said that we should expect new light to be derived from the Bible; and we are not to suppose President Edwards the only one to make "improvements" in Theology. The discovery first named has been wrought out by professors of religion, through a broad and generous intercourse with the world. The discovery in interpretation—well (I would be modest, but) perhaps that is original with your humble servant. At any rate, I have never met with it in any commentator.

To the point however. The problem which seems to have been determined is, whether a man can serve God and mammon. He can. I do not mean that he can serve one or the other, as he may choose; but both, and at the same time.

Now, do not be shocked and set me down as a heretic; but wait till you see what I have to say. I remember, as well as you do, that our blessed Lord declared: "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." And I am not going to deny his infallible authority. I shall bring to my aid presently the exegetical discovery to which I have referred. Great is the science of interpretation judiciously (ingeniously) applied. It relieves us of many difficulties, and if successfully applied in this case, so as to allow that a man can serve God and mammon, it is certainly an important discovery—much to the comfort of many saints. Some are not aware of the progress we are making in habits and opinions. And if I clearly establish the points I have in hand, I shall claim to be held in grateful remembrance.

Now for the proof that a man (or woman) can serve God and mammon. Mammon is the god of riches, or the pride of life, or worldliness; and the evidence of my proposition is from observation and experience. One need only open his eyes, and he sees the problem solved in facts. Men can be found who are religious, and at the same time given to riches. They have learned how to combine the sumptuousness of Dives, and the piety of Lazarus. You cannot show the contrary. I insist that all the proof available is on my side.

Look at it. You say, possibly, that such are not Christian people. Uncharitable man, where is your proof? They claim to be. They have professed religion. They are recognized as in good standing. They attend church, and observe the communion. They are particular, many of them, what church they attend, and what preacher they hear. They are sound and Orthodox. They take an interest in the elegance of the house of worship, and in the excellence of the music. They are liberal, that everything connected with the sanctuary and its services may be dignified and attractive. You may count on them for contributions to the Sabbath schools and to Mission chapels. You may find them at conventions and anniversary meetings. They approve of all the resolutions offered. They will serve on committees. Now, does not this look as if they were serving God? And what is more, if you converse with them, they talk piously, as if they really loved religious things. I do insist upon it, they are good people. They have every appearance of it.

Then, you say, they are not serving mammon. Yes, there is every appearance of that too. Tell me what the signs are, and then see. They lay up money, a great deal of it; money by the hundreds of thousands. In the same ways, I suppose, that others do. Of course they mean to do it. And they seem eager to do it. And then they stow away their money in real estate, or stocks, just as other wealthy ones do. Their houses—very costly; as much so as any worldly man wants. Furniture—just as rich and splendid; as if they were serving mammon only. Their table—luxurious; four, five, six courses; choice wines, massive silver, plenty of colored waiters in white kids. The dance comes in too, and the dancing school for the children, and the card-table and the private "family" billiard room, and every indulgence of high life. The charm of it is, that these are all used genteelly, tastefully, in a religious way. I tell you these are good Sunday christians, and if you talk so as to draw them out, they do talk beautifully. You will think that they have good hearts.

Then too, in dress. Christian ladies can be just as showy and extravagant as any; with "broidered hair, gold, pearls, costly array," sweeping the ground with their precious fabrics (a score of dollars the merest trifle for the last touch of fashion;) displaying on pretty fingers expensive jewelry (multum in parvo)—and shawls! and when they ride out it is as princes' daughters.

I will not extend my description. I do not know what they could ask more of mammon. What is the difference between them and such as serve mammon only? What the difference! Why, don't you see? These are christians serving mammon. Some worldling, unfriendly to the church, may say he sees no self-denial, or likeness to Christ in this religion—that he does not want more of the world than these people get. But I hold him to the facts. Facts are stubborn things. And the fact is, they get the world and religion too. Here's just the point. Here's the value of the discovery—in the combination.

Some old-fashioned thinkers will be obstinate, I am almost certain, and will persist in the opinion that the service of God and mammon cannot be combined, any more than light and darkness, Christ and Belial. I do not know but the Pope is of this opinion; for he has lately issued a bull against the extravagance of ladies in the Roman church. But everybody knows the Pope is behind the times.

And, friend, it is too late for you to maintain that piety and worldliness cannot be made to coalesce. The thing is done! I have proved it.

It is difficult, we all know, to overcome rooted prejudices. But we must try to hold ourselves open to advancing light. It is to no purpose, now, to say that Christ's disciples cannot be so lavish and heedless, when the poor are starving, and when the benighted heathen are perishing, and the Master is bidding us send the Gospel to every creature. You may think that Christ's people could not be so self-indulgent; as if the world were all safely ticketed for heaven. "Piety," you exclaim, "and spend upon a mere vanity of the season enough to support a missionary for a year!" Hold, now. That is the old talk. These things are consistent. You don't believe it." Well, I was going to call you a venerable owl, or an old fogy. But I will not. I'll be charitable. Mark, however, this undeniable proposition, that nothing establishes a fact like the seen existence of that fact. Now, the seen facts are that there are (1) good people, and (2) worldly people. Worldly professor, I appeal to your experience. Is it not as I say?

Now, as to my own discovery—a point of interpretation. Upon this I will not be so long. It is not necessary.

If I wanted to attack the authority of Scripture, I would not labor upon contradictions between Science and Revelation. They are not of much account. I would let them alone till the savans are agreed among themselves; so far, for instance, as to decide whether our globe came into its present condition in "the wet way," or in "the dry way." I would rather (to make out a case against Scripture) take just this point we are upon and show up a decided error. It is written, Ye cannot serve God and mammon. Progress, however, not of science, but of society, has demonstrated the contrary.

Now, the interpretation I have to offer relieves the difficulty—wholly; and I want to premise that it is no more violent than many interpretations that are accepted as perfectly satisfactory, to help one out of an emergency. Indeed, I commend it as a sample. It is very simple and brief. Reader, when you see it stated, you will wonder that it never occurred to you. Just this—our Lord was speaking of what was impossible to those of his time. Lay the emphasis where it belongs, and all will be clear. "Ye cannot," etc. This is not saying but others can. They were simple, uneducated, unrefined. And we may well suppose they could not do what can be done by enlightened christians now. They could not send messages by telegraph. We can. Is not this enough to relieve the consciences of those who are troubled about the consistency between these two kinds of service—that of God and of mammon? The whole class of passages bearing on this point may be disposed of in the same way. E. g. "The friendship of the world is enmity with God." "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him."

"The lust of the eyes and the pride of life, is not of the Father." Take my key to their whole meaning, and hold that they apply to the people of that age, and they make you no more trouble. So with the passage, "Be not conformed to the world." Nonconformists are to be read of in history. "Be ye separate," etc. What if the bars of separation are fallen down and gone to decay, obsolete! When will men learn to take into account sufficiently the progress of the age! And why not look for progress in exegesis, as well as in spiritual wisdom?

Now, my readers who are worldly saints, do me the justice to admit that your unknown friend has done you substantial service. "Comfort ye my people."

And if any conservative believer is not satisfied with my argument, let him point out its weakness. These wealthy, luxurious, fashionable church-goers—are they not christian people, servants of God? Look over the evidence as I have stated it. Are they not at the same time after mammon, as far as any respectable man of the world could be? Review the evidence I have given. And is not my way the right one to explain it? Felicitous interpretation! Golden key to unlock Doubting Castle! A modern "apology" for Christianity, such as the times demand.

Tender hearts may feel grateful for the benefit I have rendered. No matter about expressing it. Take the good. Your benefactor is content to remain unknown.—Congregationalist.

FOR YOUNG PREACHERS.

Be sure you are truly converted before you try to convert others.

Be very certain you are called to the ministry, least you undertake a work intended for somebody else.

Study carefully and prayerfully your motive in seeking and preparing for the ministry. If the motive is something beside the glory of God, and the salvation of your own soul, and the souls of others, you had better let the work alone, for nothing beneath these great motives will ever lead you to endure the toil of the work.

Try to secure a good library before you start out, or at least a few of the standard works commonly used.

Continue to study after you enter the active work with all your might,—for you have much yet to learn.

Keep your soul fully alive to God and to your solemn calling.

Don't depend on the fact that you have been to college for success in winning souls to Christ, for the love of God and the inspiration of the Holy Ghost, are far more essential to success than mere intellectual culture.

If you have not been to college do not despair, for some of the brightest ministers we have ever heard have been self-educated.

Select texts which you can clothe, for young men in trying to handle weights beyond their strength, sometimes fall beneath them.

Study carefully your congregation, and struggle to get near the Lord in preparing your sermons.

Fill your sermons with simple, pointed gospel truth, for remember, it is the naked sword skilfully used that does the work, and not the glittering scabbard from which it may be drawn.

Let your anxiety be to do good, not to make a display.

Study adaptation in your sermons, for if you neglect this you will never be successful. Suppose you were preaching a sacramental sermon, and you should take for your subject, the character and destiny of the devil, or the condition of a backslider, and then invite your people forward with their minds full of the tricks of the former, or the treachery of the latter, what kind of a communion season would you be likely to have?

Begin promptly at the time, and don't make two or three hundred people sit and look at you hunting after a suitable hymn or an appropriate portion of Scripture for fifteen or twenty minutes. Select these beforehand.

Let your prayers be short, and your sermons not lengthy.

Remember God has called you to preach, not to read. Learn to quit when you are done.

As you can show your learning some other way, perhaps you had better let the present version alone when you arise to preach.

Avoid the habit of pounding on the Bible or pulpit board, as if you were mauling rails.

Let your pastoral visits be impartial. Visit the poor as well as the rich, and thus imitate your Master.

Make it the rule to talk with your people about religion, and not about every light and trifling subject, and never leave a house without having prayer, when you see surroundings will admit of it.

Speak no evil of your ministerial brethren, for in doing so you will disgust every sensible person, and make the more ignorant feel ashamed.

Never go in debt beyond your ability to pay, lest you be called dishonest.

Give yourselves wholly to your work, for if you "entangle" yourselves with the things of the world, you will not "war a good warfare."

Never become jealous of your brethren's influence, or envious if they are popular, but join in with your people in speaking well of them, and thus show a noble spirit.—Ex.

☞ Napoleon lately spent half a day in teaching the Prince Imperial to smoke.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—PAUL.

RESERVE POWER.

It is not wise to work constantly up to the highest rate of which we are capable. If the engineer on the railroad were to keep the speed of his train up to the highest rate he could attain with his engine it would soon be used up. If a horse is driven at the top of its speed for any length of time he is ruined. It is well enough to try the power occasionally of a horse or an engine, by putting on all the motion they will bear, but not continuously. All machinists construct their machines so there shall be a reserve force. If the power required is four-horse, then they make a six-horse power. In this case it works easily and lasts long. A man who has strength to do twelve honest hours of labor in twenty-four and no more, should do but nine or ten hours work. The reserve power keeps the body in good repair. It rounds out the frame to full proportions. It keeps the mind cheerful, hopeful, happy. The person with no reserve force is always incapable of taking on any more responsibility than he already has. A little extra exertion puts him out of breath. He cannot increase his work for an hour without danger of an explosion. Such are generally pale, dyspeptic, bloodless, nervous, irritable, despondent, gloomy—we all pity them. The great source of power in the individual is the blood. It runs the machinery of life, and upon it depends our health and strength.

A mill on a stream where water is scanty can be worked but a portion of the time. So a man with a little good blood can do but little work. The reserve power must be stored up in this fluid. It is an old saying among stock raisers, that "blood tells." It is equally true that blood tells in the sense in which we use the word. If it is only good blood, then the more of it the better. When the reserve power of an individual becomes low it is an indication that a change is necessary, and that it is best to stop expending and go to accumulating, just as the miller does when the water gets low in the pond. Such a course would save many a person from physical bankruptcy. —Herald of Health.

THAT'S THE GLORY OF IT.

Mrs. Frances Dana Gage sends us the following touching tribute to an aged woman: "She was old, as the world counts years, very old; fourscore years and ten! Husbands and wives, youths and maidens, do you hear? Fourscore and ten, and yet she eat with us, and chatted as cheerily as a matron of thirty, her memory running back eighty-seven years.

She told us of the wars she had lived through: and how, in her childish days, she heard the old men talk of the Revolution, just past, and how the wounded soldiers went from place to place telling of the battles they had fought and won, of their hair-breadth escapes, and deeds of daring valor. And then her mind came on, over the track down to the days of the Whisky Rebellion; on again to the war of 1812, to the hard times, when a yard of cotton cost more than ten now, and a yard of calico for a dress, of poor material, three-quarters of a dollar, and from that to a dollar and a half. Twelve and a half cents would buy a better one to-day.

Then she came to the days of her own heart trials, when her husband, who was a good man, died, and left her with nine little children: how she battled all alone with life and its labors, and taught her boys to be industrious and faithful, and her girls to be true and virtuous. Let me give her own words:

'It's just as you bring them up; don't you know it is? I knew they must mind and do as I bid them, or I could do nothing with nine of them; only think, and none to help me! But never one said "I won't do it;" no, never!

'They were all good to me as children could be, and staid by me till they married, one after another, and went off into homes of their own. I staid by them, too, and always kept a home for them to come till my baby went, and then I went with her. Now I go and see them all; all living, every one.

"My boys have good farms, good homes, and good wives and children, and when I go to see them they give me such a welcome as makes my old heart glad!

'When evening comes and the lamp is lit, then comes out the big Bible, and they read a chapter, sing a hymn, and then comes the prayer for God's blessing. That's what I taught them when they were young, and now I am old I see them all good. And that's the glory of it!' she exclaimed, after a moment's pause with animation. That's the glory of it! I have worked hard and I'm very old, but I don't feel it; I am hearty and happy, and everybody is kind. Why, I tell the girls I ain't but eighteen. I thank God every day for his goodness. But by-and-by I shall fall asleep.' Oh for such mothers in Israel, to teach us how to live! Truly, it is the glory of a mother's life, to see all her children living 'to call her blessed' in her old age, and to carry beyond her four-score and ten."—Ibid.

SCROFULA.

There is reason to believe that not a few of the apparently unaccountable cases of scrofula among children proceed from the habit of sleeping with the head under the bed-clothes, and so inhaling air already breathed, which is further contaminated by exhalation from the skin. Patients are sometimes given to a similar habit; and it often happens that the bed-clothes are so disposed that the patient must necessarily breathe air more or less contaminated by exhalations from the skin. A good nurse will be careful to attend to this. It is an important part, so to speak, of ventilation. It may be worth while to remark that, when there is any danger of bed-sores, a blanket should never be placed under a patient. It retains dampness, and acts like a poultice. Never use anything but light Whitney blankets as bed covering for the sick. The heavy impervious cotton counterpane is bad, for the very reason that it keeps in the emanations from the sick person, while the blanket allows them to pass through.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.......................$2.50 a year
Five copies six months to one address..........$5.50.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address.........$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.

PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 741. | BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1869. | VOL. XXX.—NO. 15.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Wednesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. BOUTELL, A. ROSS.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
D. MATHEWSON, H. V. DAVIS, M. BATCHELOR, J. G. HAMBLIN, H. H. DICKENSON.

GEO. T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ The CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

A LITTLE WHILE.

"A little while," our Lord shall come,
And we shall wander here no more;
He'll take us to our Father's home,
Where he has for us gone before—
To dwell with him, to see his face,
And sing the glories of his grace.

"A little while,"—he'll come again:
Let us the precious hours redeem;
Our only grief, to give him pain,
Our joy, to serve and follow him.
Watching and ready may we be,
As those that long their Lord to see.

"A little while,"—'t will soon be past;
Why should we shun the promised cross?
Oh, let us in his footsteps haste,
Counting for him all else but loss:
For how will recompense his smile
The sufferings of this "little while"!

"A little while,"—come, Savior, come!
For thee thy bride has tarried long;
Take thy poor wearied pilgrims home,
To sing the new eternal song—
To see thy glory, and to be
In every thing conformed to thee!

For the World's Crisis.

MAN NOT AN "IMMORTAL SOUL."

The saints are raised from the dead immortal. This is the teaching of the Bible: "sown in corruption," "raised in incorruption"; "sown in weakness," "raised in power"; "sown in dishonor," "raised in glory"; "sown a natural body," "raised a spiritual body." This is the phraseology of which Paul expresses the fact of the immortal resurrection, and hence we cannot be understood by the above title to this paper as believing the idea that there is a mortal resurrection for the people of God; for, although the redemption from the Adamic penalty implies only a mortal resurrection, the promise to those who seek for glory, honor and immortality, "by patient continuance in well doing," gives them their immortality (as we have seen from quotations from Paul), in the resurrection, as a gratuity, grafted into the simple redemption from Adam, and leaves the wicked to only mortal re-living, they not having sought for immortality.

But to the point. Man was made at first a "living soul," by God's breathing "into his nostrils the breath of life" (or lives), Gen. 2: 7. In this one text we have two great fundamental ideas. First, that man, which was made "of the dust of the ground," "became," and therefore is, "a living soul." Second, that this soul was and is vitalized, or made to live by "the breath of life." To prove our position, that the resurrected saints will not be "immortal souls," it will be necessary to consider the fact that the use and sense of the term "soul" precludes all idea of its being an immortality at any time; so that, whether it be argued that man is, or has an "immortal soul," that he now has, or ever will be an "immortal soul," even by the resurrection of the dead, we shall stand on scriptural ground, ready with a critical answer from the word of God, and negate the whole theory. The statement in this text of God's method of soul-making is simple, but grand, complete, sublime; a masterly evidence of almighty power; and how it could have been overlooked so long is a wonder, when it stands at the very gateway of revelation, a plain guide for man in all his efforts to consider his constitution and capacities, his nature, and possible destiny. We are glad it stands there, an antidote, a corrector of all the errors and theories that are to-day clashing, in their great war with each other and with truth; and its two points of analytical distinction between "soul-life" and "the breath of life," will be the basis of this article.

We have noticed that the "living soul" was vitalized and made to live by "the breath of life," and this is the grand point of observation; for, by the text (Gen. 2: 7), we see that "soul-life" is secondary to breath-life, "soul-life" being only animal life, and "breath-life" being to it as fuel to the fire.

That excellent little tract, "The Soul—what is it?" by M. Grant, gives us the renderings of the word nephesh, rendered "soul," and it will serve our purpose, in making quotations, to use those found in that book, as they are to the point; and while there is no lengthy attempt in it to argue the question, it will afford us ample illustrations of our subject. We have in it a reference to the fact that the term "Nephesh Chaiyah" is first applied to animals; and that in several instances it is made to represent all animals as sharing, in common with man, this soul-life, which is the blood-life, according to Gen. 9: 4, 5, where we read, "But the flesh, with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, ye shall not eat; and surely your blood of your lives will I require of you." This quotation, in its first element, represents the nephesh-life, or "soul" of animals, to be in the blood; and the latter clause makes the same allusion to man; and hence it is easy to understand why, in Gen. 1: 20, animals are said to have life, and be living (nephesh) creatures, or souls; and why, in Gen. 2: 7, in the fuller description of the process of creating that kind of life, man is described as possessing the same nature.

The blending of soul-life and spirit, or breath-life, in all human and brute animals, we have said is as fuel to the fire; and a word of explanation on this point may be necessary, because while the real life itself of all these beings is the blood, or soul-life, the life-giving element is in the "breath of life," as we see by the adjective element "of life," in the phrase, It is "breath of life," or breath-giving life. Now that which gives life is not life itself, any more than fuel is fire; but as there is latent fire in wood, so there is latent life in the breath. We have the Latin word Spirata, in the primitive form spirate, or spire, which means breathing, as it relates to the breath of life, and is prefixed with ex and in; hence, "expire" and "inspire,"—expire, to breathe out, and inspire, to breath in. A man is said to expire when he dies, because the last breath of life is expired or breathed out; and God's influence to incite or direct men to write or speak is called inspiration, which is primarily "to breathe in," because man is moved by an external influence; but both terms apply to a living man or beast, because they are constantly inspiring and expiring, or breathing in and breathing out; and as the breathing in makes the latent life in the air, or breath, active in the blood, breathing out is productive of death, unless it is followed by an inspired breath, as out-breathing has no latent life in it; and if it is the last breath, the being must certainly cease to live.

There is then a propriety in calling the breath spirit; and there is an equal propriety, for certain strong reasons, in calling a being a tangible existence, a spirit. But it is enough to our purpose now to state this fact, and feel assured that we are not departing from the true sense of these terms, when we consider them as referring only to a mortal, temporal, animal existence, in the passages quoted.

The science of life by breathing is corroborative of this position. It is as follows: As soon as a child is born, it gasps for air; the heart begins to beat, and the food it takes is converted into chyle, which is absorbed by the lacteals and passed through the ducts into the heart; thence into the lungs, where the air, or breath, meets it, and vitalizes it. It then passes back to the heart again as pure, red blood, and then, by a throb of the heart, it is sent through the arteries to all parts of the body. Having exhausted itself of the life element, it returns by the veins as venous blood to the heart, thence to the lungs again to be vitalized by the breath, by having the latent fire of life in the breath kindled to active fire, or vital flame in the blood, and then the current goes like a red river flaming with life on its mission again; thus keeping up the life tone of the body. This work is constantly going on by the insensible activity of the powers of the body, whether the being be awake or asleep. The live blood, or, as called in science, the "arterial blood," runs deep, and the dead, or venous blood, near the surface. "The breath of life" goes no further than the lungs, properly called in common phraseology, "the vitals"; they being the laboratory where soul, or blood-life, is kindled to activity from the latent life in the breath. The soul-blood-life, filling the whole body, there is a special propriety in calling man, by Synecdoche, "a soul," instead of a "spirit," from the breath, which is in the nostrils only, and goes so little into the composition of the being. Animals, too, sharing in the same principle, are properly classed in the same order; they are hence called in the Old Testament, as in Gen. 1: 21, "living creatures," and as in Rev. 16: 3, "living souls." It is because the breath is in itself no part of the man or beast, while the blood is; and its substance coming from food, and its life from the breath, it is made the essential life of the man; and thus the whole truth is made plain.

A minister once stated in our hearing, in a sermon preached to prove conscious existence in death, that he asked Prof. Hudson why the term "soul" was used in the Bible instead of "spirit," to designate the living man, when man is considered as composed of soul, body and spirit. He stated that the Prof. could not answer the question. Without venturing to state our opinion about that matter, we will simply say that the answer is here at least, in part, and that a fuller discussion of the subject in the latter part of this article will make it still clearer, as we shall find that the saints may sometimes be properly called "spirits," as they are souls now. A single scriptural statement of man's nature in harmony with the foregoing will now be sufficient. It is Solomon's inspired record of the matter, and although some have contended that he only represented a heathenish view, and not his own, we have proof otherwise. He commences his discussion, as he does that of all other questions which are argued in harmony with the word of God, with the declaration, "I said in mine heart"; and he also makes express, direct declarations in declaring the matter, as will be seen in carefully reading the following from Eccl. 3: 18–22:

"I said in mine heart concerning the estate of the sons of men, that God might manifest them, and that they might see that they themselves are beasts (i. e. animals). For that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them; as one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast; for all is vanity. All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all return to dust again. Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast, that goeth downward to the earth."

The translations "breath" and "spirit" are made indiscriminately from "ruach," and hence when Solomon refers to the fact that "all [men and beasts] have one breath," and is made in King James' Version to ask, "Who knoweth the spirit of man," and "the spirit of the beasts," we know he means precisely the same thing, as he uses the same word "ruach." "As the one dieth," he says, "so dieth the other"; and the occurrence is so common that it is a well known fact, as all have the same breath-life; and if the breath-life is the same, the soul-life must be, as we have previously stated. Having thus plainly declared the matter, he refers to the mystery of animal or respiratory life, when he asks, "Who knoweth the spirit of man," or beast? According to his statement, there is no difference between men and beasts, as animals, except in their physical structure.

The spirit [ruach, verse 19, breath] of beasts goeth downward, i. e., literally is descending, and "the spirit" [breath] of man... goeth "upward," or, as the margin more critically reads, "is ascending," implying an unfinished, continued action, which transpires while the two kinds of animals, men and beasts, live, and not when they die. It refers as much to the inspiration of breath as the expiration. One, by his structure sends his breath downward, and the other, made "upright," sends his breath upward. There may be in this structure a difference in destiny intimated, but the text is solely a critical, philosophical statement of the mystery of animal or "soul-life," derived from spirit-life, so mysterious in its nature, its "insensible respiration," that both the life of man and beast are incomprehensible, and leads Solomon to wonder at the truly wonderful state of the case, like David, who declared, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made."

But we have attended to this part of the question sufficiently to our purpose. There are some who contend that while man is mortal here, blood or soul-life is capable of immortality; or that the saints will be raised from the dead, at first with that life. They argue that Christ was raised as he went into the grave, that there is such a state for men who serve God here intimated in the supposed meaning of some Scriptures, relative to eating in the resurrected state; e. g., Christ ate, we shall eat. Food is to furnish chyle for blood; hence there must be blood-life; but the drift of the argument used by Paul and others, the plain statements, and the whole history of man in his relation to the redemption scheme, leads to the conclusion we arrive at; that although man "became a living soul" at his creation, he will not always be such, but there is for him, as a servant of the Lord, a different method of existence in the resurrection state. Now for the proof.

We cite first of all Scripture proof, Paul's testimony in 1 Cor. 15: 44. He tells us of the body of this flesh, that "It is sown a natural body," and "raised a spiritual body." Speiretai Soma Pshuchikon, egeiretai somapnumatikon. It is sown a body-soul, or soul-body; it is raised a body-spirit or spirit-body. This literal rendering is deeply interesting, as it makes the case clear that there is no soul-life in the raised body. That the "sown" "body," the mortal, corruptible, weak "body" alone is a soul-body, thus strengthening the position in which the Scriptures of truth puts us, that in the first state of the body it has not an immortal soul entity in it, only a soul or blood life, and that the same "it," or the body when raised is a spirit-body, thus showing the difference between soul-life and the life of the body, which it shall have by the Spirit of God. L. C. McKINSTRY.

(To be concluded.)

For the World's Crisis.

WORK FOR JESUS.

O that all christians would realize that they have something to do for Jesus, who did so much for them. We have a work to do, to gather poor perishing souls around us into the fold of Christ; he has a large fold, enough for all, and the door stands open wide, and all who will may enter. And it is our work to help gather them in. It should weigh heavily on the mind of every christian, that they have a work to do for Jesus. We must not think that we can do nothing for him unless we go way off in foreign lands, for there is work to be done at home. Think of the perishing souls all around us on every hand. The Lord calls some to go far away to foreign lands to preach the gospel to the heathen; and some he would have labor in their own home. But how many there are who think because they are not called away to other lands, that they have nothing to do, and are now standing idle in the vineyard of the Lord.

O christians, let us be up and doing while the day lasts, remembering that the night cometh when no man can work. Let us strive to accomplish our mission faithfully here, and great will be our reward in heaven. We have not all the same work to do, for God calls some to do one thing, and some another; some to labor at home, and some abroad. He wants us all to keep steady at work in his vineyard all the time. And if we have the true spirit of Jesus Christ in our hearts, we shall not wish to be idle; we shall love to work for him, knowing that we cannot do too much for the One who has done so much for us. He bore the shameful cross for our sins; he suffered and died upon it that we might live. He gave his life a ransom for all; and oh that all might realize it and come to him and be saved. And I say again, it depends upon us as christians to lead poor sinners to the Savior; to point out the way to them. How can we expect to get a reward in heaven, if we do nothing here to merit that reward? O christians, let us strive to get into that place where we can feel that our hearts are engaged in working for Jesus; that it is our meat and our drink to do our Master's will.

O, if every christian was right in the place where the Lord would have him, and laboring in his vineyard, how many souls would we see flocking into the fold of Christ. And are we worthy to bear the name of Christian, unless we are in this place? Can we expect the Lord to bless us and smile upon us daily, and we doing nothing for him, but just living what we call comfortable christian lives? where we feel no movings of the Spirit at all; feel that we have nothing to do but sail along in this comfortable sort of way? O christian professor, this is a dangerous place to be in. O let us arise out of this place, and get where we can feel the movings of the Holy Spirit in our hearts all the time, prompting us to action, to do something for the upbuilding of Christ's cause. And when he shall come to set up his kingdom on this earth, he will gather in all those who have labored faithfully for him, saying unto them, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

M. E. CHUTE.

HYMN.

There's a land, that is fairer than day,
And by faith we may see it afar;
For our Father waits over the way
To prepare us a dwelling-place there.
CHORUS.—In the sweet by and by
We shall meet on that beautiful shore.

We shall sing on that beautiful shore
The melodious songs of the blest;
And our spirits shall sorrow no more,—
Not a sigh for the blessings of rest.

To our bountiful Father above,
We will offer the tribute of praise
For the glorious gift of his love,
And the blessings that hallow our days.

THE TWO DEATHS.

We read of two deaths in the word of God, namely, the sleep or death of the natural body, and the "second death." If these deaths were understood according to the Scripture, much misconception regarding death would vanish; and statements in the word of God, would become intelligible, which under the present theological dogmas are perfect enigmas; e. g., the Sadducees came to Christ and asked him this question respecting the woman who had seven husbands: "In the resurrection, whose wife of them is she, for seven had her to wife?" (Luke 20. 33.) This was a post resurrection question, and the reply of Christ is very significant. He says, "They which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage, neither can they die any more."

Now, if all the righteous and the unrighteous alike are immortal, after the resurrection, as the popular belief teaches, why did Christ make such a statement as this; i. e., "neither can they die any more." Do not such words conclusively prove, that after resurrection there is to be death, and how can they be explained unless the "second death" be that to which he he refers?

Again, in John 8: 51, Christ says, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, if a man keep my sayings he shall never see death"; on hearing this the Jews were filled with indignation, and said, "Now we know thou hast a devil. Abraham is dead and the prophets; and thou sayest, if a man keep my saying, he shall not taste of death."

Christ here undoubtedly referred to the "second death"—if he did not the wrath of the Jews was quite natural; because Abraham was dead, and he surely was a believer. Had Christ explained his meaning to them, and said, yes, Abraham is dead, has fallen asleep, but I do not refer to this death, which is but a sleep, I am speaking of the "second death"—the lake of fire, into which all unbelievers shall be cast after death, resurrection, and judgment, which is death eternal. Had he explained himself thus, the Jews would, in all probability, have said, "Now we know thou hast ten devils;" and is not this what theologians of the Origen school say of those who teach that the "second death" is eternal destruction?

There was some excuse for the Jews not understanding our Lord's saying, as the "Spirit had not yet been given," and Christ had not as yet "brought life and immortality to light through the gospel;" therefore he did not attempt to explain his saying, knowing that if he had, the Jews would in their blinded state have failed to comprehend his meaning, as Christ only taught the people as they could bear it, (John 16: 12;) but in these days of gospel light and revelation, it is sad to see men's minds so blinded to the truth, through the reception of the dogmas and creeds of men. There being a "second death," of necessity there must be a "first death," that death which has passed upon all men; for "all have sinned," but the "second death" will not affect all, as only the wicked will be made to feel its terrible power (Rev. 21: 8); but the subjects of "the first resurrection" "the second death has no power." Rev. 20: 6.

Is this "second death" annihilation? Science takes up annihilation, but Scripture utters not a word; therefore as we have not a Thus saith the Lord" for this doctrine of annihilation, we dismiss it as having no part in the doctrine of the non-eternity of punishments.

Is this "second death" a life of eternal torments? If so, how can it be called a death? Is not death the article that put an end to life's sufferings?

Do we not constantly hear by the bedside of suffering the prayer, "O that the Lord would take me!" Why is death thus prayed for? Simply that death might end the present sufferings. And this is the meaning attached to death by all peoples. But theologians, to make their dogma of the immortality of the souls of all men consistent with their belief in the everlasting torments of the damned, are obliged to teach that death in the Scriptures does not mean death, but a life of eternal howling in hell! How one can be dead and yet have life, is an enigma, which philosophical theology may attempt to harmonize, but which common sense pronounces impossible, and the word of God ignores. Ah! say they, were not the Ephesians, before conversion, "dead in trespasses and sin?" True, and so were they after conversion, dead to the world, dead to the law, etc.; i. e., in the one case, their minds were dead to the things of God, and in the other, dead to the things of time and sense.

The body was not dead; death had not touched it in either case.

But in the "second death" both body and soul shall be destroyed in hell—Gehenna. (Matt. 10: 28.) This "second death" will not occur until after the resurrection of the wicked, or the resurrection of damnation; and as we know that their bodies will arise with them, the verdict of the "Great White Throne" will be, "to cast into the lake of fire," which is the "second death;" and truly this is "a bourne from whence no traveler ever shall return," as the decision is as eternal as the death, in which every sigh is hushed for ever—all suffering gone, and an eternal lull shall reign for ever. The agent of this "second death," "the lake of fire," Gehenna or hell, shall be quenched equally with the fires of Sodom and Gomorrha.

These awful burnings having answered the objects for which they were kindled, have been extinguished for ever, though Jude (verse 7) says, that Sodom and Gomorrha are "suffering the vengeance of eternal fire," i. e., as to the effects produced by the fire. Sodom and Gomorrha being destroyed, and Gehenna now no longer continuing to burn, because they have long since answered the end of their being; and so will it be with the fires of hell—they too will cease when the materials upon which they prey, i. e. the wicked, who were to be cast into hell or Gehenna, shall be consumed, for "He will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire;" but when the chaff is consumed the flames will be quenched. The unquenchable fire simply means, that it will burn until everything that it preys upon is destroyed.

We say, when speaking of a great destructive conflagration, "the fire raged with unquenchable fury;" though it was either subdued by the fire engines, or burnt itself out, we by no means wish to convey that it never was extinguished.

The subjects of the "second death," and that of the "second coming of Christ," are very imperfectly understood, and the consequence is that the vast majority of God's people are in a mist respecting these themes, being badly instructed in "the word and doctrine," owing to our current theological literature and teaching being so deficient in interpreting literally the word of God on these subjects, instead of spiritualizing, such self-evident doctrines as "the second death" and the "second coming."

Therefore we welcome such a periodical as the Rainbow, in which these doctrines are stripped of all philosophical spiritualizing, and words and phrases taken to mean what they are intended; so that when the apostle says, for instance, "the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life," he just expressed, in plain language, what he meant. —Rainbow.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT.

90. Christ ascended from MOUNT OLIVET. "And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up, and a cloud received him out of their sight. . . . Then returned they unto Jerusalem, from the mount called Olives."—Acts 1: 9, 12.

Christ ascended from BETHANY.—"And he led them out as far as to Bethany; and he lifted up his hands and blessed them. And it came to pass that while he blessed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven."—Luke 24: 50, 51.

Modern skeptics of small intellect, and less information, have said a great deal about the two texts above quoted. We have read about this "dreadful contradiction, so fatal to the veracity of the sacred writers," and they ask, with all the sarcasm of conceited ignorance, "Which tells the truth?" Shall we believe Luke, or the statement found in Acts?" To which we reply, believe them both. Allow us to state, for the information of this class of second-rate infidels, that "Bethany was a village which was built on the south-east side of the mount of Olives. See Mark 11: 1, also Bible Dictionary, Encyclopedia, etc. Hence, the difficulty at once vanishes, and we find that a little knowledge of geography would not be out of place in the infidel's brain. Suppose an author in writing the life of George Washington, should say in one place that he died at Mount Vernon, and again that he died in Virginia—if a man should attempt to prove that in making these two statements, the author contradicted himself, the civilized world would at once pronounce him either a lunatic or a fool, and yet in the above proposition, the compiler places himself in the same position.

91. Paul's attendants heard the miraculous voice, and stood speechless.—"And the men which journeyed with [Paul] stood speechless, hearing a voice, but seeing no man."—Acts 9: 7.

Paul's attendants heard NOT the voice, and were prostrate.—"And they that were with me saw indeed the light and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that spake to me."—Acts 22: 9. "And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice."—Acts 26: 14.

A little investigation reveals the simple truth and harmony of this apparent discrepancy. The verb "to hear," is repeatedly used, not only in the Scriptures, but also in common conversation, to signify, not merely the hearing of a voice, (or sound,) but the understanding, or obeying it; for instance, the Lord Jesus said to those who heard him, "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear," (or understand.) Again, he that heareth you, (the apostles,) heareth (or obeyeth) me. And people often say to a stubborn or stupid child, "Do you hear me?" That is, do you understand me? or will you obey me? The case mentioned above is simply this: In the first instance, the narrator states that the men who accompanied Paul heard a voice, that is, were merely sensible that some one spoke: whereas in the second instance, Paul declares they heard not the voice of him that spake unto him, (Paul), that is they comprehended not its meaning, or understood not what was said. And this explanation is fully sustained by some of our best modern translations, among which we may mention—"The Diaglott," "The Improved Version," and "Wakekeld." In relation to the position of the parties, it is easy to see that in this connection, the words "stood speechless," merely indicate a condition, and have no reference to posture. As man may stand speechless, stand in doubt, stand in fear, stand firm, or stand in awe, and at the same time choose any position of body he pleases. He may be sitting, or standing, or lying down, without impeaching the veracity of the narrator, who speaks of him as being in these conditions. It is clear that in the text above referred to, the words, "stood speechless," simply imply a condition of dumbness, and convey the same idea as if the author had said they remained speechless, or remained silent.

"Bible Triumphant," by Mrs. H. V. Reed.

For the World's Crisis.

"SHE HATH DONE WHAT SHE COULD."

I have noticed several articles of late with this title, and have felt truly to ask myself this question: "Have I done what I could to further myself in the divine life, and to let no opportunity pass to speak a word for Jesus to the careless and unbelieving, as well as those who were almost persuaded? It may appear very easy for us to frame what we would call a reasonable excuse; yet I feel that the recording angel will answer it correctly, and I fear it would be, You have not. O how easy it is, when the contaminating influence of the wicked world is thrown around us, to let precious moments and golden opportunities pass unheeded; when perchance, even then, some half-awakened child of sin and sorrow is looking eagerly, silently, for some word of encouragement, comfort, and consolation. It is our duty, as the professed followers of the meek and lowly Jesus, to go forth bearing precious seed, and in due time, if we faint not, we may return bringing our sheaves with us. What a train of serious reflections does the heading of this article bring to mind.

Christian mother, you who have seen that blooming daughter grow from infancy to womanhood, whom you taught obedience, learned to work, toiled for early and late, by the shaded lamp and flickering candle, that she might have an education; you have done what you could, as far as this world's goods are concerned, and your toil and anxiety are repaid, and she stands before you to-day and ranks among the most intelligent of your community; but have you prayed day by day, hour by hour, as earnestly as you have worked that she might have an education, to lead her to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world? Have you done what you could that she might love that inheritance that is incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away? When the great gathering day shall come, and all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth, and the book is opened; then and there it will be determined whether we have done all we could to induce our friends and neighbors, by words fitly spoken, by a well-ordered life and godly conversation, to come to Jesus, and accept of salvation without money and without price.

I feel to raise my hands in supplication,—Jesus, Master, lay not this sin to my account, that I have not done what I could, but help me to be watchful, that I may do good as opportunity is offered; that I may be prayerful, relying alone on thy arm of strength; careful, lest I enter into temptation, and set a bad example; and do thou, dear Lord, deliver us from evil, for thine is the power and the goodness, and then it will be written of us, "She hath done what she could."

Warren, Vt. CARRIE E. TRUNSLIT.

For the World's Crisis.

COME, DEAR LORD.

Blessed Jesus, who can express the tenderness of thy compassion! who can declare the exceeding riches of thy grace! Angels cannot, nor yet can man, for it passeth knowledge. Oh, my dear Savior, thy favor is indemnity for the world's unkindness. Thou wilt cause all earthly evils to turn out to the everlasting salvation of thy poor, suffering saints. The sighs of the weary ones on the earth are not hidden from thee. In all the afflictions of thy people, thou dost sympathize with them. Yea, God marks the sorrow of his saints. Their groans affect his ears. Thou hast a book for my complaints; a bottle for my tears.

Thou glorious God-man. Thou hast carried a human heart and form up to thy throne in glory, and in thy body are still the marks of thine earthly sorrows; and in thy heart dwells sympathy for us, who yet are upon the earth striving to enter in at the straight gate. Yes, thou Holy and Immaculate Friend, thine eye is upon thy waiting Bride, and thine ears are open to her complaints. But the day will soon dawn wherein thou wilt conduct her to thy glorious abode, where is no sorrow, or wrong, or toil; no poverty is there, nor cold, nor hunger, nor nakedness; no pain, no sickness, no death; no tears, for they are all wiped away by the loving hand.

O Jesus, Master, the Beloved of thy saints; thy residence is the abode of joy and peace; unbroken, unending. Glory be to Jesus. My Jesus, how precious art thou. Come, Lord Jesus, thy saints desire, yea, they long for thine embrace, that hope may be swallowed up in sight, that the fleshly vail may be removed, and our eyes be gladdened by beholding thy matchless person. O thou desire of thy people, help us to wait with patience until thou dost come. HENRI T. ST. CLAIRE.

For the World's Crisis.

LABOR AND WAIT.

Life presents varied phases of labor, in each of the grand departments of physical, intellectual, and spiritual usefulness. A healthy and active condition in each of these apartments is essential. We do not want to be content that we simply exist; but we want an active consciousness that we live; and because we live, we want each function of our being to fill its proper office, and perform its allotted work in life's broad field of usefulness. Total inaction in the physical department destroys health, and brings on an incurable disease, if persisted in. Active labor and proper exercise are essential to physical growth and development, and necessary to those functions that sustain vitality.

As the importance of muscular exercise in the physical deportment is observed, so may it justly be argued that proper exercise of the functions of the other departments are necessary. Total inaction of the mental faculties unfits the mind for any special production of thought, and lessens the power of reasoning. The mind becomes weakened from the want of exercise to call out its powers. Inertion of the mind is to be dreaded. Meditation and practical thinking upon worthy subjects, tend to develope the mind, and give it proper bias. Those who can think ought to exercise their thoughts for the good of others and the glory of God. If one can think and reason, and produce matter that shall tell for God in the accomplishment of good, it is one's duty to do so. If one is blest with an active brain and an honest heart, let the two blend and bear fruit to the praise of God. Let the intellect re-produce what God has implanted in the heart. The usury will not diminish the faculty of producing, but rather enhance the fund of thought. Let us not be like him, who, having but one talent hid it; but rather improve upon what we have, that it may increase, and eventually secure for us the approval of our Lord, in that we have done what we could. But not to overrate our powers, let us be willing to labor and wait. Let the mind expand by exercise; the thought increase in bulk and force by pruning; produce and revise; reproduce and revise again, until all dross is removed, so far as our education is capable of acting as pruning knife. Be willing to labor that the productions of our pen may be as free from blunders and errors as possible, and thus lighten the task of the editor. Use your intellectual faculties, and not let them become warped and phlegmatic. Give full scope to your thoughts, but not to your fancy and imagination. Ask God to give drift to your reasoning and argument. Do all with a single eye to his glory.

And now we have come to the third department—spiritual usefulness. Though this comes last, it is in nowise least; but the most abused and least cultivated. If exercise in the physical and intellectual departments is essential to a healthy condition of the functions of labor, how much more apparent is the necessity of exercise in a spiritual sense. This is God's promise in our being—his special department. The work is his, and he rewards the laborer. Then why do we fail in this most of all? Why are we so blind and indifferent to the urgency of active usefulness in spiritual matters? Why sit we idly down and fold our hands, as though we were merely genteel passengers on God's stage of action, rather than "helps" and laborers. "Go ye into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you." Shall we receive the reward of "well doing," if we withhold our hands from labor, and our mouth from speaking forth his praise? we are not our own; we have been bought with the precious blood of Christ; and as we are not our own, and in view of how much our Lord has done for us, shall we refuse to do his bidding? It is the labor of heart and mind. All its functions centered on one object—the accomplishment of good. Eternal life is the theme of all spiritual labor. How can we labor, and why wait? We can labor in that manner that seemeth best to God. Our conscience is the regimen of action, enlightened and instructed by the Holy Spirit. It teaches us what to do, how to do it, and when. None are so ignorant but God can enlighten them according to his wisdom. Vain is the wisdom of man unless it pay tribute to God. Let us seek council of him.

In the next social meeting, how much can we say in praise of Jesus; in what way can we recommend him to sinners; how many of his promises can we mention for the encouragement of saints; how can we best magnify his name; by sitting still and holding our peace, or by confessing the power of his love, and the work of grace in our hearts? O, let us seek to glorify him in all places and under all circumstances. Let us not attempt to walk in our own strength, lest we fall; but in prayer let us ask for divine assistance, both of strength and wisdom. Pray always. Pray before you meet for worship; pray after you get there, and pray when you get home. Pray in the morning before you commence your labors; pray while at labor, and pray when your labors are over, and night closes in around you. Commence every day with prayer, and end it with praise. Pray for zeal to labor and patience to wait for the reward. O for wisdom to know how to labor in the vineyard of the Lord; and if our labors seem in vain, for patience to wait the gathering of the harvest.

Christians, be useful in the service of God. Don't be idle lookers-on while others bear the burden and heat of the day. Do not withhold your testimony on the side of truth and for Christ. A word from you may be the means of salvation to some soul, and redound to the glory of God. And let us not deem the time long that we have to labor; in due time we shall reap if we faint not. Laboring, waiting christian, take courage. "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God."

SOPHIA JACKMAN.

N. Woodstock, N. H.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Wednesday, Dec. 29, 1869.

☞ Take Notice!

☞ All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable IN ADVANCE, at the rate of $2.50 a year.

☞ Please Remember!

☞ All remittances to this office, in the form of drafts, bank checks and postal money-orders, should be made payable to the BUSINESS AGENT, GEO. T. ADAMS.

☞ Money Orders.

☞ Our correspondents should remember that if they send money orders in a letter which contains the name of the sender, and the name of the person to whom the order is payable, there is NO SAFETY for their money. Any person may draw the amount named in the order, if these names are given.

Neither is it safe to send us your names in advance. Somebody may open the letter, get the names, and then wait till the order comes, and get that too.

Send on the order, not writing a word; make it payable to GEO. T. ADAMS, directing it to MILES GRANT, or World's Crisis. Then, in two or three days, write in the usual way, stating that you have sent the order, and what you wish done with the money obtained on the same, and it will be entirely safe. In the second communication be sure to give us your NAME and POST OFFICE ADDRESS. AG'T.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

☞ We cannot discontinue or send your orders, unless you give us the POST OFFICE and STATE in PLAIN LETTERS.

☞ ASA C. HURD—Please let us know where your paper goes, and we will do as you request.

☞ C. H. WILLIAMS—Both drafts received.

☞ S. L. MANLEY—Money received.

☞ H. F. CARPENTER'S P. O. address is now North Springfield, Vt., instead of Danielsonville, Ct.

☞ BRO. O. BENDIXON'S P. O. address is No. 2 Bowling Green, New York.

☞ TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

Since the adoption of our present system of mailing the Crisis we do not, as formerly, send out bills of indebtedness to those of our subscribers in arrears; as with our present arrangement, every subscriber [illegible] his or her name, with [illegible] of the month and year [illegible] which they have paid, printed on a yellow slip of paper, which is attached to each Crisis—either on the margin of the same, or on the outside wrapper.

Now there are a large number of subscribers who have failed, or neglected, to keep their subscriptions paid up as they should. We earnestly request all to examine the yellow slips, and see just how their account stands, and then remit to the office accordingly as soon as they can. AG'T.

☞ PLEASE REMEMBER

That all letters, telegrams, or notices, ordering books, tracts, or papers, or for insertion in the Crisis, or for any other business connected with this office, should be addressed to the Editor, or to the Business Agent, and not to the clerks; as their letters, being regarded as private and not for the office, are not opened in their absence. AG'T.

THE DEPARTING YEAR.

It is well at the close of the year to review the book of life, and see if its pages are covered with moral blots, that need to be erased by the love and pardon of Jesus. It is well to inquire, Have we lived during the year now closing in such a way, that the Lord would say, "Well done?" Have we dealt honestly with every one, been kind to all, improved our time, and each opportunity for doing good, and shunned all for doing evil? Are we better men and women now than at the beginning of the year? Have we made any progress in divine life since 1869 began? If not, shall we let another year pass in the same way, and thus strengthen the habit of wrong doing? Let us not turn these questions aside till they are candidly answered. The judgment is drawing near, life is uncertain, and there is too much at stake to be indifferent about these things.

It is well to look over the rich blessings we have received from the hand of the Lord during this year. How kind, long-suffering, and forbearing, he has been toward us. Have we shown the same spirit to our fellow pilgrims? We should remember, "if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his. Ought not the great goodness of the Lord to lead us to take delight in doing and suffering his will? Should it not be a pleasure to deny ourselves of every thing that is not for his glory? Let us quietly sit down and recount the blessings we have received from the Lord, and then inquire, are we trying to please him in all things? If not, let us begin now.

CHANGES.

When we review the year now closing, we behold a multitude of changes in social, political, physical, commercial, and moral affairs. Homes have been desolated by the hand of death, and loved ones, whose happy greeting we heard at the dawn of the year, are now sleeping in the silent home of the dead. Their vacated seat, their garments, and other mementos left us, often remind us of other days, when we heard their cheerful voices say, "I wish you a happy new year." We shall hear them no more till Jesus comes. Let us be ready to greet them where we can wish them a happy for ever.

The political changes have not been startling during the year, but important steps have been taken by Napoleon, the Pope, and other leaders of the nations, which must soon develope important events. The prospect for the coming year is thrillingly interesting, and ominous of great things. The time has come to watch.

The physical changes, by way of earthquakes, tidal waves, etc., have been unusually frequent. The earth seems to be groaning for deliverance from its burden of wicked men and dark deeds of crime. We shall look for greater changes soon. It is waxing old like a garment.

There have been some important changes in commercial matters, introduced by the opening of the Pacific railroad, and the Suez Canal. By means of the latter, Napoleon has greatly increased his controlling power among the nations, which he knows well how to turn to good account.

The moral changes have been greatly for the worse. The spirit of the world seems to be largely pervading the Protestant churches of these last days, and consequently Romanism is making a steady advance in this country. While we write, church fairs, of a most gorgeous nature, are being held in all directions, and are crowded by the gay, the fashionable, the vile, the seducer and the seduced, the gambler, card-players, theatre-goers, pimps and their victims, deacons, church-members and ministers, are all together on a common fooling at these fancy fairs, and thus help swell the crowd that throng the broad road that leadeth to destruction; while the prayer-room is nearly vacant, and revivals of pure religion are almost unknown.

O what a change from the scenes of forty years ago. Truly the "perilous times" of "the last days" have come. This is a time to try men. We are to be made white, purified, and tried. Let us be firm for the right, "if the heavens fall." It is no time to make a compromise with the enemy. This is the hour for earnest action—the time to fight the good fight" of faith. Every christian soldier needs on "the whole armor of God," or he may expect a defeat. Let us go forth as valiant men to meet the foes of our coming King.

BAD HABITS.

It is a good time, at the close of the year, to inquire, Have we any bad habits? If so, let us crush them now, and not let them have a place in 1870. Do not let them cross into the new year. Bad habits are like stones attached to a drowning man; every one lessens the probability of his salvation. Bad habits are dead weights, that sink men and women to perdition. They increase our sorrows here, and fit us for future destruction. Why not quit them all now? The longer they are indulged, the harder they are to overcome. If we ever intend to break loose from them, now is the best time. Let us no longer be slaves to bad habits. They not only injure us, but our example serves to lead others astray, and confirm those already in bondage to unsanctified appetites, and evil indulgences. Let us make straight paths for our feet, so that none shall go astray who follow our steps.

Let no hatred, variance, or grudge, towards any one be carried into 1870; let no unkind words be heard in that year, let peace reign in the family, church, and towards all men; do not let the tobacco-box, snuff-box, cigar, nor pipe keep you company in 1870; neither the beer-bottle, cider, gin, whiskey, or any stimulant or narcotic. Abstaining from these brings a present comfort, that is a hundred-fold more delicious than the blue joy arising from their indulgence. The comfort arising from bad habits is very short, and the remorse that follows deep and abiding. Come, let us be wise, and do all to the glory of God.

SIGN YOUR NAME.

We hope none who write for the Crisis will be ashamed to sign their names to their articles. They will be read with much more interest. Those who only give their unknown initials would feel grieved, should they be introduced by them to their dear Brn. and Srs. in a new place. They would hardly forgive us for saying, This is Sr. M. B., or Bro. C. H. If, when asked why we did not give their name, instead of their initials, we should say because they are ashamed of their names, and do not wish them exposed, it would be thought they had been doing something so bad they did not wish to be known in society.

We hope all who wish their articles read will throw away their false modesty, and give their names with an open boldness becoming all christians.

BE ACCURATE.

Whenever those who write for the "Crisis" have occasion to quote from the Bible, or any other book, we would earnestly request them to give the precise words in the book. If any are omitted between what is quoted, put in the place of the omission some three or four periods to show that one or more words are left out. Do not put quotation marks on what is not quoted word for word. Please be particular. Those who quote scripture should always turn to the passage, and see that not a single word differs from the text. If all who write for the Crisis would observe this rule, it would save us much trouble and labor.

CHAPTER AND VERSE.

Those who write articles for the Crisis, and have occasion to refer to passages of scripture, will do well to quote all they wish to have read, and give chapter and verse. It does but little good to barely state where the passage may be found, as but few will take the trouble to find and read it. In this fast age, people want things arranged so that they can find them in a short time. They read as they run. All are in haste, and they will not wait for the slow coach.

TEN THOUSAND SAINTS.

BRO. GRANT:—Jesus is coming with ten thousand of his saints. Did these saints rise from their graves at the resurrection, which took place when Christ arose?

F. REYNOLDS.

The passage referred to is found in Jude 14, and reads as follows:—"And Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints." The passage may refer to those who were raised at the resurrection of Christ; but there is good reason to believe it relates to the holy angels who will accompany Christ at his second advent. The word rendered "saints" is hagiais, from hagios, which is usually rendered holy; hence Thompson renders the passage: "Behold the Lord is coming with his holy myriads." The Emphatic Diaglott renders it, "with his holy myriads." Griesbach, who is high authority, renders it as follows:—"Behold, the Lord is come with his holy tens of thousands." Wesley renders it—"The Lord cometh with ten thousand of his holy ones." The new translation, by the Amer. Bible Union, renders it—"Behold, the Lord came with his holy myriads." Others render it in the same way. We think the passage refers to the holy angels who are to come with Christ, as [illegible] other passages. In Matt. 25: 31 we read: "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." We think this is the same time referred to by Jude.

STEPHEN.

BRO. GRANT:—Will you give me through the Crisis, or privately, a comment upon Acts 7: 59–60? The point to which I call your attention is this: In the sixtieth verse it says, "he kneeled down." Was it the same "he" in the fifty-ninth verse that said, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit"? Please state how we as a people hold the matter. Yours in hope of the kingdom, F. A. DENTON.

We see no room to doubt that the word "he" in the sixtieth verse stands for Stephen in the fifty-ninth verse; the one whom they stoned, and who said, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." The one who said this, was the one whom they "stoned," and whom "devout men carried . . . to his burial, and made great lamentations over him."

HYMN BOOKS.—The reason why orders for hymn books have not been promptly filled for the last three weeks is because we could not get them from the Binder. We are now supplied.

BRO. THURBER is better, but not yet able to commence meetings. He hopes to be out soon. Pray for him.

☞ We are saddened to learn that Bro. M. Batchelor is sick. Pray for him.

THE RAINBOW.

We hope a goodly number will subscribe for "The Rainbow," edited by Dr. Wm. Leask, 34 Sandringham Road, London E., England. He is stepping out nobly in the defense of the great truths of the Bible, that have been so long buried under theological fables. It is a valuable monthly, but a strong effort is being made to crush it. He needs more subscribers in order to get along comfortably. Some have sent us their names and money for the Rainbow, and we hope to receive many more. $3.50 in greenbacks will pay for the paper one year. All who wish to subscribe can send us the money, and their P. O. address, and we will see that they are forwarded to Bro. Leask.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION, by Albert H. Hayes, M. D. Dr. Hayes has had large experience in special diseases. In the "Science of Life" he gives valuable information, which should be generally understood.

SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES, by Dr. A. H. Hayes. This is a valuable work for those for whom it is designed. Dr. Hayes is the Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston.

THE TREASURY is a monthly, "devoted to Bible themes," edited and published by Bro. M. R. Phetteplace, West Glocester, R. I. Price 50 cents a year. It is full of good reading, and is worth the money. We wish our Bro. success.

We have received "THE LAWS OF LIFE," for December, from Drs. J. C. Jackson and Harriet Austin. The Drs. are having great success in curing the sick at "Our Home on the Hill-Side," in Dansville, N. Y.

"WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE" is the best arranged monthly we have seen. The December No. contains much valuable reading. It has the following departments:—Story Department; Young Men's Department; Young Women's Department; Temperance Department; Miscellaneous Department; Parental Department; Children's Department; Health Department; Religious Department; The Farm; Culinary Department, etc., etc. Published by S. S. Wood, Newburgh, N. Y. Price $1 a year.

"VITAL FORCE. How Wasted and How Preserved." This is one of the most valuable books ever published. If it could be read and heeded in every family, it would do more to prevent sickness, preserve health, and prolong life, than any other one thing. Parents should read it, and give it to their children. Young married people should read it; young men and women should read it; and everybody should practice the purity of life which this book inculcates. Price, leather, gilt, $1.00 post paid. For sale at the Crisis office.

P. S. This work was first published with the title, "SEXUAL ABUSES." Every body should read the book, especially the young folks.

AMERICAN SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKER. A new magazine for parents and teachers, published at St. Louis, by J. W. McIntyre, at $1.50 per year; four months on trial for 50 cents. It has also club rates. It is designed for all sections and denominations alike. It contains a lesson system with expository notes, illustrations, etc., with much other matter, ready prepared for the use of teachers, parents, and others, lesson papers for the scholars, etc. The table of contents for the first number is as follows: What to teach Children—Rev. Jas. H. Brookes, D. D. The Province of the Sunday School—Bishop E. M. Marvin. Should Sunday Schools close in Winter?—Giving the Heart—Rev. H. A. Nelson, D. D. Religious Life in the Sunday School—Rev. A. C. George, D. D. The New Year, by Rev. S. J. Niccolls, D. D.; beside editorial, book notices, lessons, etc.

THE PICTORIAL PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL, specially devoted to the "Science of Man," his improvement, by all the means indicated by science. Phrenology.—The brain and its functions; the location and natural language of the organs, with directions for cultivating and restraining them; and the relations subsisting between mind and body described. Physiognomy, with all the "signs of character, and how to read them," is a special feature. Ethnology; or the natural history of man.—Customs, religions, and modes of life in different tribes and nations, will be given. Physiology and Anatomy.—The organization, structure and functions of the human body; the laws of life and health—what we should eat and drink, how we should be clothed, and how to exercise, sleep and live, presented in a popular manner, in accordance with hygienic principles. Portraits, sketches, and biographies of the leading men and women of the world in all departments of life, are special features. As a guide in educating and training children, this Magazine has no superior, as it points out all the peculiarities of character and disposition, and renders government and classification not only possible, but easy. Terms—monthly, at $3 a year, in advance. Single numbers, 30 cents. Clubs of ten or more, $2 each, and an extra copy to agent. Address S. R. WELLS, Publisher, 389 Broadway, New York.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

[illegible] of the Advent Christian Publication Society, [illegible], at the National Campmeeting, it was

Resolved, That we raise THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS for the Tract Fund the ensuing year.

It is [illegible] to raise this amount during the year for the publication and free distribution of tracts. [illegible] these little preachers in the work of [illegible] and saving men from darkness and death [illegible] hardly be overestimated; and the generous and liberal stewards of the Lord's money are earnestly invited to contribute according to their ability in aid of the good work. Send on your dimes and dollars, brethren, with a liberal hand, and receive, by and by, the reward of the liberal giver.

WM. B. HERRON, Sec. Adv. Chr. Pub. Soc'y.

Remittances should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Boston, Mass., or they may be enclosed with remittances to the Crisis office.

Donations for the Tract Fund.

Previous acknowledgments	$140.79
T. J. Philbrick	10.00
H. Dickie	5.00
Mrs. L. Bedell	.50
John Roberts	.50

AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

All donations and payments of pledges for this Society, should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, P. O. Drawer 202, Boston, Mass., who will acknowledge the same in the columns of the Crisis.

Previous acknowledgments	$327.15
Sidney Hall (on pledge)	25.00
Mrs. Abell Bickford	5.00
Samuel Dodge	1.00

For the World's Crisis.

MEMPHIS.

Perhaps there are some of our friends saying, "I wonder what has become of Bro. and Sr. Cole." I am happy to state we are alive and well, thank the Lord, and hard at work in this corner of the Lord's vineyard. We have been under a dark cloud of persecution lately, from those who have been striving to hinder our work here, and who would gladly drive us from the city had they the power; but the Lord has been on our side, and we still go on in his name, looking "beyond this vale of tears" "to the hill whence cometh our help."

Our school is large, and continually increasing, engrossing much of our time, Sister Valle still having charge of the primary department. Can you imagine the care and perplexity heaped on one having eighty or one hundred dusky responsibilities in charge? If so, then pity and pray for Sr. Valle. In the higher department, we have some scholars well advanced in reading, writing, and arithmetic. As a general thing, they learn to write rapidly; their powers of imitation being in this case of very great service to them. They are certainly original when called upon to furnish compositions, reasoning much from analogy; indeed, in all our preaching and teaching we can give more light by this than by any other method.

I am glad to report that the condition of the colored people is decidedly improving, as is most plainly observed by comparing their present situation even with last winter. Under judicious instruction, they are more provident, hence much suffering is avoided; and this, in connection with unusually comfortable weather so far, has brought less destitution to our notice than was observable last winter; still there are those, as it seems there must be, who are really needy, and who must be helped, or suffer. Had we ten barrels to-night, we could distribute them to the best advantage in a short time.

Brethren and sisters, cannot something be done for the poor here? We leave it for you to settle with the Lord.

Our church is prospering, though at present there is no sweeping revival interest. The Sabbath School is well attended, numbering one hundred and fifty or more. We need a good Sabbath School library; not sensational, but solid and attractive. We have some thirty or forty good books, but these will not supply the school. There are plenty of books lying idle in Northern homes that, could they be placed in the hands of many of these folks, would serve to keep them at home evenings, and instruct them in the way of righteousness. This matter, also, we shall leave in the hands of the Lord, and of his servants, to provide.

Bro. Sledge is working well as an associate pastor. As we are persecuted considerably on account of our views in regard to the intermediate state, we frequently preach on this subject, specially to answer objections. Bro. S., in speaking one evening on this subject, made a remark like this: "If you do go to heaven when you die, you will have a mighty tight race with the Lord at the judgment day; for you will have to come down and get your old body, and then get back so as to meet him in the air."

Well, we are striving to let our light shine, and to so run that we may obtain the prize ahead. Remember us in your petitions, and do not forget that a word of sympathy is sweet to our ears. Yours looking for Jesus unto eternal life, LEWIS F. COLE.

Memphis, Dec. 20th, 1869.

WHO WILL STAND?

"For the great day of his wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand?"—Rev. 6: 17.

Is it so, that the time is just at hand, when the heavens shall depart as a scroll when it is rolled together, and every mountain and every island be moved out of their places, and the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and bond and free men, will hide themselves in the dens, and rocks of the mountains; and say to the mountains and rocks, fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb, because the great day of his wrath is come? and we, making so little effort to make our calling and election sure, getting overcharged with eating, drinking, and the cares of this life, instead of getting ourselves all ready, and pulling sinners as brands from the burning? is it so? Are we seeking first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, or are we so taken up with things seen and temporal, everything else is sought first; How is it? It is time to awake and examine ourselves, lest after all, we are weighed in the balances and found wanting, and trying to escape the gaze of the Judge.

How is it, dear fellow pilgrim? It is not yet too late to double our dilligence. Jesus is still on the mediatorial throne, not yet ceased pleading. When we realize the shortness of time, the nearness to the judgment, the great work to be done, are we not led to cry out, who is sufficient for these things? Says James, "Brethren, if any of you err from the truth, and one convert him, let him know that he which converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide (not one) but a multitude of sins." Can we not be the means in the hands of God of turning one sinner from the error of his ways? We are ready to enquire what can I do? What could the apostles do? Jesus does not say, now you have talent, the gift of speaking, go to work in my vineyard; nay, verily; but "tarry ye at Jerusalem till ye are endued with power from on high." Without me ye can do nothing. Our sufficiency is of God. God hath chosen the weak things of this world to confound the mighty, so that no flesh can glory in his presence.

Now let us weak ones say, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? No matter if we have some scornful smiles and frowns for so doing, if the Master says "Well done," when he comes. As I look about and see iniquity abounding, the recklessness manifest, look into the word and hear Jesus saying, As it was in the days of Noah and Lot, so shall it be in the days of the coming of the Son of man. Every imagination of the heart is evil continually. O how it accords with the mass at the present day. We are compelled to believe we shall soon see the King in his beauty. Glorious thought. [illegible] C. CHASE.

Belvidere.

For the World's Crisis.

NATIONAL AND STATE CONFERENCE.

Dear brethren and sisters in Mass., I hear that the National Conference at Rochester, N. Y., was a good one. In the first place, there was an interest manifested towards it. 2nd. They worked for each other's interest. Now you know that it was made up of the State Conferences. The next Quarterly Conference of Mass. is to be at Chelsea, commencing Jan. 6th. Now let your interest be shown. It is intended to do you good. Shall it be a good one? It is for you to say. Send your delegates. Show that you wish it a success. Stand not back and find fault with others that go forward. But put your shoulders to the wheel, and with much prayer give it a push, and God will bless you. Now do not forget the conference at Chelsea, Jan. 6th. GEO. A. STREETER.

For the World's Crisis.

A SUGGESTION.

"To the churches" awaiting the reign of the Prince of Peace. Would it not be well to meet, if the Lord will, NEW YEAR'S DAY, 1870, in our respective places of worship, at our usual time of morning service, and spend such portion of the day as may be deemed profitable in fasting and prayer before the Lord?

[This suggestion is from a true disciple of Jesus.—ED.

For the World's Crisis.

CHELSEA CONFERENCE.

DEAR BRN.:—You see a call for a State Quarterly Session at Chelsea, Mass., commencing Jan. 6th. Let there be a grand rally to this meeting. Come ready for the good work. Come the first day. Let there be a good representation from all parts of the State. We shall do our best to take care of you. L. BOUTELL, for the church.

For the World's Crisis.

FROM BRO. F. H. BURBANK.

Dear Brethren and Sisters, I give glory to God that my health and spirits are all that I could desire, and that my heart is filled with love for Christ and all his people. The Lord blesses me with rich spiritual blessing, and my temporal needs are also supplied from time to time. I have no one to complain of but myself. I wonder at the Lord's grace which is manifested toward me, and the rest of a fallen race. It is my heart's desire to glorify him in return, and especially so in view of the fact that his coming draweth nigh. It was not my privilege to attend the camp-meetings this year, but I hope to be in the great "camp of the saints" and "the beloved city" in "yet a little while." May the Lord bless his dear people who through much tribulation enter the kingdom, and enable them to be patient, for truly the kingdom of God is nigh, "even at the doors."

For sometime I have longed to see my friends who are scattered abroad, and I purpose leaving Philadelphia on the first of January, to spend eight or nine weeks in the New England States. I would like to visit Lawrence, Mass., Concord and Portsmouth in N. H, in February. For the month of January my course is about marked out. My desire is to help in proclaiming "the gospel of peace," and to win souls to Christ, as well as to see my brethren.

The larger folks, as well as the smaller ones, will recollect that two years ago this fall, the bright, blue-eyed, curly-headed little octoroon child, whom we called LITTLE MINNIE, visited the camp-meetings and other places in the New England States. She has seen some hard times since she returned to her people, but on the coming Monday, Dec. 20th, she comes into my hands once more, "for good," and will be cared for by some of my friends in this city. She is now about nine years old, but small of her age; and, as she desires to accompany me on my trip, to see her friends once more, and travels free, I may take her with me.

We have good reports concerning most of the mission children who are living in homes provided for them. We have their gratitude and affection, which, together with their good conduct, pay us well. Several of them were rescued almost from the jaws of destruction, and are to-day bright, active, and good children. Praise the Lord!

A portion of each week is spent by myself in visiting courts and alleys, in the service of my Master. Good is accomplished, and the name of the Lord magnified. We have no mission home. I board at my aunt's.

My receipts since my last report are as follows:—By mail, Sr. Wadwell, $2. Personal, $3. from Bro. Frank Davis, to buy a hat; Bro. Wilfong, a pair of boots, $7, and repairing old boots, $1.40; Bro. Stetler $2; Sr. Thatcher $2; Sr. Park $2; Bro. Grant $5; where I have preached, $9.60; stamps, note paper, and envelopes from Sr. Selby, and a pair of new pants from Bro. Willfong, $7. All these friends have my prayers and heartfelt thanks. May the Lord reward all abundantly for their kindness to me. Letters sent to me between January first and eighth, may be addressed to Plymouth, Mass., where I expect to spend a few days in assisting Bro. Geo. A Brown in laboring for the lost. Finally pray for me. Your Aff. Bro. in Christ, F. H. BURBANK.

Phila. Dec. 1st, 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

FROM BRO. D. D. CHAFFEE.

Dear Bro. Moulton:—Though a stranger, I take the liberty of thanking you, through the Crisis, for your timely article, "Equality of the Reward." It has been a grief to me that so many, especially Adventists, should admit even that there are degrees of reward, when it does appear to me that the Bible warrants no such thing. It says, "But those mine enemies which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither and slay them before me." It does not say "mine enemies who have sinned much or little—hated me more or less—punish them accordingly." No. No such thing. And Paul does not say there is a crown of righteousness laid up for him, and a big or a little one also for all who love his appearing—the size varying according to the services rendered the Lord.

"Punished with everlasting destruction from the face of the Lord." No degrees there. 2 Cor. 5: 10. Receive . . . according to that he hath done, whether good or bad." Not "whether more or less good or bad," as most seem to think. If there are degrees of reward, why should we not read, "If the least righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the most ungodly sinner appear," and so make a fair contrast? And why should not the passage, "Whosoever shall . . . offend in one . . is guilty of all," be corrected? Degrees of reward must be degrees in kind or degrees of duration. But how can there be degrees of reward to the wicked, when their kind of reward is death, and its duration eternal? All the chance for any difference is what may come in between Christ's appearing and the final conflagration, which, as I am inclined to think, may involve a little time. But who will suffer most during the wailing and gnashing of teeth and the calling on the rocks and mountains—the most hardened or the least so?

I once ventured to question the position of the presiding minister at a union prayer-meeting, when he presented as a motive to the young to seek Christ early, the idea that they might secure a higher seat in heaven by starting earlier. Perhaps I was not wise in doing so on such an occasion, but my conscience does not condemn me. Indeed I feel sure I was right and they were wrong. I say they, for I don't know but a certain deacon would have decapitated me for doing so if he had had the power, after meeting. In opposition to that view, I quoted the penny apiece discourse, also the one about the two debtors—the one who had most forgiven loved most. I stated that a person might live in sin till threescore and ten, and then repenting, get as high a seat in the kingdom as any one, for it is all of grace and not of debt; but that the great danger lies in procrastination, that it is a terrible venture, exposed every moment, as man is, to death. Who would be so foolish as to run such a risk, because it is bearly possible for such to be saved though late?

Many good Orthodox people have imbibed the idea of the Spiritualists, that whatever knowledge one christian has gained more than another in this world, will give him the advantage of standing just so far ahead in the next. Such doctrine is getting to be quite commonly taught, especially to children, to induce them to attend and keep in the Sabbath Schools. But many, if they should be so fortunate as to get into the world to come, will find that, instead of starting so far ahead, because they have attended Sunday School so faithfully, they will have very much to unlearn before they can go ahead at all.

D. D. CHAFFEE.

South Wilbraham, Mass., Dec. 20th, 1869.

For the World's Crisis.

A CORRECTION.

BRO. GRANT:—In the last Crisis, (Dec. 22nd), a piece was published in which there was an omission of several lines in one place, by which the readers get a false impression. It should read (commencing on the last page, fourth column, and eighteenth line from the top of the column), "But thus far, where we have held tent-meetings, we have gone forth trusting in the Lord, backed up by no State conference or association. Some places where we have been with the tent, we have felt it duty to give all of the contributed money, and some besides, to those that we had invited to labor with us (and then felt ashamed to let them go away with so little), and paid the expense of the meeting with the product of manual labor." Also in the third column, where it reads, "Who never heard a sermon of the Lord and 'blessed hope,'" it should read, Who never heard a sermon on the coming of the Lord and blessed hope.

This correction we think due the readers of the Crisis. Mistakes often occur with us in our present imperfect state; but thank God, we soon, very soon, if faithful, will be in the kingdom where we shall be perfect in words, deeds, love, bliss, and in harmony with God, and with each other. By the grace of God, I am determined to be there. And, brethren and sisters, while we rejoice at the prospect before us of such transporting joys, enchanting bliss, and eternal glory, let us not forget to labor earnestly to induce others to become the friends of Jesus, and share with us the eternal inheritance which awaits the faithful. Your Bro., in hope of immortality,

ENOCH MORRILL.

East Boston, Mass., Dec. 25th.

For the World's Crisis.

LOST SHEEP.

One day as I chanced to look out my window, I saw at a little distance a sheep which had strayed away, and it was evident that the poor creature knew not which way to go to find a place of safety. I watched it with deep interest, and could hardly refrain from following it, and trying to lead it home. But the creature hastened on, only now and then stopping a moment as if almost afraid to go on, and also afraid to stop, for sounds of barking dogs were heard, and fear and danger seemed to be on every side.

How strikingly is the case of those who wander from the path of wisdom here illustrated. "Ye were as sheep going astray." 1 Peter 2: 25. O who would not rejoice to be the means of leading one poor lost sheep to the fold of the good Shepherd. Among all the multitude who are going astray, is there not one to whom you can speak a kind word of invitation and encouragement? When such great results are possible, it is certainly worth while to try. For he that "converteth the sinner from the error of his way, shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins."

Webster, Mass. SUSAN S. CHAMBERLAIN.

— A man who lacks zeal for God, must be without love to God, and lives as the devil would wish him live.

Correspondence.

From Sr. Rosetta Lanning.

BRO. GRANT:—Will you permit me through the Crisis to say a few words to the brethren and sisters. To many of you I promised to write, but nearly a year has passed and I have not yet fulfilled my promise; and I see no chance of doing so; therefore I pen these few lines, hoping you will accept this as a fulfillment of my promise. If you knew how anxiously I look for letters from my friends in Christ, I do not think you would wait for me to write to you. My time is all taken up. I am now teaching a freedmen's school. I commenced in Sept., and have not lost a day. We also have a Sabbath School, which commences at ten o'clock and lasts till two, and then I hardly hear all the scholars read around. We have a prayer-meeting once in two weeks. How I wish you could be to one of our prayer-meetings.

The Lord is truly among this people, but still they have many superstitious notions, and carry on their meetings very differently from white people. They seem very anxious to learn. I have a full school, all I can possibly teach. To some of them I have talked of the blessed hope, and when I read the Bible Sabbath mornings, they listen very attentively, and many of them say if they can only learn to read well enough to read the Bible, that is all they desire. I have some fifteen or twenty scholars that could read the Bible now, if they had Bibles to read.

A few Sabbaths since, I asked all that had Bibles to rise up. Not one arose; not one of them has a Bible. I asked them if they would like to have each a Bible? "O yes'm, yes'm," was heard all over the house. And now, dear brethren and sisters, it remains for you to say whether these people shall have Bibles or not. They are not able to buy them themselves. Many of them are suffering for the common necessaries of life; and must they be left to perish, in a land of Bibles, without a knowledge of the Scriptures? The benevolent societies are doing all they can to give them an education; but where there is so much to do, and so many to oppose them, their progress is slow. I shall have probably between thirty and forty scholars that will be able to read by next April. The most of them are intelligent, and few but what have white blood in their veins. I am doing all I can for them, but am not able to furnish them Bibles. If any of you will send Bibles, Sunday School papers, or tracts, I will scatter them among the freedmen, and God will bless you for it. Many of you cannot come down here to teach this people, but you can aid them by sending them useful books; and when you remember the gospel of the kingdom has never been preached to this people, and that soon Jesus is coming, and what we do must be done quickly, I hope you will respond, doing what you can. More than half of my scholars are grown men and women, and many of them have families (parents and children come to school every day); for that reason I feel anxious to furnish them with religious books and papers. May the Lord put it in some one's heart to send them. I will, by the permission of Bro. Grant, acknowledge, them in the Crisis.

And now one word concerning my own hopes and fears. I am still resting on the promise. My trust is in that same Jesus that died and rose again, and whom I soon expect to see coming in the clouds of heaven. Many times I look back to the precious meetings in the old tent at Woodhull, where the scales fell from my eyes; where I first heard these precious truths I have since learned to love so well. After Bro. Wendell went away, the blessed meetings we enjoyed in the school-house. I wonder how many of us that covenanted together will hear the welcome words, "Well done." May God grant that we may every one be found at the Lord's right hand. If any have grown cold in the service of our Master, may they arise and trim their lamps, and be ready to meet the Bridegroom. I want to meet you all in the kingdom, and, God being my helper, I will be there. Now, dear friends, write to me, and as far as I can, I will answer your letters. I often think of you, but have my heart and hands full. A word of encouragement in my labors would lighten my burden, for I am alone here in the faith. All the preaching I have is the Crisis, which comes to me every week laden with words of encouragement. May God bless you, one and all. Amen. Your sister in Christ,

ROSETTA LANNING.

Coolwell, Amherst Co., Va.

P. S.—If you send anything for the freedmen, direct to me as above.

From Bro. P. W. Hough.

BRO. GRANT:—My heart leaped with joy when I read the report of the National Convention. I thought of David's words in Ps. 133: "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." I was prepared to hear such a report of that gathering. My long acquaintance with the leading friends in this great cause, we so much love, fully prepared me to expect such results from that christian gathering. The different side issues, that have from time to time come up to distract and divide the children of God, have prepared the great heart of believers to rise above sectarian bigotry, and accept all that fear God and work righteousness.

I should have been glad to have met with you all on that occasion, but I thought it was too much to ask the brethren and sisters to raise funds for that purpose, yet I know they would gladly have done it; but as they have purchased a large tent, and been very liberal in meeting the expenses of all our special meetings, and furnishing me with means to visit our National Campmeeting, I could not consent to ask them this favor. I shall look for great good to come to the cause by that meeting. Let us all remember that to love Jesus and his word better than life, qualifies us to bear and forbear. Christian salutation.

P. W. HOUGH.

Augusta, Dec. 11th, 1869.

From Bro. W. A. Sheffield.

BRO. GRANT:—We have had another good meeting at our new chapel, near Suwannee Shoals, commencing on the 27th ult. Bro. L. C. Mattox was there from Homersville, Ga., also Bro. P. A. Smith from Jacksonville, Fla. There were a great many out, and, with a few exceptions, quite an interest was manifested in what the speakers had to say, and I am satisfied that impressions were made which will last till Jesus comes to redeem those who look for his coming. Bro. Smith spoke with his accustomed zeal, and, as Bro.

Pratt would say, had all steam up for the kingdom. Bro. Mattox was equally zealous, and is more than a match for any one who believes in a sky kingdom, and that the thief went from the cross to paradise, or that father Abraham would not help Lazarus over the gulf to cool the tongue of the rich man in hell.

Bro. Smith expects to leave in a few days for South Florida, to spend the winter for his health; and we all regret the idea of his going; but if he should go, I hope he may be able to spread the glad tidings effectually in that benighted region, which he will be sure to do, if his heath permits. Yours in hope,

W. A. SHEFFIELD.

Suwannee Shoals, Fla., Dec. 5th.

From Bro. G. A. Streeter.

BRO. GRANT, and all the dear brethren and sisters in Christ:—How do you do? My soul is full this morning with thankfulness to God for all his mercies toward me. I am fully determined to press on for the right. I see danger on all sides, and the only safe position for me is to look right straight ahead. When I see and hear people professing godliness stop to contend about this and that, fighting with carnal weapons the children of earth, when at the same time sin and wickedness are all around them, it makes me sigh and cry, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly." How infidelity and skepticism are on the increase. Dear Brn., is it not high time that we should be up and doing? that we should lift our voices against such things? We need men that will stand for the right; men that are not afraid of the truth; men that will not fear man, but God; men that will boldly cry out against all sin of every kind. We are in a time when it requires men that will declare the whole counsel of God. Dear Brn., I feel the importance of these times. O let us gird on the armor anew, seize the sword of the Spirit, and go forth manfully to fight for God. Soon the great reckoning day will come. Glory to God, let us be all ready.

GEO. A. STREETER.

No. Dana, Mass., Dec. 9th.

BRO. J. WENDELL, Autwerp, O., writes:—"I have recently visited Busti, N. Y., by request, and held a series of meetings in the M. E. church, which, by the kindness of pastor and trustees, we were permitted to occupy, where we delivered some twelve discourses to good success. The pastor of the church attended, and listened with great interest, and confessed that he had received additional light from the word of God. Several became interested, and subscribed for the 'Crisis.' On the last Lord's day that I was with them, after forenoon services (conducted by Bro. Kellogg, the pastor), all repaired to the water, where four willing souls were buried with Christ by baptism; two by Bro. Kellogg, and two by the writer. We realized 'how good and how pleasant a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.' God bless both minister and people, is my prayer."

BRO. D. EASTMAN, E. Canaan, N. H., Dec. 8th, writes:—"Bro. J. H. Evans and myself have been holding meetings in Dorchester, N. H., for some three weeks past. We are happy to say many have been reclaimed and made to see the great truths we preach. Some twenty have experienced the blessed hope, and still the work is going on. Last Sabbath we had one of the best meetings I ever witnessed. The Spirit of the Lord was present. Some twenty-five or more came forward for prayers. We felt truly the time for decision had come. Old and young wept together. O what a happy sight, to see men and women getting ready for the coming of the Lord. Some are to be baptized next Sabbath, and others will soon follow. Pray for us."

For the World's Crisis.

SPIRITUALISM.

"These things command and teach."—1 TIM. 4: 11.

The text is one calculated to arrest the attention of every Bible student; a command or exhortation given by one superior to the one addressed. When Paul on this occasion, as well as at others, was giving a charge under the inspiration of the Almighty to his son in the gospel, it was becoming in Timothy to pay attention and obey, which we have every reason to believe he did, to the letter; and it is becoming in us also, as the servants of God, to do likewise; which if we do, we shall be drawn out on a doctrine that is not popular at the present time. But if a man speaks, let him "speak as the oracles of God" (1 Pet. 4: 11), as it is written, "To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them."—Isa. 8: 20.

What are the things taught in the preceding verses? The Spirit speaks through Paul to Timothy, and tells him that down in the end of time some will depart from the faith, and give heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils. Is this so? Yes. What will they do? They will tell lies in hypocrisy. They will say the marriage covenant is not good for anything, and will make out, in their own estimation, that it is all right for a man to take his neighbor's wife. They will teach the doctrine of free-loveism. They will lie; that is their mission.

Brethren, this class of men and women is among us; they are lying just as hard as they can; and were Christ here, we have no doubt he would tell them they were of their father the devil; and I believe it. If the Bible is true, they are such. We see nothing in their fruits but evil. Paul says they are liars. Every tree is known by its fruit. Peter is not silent in this thing. The spirit of inspiration taught him something in this direction. We turn over to his second epistle (2: 1), and he says, "There were false prophets also among the people"; and in these last days "there shall be false teachers among you." What will they do? They "privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction." What more? "Many [not a few] shall follow their pernicious ways, by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of."

I see by these things that the end is at hand. These are the last day tokens. Let them lie on, but let us be more like Timothy, and preach the word; put the brethren in mind of these things; then we shall be good ministers. And amid all these things, keep a meek and quiet spirit; for this is of great price in the sight of God. Stand up for Jesus and his cause. Strike the devil in the face with the word. Do not draw back, for the Lord is at hand. He will soon call his servants down from the wall, and give us rest. How sweet the word! Glory to God, we are most through. We shall soon see Jesus and be like him.

J. A. CLEAVELAND.

— When zeal comes forth, may meekness walk with it on one hand, and wisdom on the other, and then it will be well conducted.

Obituaries.

HAMBLIN. Died in East Boston, Mass., Nov. 17th, 1869, Sister Harriett N., wife of Bro. Eli Hamblin, aged forty-three years.

Sister H. was sick for only a few days, being confined to the house for less than a week. Thus suddenly have Bro. Hamblin, two daughters, and a large circle of acquaintances, been called upon to mourn the loss of a most affectionate wife, a fond, devoted mother, and a firm friend. Sister H. gave her heart to the Lord when young; was a firm believer in the speedy coming of the blessed Savior, and has for many years been identified with the "little flock" "that love his appearing."

Bro. M. Batchelor spoke words of comfort to the mourners assembled at her late residence, Sunday, Nov. 21st, from Rev. 21: 4,—"There shall be no more death." Amen.

O. T. A.

RAY. In Vernon, Vt., Sept. 27th, 1869, Bro. John M. Ray, aged forty-four years and eight months.

In the death of Bro. Ray, many have met with a great loss. He was a kind husband, and an indulgent father; and his dear invalid daughter will greatly miss him. The church, the neighborhood, and the town, will all mourn their loss; he being a kind and obliging christian man in all the relations of life. Ministers, and others, who have shared the hospitalities of his home, will also mourn his loss; and now may the widow and invalid daughter share in their sympathies and their prayers.

By the side of Bro. Ray was laid his little nephew, an infant babe that died in New York city, and was brought on and buried the same day with its uncle. It was truly a solemn day to the large assembly that gathered on the occasion. A discourse was delivered by the writer, founded on 1 Cor. 15: 22, 23. May God bless the mourning and afflicted friends, and fruit be gathered unto eternal life, as the result of Bro. Ray's death. He rests in hope.

"How long shall death the tyrant reign"!

Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly.

T. M. PREBLE.

BELLOWS. Died in New York city, Dec. 15th, 1869, Elder J. K. Bellows, aged sixty-two years.

Bro. Bellows is well known as a faithful minister, who has proclaimed the glad news of the soon coming and kingdom of Christ, and probably shortened his life by exposure, while traveling over the New England hills. He leaves a companion in the blessed hope, the mother of a large family of children. Just before Bro. Bellows fell asleep, he called her to his bed side and said, "I have a glorious hope of immortality and eternal life in the kingdom, and this is all I have to leave you." Sr. Bellows replied, that he could not leave them a greater treasure, if he possessed all the wealth of this world. The next day, Eld. J. V. Himes called at the office, and we were all glad that the Lord had sent an old soldier of the cross to speak words of comfort to cheer the surviving friends of a fellow soldier, whose sudden death has filled their hearts with sadness; but they weep not as those who have no hope, as Bro. Himes showed with great ability on the hope of the resurrection of the dead. He tarried with us over the Sabbath, and spoke to a full house, with great profit to the cause here. May the Lord soon send him this way again.

H. A. KING.

RICKER. Died in Farmington, N. H., Nov. 27th, 1869, after a severe illness for seventy days, of bilious typhoid fever, Martha A., wife of Ezekiel Ricker, aged thirty-seven years, eleven months and five days.

Among her last words, she said, "Death to me has no terror, for I know in whom I trust." We laid mother down, hoping that we should soon meet her on the other shore, where suffering can never enter. Words of comfort were spoken at the funeral by Bro. J. G. Smith, from Ps. 17: 15.

CHARLES B. RICKER.

BATCHELDOR. Died in Epping, N. H., Dec. 15th, 1869, of lung fever, Ruth M., wife of Gideon Batcheldor, aged fifty-eight years, six months and twenty days.

Sister Batcheldor has been a believer in the Lord for nearly forty years, and has lived the life of the righteous. She leaves a husband and five children to mourn. She died in peace, and is now

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

Sermon by Bro. S. S. Mooney, from Isaiah 25: 7, 8.

W. DAVIS.

HALL. Died in North Springfield, Vt., Dec 18th, 1869, of consumption, Laura, daughter of Bro. John and Sr. Elizabeth Hall, aged fourteen years.

An active, sprightly child is mourned with hearts that ache, by parents and sisters and friends. But "joy cometh in the morning," for Laura found peace in believing, and joy in the blessed hope, and sweetly sleeps in Jesus.

H. F. CARPENTER.

WOOD. Died in Surry, Me., Dec. 11th, Altha J. Wood, only child of the late Capt. William D. and Adeline D. Wood, aged eleven years.

"When we see a precious blossom
That we tended with such care,
Rudely taken from our bosom,
How our aching hearts despair.

Round its little grave we linger
Till the setting sun is low,
Feeling all our hopes have perished
With the flow'r we cherished so.

We shall sleep, but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn;
We shall meet to part, no, never,
On the resurrection morn."

A. P. MOORE.

HODGDON. Died in Rockport, Nov. 2nd, Allie L. Hodgdon, aged four years and five months.

Nov. 12th, Vesta E. Hodgdon, aged eight years and five months.

Children of Geo. W. and Lydia J. Hodgdon, formerly of Greenland, N. H.

GEO. W. HODGDON.

PHILBROOK. Died suddenly, of palsy on the brain, in Sanbornton, N. H., Dec. 10th, 1869, Mary F., wife of Hiram B., and daughter of Thomas J and Eliza A. Philbrook, aged twenty-seven years.

She was converted in 1857, and lived an exemplary life. She sleeps in Jesus. Words of comfort were spoken by Bro. Smith.

THOMAS J. PHILBROOK.

Married.

At Plymouth Union, Vt., Dec. 9th, 1869, by Elder H. F. Carpenter, Bro. CHAS. A. PERKINS, of Bridgewater, Vt., and Sr. ELIZA DINSMORE, of Hartland, Vt.

In Lynn, Dec. 24th, 1869, by Elder T. M. Preble, Mr. THOMAS CHAPMAN, JR., and Mrs. IDA E. JOHNSTON, both of Lynn.

In Lynn, Dec. 25th, 1869, by Elder T. M. Preble, Mr. JOHN BOGGS, JR., of Marlborough, Mass., and ANNIE P. HARVEY, of Lynn.

In Yarmouth, Me., Dec. 23d, by R. R. York, Bro. GEORGE O. D. SOULE, and Sr. SUSIE M. LOVELL, both of Yarmouth.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Cable News.

PARIS, Dec. 23. The Emperor has received a diploma as honorary member of the Archological Society of the Russian Rhenish Provinces.

LONDON, Dec. 23. The Russo-Polish clergy have instructed their delegates to the Ecumenical Council to oppose the union of spiritual and temporal power, the dogma of infallibility, the injudicious education of the clergy, an organization of a College of Cardinals, which practically excludes foreigners.

The Times to-day speculates on the action of the Ecumenical Council. It expects some concession to the enlightened sentiment of the age, but predicts that the dogma of Papal infallibility will be decreed. It believes that the political aims of the Jesuits will be nullified by the European Governments.

ROME, Dec. 23. The fourth Congregation Council will be held on the 30th inst., when the election of 24 members of the Committee on Religious Orders will take place. It is expected that as soon as the committees are completed the discussion of proposals concerning faith will commence.

All the Austrian Bishops were received at an audience yesterday by the Empress of Austria. A dinner and reception was given last night by the French Ambassador, at which eighty dignitaries of the church were present.

PARIS, Dec. 23. The Journal Official contains an imperial decree making new postal arrangement between France and the United States. Letters sent direct, of 10 grammes weight, require a prepayment of 60 centimes; sent via England, 70 centimes. Stamps are to be obtained of the French administration; insufficient pre-payment renders postage null; pre-payment of all letters carried by French steamers is obligatory.

Important Speech by Napoleon.

PARIS, Nov. 29. The session of the Senate and Corps Legislatif was re-opened to-day, with great ceremony, by the Emperor, who delivered the opening speech from the throne. It was hoped that the Empress might possibly return in time to take part in the ceremonies, but she has not yet reached Paris.

The Emperor said: "It is not easy to establish regular and peaceful liberty in France. For months past society seemed to be menaced by subversive passions and freedom compromised by the excesses of the press and of public assemblages. But common sense has already properly judged these culpable exaggerations, which, after all, have but served to prove the solidity of the edifice founded by popular suffrage. But this uncertainty and trouble must last no longer. The will of the people must be made known. France wants liberty with order. Order I answer for. Help me, Messieurs, to secure liberty. Between those who would change all and those who would grant nothing a glorious medium may be chosen." The Emperor then referred to the Senatus Consultum of September last, which, he said, he had prepared with the purpose of inaugurating a new era of constitutional progress. It was the task of the Chamber to aid him in carrying out the plan. He proceeded to enumerate the municipal reforms which were to be made. He pronounced the situation of the country satisfactory, and declared that the more ready, however, he was to grant reforms, the more decided he was to maintain the principles of the constitution. The relations of France with foreign powers were friendly. Sovereigns and people desired peace.

The Emperor continued as follows: "We have reason to be proud of our epoch. The new world suppresses slavery; Russia frees her serfs; England renders justice to Ireland; the Bishops are uniting at Rome for wise and conciliatory purposes; the progress of science draws nations closer to each other; while America unites the Atlantic and Pacific, everywhere capital and intelligence combine to connect by the electric wire all nations; France and Italy will soon be joined by a tunnel through the Alps, and the Suez Canal has already united the Mediterranean and Red seas. The Empress is not present to-day because I desired her to testify the sympathy of France, with the wonderful genius and perseverance of a Frenchman." The Emperor concluded in the following words:

"Messieurs—You resume your labors after an unusual interruption of your session. I hope the bodies of the State will apply loyally the modifications lately made in the constitution. There is to be a more direct participation of the nation in its own affairs. This will be a new force for the Empire. May the Chambers prove that without falling into regretable excesses, France can support free institutions, which honor civilized nations."

Passing Events.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24. Edwin M. Stanton died suddenly this morning at three o'clock.

☞ There is a manifest revival of the Catholic church in all countries. The whole Catholic world, as never before, is on its knees in confession, supplication and prayer. Thousands of devout Romanists are in sanguine expectation that the result of this council will be the bringing back of the Protestant churches into the bosom of the one true church.

☞ "The physicians," says the Gaulois, "and Dr. Ricord at their head, are unanimous in declaring that the late illness of the Emperor, far from impairing his health, has, on the contrary, consolidated it. 'His Majesty,' says that eminent practitioner, 'has found in the struggle with his malady a fresh and unexpected force.'"

☞ Turkey is going to increase her army during peace by fifty thousand men, and during war the Turkish army shall hereafter be able to put four hundred thousand soldiers and three hundred thousand militia into the field.

☞ There is a volcano in Athens county, Ohio—a small one. A hole in the ground, about the size of a stove-pipe, at certain periods has eruptions of hot smoke, resembling steam.

☞ It is said that $7,000,000 of Northern capital is being expended this year in improvements in Georgia.

☞ A curious phenomenon is frequently taking place at Machiasport, Me., in the harbor opposite the wharves. It is an upheaval, by some power altogether unknown, of vast quantities of water, mud, and stones, to the distance of many feet, and with a furious, rushing noise. This phenomenon has occurred quite a number of times during the summer, and once as late as a month ago.

☞ The winter in Southern Europe is severe. The Alpine passes were closed before the 5th of December, and there was seven feet of snow in parts of Piedmont.

☞ A meteor fell on Friday night near Oak Creek, Wis., and the stone was discovered by a traveler, near whom it struck. It made a hole in the marshy ground as large as a barrel, and when taken out was still hot, and emitted a sulphurous odor. It had the appearance of a cylinder of lava.

☞ Desertion in the ranks of the Pontifical army is continuing to so alarming an extent that Gen. Kantzler, the Commander-in-chief of the Papal forces, has earnestly urged the Holy Father to give him instructions for applying the severest penalty of martial law, in order to put a stop to this growing evil.

☞ The forests are dying out in certain parts of Virginia. The chestnut trees have already submitted to some deleterious agency, and their growth is nearly exhausted, and this year the oak, and in fact all the trees of the forest in certain sections are dying. No explanation of this disastrous visitation has yet been given.

Religious Items.

— There are seven million young men in our country; about two hundred and fifty thousand of them profess to be Christians.

— The Rev. Miss Augusta J. Chapin, preached at Iowa City, Sunday, from 1 Cor., xiv. chap., 35 v.: "For it is a shame for woman to speak in church."

— One thousand and forty four members compose the Ecumenical Council.

— Latin will be the language of the Œcumenical Council, and a uniform pronunciation is to be fixed, in order that the assembly, owing to the diversity of accents, need not degenerate into a second Tower of Babel.

— Louis XIV. once said: "When I go away from hearing some of the Court preachers, I say, what a wonderful preacher he is! what splendid powers of eloquence he has! what a great man he is!" But when I go from hearing Father Massillion, I leave, saying, "What a poor wretched sinner I am! how wicked I am!"

— "Whosoever will may come." "I thank God," said Richard Baxter, "for the word Whosoever. If God had said there was mercy for Richard Baxter, I am so vile a sinner, that I would have thought he meant some other Richard Baxter;—but when he says Whosoever, I know that includes me, the worst of all Richard Baxters."

— The first Methodist sermon in America was preached a little over a century ago to a congregation of five persons.

— A German theologian is said to have reckoned up a thousand volumes, which have been published during the past century, in opposition to the doctrine of immortality, and ten thousand consisting of vague speculations on the subject.

EVANGELICAL MOVEMENTS IN PARIS.—From a private letter it appears that there has been quite an awakening of Evangelical interest in Paris lately. A re-union of all evangelical pastors had been called, and active and aggressive measures had been decided upon to reach the population of Paris with religious influences.

Agricultural Items.

— Cows in milk should be kept quiet at all times. Chasing by dogs or rude boys is one of the most harmful things in a diary. Docility, a quiet life, is the life for brindle. She will give more milk, will give it readily; will love to be milked if kindly treated.

— An old stable keeper in England says he has never had a bad foot on his horses since he commenced the practice of bedding on a thick layer of sawdust. Pine sawdust he finds the best, oak the worst.

— Modern research has established the fact that in the winter vegetable life is not suspended, as has been generally supposed. The roots, especially, grow, and there is a general though slow circulation of sap throughout the season.

— Experiments made by an English chemist, some years ago, show how much food of different kinds it takes to make a pound of flesh. According to his conclusions it requires, of milk, 25 lbs; turnips, 100; potatoes, 50; carrots, 50; oat meal, 9; barley meal, 7 ½; peas, 3½; beans, 3½.

BEECHER compares a text to a gate opening into the Lord's garden; and says that many ministers, instead of unlatching the gate, and leading their hearers in to pluck the fruit and flowers, content themselves by getting upon it and swinging to and fro.

Notices.

Watch Meeting

at Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, Friday evening, Dec. 31st, commencing at half past seven o'clock. Several preachers are expected to be present. We expect to have an interesting, profitable meeting. We hope to see a good attendance of the saints residing in Boston and its vicinity.

Mass. State Conference.

The next Quarterly Conference of Mass. will be holden at Chelsea, Library Hall, to commence January 6th, at half past ten, and to be continued over the Sabbath, and longer if thought best. Let there be a grand rally from all parts of the State, and a full representation from every church. Let there be much prayer for this meeting, and let us come together filled with the spirit of the Lord expecting a mighty work will be done for the salvation of sinners, and quickening of the dear saints.

S. W. THURBER, President.
P. S. BUTLER, Secretary.

Read This!

To those who intend to build wood tents at Alton Bay, N. H., next season (of which there are some fifty or more who have spoken for lots), I would say that now is the time to send their schedule of the lumber they will want, to Bro. Jeremiah Woodman, Alton, N. H. Be particular to give the size of the tent and kind of lumber. And those who have not arranged for building their tents, and those who do not intend to build their tents themselves, should write to Bro. Joseph Langley, Pittsfield, N. H., or to me at New Durham, N. H., so that arrangements can be made in season.

J. G. SMITH.

Watch Meeting.

There will be a watch meeting at Plainville, Ct., in Good Templar's Hall, (formerly Methodist Chapel), Friday evening, Dec. 31st. Meeting will commence at eight o'clock P. M. Preaching at half past eight, by Eld. B. Hitchcock. Intermission of twenty minutes at half past nine. Love feast and social meeting from ten until eleven. Preaching at eleven by Mrs. M. L. Durand. Meeting will close immediately after commencement of the new year. Brethren are invited to come and meet with us. Good sheds for horses are engaged near the Congregational Church.

For the Brethren, WM. BUNCE.
GEO. MORGAN.

Watch-Meeting.

There will be a watch-meeting held at the Christian Union Church, in Wilbraham, Mass., on Friday evening, Dec. 31st, 1869, to commence at half past seven o'clock. Bro. A. M. Higgins and others are expected to be present and address the meeting. All are invited to attend. Come, brethren and sisters, one and all, to this feast. Come to work for God and the salvation of men.

P. S. BUTLER, for the Church.

Notice.

The Second Advent Christian Church of Rochester will hold meetings, until further notice, in Washington Hall, corner of Main and Clinton Streets, on Sundays. Prayer and conference, ten o'clock A. M. Sabbath school, 12½ P. M. Preaching at two and seven P. M.

N. M'CULLOCK.

Notice.

The Lord will, the first quarterly session of the New Hampshire State Conference of 1870 will be held at Dover, N. H., Ham's Hall, commencing Wednesday, Jan. 12th, at ten o'clock A. M., and holding over the following Sabbath. Bro. J. Couch and other faithful laborers are expected to be there to preach the word of life. Let all come to the feast.

T. W. PIPER.

Minnesota Conference.

The eighth annual conference of the Advent Christian Church of Minnesota will be held (D.V.) in Monticello, commencing Thursday evening, at seven o'clock, Jan. 13th, and will continue over the following Sunday. All the members are particularly invited to be present, or report by letter. Churches are also requested to send delegates, or report by letter.

THOS. K. ALLEN, Sec.

Protracted Meeting.

The Lord willing, we shall cammence a protracted meeting in North Benton, N. H., evening, Dec. 28th, to continue through the week and over the Lord's day. All are invited to attend.

A. A. HOYT.
T. E. LANG, JR.

Notice.

There will be preaching in Roxbury, Ct., Sunday, Jan. 2d, 1870, at the house of Levi R. Teeple, by Bro. Chas. C. Barker. Will the brethren and sisters from abroad come to this house and worship with us, that we may have a feast? All are invited. In behalf of the cause of God, and the love of the truth,

SUSAN E. TEEPLE.

Notice.

A quarterly meeting of the Union Female Missionary Association will be holden at Meredith Village, N. H., commencing Jan. 5th, 1870, at two o'clock P. M., and will hold over the following Sabbath. Arrangements have been made with the Boston, Concord and Montreal Rail Road to give free return passes to all who may choose to attend the Association from any station on the road, and efforts will be made to secure the same favor of the Concord and Portsmouth, Manchester and Lawrence, and Manchester and Nashua R. R. Persons purchasing full fare tickets to the meeting will receive return passes, signed by the Secretary, good through the meeting.

The hall where the meeting is to be held, is an excellent one, new and commodious. The place is pleasantly situated. But little preaching of the present truth message has been had there, and it is hoped that the sisters of the Association, the members, and all others who can, will attend this meeting. The few brethren and sisters in the place and vicinity will do all they can to entertain those who may come.

The train up arrives at Meredith Village at noon, and the train down at two o'clock P. M. All who attend the meeting, will come at once to Lake Hall, and arrangements will be made for their comfort. Come to work for Jesus, and save the perishing.

M. MCKINSTRY.

Ministerial Conference.

By invitation of the church in Bangor, the Maine Ministerial Conference will be held in Bangor, commencing Tuesday, January 11th, 1870, and continue as long as thought proper. We hope to see a full attendance of the ministering brethren from all parts of the State to labor in the name of the Lord for the advancement of the great truth of our day, the coming and kingdom of Christ and of God.

C. GOUD, President.
R. R. YORK, Vice President.

It will be remembered that the Maine State Conference was merged into the Ministerial Conference, at its last session, in Richmond; and article six of its constitution amended, by inserting so much of the constitution of the State conference, as provides for a delegation from the several churches and societies in the State, who are in harmony with this conference, and wish to share in its labors; viz., one delegate for each church or society, and one additional for every ten members. We hope, therefore, to see a full delegation from all the churches and societies in the State.

C. GOUD, President.

Notice.

By invitation of the church at New Britain, the next quarterly session of the A. C. Conference will convene at New Britain, Conn. Services to commence Wednesday evening, Jan. 12th, 1870. Business session at ten o'clock A. M., Thursday. Let every church be represented, and all come with a hearty good will to work for the Lord. Letters and communications can be sent to the Secretary previous to the meeting, at 189 Orchard Street, New Haven, Conn.

GEORGE L. TEEPLE, Sec. of Conf.

Notice.

The next session of the R. I. and E. Conn. Conference will be held with the Advent church in Bristol, R. I., on the 5th, 6th, and 7th of January, 1870. Come, preachers and delegates, make one more rally for the conference. Let us begin the work of the incoming year in earnest.

A. DURFEE, President of Conf.

Notice.

The Lord willing, we will commence a series of meetings in East Otis, Mass., Jan. 5th, and hold them over the following Sabbath. Brethren and sisters, we desire your attendance. Come one, come all.

W. J. RIPLEY.
E. PHELPS.

Notice.

I have removed from Danielsonville, Conn., to North Springfield, Vt., and friends are requested to address me henceforth at this place.

H. F. CARPENTER.

German Tracts.

Bro. Reimer has a good supply. Send your orders to L. REIMER, 106 Chesnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Appointments.

☞ We would say to our preaching brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.
M. Batchelor.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
John G. Hook.......................Friday evening, Jan. 7th and Sundays, Jan. 9th and 16th.

BOSTON, SOUTH END, (Minot Hall), corner of Washington and Springfield Streets.)
Meetings at 10½ A. M., and 3 and 7½ P. M.
J. S. White.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
C. Goodrich.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
Geo. A. Streeter.......................Sunday, Jan. 23d

EAST BOSTON.
Meetings are held at Chase's Block, up two flights, at 154 Meridian Street, on Sundays, at the usual hours, also Monday and Thursday evenings.
A. P. Moore.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
J. W. Brittan.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
Geo. A. Streeter.......................Sunday, Jan. 16th

CHELSEA, MASS., (LIBRARY HALL.)
L. Boutell.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
T. M. Preble.......................Sabbath, Jan. 9th

CHARLESTOWN.
Preaching at Charlestown, (Evening Star Hall, No. 32 Main Street), every Lord's day.
T. M. Preble.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
T. M. Preble.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
S. C. Hancock.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th

Windsor Station, P. Q., Friday and Saturday evenings, and over the Sabbath, Dec. 31st, Jan. 1st and 2nd.
Melbourne Ridge.......evenings, Jan. 3d, 4th and 5th
Melbourne Village.......Thursday evening, Jan. 6th and onward. MILES GRANT.

Holden, Mass.......................January 9th
J. S. WHITE.

Lynn, Mass.......................Sunday, Jan. 30th
M. BATCHELOR.

Vernon, Vt.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Southington, Ct.......................Sabbath, Jan. 9th
ALBION ROSS.

Seitico, Ct.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
H. MUNGER.

North Springfield, Vt.......Sundays, Jan. 2nd and 9th
Bridgewater, Vt.......Sundays, Jan. 16th and 23d
Plymouth, Vt., (Union Hall).......evenings, Jan. 13th and 14th.
Dinsmore Hill.......evenings, Jan. 25th and 26th
H. F. CARPENTER.

Porter Village, Me.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Hampton, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
Dover, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 16th
Melvin Village, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 30th
T. W. PIPER.

Nashua, N. H., (watch-meeting).......Friday, Dec. 31st
Jan. 1st, and over Sunday. JOHN H. DADMUN.

North Somers, Ct.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Keene, N. H.......Sundays, Jan. 23d and 30th
A. SIMPSON.

Fairhaven, Mass.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
L. BOUTELL.

Putnam, Ct.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
JOHN T. DIXON.

Rochester Village, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Strafford, N. H., (Robert's school-house), Sun., Jan. 9th
South Berwick, Me., (Great Works), Sunday, Jan. 16th
Seabrook, N. H.......................evening, Jan. 25th and over the following Sunday. J. PINKHAM.

West Alton, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Warren Summit, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
North Haverhill, N. H., (Sr. Glazier's), eve., Jan. 11th
LEVI ALLEN.

Moultonborough, N. H., (Red Hill), Saturday evening, Jan. 22d, and over Sunday, the 23d. Ordination expected. T. W. PIPER, J. G. SMITH, L. ALLEN.

Poultney, Vt.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
(Brethren, please give notice to all.)
Rutland, Vt.......................evening, Jan. 12th
Montreal, P. Q.......Sunday, Jan. 16th, and onward.
(Dansville and Quebec noticed hereafter.)
J. B. COOK.

Washington, D. C. (15th Street, Presbyterian church), Sabbath evening, Jan. 2nd, 1870. B. MATTHIAS.

DEDICATION service will be held in the new "Clark's Hall," Clarke's Mills, R. I., on Sunday, Jan. 2nd, 1870, at 11 A. M. and 6 P. M., by H. L. HASTINGS.

St. Albans, Me., (Bro. Bates' house), New Year's Eve.
ALLEN DAMON.

Plainville, Ct.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
Seymour, Ct., (Great Hill Church), Sunday, Jan. 16th
South Windsor, Ct.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
WM. A. & M. L. DURAND.

Morris, Ct.......................Sabbath, Jan. 9th
East Haddam, Ct.......................Sabbath, Jan. 16th
G. L. WHITE.

Belgrade Depot, Me.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Jay, (Blaisdell school-house).......Sunday, Jan. 16th
H. B. SEVEY.

New York City, (Cooper Institute), Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Plymouth, Mass.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
Elliot, Me.......................Sunday, Jan. 23d
F. H. BURBANK.

Square Pond, Ct.......Sabbaths, Jan. 9th and Feb. 6th
P. S. BUTLER.

South Windsor, Ct.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
Prospect, Ct.......................Sunday, Jan. 23d
S. WOODRUFF.

Biddeford, Me.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
WM. H. MITCHELL.

Starks, Me.......................Sabbath, Jan. 9th
E. M. HAGGETT.

Stowe, Mass.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
JAMES A. YOUNG.

Providence, R. I.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Springfield, Mass.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
RUFUS WENDELL.

Chicopee Falls, Mass.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
Hartford, Conn.......Sabbaths, Jan. 23d and 30th
E. MCCULLOCK.

Boscawen, N. H., (Gulf school-house), Sab., Jan. 2nd
Lake Village, N. H.......................Sabbath, Jan. 30th
SIMEON ROBY.

Meredith, N. H., (Dolloff Hall).......Sunday, Jan. 9th
D. W. DAVIS.

Manchester, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Hampton, N. H.......Jan. 6th, and over the Sabbath
D. F. LEAVITT.

Seabrook, N. H.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
Great Falls, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 16th
East Rochester, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 23d
WM. C. STEWART.

Ossipee, N. H., (school-house, Dist. No. 4), Sunday, A. M., Jan. 2nd.
Melvin Village, N. H.......................evening, Jan. 2nd
Lake Village, N. H.......................evening, Jan. 3d
Meredith, (Dolloff Hall).......................evening, Jan. 4th
Meredith Village.......................evening, Jan. 5th and over the following Sabbath at W. F. M. Association
L. C. & M. MCKINSTRY.

Haverhill Center, N. H., (Union House), Sabbath, Jan. 2nd.
A. A. HOYT.

Chelsea Conference.......................Jan. 6th
Milville, Mass.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th and through the week. GEO. A. STREETER.

Salisbury, N. H., (West meeting-house), evening, Jan. 1st, and over the Sabbath.
Portsmouth, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
Strafford, N. H., (Roberts' school-house) Sun., Jan. 30th
J. G. SMITH.

Savoy, Mass.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd and in that vicinity as the Lord may direct.
J. L. WOOD.

Farmington, N. H.......Saturday evening, Jan. 1st and Sunday, the 2nd. H. M. BR[illegible]

Meredith Centre, N. H.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
N. GLIDDEN.

South Sutton, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
C. H. FLETCHER.

South Sutton, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Hopkinton, (Town Hall building).......Sunday, Jan. 9th
C. W. SARGENT.

Wilbraham, Mass.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Exeter, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
A. M. HIGGINS.

New Durham Ridge.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
Seabrook.......................Sunday, Jan. 16th
A. MUSSEY TRIPP.

Northwood Narrows, N. H., Sunday, Jan. 2nd, and through the week as the brethren may arrange, and over the following Sunday.
It is expected Bro. T. W. Piper will be with me part of the time at this meeting.
GEORGE W. BROWN, of So. Elliot, Me.

Manchester, N. H.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Holden, (Cluley neighborhood).......Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Bangor.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
ISRAEL DAMMON.

Abington, Ct.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2d
Millville, Mass.......evenings, Jan. 4th and 5th
Charlton, Mass.......................evening, Jan. 7th and over the Sabbath. A. D. FLAGG.

Rocky Brook, R. I.......................Sabbath, Jan. 2nd
Natick, R. I.......................evening, Jan. 4th
Bristol, R. I., (Conference).......Jan. 5th, 6th, and 7th
Abington, Ct.......................Sabbath, Jan. 9th
Millville, Mass.......................evening, Jan. 12th
Charlton, Mass.......................Sabbath, Jan. 16th
C. H. SWEET.

Hartford, (Talcott and Post's Hall), Sunday, Jan. 9th
W. N. PILE.

East Haddam, Ct.......................Sunday, Jan. 2d
S. WOODRUFF.

Hartland, (Town Hall).......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
Waterbury, Ct.......................Sunday, Jan. 16th
Lovely Street, Ct.......................Sunday, Jan. 30th
WM. J. RIPLEY.

New Britain, Ct.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
W. S. CAMPBELL.

New York City, (as Bro. Cox may arrange), Sunday, Jan. 9th. H. K. FLAGG.

Providence, R. I.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Rocky Brook, R. I.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
GEO. W. BROWN.

Penobscot, (Perkin's school-house), Sunday, Jan. 2nd
JOHN RIDLEY.

Hartford, Me., (Methodist meeting-house), Saturday, Jan. 1st, and through the following week.
J. T. JORDAN.

Carthage, Me.......Saturday evening, Jan. 1st and over the Sabbath.
Dixfield Centre, Monday and Tuesday evenings, Jan. 3d and 4th. JARED WHITMAN.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., (Bethel Church.)
Wm. N. Pile.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Rufus Wendell.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
James Hemenway.......................Sunday, Jan. 16th
H. K. Flagg.......................Sunday, Jan. 23d
Wm. N. Pile.......................Sunday, Jan. 30th

WESTFIELD, MASS.
A. Simpson.......Sundays, Jan. 9th and 16th
Wm. A. & M. L. Durand.......Sunday, Jan. 30th

WILBRAHAM, MASS.
P. S. Butler....Sabbaths, Jan. 2nd, 16th, 23d and 30th

STONEHAM, MASS.
J. W. Britton.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
J. S. White.......................Sunday, Jan. 16th
C. Goodrich.......................Sunday, Jan. 23d

LAWRENCE, MASS., (ADVENT CHAPEL.)
John Couch.......Jan. 2nd, 9th, 16th, 23d and 30th

WORCESTER, MASS.
T. M. Preble.......................Sabbath, Jan. 16th
J. Couch.......................Sunday, Jan. 23d

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.
J. G. Smith.......................Sabbath, Jan. 9th
J. W. Thomas.......Sabbaths, Jan. 16th and 23d

DOVER, N. H.
C. Goodrich.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
B. S. Emery.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th

CONCORD, N. H., (CENTRE STREET.)
C. H. Fletcher.......Sabbaths, Jan. 9th and 16th
D. M. Leavitt.......Sabbaths, Jan. 23d and 30th
J. Hemenway.......................Sabbath, Feb. 6th
A. Ross.......Sabbaths, Feb. 13th and 20th

CONCORD, N. H., (AT THE BETHEL.)
J. G. Hook (watch meeting).......evening, Dec. 31st and Sunday, Jan. 2nd.

PORTLAND, ME.
R. R. York.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
W. H. Mitchell.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
C. Goodrich.......................Sunday, Jan. 16th
A. Ross.......Sundays, Jan. 30th and Feb. 6th

SOUTH ELLIOTT, ME.
C. S. Emerson.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
Wm. Stuart.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th

NEW BRITAIN, CT.
H. H. Dickenson.......................Sunday, Jan. 9th
Wm. N. Pile.......................Sunday, Jan. 23d
Wm. Stuart.......................Sunday, Jan. 30th

Windsor, Me. (Preble school-house), every second Sabbath of the month until further notice. Church Hill, Augusta, third Sabbath. Mud Mills, Augusta, fourth Sabbath. THOMAS RINES.

WOLCOTTVILLE, CT.
G. L. Teeple.......................Sunday, Jan. 2nd
B. Hitchcock.......................Sunday, Jan. 16th

PORTLAND, ME.
Meetings are held in Advent Hall, Cushman's Block 353½ Congress Street, three times on the Sabbath, and Tuesday and Friday evenings, at 7½ o'clock.

NEW YORK CITY.
The Advent Church formerly meeting at Grand and Allen Streets, have removed to 405 Grand Street, one door above Clinton. Preaching every Sunday for the present. Prayer meeting every Tuesday evening, at the house of J. K. Bellows, 19 Orchard Street.

STAR OF HOPE MISSION, 14 LAURENS STREET, NEW YORK CITY.
Sunday morning, prayer and conference, six o'clock. Sunday School, two o'clock P. M. Love feast, four o'clock P. M. Preaching, seven o'clock P. M.
Monday, (class meeting), seven o'clock P. M.
Wednesday, (preaching), seven o'clock P. M.
Friday, (prayer and conference), seven o'clock P. M.
Come one, come all. A. E. SMITH, Principal.

Wyoming, R. I.......1st Sabbath in each month
Westerly, R. I.......2d Sabbath in each month
Riverpoint, R. I.......3d Sabbath in each month
Bristol, R. I.......4th Sabbath in each month
A. DURFEE.

☞ To Preaching Brethren.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Westfield, Mass., will please correspond first with Eld. E. A. EGGLESTON.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to preach in Portsmouth, N. H., are requested to correspond with Bro. THOMAS J. SPINNEY.

☞ BRO. JOSEPH A. PHILBROOK has been chosen Corresponding Secretary for the church in Hampton, N. H. Preaching brethren will please notice.

☞ Brethren wishing to preach in Manchester, N. H., will please correspond with the following committee:—A. J. Mayhew, S. R. Davidson, O. Proctor.

☞ Brethren sending appointments for Loudon Ridge, N. H., will bear in mind that the fourth Sabbath in each month is engaged.

☞ Any Bro. wishing to come to Seabrook, N. H., to preach, will please address Bro. R. S. Johnson, of Hampton, N. H., or Bro. Charles Barton, of Seabrook.

☞ All preaching brethren who desire to communicate with the church at Rochester, N. Y., are requested to correspond with J. E. WELLS, 32 Smith Street.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Portland, Me., will please correspond first with Eld. R. R. YORK, or with either of the following committee:—H. C. Freeman, James Berry, S. K. Dyer.

☞ Advent preaching brethren who may wish to visit Kennebunk Depot, will please address Edwin B. Wells, Kennebunk Depot, Me.

☞ Preaching brethren wishing to send appointments to Lewiston, Me., will please correspond first with ALBERT BURGESS, Cor. Sec.

☞ AUGUSTUS E. SNOW, 1715 Markham Street, Philadelphia, has been chosen Cor. Secretary of the church worshiping at Ninth and Spring-Garden Streets.

☞ Brethren wishing to visit the church in Bristol, Ct., will please correspond with Elder B. HITCHCOCK, Forestville, Ct.

☞ Brethren desiring to preach in Hartford, Ct., will please correspond with Bro. L. Tiffany. Preaching the first Sabbath in each month by resident Elder H. H. Dickinson.

☞ Persons wishing to communicate with the church in New Britain, Conn., in regard to preaching, will please correspond with Bro. A. POWELL, Cor. Sec.

☞ All preaching brethren desirous of going to New Milford Ct., to preach, will first correspond with Richard Hecock.

SPIRITUALISM CONDEMNED

BY THE TESTIMONY OF THE BIBLE AND ITS OWN WITNESSES.

BY M. D. WELLCOME.

Price 10 cents single copy. Twenty copies for $1.00; $3.50 per one hundred copies.

"ADVENTISM."

We have a supply of this valuable work.
Price in cloth.......75 cts., postage 12 cts.
Flexible covers.......60 cts., postage 12 cts.
P[illegible]rs.......50 cts., postage 6 cts.
In [illegible]vers by the dozen, by express, $4.75.

[illegible]ILES GRANT'S WORKS.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED.
WHAT IS MAN?
THE SOUL—WHAT IS IT?
THE SPIRIT—WHAT IS IT?
THE RICH MAN AND LAZARUS.

All the above works in one volume, flexible cloth, in a compact, durable form, for use and preservation, for 35 cents, postpaid.

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

WORKS BY I. C. WELLCOME.

A Treatise on Matt. xxiv. and xxv.

Expository and Historical, showing the accurate fulfilment of Christ's predictions to the present time, and what we should expect next. Fifth edition. 150 pages. 25 cts. by mail.

Christian Baptism—its Object and Duty.

Thoroughly examined, Scripturally and Historically. A valuable work. Fourth edition. 81 pp. 25 cts. by mail.

The Berean's Casket.

A Collection of Scriptures, in various versions, on the most important subjects in the Bible, in sections; to which is added much important History, Statistics, and Tables, making a book of great value to all Bible students and teachers. Cloth, $2.00; leather, $2.50 by mail.

The Plan of Redemption.

BY WELLCOME AND GOUD.

A valuable work on the Creation and Fall of Man, the Covenants, Atonement, Redemption, Regeneration, Faith and Hope, Restitution, Reign of Christ, Millennium, True Israel, &c., &c. This work receives great commendation. Third edition. 460 pages. $1.25 by mail.

Israel and the Millennium.

A thorough refutation of Judaism; a valuable exposition of the Scriptures, and clear statement of the Bible doctrine of the Millennium. 142 pages. 25 cts. by mail.

I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

Business.

Letters Received.

A Ross, W A Manning, L Reimer, N H Berry, W C Laud, J M Eaton, L C McKinstry, S S Chamberlain, S Jackman, D D Chaffee, J Whitecar, N F Nason, F H Burbank, H H Hall, D D Lathrop, I C Wellcome, C E Trumlit, A L Adams, B P Manning, S S Brewer, H Munger, H B Sevey, A G Bartlett, L H Collins.

BOOKS AND TRACTS

FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE OF THE

Advent Christian Publication Society,

No. 167 Hanover Street, Boston.

Miscellaneous.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT. The Common English Version as revised and corrected by the American Bible Union. Prices, by mail, postpaid—Family and Pulpit Edition (8vo. Pica), Plain Cloth, $2.25; Extra Cloth, $2.75. Medium size (18mo. Brevier), Plain Cloth, 85c; Extra Cloth, $1.10; Sheep, $1.25; Roan, Colored Edges, $1.60. Miniature Edition, for Children and Sunday schools,—cloth, 25c.; roan, 50c.; gilt, 75c.

THE BIBLE TEXT-BOOK; or the Principal Texts relating to the Persons, Places, and Subjects occurring in the Holy Scriptures. Arranged for the use of Ministers, Teachers, and Students of the Bible. With two Maps, and a variety of useful Tables. Price, by mail, 40 cents. Postage 8 cts.

UNIVERSALISM EXPOSED from the Inner Temple, and shown to be, in its results, no better than Infidelity. By John T. Walsh. 5c. single by mail; 50c. per dozen.

"THE NEXT DISPENSATION Viewed in the Light of Revelation." By Wm. Sheldon. By mail, 12c. single copy; $1.00 per dozen.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT; containing the original Greek Text of the New Testament according to the Recension of Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-word Translation, etc. etc. Leather, $4.00; by mail, $4.16. Extra gilt, $4.50; by mail, $4.66. Morocco, $5.00; by mail, $5.16.

THE EXISTENCE OF HOLY ANGELS; their Origin, Nature, Rank and Titles, their Ministry and Various Offices in the work of Human Redemption, and in the Administration of the Government of God. By Wm. Shepherd. 20c.

SPIRITUALISM UNVEILED, and shown to be the work of Demons: An Examination of its Origin, Morals, Doctrines, and Politics. By Miles Grant. Single copy, 15c.; eight copies for $1.00; $10.00 per hundred.

CHRIST OUR LIFE. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. By C. F. Hudson. Paper covers 45c. by mail.

HOME THRUSTS AND HOME THOUGHTS. The Golden Rule in High Life and Low Life. By D. F. Newton. $1.50; by mail, $1.70.

LOUIS NAPOLEON, the Destined Monarch of the World, and Personal Antichrist. By M. Baxter. $1.00; by mail, $1.12.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH; the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. In cloth, $1.00 postpaid.

THE BIBLE TRIUMPHANT; a Reply to a work entitled "144 Self-Contradictions of the Bible." By Mrs. H. V. Reed. 50c.

CRUDEN'S CONDENSED CONCORDANCE to the Holy Scriptures. Leather, $2.00; by mail, $2.36c; Cloth, $1.75; by mail, $2.07.

EVERY BODY'S BOOK; the Personality of God; The Devil, his origin, personality, power, and doom. By P. A. Smith. 10c; by mail, 12c.

HOME, MARRIAGE, AND FAMILY RELATIONS, in the light of Scripture. By James Inglis. 15c; eight copies for $1.00.

STORIES FOR YOUNG PILGRIMS. 16pp. each, in paper covers, with illustrations. 30 cents per dozen; $2.00 per 100; 5c single, postpaid.

THE TEN VIRGINS; or, Wisdom and Folly Contrasted. By T. M. Preble. 3 cts; by mail, 6c.

THE FIRST DAY SABBATH. By T. M. Preble. A new and interesting work. pp. 471. Price $1.50.

THE TWO ADAMS. By T. M. Preble. 5 cts. single; by mail, 7 cts.

THE THREE KINGDOMS. By T. M. Preble. 13c. by mail. 15c.

TWO HUNDRED STORIES FOR CHILDREN. By Elder T. M. Preble. pp. 234. 80c. by mail.

HEALTH REFORMER'S COOK BOOK. Price 30c; by mail, 32c.

THE SEVENTH-DAY SABBATH. Is its observance binding? By G. W. Baily. 23pp. Single 5c. postpaid.

SPIRITUAL EVIL: A Warning for the Unwary. By Thomas Carlyle. 3c. single; 5c. by mail; 20c. per dozen.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR; or, Spiritualism; What it is, and what it is not. Paper covers, $1.00; by mail; cloth, $1.25 by mail.

BLIND BARTIMEUS; or, How to be Saved. 25c. per dozen; $1.50 per hundred. Single 4c., postpaid.

CHILDREN'S HYMNS. For Sunday Schools, etc. 5c; per dozen. 50c.

BETHLEHEM: a Rhyme for Children. By H. L. Hastings. 10c. postpaid; $1.00 a dozen.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE for general use in the study of the Scriptures; with five colored Maps and 250 Engravings. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

THE LIFE OF TRUST. The Effects of Prayer and Faith. An account of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

PREMATURE DECAY of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. 6c; by mail, 8c.

THE PLAN OF REDEMPTION. By I. C. Wellcome and C. Goud. On the Old and New Covenants, the Atonement, Redemption, Restitution, Kingdom, Millennium, True Israel, etc. etc. Second Edition. 460 pp. $1.25.

"GOD'S PEOPLE ISRAEL and the Scriptural Millennium," by I. C. Wellcome and Clarkson Goud. Price 25c; postage 2c.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM. By I. C. Wellcome. pp. 81. Price by mail, 25c.

SHOULD CHRISTIANS FIGHT?—a tract on War. By I. C. Wellcome. 10c.

THE MILLENNIUM. By Mrs. M. D. Wellcome. 60 pp. Single copy 15c.

CHLOE LANKTON, or Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75c; by mail, 87c., postpaid.

DIPHTHERIA; its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. 10c; by mail, 12c.

THE DAY AND THE HOUR: a Lecture, by Joseph A. Seiss, D. D. 15c.

OUR LOSS IN ADAM OUR GAIN IN CHRIST. A valuable tract on the Atonement. By H. F. Carpenter. 5c. single copy, by mail; 40c. per dozen.

THE BIBLE, OR TRADITION—Which shall Believe?" An excellent tract. By S. L. Manley. 3c. single copy by mail; 20c. per dozen.

"ONE MORE INVITATION." A tract of four pages. By mail, 35c. per 100 copies.

NEW HYMN BOOK.

"Hymns of the Jubilee Harp."

WITHOUT THE MUSIC.

The above work, printed in large, clear type, on beautiful paper, we are ready to fill orders for, at the following prices:—

Bound in cloth, with sprinkled edges, 75 cents per copy; $7.00 per dozen; $55.00 per 100.

Bound in leather, gilt edge, $1.00 per copy; $9½ per dozen; $75.00 per hundred; when sent by mail, 18 cts. additional postage.

THE JUBILEE HARP.

We are now ready to supply friends with the new Hymn and Tune Book, at the following prices:—

Plain cloth, leather backs, colored edges, $1.00 per copy; $9.00 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges, $1.15 per copy; $10.50 per dozen.

Extra cloth, leather backs, gilt edges and covers, $1.25 per copy; $12.00 per dozen.

☞ Postage 15 cts. per copy additional, when sent by mail.

THE POWERS OF THE AIR.

A WORK THAT THOROUGHLY VENTILATES SPIRITUALISM.

376 pages. Price by mail, $1.25.

The above works for sale at this office.

"Historic Echoes of the Voice of God."

AN EXPOSITION OF THE ELEVENTH CHAPTER OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER J. COUCH.

Price 15 cents single copy. $1.50 per dozen. $10.00 per one hundred.

LIST OF ENGLISH BIBLES.

We have received and keep on hand the following English Reference Bibles:

Minion, 8vo., marg. ref., large type, circuit binding, $5.00; postage 28 cts. Do. plain binding, $4.50; postage 28 cts.

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., circuit binding, $4.00; postage 20 cts. (Best size for preachers.)

Nonpareil, 16 mo., marg. ref., plain, $2.50; postage 20 cts. Do. ref. between verses, $2.50; postage 24 cts.

Pearl, 8 vo., marg. ref., circuit, $3.50; postage 20 cts. Do. plain, $1.75; postage 20 cts.

Any of the above will be sent by mail on receipt of the price.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home.......16 pp.
2. Life Insurance.......16 pp.
3. Lost! Lost!.......8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet?.......8 pp.
5. About God (for children).......4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing.......4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ.......4 pp.
8. Now.......4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent, postpaid:

One set (64 pp.).......6c.
13[illegible] pp.......$1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid).......$1.00

Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

WORK FOR JESUS.

One more day's work for Jesus,
One less of life for me!
But heaven is nearer,
And Christ is dearer
Than yesterday, to me.
His love and light
Fills all my soul to-night.

One more day's work for Jesus;
How glorious is my King!
'T is joy, not duty,
To speak his beauty;
My soul mounts on the wing
At the mere thought
How Christ her life hath bought.

One more day's work for Jesus;
Sweet, sweet the work has been
To tell the story,
To show the glory
Where Christ's flock enter in;
How it did shine
In this poor heart of mine.

One more day's work for Jesus;
In hope, in faith, in prayer,
His word I've spoken,
His bread I've broken
To souls faint with despair;
And bade them flee
To him who hath saved me.

One more day's work for Jesus;
Yes, a weary day;
But heaven shines clearer,
And rest comes nearer,
At each step of the way;
And Christ in all—
Before his face I fall.

Oh, blessed work for Jesus!
Oh, rest at Jesus' feet!
There toil seems pleasure,
My wants are treasure,
And pain for him looks sweet.
Lord, if I may,
I'll serve thee more another day.

For the World's Crisis.

QUERYING AT MIDNIGHT.

Many a one wakes from sleep and from dreams, and forthwith begins to think. The darkness is impenetrable almost, and children are breathing softly and sleeping soundly in the trundle-bed. The christian thinks of the coming King. Evidently the time is near. Doubtless there is room for busy self-questioning, and among all other things is the question of personal readiness. Let us enumerate some of the queries the thinker propounds in a series of silent, interrogative soliloquies, thus:—

The Lord is coming soon, and that I do believe, in spite of all the blind, and proud, and worldly, and incredulous. I can believe a magnetic emanation from the sun may soon infringe on our atmosphere and earth; may inflame inflammable hydrogen; may greatly disturb or intensify the earth's electricity; may excite the revolutionary masses of men; may kindle a singular luminous glory above, which shall be the sign of the Son of man. A radiance from Jesus himself, traveling at the rate of twelve millions of miles a minute (the speed of light), may suddenly reach us, courier of the person following with his angel train. The whole world is bound in unbelief, but I am clear to see the truth nevertheless. Am I ready? Surely I would rejoice to see that face of unimagined loveliness, radiant with a gentle benediction, looking my heart into ineffable peace, and me into immortality. I am unworthy, but Jesus is faithful and mighty. One word would transform me from dust and deformity to health and perfection. One little mighty word, one look, one breath, one glance of light, one wave of volition, would set me free. Do I love the Lord supremely? Do I love any being or thing on earth as much as I do him?

Suppose he should come now! Son of the Highest, clothe me with thy righteousness, and quicken me with energy from God. I have borne testimony to thy grace and truth, testimony to thy coming, and against the fables of our time. But I can not mention any good thing done, before thee, as my justification. No, no! I am saved by grace, after I have done all I could. Am I justified by the works of the law? No, no! There is no salvation through the door of the law of works as given in Horeb, but by that obedience of faith which is fruitful in works of love. I have no faith in mounting up the ladder of legality from the summit of Sinai. Am I patient? Do I abhor and avoid scolding, and overcome all unholy harshness that is so un-Christ-like? Am I any way bigoted or Pharisaical? Do I think myself better than others, or do I fence myself around with an exclusiveness as to feel or to say, "Unless you believe as I do, you cannot be saved"? How subtle is pride! how proud is ignorance! how pharisaical is legality!

Do I love the brotherhood, and not forsake the assembly of saints? Am I free from the pride of bigoted eccentricity? Paul said—"Demas hath forsaken me." Am I faithful to the household of faith, clinging to the cause even in evil times? Lord, let me not grieve thee, nor thine, by traitorous defection. Am I covetous? No covetous man, who is an idolater, can enter the kingdom. Do I give to cheer and help the poor? Or do I give enough? Would I suffer the loss of all things for Christ? Would I go uncomplainingly to prison? Nay, would I lose my life? How easy and self-accommodating is much modern christianity!

Am I humble enough? What an age of fashion and parade, of foolish adornments, and costly extravagance! Nay, am I humble at heart; not deceived with a secret pride that hides, under a guise of plain dress, a pride that is gratified and complacent at discarded gewgaws, and is stout and fat with real self-righteousness? O, the deceitful heart! O, deceitful and vile self-righteousness!

Lord Jesus! I find myself subject to infirmity and imperfection. But I magnify the power of thy precious blood. Matchless grace of thy coming and suffering to save sinners. Love of eternal and wonderful renown! Under thy cross let me hide, and there let me watch and wait thy coming to judge the world. If I have been tempted with thoughts of ambition, are they now subdued and subjected to the perfect will and glory of God? How is my faith? I believe, but do I believe I ought? What a borer is unbelief in the heart, gnawing and mining and honey-combing, where God loves perfect integrity of faith.

To sum up, then, in answer, I can say,—with all my self-detected imperfections, I can say, God of truth and light, I love thy word; I love the company of thy waiting saints; I love the heavenly work and worship of the day of rest, the Lord's day; I do love the tidings of the cross, and coming and kingdom of Jesus. Lord, I will never mention any righteousness of my own; no, no! But I will mention thy sovereign and wonderful grace. I dare not say I am faithful, without fault; but I hate the pride and unbelief that should tempt to unfaithfulness; yet one look, one glance, one word of thine, will snap and sunder every fetter, and merge mortality and frailty into eternal life. Prince of the kings of earth, glorify thy name. C. COLEGROVE.
Sardinia, N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ADVENT CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

Report of the Sixteenth Annual Session.

Pursuant to notice, conference convened at Concord, N. H., in Phœnix Hall, Dec. 9th, 1869, at 10 o'clock A. M. After a very excellent social meeting in the A. M., conference met for business at 1½ o'clock P. M. Meeting was called to order by the President, Eld. J. Couch, Concord, N. H., and opened with prayer by Eld. Albion Ross, Amherst, N. H. The Secretary's minutes being called for were read, and by vote adopted. The Chair, by vote, appointed the following members a committee on business: C. H. Fletcher, T. W. Piper, and D. F. Leavitt. The Chair also appointed A. Ross, D. M. Leavitt, and E. S. Moulton a committee on credentials.

Voted, That during the interim in which there is no business before the conference, that the time be occupied in hearing the reports of ministers. The President, while the business committee were preparing to report, made a statement of the dealings of the Lord with him the past year, remarking that the twelve months past had been the richest of his experience. The committee on credentials made a report of the following membership:

Ministers—Geo. W. Brown, John Parsons, Z. Ford, C. Richardson, W. W. Sutherland, W. H. Shaw, E. S. Moulton, D. M. Leavitt, A. Ross, J. Couch, A. W. Sibley, T. W. Piper, D. F. Leavitt, C. H. Fletcher, W. H. McDaniels, J. G. Smith, N. Wheeler, D. Eastman, A. Simpson, L. Allen, E. Cotton, C. W. Nelson, W. C. Stewart, C. W. Sargent, S. Roby, D. Churchill, J. W. White, L. Boutell, T. L. Hall, S. S. Mooney, A. Gordon, J. Merriam, C. S. Emerson, Joseph J. Hatlinger.

Delegates.—Wm. Simes, F. S. Ransom, J. B. Dow, John Buzzell, J. C. Shorey, Ira M. Aldrich, D. Tole, P. Nevins, Thomas Foote, Charles Willey, E. Slager, Henry Saltmarsh, A. Merrill, Geo. A. Little.

All of the above preachers and delegates were not present at the time the committee reported, but were present at a subsequent hour.

The committee on business made the following report of the order of proceedings for the conference:

1. The election of officers for the ensuing year.
2. The election of the Ministerial committee.
3. The election of the Quarterly Conference committee.
4. The election of a Protracted Meeting committee.
5. The election of the Tract committee.
6. Report of committee on Unfinished Business.
7. Report of Ministerial committee.
8. Report of Tract committee.
9. Report of Protracted Meeting committee.
10. Report of ministers and delegates of churches.
11. Report of delegates to the National Convention, Rochester, N. Y.
12. See what action the conference will take in regard to a constitution and arrangement of its past records.
13. Miscellaneous business.

The report of the Business committee was accepted and approved. It was voted, That the Chair appoint a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year. The Chair appointed as that committee, G. W. Brown, J. Parsons, and W. W. Sutherland. This committee reported the following for officers the ensuing year:—

For President.—Elder John Couch.
For Vice President.—Elder T. W. Piper.
For Secretary.—Elder A. W. Sibley.
For Treasurer.—Elder J. G. Smith.

Voted, That the election of the standing committee be attended to at some future time during the conference.

The above, which were reported for officers, were unanimously elected. Bro. Couch stated in his report that two worthy young men during the past year had been ordained to the work of the gospel ministry. Bro. T. W. Piper, as chairman of the Quarterly Conference committee, gave a cheering report of the quarterly sessions held in the State during the year; God having wonderfully blessed the efforts of his servants in the proclamation of truth, and the salvation of men in this department of christian labor.

Bro. J. Couch, as chairman of the Protracted Meeting committee, reported the following: That during the past year, God had, in all the protracted efforts made, signally blessed, and that new ground had been broken, and the seed of the gospel of the kingdom sown. We need more of the missionary spirit. After Bro. C. had concluded his report, the following Brn. made a statement of the dealings of the Lord with them during the last twelve months: D. M. Leavitt, John Parsons, Z. Ford, Caleb Richardson, W. W. Sutherland, A. W. Sibley, Wm. Shaw. Adjourned till Friday, 9½ o'clock A. M.

Friday, 9½ o'clock A. M., met as adjourned, Bro. Couch in the chair. Prayer was offered by C. H. Fletcher. Voted, That Brn. E. Cotton, C. W. Nelson, and W. C. Stewart, be members of this conference. The conference then proceeded to hear reports of preachers. Brn. E. S. Moulton, T. W. Piper, D. F. Leavitt, C. H. Fletcher, J. G. Smith, N. Wheeler, D. Eastman, L. Allen, E. Cotton, C. W. Nelson, W. C. Stewart, and Simeon Roby, reported their labors for the year. They gave a good report, and thought they were "well able to go up and possess the land."

By vote, Bro. Joseph J. Hatlinger, Dover, N. H., became a member of this conference. Conference then listened to reports from D. Churchill, J. W. White, and Joseph J. Hatlinger. After listening to reports of different brethren in the ministry, conference adjourned till 1.30 o'clock P. M.

The hour having arrived to which the conference adjourned, and announcement being made to that effect by the President, meeting opened with prayer by Bro. J. W. White.

Voted, That Brn. T. L. Hall and A. Morrill be members of this conference. The chairman of the Tract committee made his report in that department of labor for the year past. Something has been done in the distribution of tracts in various localities, but not so much as ought to be. The judgment will reveal the amount of good accomplished by the free distribution of these little messengers of mercy. The chairman of this committee did not furnish the Secretary with a written report, consequently he is unable to give the amount of money expended for tracts the past year.

The next item of business in order was the report of the delegates to the National Convention, held at Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 17th to 22nd, 1869. After listening to said report from the delegate who attended, the conference, according to a previous vote, proceeded to raise funds to defray the expenses of the delegate in attending. The amount raised was $15.60, meeting only about two-thirds the expenses incurred.

Voted, That the Chair appoint a committee of three to revise the resolutions which have formed the basis of action for this conference for past years, and that they present them as revised for the constitution of this conference. The Chair appointed A. W. Sibley, A. Ross, and J. W. White, as that committee. Adjourned till after the evening service. After the services from the stand, conference convened again for business, but it was thought best to adjourn till 8.30 o'clock, Saturday A. M.; and on motion an adjournment was made till that hour.

Saturday, 8.30 o'clock A. M. Met according to adjournment. The President in the chair. Prayer was offered by Eld. James G. Smith. The committee on revision of the resolutions reported the following, which was adopted as the constitution of the New Hampshire State Conference.

CONSTITUTION.

I. This Association shall be called the New Hampshire Advent Christian Conference.

II. The members of this conference shall consist of ordained and unordained ministers of a good christian character, and churches co-operating with this conference.

III. The officers of this conference shall consist of a President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer; all of whom shall be chosen annually; and they shall constitute a Board of Managers to transact business during the interim of its annual and quarterly sessions.

IV. It shall hold its annual sessions at the time and place agreed upon by the Board, and at which its ministers shall report themselves personally or by letter, and the churches by delegates duly appointed, or by letter.

V. Each church shall be entitled to send one delegate, and an additional one for every twenty-five members.

VI. It shall choose annually the following standing committees: (1) A Ministerial committee of five. (2) A Quarterly Conference committee of three. (3) A Protracted-meeting committee of three. (4) A Tract committee of three.

VII. This constitution and its By-laws may be amended at any annual session of this conference by a vote of the members present.

BY-LAWS.

1. It shall be the duty of the ministerial committee of this conference to have a watch-care over the members, to advise and counsel them in their ministerial duties.

2. To give encouragement to such persons among us as in their judgment are called to the solemn and resposible work of preaching the gospel of Christ.

3. To examine all candidates for ordination, and to superintend their being set apart to the gospel ministry.

4. It shall be their duty to inquire into the moral and christian character of the members when charges are preferred against them.

Quarterly Conference committee.—It shall be the duty of this committee to appoint the time and place of the quarterly sessions, and superintend the holding of the same.

Protracted-Meeting committee.—It shall be the duty of this committee to hold twelve or more protracted meetings in the State during the year, at such time and places as in their judgment the cause of God demands.

Tract committee.—It shall be the duty of this committee to solicit funds and purchase tracts and gratuitously distribute them. The chairman of this committee shall act as Treasurer.

It shall be the duty of the chairman of each of the above committees to make a report of their doings in writing at each annual session of this conference.

The following resolution was presented and by vote was carried:—

Whereas, Eld. H. M. Bryant has sustained a good christian character since and before our last quarterly session; therefore,

Resolved, That Bro. Bryant shall now be released from any and all restraints which were placed on him by this conference, and is restored to our fellowship as a preacher of the gospel.

Voted, That Eld. W. H. McDaniels be dismissed from this conference on account of an unchristian character.

The Chair appointed the following committee to nominate the standing committees for the year ensuing: J. G. Smith, G. W. Brown, and C. H. Fletcher. This committee reported the following nominations:—

For Ministerial Committee.—J. Couch, N. Wheeler, T. W. Piper, A. Ross, and A. W. Sibley.

For Quarterly Conference Committee.—T. W. Piper, A. W. Sibley, and C. H. Fletcher.

For Protracted-Meeting Committee.—John Couch, J. G. Smith, and W. W. Sutherland.

For Tract Committee.—J. W. White, D. M. Leavitt, and E. S. Moulton. The above committees were elected as reported.

All the preachers present reported their labors in the good cause during the current year. Brn. E. G. Chadsey, J. H. Dadmun, and N. Glidden, reported by letter. The following churches and places were reported by delegates and preachers:—Hampton, Seabrook, Loudon Ridge, Sunnapee, Concord, Exeter, North Haverhill, Lake Village, Whitefield, Manchester, Rochester, Dover, Great Works, Great Falls, Farmington, Pittsfield, Keene, Nashua, Danbury, Wakefield, New Durham Ridge, Alton, West Alton, Woodstock, East Landaff, Sugar Hill, Elliot, Portsmouth, Melvin Village, Swift Water, Colebrook, Holderness, Campton Hollow, Warren Summit, Meredith, Brookfield, Raccoonborough, Newport, Salisbury, East Canaan, Sutton, Bradford, Warner, Salem, Albany, Bartlett, Hebron, Webster, Porter (Me.), Ossipee, Sandwich, Moultonboro', Strafford, Northwood Narrows, Piermont, Freedom, East Rochester, Rye, Nottingham, Canaan (Vt.), Hopkinton, So. Barnstead, No. Barnstead, Deerfield, Lee.

The Secretary being obliged to leave, Bro. C. H. Fletcher was chosen Secretary pro tem. Voted, That this conference receive the N. H. tent. Voted, That we pay the Secretary five dollars per year for services. Voted, That this conference recommend that the brethren and sisters contribute liberally to the support of Bro. B. P. Manning, and that Bro. Saulpaugh act as treasurer, and that receipts be forwarded to him. Bro. Boutell presented the following resolution:—

Resolved, That we as a conference proceed to defray the expenses of this conference in the operation of the tent, and other necessary expenses the coming year, and each preacher do the best he can to see this matter attended to in the churches where he labors.

Adjourned till after preaching from the stand.

Met as adjourned. Prayer was offered by Bro. N. Wheeler. Voted, That Bro. John C. Shorey have the supervision of the N. H. Tent. Voted, That we extend our thanks to the Superintendents of the various Railroads for their courtesy in making a reduction of fares to accommodate those coming to this conference. Voted, That this conference extend their thanks to the citizens of Concord for their kindness and generous hospitalities extended during this annual session. Adjourned without date.

C. H. FLETCHER, Sec. pro tem.

P. S.—The following brethren were set apart by the interposition of hands and prayer to the work of the gospel ministry:—W. C. Stewart, C. W. Nelson, Charles W. Sargent, Daniel Eastman, A. Simpson, and William H. Shaw. This conference was truly a feast. The Spirit of the Lord rested down in power in all our social and preaching meetings. This annual gathering was one of the best we ever held in the old Granite State. The New Hampshire Conference is growing in numbers and influence every year. May the blessing of the great Head of the church so rest upon his people in N. H. the coming year, that more good may be accomplished through them than ever before.

A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

GOD KNOWS BEST.

Some people live in sunshine,
And roses strew the way;
Their lives can but be likened
To a pleasant summer day.
Their hearts are always happy,
And free from every care,
And sorrow seems unwilling
To ever enter there.

They've friends to love them dearly,
And make their homes so bright,
To fill their hearts with sunshine,
And keep their spirits light—
Full of a joyous pleasure,
Theirs is a happy lot;
Theirs is a life of gladness,
And home is the sweetest spot.

How many have heard that sweet word,
And felt the warm tears start,
For some there are who never felt
The love of a human heart.
No home unto them is granted,
No love unto them is given;
None, save that of the Father—
"Our Father, who art in heaven"!

God never forgets his children:
The love for which they pine—
For the human love withheld,
Is given the love divine.
He sends sweet consolation,
He gives us holy rest;
These afflictions make us stronger,
And God knows what is best.

Though clouds may gather round us,
And hide the beautiful sun;
We'll say as the christian sayeth,
"Father, thy will be done."
Though all our hopes are blighted,
And faith seems growing dim,
We'll trust the blessed Jesus,
And leave it all with him.

THE DROWNED SAILOR.

Taking my stand one evening on the quays, I gave out a hymn, and as the people gathered around me, began preaching to them the gospel of the grace of God. Soon I saw coming down the river a large boat called a lighter, and on board were two young men; she moved slowly and rested right before me. Seeing it was an opportunity to speak a word for the sake of those on board, I told out the love of God and the death of Christ, showing how his precious blood "cleanseth us from all sin," and then cried out "Eternity! Eternity! ETERNITY!

Sinner, where, oh, where will you spend Eternity? As the last word, Eternity, fell from my lips, one cried out, "There's a man in the water!" and, sure enough, there he was, one of the young men belonging to the boat, now overboard. I shudder as I see him, in my mind, splashing in the water and then sinking beneath its bosom; soon he rose, and his head and hands were visible. Every eye was turned towards that spot, and all was deep, solemn quietness; the spectators were breathless with anxiety, while a few were running up and down the quays looking for boats, for oars, for grappling-irons to drag the river. A few more splashes, a few more exertions, a few more bubbles, and again he sank. Now boats moved towards him, waiting anxiously to see him rise, every eye fixed, every lip shut, every tongue dumb. Second after second fled away, until it came to minutes, and he could nowhere be seen. At length came the boat with the grappling-irons; we threw them out, made a drag and brought him up, and keeping his head out of the water, he was drawn after the boat ashore. They laid him on a door; the doctor came; we helped him to roll the body, to bring it to warmth and life; but, alas! all was useless. There he lay a helpless corpse, with the froth of death on his mouth and nose, to be wakened only by the blast of the trumpet, and the loud call to the great white throne for judgment.

Reader, let me affectionately ask you the question, if thus suddenly called away, are you prepared? Are you at peace with God? Are you a pardoned sinner? Will you have to say, "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and I am not saved"? or, are you aware of your danger and yet procrastinating! If so, what folly! what madness! Remember, "He that, being often reproved, hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy." Such is God's word. But why will you die! Jesus died that you might live forever, and be saved from the wrath to come. Little did that poor sailor think when he left his home and his widowed mother in the morning, full of the buoyancy of life and the vigor of manhood, that before night, that mother would have those bitter tears rolling down her cheeks, and falling on his cold and lifeless face. And oh! my friend, beware; do not play with the living God. Pause and ponder! Think before you farther go, lest the cup be dashed from your lips, and you are hurried to a silent grave.

Let me plead with you, yea, entreat you, by all that is pure, by all that is holy, by all that is loving, by all that is everlasting and terrible, procrastinate no more. Accept salvation now. And this I would press for your souls sake, for your friend's sake, for your father's, your mother's, your brother's, your sister's sake, yea for heaven's sake, and Christ's sake, and for God's sake, delay no longer, but come to Jesus right away. As an ambassador for Christ as though God did beseech you by me, be you reconciled to God. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and you shall be saved.—Times of Refreshing.

— Men often boast of progress when they are only moving in a circle; and are sure they are in the right path, because with every circuit the footprints multiply, when they are only following their own tracks.

For the World's Crisis.

HAVE YOU READ "CREDO?"

"Credo," is the title of a volume recently published by Lee & Shepard, Boston. Anonymous, but the author is "Professor of Historical Theology," and of some note among theologians. He is a man of considerable thought in the common lines of modern theological thinking, but manifests very limited research outside of what has been developed and branded, before him, as "orthodox," or "heathen;" yet we are quite certain he has presented several orginal ideas. Altogether, the book gives striking evidence of the fact that the theological systems of the schools, so long supposed to be sound, and not to be disputed, are breaking up. The author seems to grant this while he toils to gather what he considers permanent timbers of former structures, to reconstruct a new system on more scientific principles. It seems hardly possible that a thinking man can read this book without seeing the great obstacles which lie in the way of the author. The doctrine of the immortality of the soul embarasses him in nearly every chapter. He has evidently seen many of the difficulties encumbering common "orthodoxy," and living under conviction that some other than existing solutions of this perplexing question is needed, he has undertaken to patch the "old rents with new cloth." We have never seen an author so perplexed with the theory of the immortality of the soul, and yet not question its truthfulness, as in this book.

The style of the writer is good, free, open, and easily comprehended by those who comprehend the doctrines of the "mystics." His object appears to be an effort to combat modern skepticism, and aid skeptics to see the reliability of the Bible. We fear the effort will prove more than a failure. Should it confirm skepticism, and also produce it in minds now believing the Bible fully, it will prove a sad experiment. Some ninety pages of the first part of the book contain a grand effort on the supernatural nature, and literal fulfillment of prophecy in the past. Then comes a mighty effort, through geology and science, to prove that the earth was created, and inhabited by animals, millions of years ago; and after a long series of assertions and deductions of his own, flatly in the face of the Mosaic account, there is an adroit effort to cover this skepticism by reproaching skeptics for contending that science differs with Moses. The action of the flood and the changes then produced in the earth, are entirely ignored. The passage in Psalms relating to it, is by this author applied to the removing of the deep, to refashion the earth for Adam. He suggests that the flood only covered a portion of Asia, and says the Bible does not say to the contrary.

On the resurrection of Christ, our author is clear, and his argument, though not new, is well made and forcible beyond all cavil; yet he denies, in another chapter, that it was a pattern or sample of the resurrection of saints, and denies that Christ went to heaven with the body that came out of the tomb. He seems to have no scriptural or rational ideas why Christ should die; or dying and rising, what it effected for man. The atonement is written upon, and many beautiful words and sentences used; but I think no one could gather any intelligent idea, or Scripture doctrine from him, of how it is applicable to the sinner, or what it effects for sinners. The resurrection of man is a point contended for with much warmth; yet he tells us the body that dies does not rise; it is another body. He is sadly perplexed by his science on this point. Job's account of the resurrection is by him appied to Job's depressed, afflicted state, being turned to joy before he died. Ezekiel's "vision of dry bones" is applied to the Jewish nation. We have never seen a more earnest nor a more suicidal effort to surmount the difficulty that encumbers the doctrine of the resurrection of dead bodies, for the benefit of immortal souls. He tells us it is to be a resurrection from the dead, and not of the dead; yet he rejects the Swedenborgian and Spiritualists' resurrection, and claims that there is a germ in the dead body that will at the last day spring up and form a new body.

But again, we are told that when the soul leaves the body it has another body formed for it to act in during the intermediate state; that the soul naturally seeks, and needs an organism to live in, and that "it may be that the dead can better communicate (impressionally) with the living by means of the intermediate organism." He rejects the common idea that the soul is a "metaphysical entity," a "substance uncompounded, without parts, and without place." He says "those philosophical terms, to most men, denote nothing but nonsense. If they mean anything, it is that the soul, at death, goes nowhere, and becomes nothing. We reject all this. The soul is either nothing or something." Here is a little good logic; but our author complains of the church for fearing Spiritualism, so that she has not comforted the mourner from this source (that their dead friends were with them and impressing them.) Yet after the most decided statements in support of the position that the spirits of the dead communicate with the living, our author enters a warfare with the modern Spiritualism with both hands tightly clinched around the blade of his sword.

But the clearest comment, perhaps, that is out on "Credo" is, that an avowed infidel, and leading modern Spiritualist, seeing the book in my possession, and examining it a moment, wished to borrow it. I had not looked into it at all, but knowing it was intended by the author to cure skepticism, I loaned it. My neighbor took it to his meeting, and read exultantly some forty pages, to the satisfaction and gratification of an audience of Spiritualists. When he returned the book he wished to buy it. This is a sad comment, but the writer is struggling with difficulties, and may come out on the Bible side yet. He says many good things, is an able thinker, and this makes the weakness of his subject the more apparent. He thinks he believes the Bible fully; but "science," "modern science" leads him. We opine that his science is not much better understood than the Bible. Let us learn and believe the Bible first. Let science follow. I. C. WELLCOME.

DR. LYMAN BEECHER once said: "A great many professed christians have no other idea of religion than it is the means of getting to heaven when they die. As to doing anything for God while they live, it does not enter into their plans. I tell you, my brethren, I do not believe there is one in five hundred of such professors that will reach heaven; for there is magnanimity in true religion that is above all such contemptible meanness."

"I DON'T MEAN HIM."

The following anecdote of Rev. James Axley, familiarly known as "Old Jimmy," a renowned and redoubtable preacher of East Tennessee, was related by Hugh L. White, for many years a distinguished Judge in that State, and afterwards a conspicuous member of the Federal Senate:—

It was noised through the town of Jonesborough that Mr. Axley would hold forth on the morning of the ensuing Sabbath. The famous divine was a great favorite—with none more so than with Judge White. At the appointed hour, the Judge, in company with a large congregation, was in attendance at the house of prayer. All was hushed in expectation. Mr. Axley entered, and with him a clerical brother, who was "put up" to preach. The congregation was composed of a border population. They were disappointed. This was not the man they had come to hear; consequently there was a good deal of misbehavior. The discourse was ended, and Mr. Axley rose. It is a custom in the new country when two or more preachers are present, for each of them to have something to say. . . . .

Mr. Axley stood silently surveying the congregation, until every eye was riveted. He then began:—

"It may be a very painful duty, but it is a solemn one, for a minister of the gospel to report vice, misconduct and sin, whenever and wherever he sees it. But especially is this his duty on Sunday and at church. That is a duty I am now about to attend to.

"And now," continued the reverend speaker, pointing with his long finger in the direction indicated, "that man sitting out yonder, behind the door, who got up and went out while the brother was preaching, stayed out as long as he wanted to, got his boots full of mud, came back and stamped the mud off at the door, making all the noise he could, on purpose to disturb the attention of the congregation, and then took his seat; that man thinks I mean him. No wonder he does. It doesn't look as if he had been raised in the white settlements, does it, to behave that way at meeting! Now, my friend, I'd advise you to learn better manners before you come to church next time. But I don't mean him.

"And now," again pointing at his mark, "that little girl sitting there, about half way of the house—I should judge her to be about sixteen years old—that's her with the artificial flowers on the outside of her bonnet, and the inside of her bonnet; she has a breastpin on too (they were very severe upon all superfluities of dress), she that was giggling and chattering all the time the brother was preaching, so that even the old sisters in the neighborhood couldn't hear what he was saying, though they tried. She thinks I mean her. I'm sorry from the bottom of my heart for any parents who have raised a girl to her time of day and haven't taught her how to behave when she comes to church. Little girl, you have disgraced your parents as well as yourself. Behave better next time, won't you? But I don't mean her."

Directing his finger to another aim, he said: "That man sitting there, that looks as bright and pert as if he never was asleep in his life, and never expected to be, but that just as soon as the brother took his text, laid his head down on the back of the seat in front of him, went sound asleep, and slept the whole time and snored; that man thinks I mean him. My friend, don't you know the church isn't the place to sleep? If you needed rest, why didn't you stay at home, take off your clothes and go to bed? That's the place to sleep, not at church. The next time you have a chance to hear a sermon, I advise you to keep awake.

Thus did he proceed, pointing out every man, woman and child who had in the slightest deviated from a befitting line of conduct, characterizing the misdemeanor, and reading sharp lessons of rebuke.

Judge White was all this time sitting at the end of the front seat, just under the speaker, enjoying the old gentleman's disquisition to the last degree; twisting his neck around to see if the audience relished the "down comings" as much as he did; rubbing his hands, smiling, chuckling inwardly. Between his teeth and cheek was a monstrous quid of tobacco, which the better he was pleased, the more he chewed; and the more he chewed the more he spit, and behold, the floor bore witness to the results. At length, the old gentleman, straightening himself up to his full height, continued with great gravity—

"And now, I reckon, you want to know who I do mean. I mean that dirty, nasty, filthy tobacco chewer, sitting on the end of that front seat," his finger, meanwhile, pointing, true as the needle to the pole—"see what he has been about! Look at those puddles on the floor; a frog wouldn't get into them. Think of the tails of the sisters' dresses being dragged through that muck!" The crestfallen Judge averred that he never chewed any more tobacco in church.—Rev. W. H. Milburn.

Gems.

— A hidden light soon becomes dim, and if it be entirely covered up, will expire for want of air. So it is with hidden religion. It must go out. There cannot be a christian whose light in some aspect does not shine.

— To seek to be alone with the friend we love, is a large proof of our love to him. He who desires to know the depth of his affection for Jesus, does well to look at the pleasure he derives from, and the time he devotes to the enjoyment of intercourse with this friend alone.

— Morality without religion is only a kind of dead reckoning—an endeavor to find our place on a cloudy sea by measuring the distance we have run, without any observation of the heavenly bodies.

— It is usual with obstinate persons to regard neither truth in contradiction nor benefit in disputing. Positiveness is a certain evidence of a weak judgment.

— We cannot be too careful to see that there are no flaws in our christian character, for Satan is always watching an opportunity to thrust his wedge into the crevices of our profession.

— The greatest enemies of christianity are those who make a blazing profession without a steady shining conduct.

— If I have not both internal and external evidence that I am right, my confidence is presumption.

— There is an authority in christian consistency, which will be more or less reverenced wherever it is found.

— How many grievous wounds do we inflict on ourselves, by not properly carrying our arms.

— It is delightful to observe in the true Christian character, how wisdom and simplicity, courage and humility, go hand in hand and act together.

— No man can act wisely, till the Lord has made him good: and no man can demean himself like a fool, if he is blest with that grace which delivers him from all folly.

—It is a great matter to have our religious conversation deserve the name of religious conversation.

— True piety is not a morose, but a cheerful thing; whilst it makes me joyful it delivers me from frivolity, yet it causes me to be pleasant and glad.

— While I am cheerfully holy, God forbid that I should forget to pray that I may be spiritually holy.

— Every true child of God would rather die in the road, than yield to temptation in the road.

— I do not expect to find perfection, but I do expect to find that uprightness in the christian, which will not let him live in a single known sin for a thousand worlds.

— How can it be possible for God to live in me, and I not live to God?

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

THE STORY OF A CAT.

We have a story of a cat to tell our little readers this week.

In the peaceful days of the past, before the war, when we were all living in quiet and prosperity, our little daughter, then a little girl, in short dresses, like many of you, had a pet cat, that she called "Sue." She was the most sensible, playful and affectionate cat we ever saw. She would jump up in the carriage when we were going off, ride to the outer gate, affectionately embrace her little mistress, and then run back to the house as fast as she could. On our return, she would run to meet the carriage, jump in it and lay her arms around the neck of the little girl she loved so well, just as lovingly as a child could do.

The war came—Suffolk was occupied by Federal troops—we left our home, its comforts, its flowers, its beauty. In the hurry of getting out of the Federal lines, "Sue" was forgotten and left behind. Stranger's who knew not "Sue" and whom she knew not, entered our house. and three long years passed away before we returned to find our house windowless, doorless, the railing around the yard gone, the flowers uprooted, walks demolished and shade trees cut down. It did not look like our home.

We inquired for "Kitty Sue," but no one knew anything about her, and not a neighbor remembered seeing her during our absence.

About a year after our return home, on a summer's day, when the doors were all open, in came old "Kitty Sue," looking perfectly natural, except that she had become slightly whiter with age. She looked around, seemed to recognize her home, and her friends—was a little shy at first, but ran about from room to room, and soon became as gentle and as loving as ever, and now she has become a part of the family again, and nothing but death shall separate us. Our little girl has now become almost a woman. Last summer when she was away at College, "Sue" became the mother of a pretty little kitten which she kept hid for several weeks, and none of the family could find it, but as soon as the friend of her early days returned home, she went away and brought the little kitten in her mouth and put it in her lap, looking up in her face, and seeming to say, take it and treat it kindly as you have me. This she did for several days until the kitten became gentle and loving as its mother.

Now, little reader, learn a lesson from the story of a cat. Be affectionate and loving, and others will love you. Be grateful for every kindness you receive, and it will make you happy. Love your home, your parents, your brother and sisters, be cheerful, be happy, and make everybody around you feel cheerful and happy, so shall your presence always prove a light in the family circle.—Christian Son.

THE BABY.

"What are you good for, my brave little man?
Answer that question for me if you can,—
You with your fingers as white as a nun,
You with your ringlets as bright as the sun.
All the day long, with your busy contriving,
Into all mischief and fun you are driving.
See if your wise little noddle can tell
What you are good for: now ponder it well."

Over the carpet the dear little feet
Came with a patter to climb on my seat;
Two merry eyes, full of frolic and glee,
Under their lashes looking up unto me;
Two little hands, pressing soft on my face,
Drew me down close in a loving embrace;
Two rosy lips gave the answer so true,—
"Good to love you, mamma; good to love you."
—Mrs. Emily H. Miller.

SELF-CONCEITED TOM.

Tom Nevers always was conceited and self-willed. He had more faith in himself than in his superiors, and always would and did have his own way—unless prevented by force, which, you may be sure, was pretty often.

But Tom was bright, and got along in spite of his great faults. He went to sea after leaving school, and rose in a few years to the command of a small vessel.

As his ship approached a dangerous coast one day, a passenger asked him if he was not going to signal for a pilot.

"Pilot!" thundered Tom, "I want no pilot. I am my own pilot."

Tom steered on. A squall arose. The sea became rough. The storm raged. Tom was perplexed. The ship struck an unseen rock, was broken up, and poor Tom, with nearly all on board, perished. Self-conceit and wilfulness ruined him, and others with him.

Children don't be like Tom, There are many things unknown to you, but understood by your elders. Let them teach you. Be docile. Let your seniors guide you. You need to be piloted. Invite your parents to take the helm for you. Above all, you need Jesus, the great pilot of souls, to direct you. Give him the helm of your heart—your will—and he will steer you safe into heaven. Will you?

AN AWFUL STORY.

There was once an awful little girl who had an awful way of saying "awful" to every thing. She lived in an awful house, in an awful street, in an awful village, which was an awful distance from every other awful place. She went to an awful school, where she had an awful teacher, who gave her awful lessons out of awful books. Every day she was so awful hungry that she ate an awful amount of food, so that she looked awful healthy. Her hat was awful small, and her feet were awful large. She went to an awful church, and her minister was an awful preacher. When she took an awful walk she climbed awful hills, and when she got awful tired she sat down under an awful tree to rest herself. In summer, she found the weather awful hot, and in winter awful cold. When it didn't rain there was an awful drought, and when the awful drought was over there was an awful rain. So that this awful girl was all the time in an awful state, and if she don't get over saying "awful" about everything, I am afraid she will, by and by, come to an awful end.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance....................$2.50 a year
Five copies six months to one address.......$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies six months to one address......$10.00.
Same rate for any number over ten.
CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage in the United States on each single copy of the Crisis is 20 cts. a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

Over all matters not intended for publication, write—PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write—BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write—For the Crisis.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's NAME, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of NEW subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, please write PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
☞ All persons writing to the office should give distinctly and plainly the POST OFFICE, COUNTY and STATE at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM,
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS.
PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

Single copy, 50 cts. a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cts. a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cts. a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.